The Oregon Kidney Tea!

Read the following testimonials, not from persons 3,000 miles away, whom no one knows, but from well-known and trustworthy citizens of Oregon, whose names, written in their own hands, can be seen at our office:
 GOLDENDALE, W. T., March 31, 1880.
 I have had the diabetes for thirty years.
 Have had many physicians prescribe for me,
 but failed to get relief. I tried the Oregon Kidney Tea, and the first dose gave me relief. I am now almost well, and would recommend it to anyone suffering from this case. MUSES PIKE.

The High Water of 1880

Did not reach a point equal to that of 1876, but it was high enough to do a deal of damage. Time, however, will repair this, but time only makes worse every case of disease of the kidneys and urinary organs which a box of Oregon Kidney Tea would cure. Sold by all Druggists.

Notice.

NOTICE is hereby given, that all persons are forbidden to furnish GOODS, Etc., to the Puget Sound Iron Co., except upon an order from the Superintendent.

COMMERCIAL STATISTICS REGARD- ING PUGET SOUND.

The following recently published in Washington D. C., may be of interest to our readers, and shows that the magnitude of our commerce is beginning to be understood abroad:
 During the year ending June 30th, 1878, 108 vessels—69 sailing and 39
 steam,—were documented at Port Townsend, the Port of entry of Puget Sound Collection District, with a carrying capacity of over 31,000 tons; this tonnage is only exceeded by 28 of the 125 Collection Districts of the United States. It exceeds the shipping of more than one half of the States in the Union, considered separately. (See American Almanac for 1879, compiled by Ainsworth R. Spofford, p. 226.)

In 1880 the same authority gives the number of vessels in the Puget Sound District as 116, with a tonnage of 29,954. (See p. 63, American Almanac for 1880.)

The tonnage of American vessels
 in the foreign trade, which entered
 and cleared at this port during the year ending June 30th, 1878, is as follows: Entered 263 vessels, tonnage, 152,828; cleared 284 vessels, tonnage, 167,178. This exceeds that of such vessels so entered and cleared during the same time at 120 of the 125 ports of entry of the United States, being only exceeded by those entered and cleared at Boston, Charleston, New York, Detroit, and San Francisco. (Report of
 Chief of Bureau of Statistics 1878, Part 3, pp. 802-4.)

The tonnage of Foreign vessels,
 in the foreign trade which entered
 and cleared at this port during the year ending June 30th, 1878, were as follows: Entered 46 vessels, tonnage, 19,915; cleared 61 vessels,
 tonnage, 30,962;—this is exceeded by that of such vessels entered and cleared during that time in but 31 of the 125 ports of entry of the United States. (See Part II, Report of
 Chief of Bureau of Statistics, pages 807, 808.)

The tonnage of American ocean
 steam vessels in the foreign trade,
 which were entered and cleared at
 said port during said time was—entered 178 vessels, tonnage, 130,471;
 cleared, 183 vessels, tonnage, 131, 432; this is exceeded by that of such vessels so entered and cleared at only 2 other ports of entry in the United States, viz: New York and San Francisco—See Ibidem, p. 811.
 (In numbers of vessels of this class
 New York alone exceeds Port Townsend.)

The tonnage of Foreign ocean
 steam vessels in the foreign trade
 which were entered and cleared at Port Townsend Custom House during the year ending June 30th, 1878,
 is exceeded by that of such vessels entered and cleared during the same time at but ten other ports in the United States.—See Ibidem.

It is estimated that there are employed in the Puget Sound trade at least 75 deep sea vessels, in the general coasting trade which are enrolled and licensed, thus not rendering it necessary to make entry or clearance at this custom house. One third of these vessels only are documented in the Puget Sound District;
 nearly all the remainder are documented at San Francisco.

DURING the year ending June 30,
 last, the exports from the Province of British Columbia amounted in value to $2,560,050. The article of chief export was gold, $964,484;
 and the article of second value coal, $700,142. Fish, lumber and flour, come after gold and coal. The agricultural products exported were valued at only $3,813, and the manufactures at $100.

Mr. B. B. Hayes has had twenty years of the most honorable and distinguished public service. Since 1870 he has been four years in the army as a Colonel and a General; he has been six years in Congress as a Representative; six years he was Governor of the great State of Ohio,
 and four years (ending next March)
 President of the United States.

WHILE the Democrats are exposing the ruin of Republican rule, gold continues to flow into the ruined country at the rate of five million dollars a week, and business is booming as never before. Four more years of such rule and ruin are earnestly prayed for by the mercantile classes of the whole country.

THE Seattle & Walla Walla railroad was recently sold to Henry Villard, of New York, for $350,000 in gold, payable in three equal installments, viz: on the 11th day of November, December and January next. Seattle people are happy.

Platform of Resolutions.

The following resolutions were presented to the Territorial Republican Convention by the Committee on Resolutions,
 and were unanimously adopted:

RESOLVED, That we unanimously adopt the declaration of principles as embraced in the Chicago platform of the national Republican party.

RESOLVED, That we heartily indorse
 the present administration of the general government, and that we believe that potentiality will award to it the honor of being one of the purest in the history of our country.

RESOLVED, That we favor the early admission of our territory into the sisterhood of states, and our delegate is hereby instructed to use all proper means to secure the same.

RESOLVED, That we regard the unrestricted immigration of the Chinese into the United States as a very grave evil, which should receive the prompt attention of congress and the treaty making powers of the United States, and we favor the speedy modification of our present treaty with China in order that the said immigration, which works so peculiar a hardship to the people of this coast, may be restrained and limited.

RESOLVED, That the opening of our rivers and the removal of obstructions to navigation is not only of local but national importance, and our delegate should endeavor to secure liberal congressional appropriations to aid and encourage the same.

RESOLVED, That we favor the abandonment of our present Indian policy, believing that, while some good results therefrom, yet "evils do much more abound,"
 and we ask such legislation as will place them on the same footing as other citizens; secure them in the enjoyment of the same rights and privileges only, and make them amenable to the same laws.
 That we deprecate the colonization of Indians from abroad within the limits of the territory, and heartily approve the efforts of our delegate in endeavoring to prevent the same.

RESOLVED, That we hereby endorse the administration of E. P. Ferry, as governor of this territory, during the past eight years for its wisdom and economy in the management of public affairs.

FINE OPPORTUNITY.—We have a stocked farm for sale, not far from a good local market, in Jefferson county. To those who may be seeking investments of this kind, we deem the opportunity a rare one. The farm is situated on the salt water front, in a safe and commodious bay; it comprises 133 acres of land, about 40 acres of which is fine bottom and marsh. About 52 acres are clear and under fence. Good house, barn, outbuildings, fences, &c., &c., that cost upwards of a thousand dollars.
 There are about 175 fruit trees of various kinds, carefully and well selected, and including apple, plum, pear, cherry, prune and other trees
 —some 7 years old and all in excellent condition. A fine lot of stock and tools are also for sale with the land and improvement, including 10 cows, 1 yoke of oxen; 1 horse,
 8 head of young stock (half Jersey) also bees, fowls, boat, etc. The place has a cash income of $50 per year from a logging camp, besides being near a good market for butter, eggs, beef, vegetables, hay or other produce. The whole property is offered very cheap—could be bought for less than $2,000—and possession will be given immediately if desired.
 The owner, on account of failing health, desires to engage in some lighter occupation. For particulars, enquire at the ARGUS office.

 relief. The waters of this lake, however, cannot begin to cure backache and all diseases of the kidneys and urinary organs
 as does the Oregon Kidney Tea. Sold

OFFICIAL PAPER OF JEFFERSON COUNTY.

ALLEN WEBB, Editor and Proprietor

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 22, 1880.

TELEGRAPHIC.

KANTERN STATES.

Costumes Seized.

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—The scenery and dresses for the new opera, "Mephistopheles," arrived from Europe by steamer last week and have been stored by the costumes authorities, to await payment of duties, which are estimated at over $500. Manager Macleeson refuses to pay the duties.

A Fatal Accident.

CHICAGO, Oct. 9.—A dispatch to the Chicago Tribune from La Crosse, gives information of one Joseph Maher, a farmer, who, while returning from La Crosse, with his wife, in their farm wagon, threw a lighted match carelessly into the straw in the bottom of his wagon bed. The flame caught their clothing, and a strong wind burning at the time caused the straw to burn furiously. Before either of the parties could escape from the wagon their clothing was completely destroyed and Maher fatally burned. His wife received terrible injury. The wagon was entirely consumed.

Industrial Exposition.

CINCINNATI, Oct. 9.—The eighth industrial exposition closed to-day, having been visited by 300,000 persons. The art museum now has a fund of $311,000. Mr. Chas. W. West having given $150,000.

Train Collision.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Oct. 9.—The Wells accommodation train to-night collided with a special from Granburg, at Twentieth street. Twenty-one deaths have resulted from injuries received by the accident.

Western Union Election.

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—The Green party are hopeful of carrying the election by a large majority, claiming a certainty of 210,000 of the 410,000 shares.

Census Correct.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9.—The report of Superintendent Walker on the alleged census frauds in South Carolina has been furnished. The report says the census of 1870 was incorrect, and the one just taken shows no evidence of fraud or over enumeration.

Three More Deaths.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Oct. 11.—At midnight three more deaths were reported, the result of injuries received at the Twentieth street railroad accident, making a total of twenty-four. The names of two are Ella Hetzel and Charles Black. The other is a man, name unknown.

Will Not Touch at Mexican Ports.

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—The Pacific Mail Steamship Company have decided to discontinue the regular calls of their steamers at Mexican ports because of the failure of the Mexican Government to pay the regular subsidy. The Colima left Panama on the 24 inst. and will not call at any port between San Jose de Guatemala and San Francisco.

Boys Killed.

HUNTINGTON, Pa., Oct. 11.—John Crum and son, together with another boy, attempted to walk through Spruce creek tunnel, were run over by the Pacific express train, bound east, and instantly killed.

Row in Indianapolis.

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 12.—In a billiard hall near the Dampson House, two Philadelphia youths had a desperate fight. One of them, named Charles Henry, was knocked down and kicked in the face. The blood spurted over the billiard table. McGraw's assault, was expressed by the police. Henry escaped through a back alley, but he was pursued by other roughs with pistols. They fired three shots at him. One bullet struck him in the back of the head and entered his brain. He still shows signs of life, but cannot live long. Great excitement was caused through some one reporting that a policeman had killed a Democrat, and a crowd assembled at the spot in a moment. A great row appeared imminent for a time, but the citizens succeeded in preventing it. The streets are filled with imported roughs and bullies.

Indiana Elections.

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 13.—Republican State Central Committee claim the election of Porter by from 2,000 to 3,000. Democratic State Central Committee concede election of Porter and claim balance of ticket by a respectable majority. Assigned reason for Rander's defeat is that he was freely scratched by the working men of the State who disliked him.

Lively Ward Row.

CINCINNATI, Oct. 13.—In the eighth ward the Republicans asked the aid of the police in order to give each party an equal chance at the polls. Two men assaulted a policeman and tore his clothes when he called for help and the two assailants were arrested. The crowd then overpowered the police and rescued the men. On the arrival of reinforcements matters became quiet. Extraordinary care to preserve peace had been taken. Sheriff Webber organized a force of aids at each polling place with authority to make arrests, which was not recognized, their prisoners not being received at the station. James Callum, one of the arrested parties, has sued the sheriff for damages, saying them at $2,000.

The Inter-Oceanic Canal.

NEW YORK, Oct. 13.—J. B. P. DeKlar, hydrographer to the Bureau of Navigation, writes to Admiral Ammen about the percentage of variable calms and winds prevailing off the coast of Nicaragua and the Bay of Panama. Two thousand three hundred and fifty-three observations made at Panama and 1,758 off the coast of Nicaragua show the percentage to be greatly in favor of the latter. Vessels coming out the bay will be obliged to make 600 miles through variable winds and calms before reaching a desirable western position.

Perukya Registration.

Forty-eight thousand and seventy-eight voters registered to-day, making a total in two days of 91,700 against 71,516 for first two days of 1878.

Wires Down—Republican Gains, Etc.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 14.—The wires between Cheyenne and Laramie are still down. The Chronicle ordered, but could not obtain special telegrams. The engine which drew the passenger train was delayed. Up to 8 o'clock P. M. yesterday, San Francisco time, the dispatches from Ohio give gains of six Republican Congressmen. Some estimate Porter's majority at 10,000. The Legislature of Indiana has gone Republican and a gain of one Senator is insured. The next House will have nine Republicans and four Democrats. It has now six and six, with one Greenbacker. The Louisville Courier-Journal's Indianapolis correspondent puts the Republican majority in the State at 2,000; net Republican gain since 1876 in 15 wards in Indianapolis, 2,169. The Chicago Tribune says: "The people of Ohio and Indiana remembered how Lee and Stonewall Jackson would have voted if living, and they have voted accordingly."

West Virginia Returns.

WHEELING, Oct. 14.—The returns from West Virginia are coming in slowly. Wheeling gives large Republican gains both in city and county. Indications show a largely increased vote. Sturgis is ahead in Kanawha county. A Greenback county ticket will probably be elected.

Orth Re-Elected.

Orth has been re-elected to Congress, notwithstanding the Democratic legislature gerrymandered the district to ensure his defeat.

The Election in Ohio.

CLEVELAND, Oct. 14.—At 2 o'clock A. M. yesterday, everything indicated that the Republicans had swept the State.

Advance in U. S. Bonds.

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—United States bonds have advanced 1/4 to 1 per cent.

Reception of Grant at Boston.

BOSTON, Oct. 13.—Gen. Grant was given a collision and reception at Mechanics' hall to-day. He made a speech remarking that he was glad when he heard the result of the elections, and spoke of Mexico saying there was a grand field there for enterprise.

Died.

Ex U. S. Senator Peleg Sprague died this morning.

Democracy in Rhode Island.

PROVIDENCE, Oct. 13.—The Democratic State convention met to-day, and nominated Presidential electors. Isaac Lawrence was nominated for Congress from the first district.

Large Republican Gains.

CHICAGO, Oct. 15.—A special from Cleveland to the Inter-Ocean, states that five counties in Garfield's district give a gain of 1,600, which is eight more than Foster received in 1879.

Loss and Gain.

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—A special from Indianapolis to the New York Times says that English lost 88 votes and Landers 99 votes in their own wards. Porter gained 99 in his ward.

A Close Count.

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 15.—Latest returns from 85 counties give a net Republican majority of 6,889. There are six counties to hear from, all but one being Democratic, which in 1876 gave a Democratic majority of 1,566. If no change is made, this gives the Republicans a majority of 6,325 on the State ticket. The contest in the 5th district is very close, and it will require the official count to determine the result. If the Republicans get this, it gives them nine Congressmen. The Legislature will probably stand: Senate—25 Republicans, 25 Democrats; House—58 Republicans, 43 Democrats.

Porter Does Not Lead the Ticket.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 15.—An Indianapolis dispatch to the Chronicle says that Porter does not lead the ticket. Elliot for Supreme Judge is ahead. In one or two cases the majorities have dropped to eight and twelve hundred. The average majority is 2,000.

Outrage Upon Suffrage.

A special to the Examiner from Cincinnati says of the negro vote in Indiana and Ohio that such an outrage on the suffrage of those States was never before known. The city Republican majorities were cast before 8 o'clock Tuesday morning. In November the States that contain negro voters cannot vote them in New York and Cincinnati the same day, and a change will be seen.

England is said to have received declarations from all the powers that they are prepared to assent to her proposal to seize some place in the archipelago, and the commanders of fleets are instructed to depart within forty-eight hours for a new destination. The Sultan declares he would rather abdicate than yield to the wishes of the powers.

Terrible State of Affairs in Ireland.

DUBLIN, Oct. 13.—At the Ballyduff Land League meeting yesterday the greatest excitement prevailed during the speeches. The government was denounced. Some reporters were detected on the platform and thrown violently on the ground. Attempts were made to rescue them, when a general riot ensued and the speaker ceased speaking. Neither he nor the officers of the meeting made any serious effort to maintain order and prevent bloodshed. Several shots were fired, but none resulted fatally. The constabulary rescued the reporters and formed a ring around them, presenting fifteen bayonets. The reporters continued taking notes. Members of the League present deny that the assault had been arranged. P. J. Smythe, member of Parliament from Westmeath, writes about the Land League circulating malicious and blasphemous publications, quoting from a pamphlet distributed by thousands by the League advocating a scheme to destroy public buildings in London. Numerous titled landlords are fleeing their estates in fear of their lives.

A Lonely Grave.

That afternoon I found something I had never seen before—a little grave alone in a wide pasture which had once been a field. The nearest house was at least two miles away, but by hunting for it I found a very old cellar, where the child's home must have been, not very far off, along the slope. It must have been a great many years ago that the house had stood there; and the small slate head stone was worn away by the rain and wind, so there was nothing to be read, if indeed there had been any letters on it. It had looked many a storm in the face, and many a red sunset. I suppose the woods near by had grown and been cut, and grown again since it was put there. There was an old sweet-brier bush growing on the short little grave, and in the grass underneath I found a ground-sparrow's nest. It was like a little neighborhood, and I have felt ever since as if I belonged to it; and I wondered then if one of the young ground-sparrows was not always sent to take the nest when the old ones were done with it, so they came back in the spring year after year to live there, and there were always the stone and the sweetbrier bush and the birds to remember the child. It was such a lonely place in that wide field under the great sky, and yet it was so comfortable too; but the sight of the little grave at first touched me strangely, and I tried to picture to myself the procession that came out from the house the day of the funeral, and I thought of the mother in the evening after all the people had gone home, and how she missed the baby, and kept seeing the new grave out here in the twilight as she went about her work. I suppose the family moved away, and so all the rest were buried elsewhere.

I often think of this place, and I link it in my thoughts with something I saw once in the water when I was out at sea; a little boat that some child had lost, that had drifted down the river and out to sea; too long a voyage, for it was a sad little wreck, with even its whitesail of a handsbreadth half under water, and its twine rigging trailing astern. It was a silly little boat, and no less, except to its owner, to whom it had seemed as brave and proud a thing as any ship of the line to you and me. It was a shipwreck of his small hopes, I suppose, and I can see it now, the toy of the great winds and waves, as it floated on its way, while I sailed on mine, out of sight of land.

The little grave is forgotten by every body but me, I think; the mother must have found the child again in heaven a very long time ago; but in the winter I shall wonder if the snow has covered it well, and next year I shall go to see the sweetbrier bush when it is in bloom. God knows what use that life was, the grave is such a short one, and nobody knows whose little child it was; but perhaps a thousand people in the world to-day are better because it brought a little love into the world that was not there before.—From "An Autumn Holiday," by SARAH O. JEWETT, in Harper's Magazine for October.

An Hawaiian Heroine.

Passing along King street last week we noticed a gathering of natives, in the center of which was a middle-aged man of rather sickly aspect, and a girl of some 16 or 18 years. Drawing near we found it was one of those who had been washed overboard from the Waioli, and the girl was his daughter. He was relating his experience while overboard, about an hour and a half. When thrown into the sea the man had on heavy sea boots and thick clothing. After swimming awhile he began to find it difficult to keep above water and told his daughter that he must soon give up, his heavy boots would sink him. She encouraged him to persevere and she would try and rid him of the boots; she then dove beneath him, and after several attempts actually succeeded in removing his heavy boots, which, of course, fitted very loosely. She dove again and removed his heavy woolen pants, which impeded his swimming, and then assisted him in getting off his pea jacket. Thus lightened he was able to keep his head above water until the vessel's boat came along and picked them up. Was not this an Hawaiian heroine?

"Alcohol will clean silver." Yes, alcohol, well stuck to, will clean all the silver you have—out of you pocket.

A Printer's Travels.

Wednesday night Thomas H. Archer, a man about 28 years of age, was a lodger at the Central police station, and the fact that he had made a tour nearly around the world during the past four years made the penniless tourist an object of interest.

Archer was poorly dressed, although his clothes were clean and whole through much patching. His stock of under-clothing consisted of a blue flannel undershirt which he wore and a checked woolen shirt which he carried in the pocket of a light overcoat. The young man is a Scotchman and printer by trade, so he asserted—and speaks English, German and French well enough to make himself understood in ordinary conversation.

In August, 1876, he left San Francisco, with about $50 in his pocket, as steward on a sailing ship bound for Tokio, but a dispute caused him to leave the ship at the Sundwich Islands, where he went to work in the office of the Honolulu Gazette. A month's stay there sufficed, and the tramp printer engaged a hostler to help take care of a stable of 30 horses that were being shipped to Melbourne. His stay in Australia lasted nearly a year, during which time he walked through the various provinces and visited the "bush," until in the Fall of 1877 he shipped on a coasting vessel at Hobart Town, and for several months was knocked about the West Indies until shipwrecked he, with several others, were picked up by a merchantman and was taken to the Suez canal, when a desire to remain on terra firma caused him to stop sailing, and from Egypt he traveled as servant to English travelers, and as a vagabond, through the Holy Land, and at last brought up at Constantinople. In this way Archer went up the Danube, and during the Summer of 1875 was a sailor before the mast on the Baltic Sea. In the Fall he traveled overland and most of the way on to Geneva and Rome, whence he sailed to Genoa and made his way then to Madrid and at last arrived in Paris in March, 1879.

After working as a printer in job offices several weeks, Archer earned enough money to pay his way to London, where he worked in various capacities until in July he sailed from Liverpool to Havana, from which city he sailed to Charleston, S. C., where he arrived about a year ago. Since that time Archer has tramped through most of the Eastern States, and has got this far on his way toward San Francisco. He claimed to have an engagement to go to Springfield, Ill., with a drover, and expected to leave the city last evening.

When asked if he had experienced any real hard times, Archer said: "I suppose you would call it hard to go 24 hours without food, but I may have done that many times and it didn't hurt me, and I have lived weeks at a time without clean clothes except as I would wash my own shirt and wear my coat buttoned closely while it was drying." He said further that such little conveniences as stockings, collars, cuffs and handkerchiefs never entered his thoughts. Archer had the appearance of being a temperate man, and used good language in conversation.

Snow Shoeing in Norway.

Of all the bodily exercises I know of, there is none, in my opinion, that can come up to snow shoeing, as it is done in Norway. Skating is nothing compared to this sport. What can equal the splendid sensation of flying across the deep snow at the rate of many miles an hour, without hardly moving a muscle? And then, going down hill, stiff in hand, no exertion necessary, other than to keep the balance, while gliding softly but swiftly onward. Unlike the Canadian snow shoes, these Shi (pronounced shee) of the Norwegians are often fully twelve feet long, curving upward at the prow, and are not broader than three to four inches. Throughout their whole length they are provided with a groove for the purpose of keeping them from slipping when going at an angle down hill. Although by no means slow when used across level ground, it is yet down-hill that they are most effective, for their great length and their polished under-surface on the frozen snow causes a speed more like flying than any motion I know of. The inhabitants of Telemarken, in the south of Norway, are the most efficient ski runners; and at the annual competitions at Christiania, generally bear off the prizes. At the competition there in 1879, one of these men leaped, according to a local newspaper, a distance of thirty Norwegian alen, or fully sixty feet!

While the weather-gauge manufacturer was charging the glass bulbs with mercury, his children intently watched thermometer supper. The copyright on this awe-inspiring pun is double-rotated.

Schwatka.

We left Back's river behind the last day of the year and made about seven miles in a southeast direction, and encamped and stopped to hunt, the last halt we made for that purpose.

We followed the tracks about 25 miles and only desisted when we found that the wolves were ahead of us and had already frightened the game away.

January proved the coldest month of our experience, with a mean thermometer of -53.2 degrees, lowest -71 degrees, and the highest -23 degrees Fahrenheit.

It was almost our daily experience now to lose one or more dogs. They got plenty of reindeer meat, but it was usually fed frozen, and has but little nourishment in it in that state for cold weather.

The country now began to swarm with wolves as well as reindeer, and we would meet them daily.

They killed and ate four of Equeisk's dogs, and attacked him when he went out of the igloo to drive them off.

the sinew digested the whole bone would open out and produce the most agonizing death.

Toolooah was out hunting on the 23d of February, when a pack of about 20 wolves attacked him.

The Moon's Force.

After getting somewhat accustomed to the greatness and strength of a bar of solid steel 16 1/2 ft. square, imagine one which is one mile square, 5,280 ft. wide and as many thick.

As I shall have frequent occasion to speak of the load which such a bar could sustain, I shall, for convenience, call it in round numbers 240,000,000,000 tons, neglecting the other figures.

We begin with the moon because it is nearest to us, and, with the exception of the sun, is to us the most important of all the heavenly bodies.

If a half dozen persons were asked how large the moon appears, they would give as many different replies: "The size of a cart wheel," "Twelve inches across," "The size of a dining plate," "As big as a man's head," etc.

But he would have no hesitation in saying "Impossible" if told that, rather than change its course from a straight line to its present curve, our willful little satellite would snap like pack-thread not one, nor two, nor three of those unit bars, but the united strength of 10,000—or, in other words, one gigantic bar whose section is 100 miles square.

The non-astronomical reader may, perhaps, need to be reminded that the moon does not move easily and naturally in a circle—or ellipse—but that the path, as it were, would be a straight line—a tangent to her orbit.

The passage from the New Testament, "It is easier for a camel," etc., has perplexed many good men, who have read it literally.

In three of the London clubs ladies are admitted as members, and in three others, the Orleans, Twickenham and Salisbury, they may be invited as guests.

An Independent Press.

Mr. Smith used to live in a small town in the interior of Texas which we will call Smithville, but he moved to Galveston a few years ago and is now a resident of this city.

"You get the Torpedo regularly, I suppose?" said Bangs.

After a pause Smith said: "I saw in the last number of the Torpedo that Jones, the proprietor of the Smithville Hotel, has fitted it up new, and now it is superior in all particulars to any hotel this side of New York."

The faith of Smith in the reliability of the Torpedo had received somewhat of a shock, but he hoped it was an exceptional case.

After awhile Smith said: "I am glad to see that Major Snooks is going to sweep that section of the State at the next election. I read in the Torpedo of the magnificent ovation given him."

"Why, how did you come to make such a false statement in your paper?" "Didn't I tell you that he paid for it as an advertisement? He is going to use it as a campaign document."

Smith began to think that the Smithville Torpedo was not furnishing him with so much local information after all. He determined, therefore, not to mention any other item of news he had gleaned from its columns.

"But I never saw that mentioned at all in the Torpedo," said Smith.

"That's all right," responded the unblinking editor; "it is not likely to enlighten the public any more, anyhow. That partner I mentioned is the sheriff. I am open to an engagement. Couldn't you secure me a position as a Galveston street car driver?"

PUGET SOUND ARGUS.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF JEFFERSON CO
FRIDAY, OCTOBER 22, 1880.

A FEW FACTS.

In last week's "Press," Dr. H. C. Willison, of this place, had an editorial inserted slurring the ARGUS and endeavoring to leave the impression that Dr. Minor is the real editor and owner of this paper. To those who fully understand the facts and circumstances of the case, there is nothing remarkable in the attempt of our festive friend to thus impose upon the public an unjust and untruthful insinuation. No one is deceived by this ostrich-like trick, unless it be through ignorance. The Doctor may think he can hide his head under such a thin disguise and be effectually concealed from view, but the display becomes all the more conspicuous because of the attempted deception. He is simply adopting the tactics of the cuttle fish that darkens the water with an inky discharge, when pursued, to avoid capture. The incident mentioned in the opening of this article, however, suggests the propriety of briefly stating a few plain though perhaps unwholesome truths, apropos to the occasion.

It is a fact that Dr. Minor does not own a cent's worth in the ARGUS, and has no connection with it whatever, editorially or otherwise, and that he does not write for it any more than does Dr. Willison. The latter gentleman knows this, but seemingly does not scruple to insinuate otherwise when he wishes to divert attention from his own ownership of the "Press" and the fact that he is author and dictator generally of many of its editorial utterances. It is a fact that Dr. Willison was a member of the Democratic convention of this county, that he was a delegate from it to the Territorial Democratic convention, also to the district convention which nominated a Joint Representative, that he sent his proxy to the district convention, had his name presented there as a candidate for the nomination for Joint Representative, had his own vote cast for himself and only received one vote in addition thereto. It is also a fact that he afterwards bolted the regularly nominated party ticket and announced himself as an independent candidate for Representative, although he had assisted in making all the nominations, and is a member of the county committee of his party besides. Now, we would like to know who it is that is so thirsty for political honor? Talk about "have vent or bust," indeed! It is a fact that Dr. Willison is the author not only of the article we have mentioned, in last week's "Press," but of the article in the same issue of that paper, containing such fulsome laudation of himself. Evidently he does not depend on others to administer "caffa" to him, but performs that duty himself.

We can furnish proof of our assertions made herein, whenever and wherever necessary. Besides this, we have more rods in pickle for our friend, to be used any time we may find occasion for them.

PROF. Francis and wife are in town.

LAST Friday evening Mr. W. R. Andrews, the Democratic nominee for Prosecuting Attorney, delivered a political address in this place, in behalf of Mr. Burke. The speech was conspicuous on account of what it left unsaid. The important issues in the campaign were either entirely ignored or slurred over with a weak and sophistical argument about the two parties occupying about the same grounds. Mr. Andrews is a clever talker, and were his premises correct, his arguments would be convincing. Were Mr. Brents really as inefficient in the capacity of Delegate as Andrews would have us believe, and were Mr. Burke really the exalted and able statesman the speaker would picture him, and were there really no important issues at stake between the two parties, then the labored metaphysical dissertation of our friend would have some weight. But in view of the able and creditable service of Mr. Brents in Congress, and, in view of the peculiar circumstances that came so near placing friend Andrews on the ticket with Mr. Brents, and sending him out to make an aggressive campaign in favor of the latter gentleman, all this soft solder and dove tailed rhetoric becomes as insipid as any other campaign bosh ever invented. Indeed, could the speaker have understood and appreciated the feeling of pity that moved his hearers, his innate self respect would have impelled him to kick himself round the block for ever placing himself in so awkward a position.

THE editor of the "Press" has certainly "bitten off more than he can chew" in this campaign. He has ostensibly undertaken to get elected to the legislature, write the most of the campaign articles in his paper (especially those laudatory of himself) and doctor all his patients besides. His task is one involving a descent into the lowest depths of infamy occupied by political demagogues. The result will, if he has any pride left, make him feel small enough to crawl through a gimlet hole.

SNEAKED OUT.—Last Friday evening, at the close of Mr. Andrews' meeting in this place, Mr. Kuhn was called on for a little speech. He arose and told how his nomination for Joint Representative was made, claiming that he had been misrepresented by the "Press," and asking that Frank Myers, who was present, would explain the matter. Myers sneaked out while Joe. was talking, and could not be found when called for.

With two democratic candidates in the field, Mr. Moor's chances of being elected are certainly very good—especially as the district has a fair republican majority.

Mr. James McDougall, chief engineer on the Wolcott, has been transferred to an eastern station. He and his estimable wife left this place on Tuesday, enroute for New York.

FRANK Hastings is making a thorough and careful canvass of the county. He is favorably received everywhere, and will poll a large vote. In fact, he is almost certain of being elected our next sheriff.

A PARTY of ladies went from this place to Port Discovery last Friday, remaining there until Sunday. A portion of the party also attended a dance over there, and all expressed their pleasure after returning home.

THE "Press," by a "communication," wants to know why we don't publish certain resolutions passed by the Republican county convention. This communication(?) is doubtless one of the bogus kind that Myers told our sheriff he would publish laudatory of the latter if hired to support him in the campaign. However, we will say that we did not receive the minutes of the convention till they were about two weeks old, and that we did not deem the resolutions of sufficient importance to publish them. We are ready and willing, though, to insert them at any time yet if the county committee thinks best so to do. In our humble opinion the resolutions would not hinder bolters from following out their inclinations, and besides, the true principle is to nominate a ticket that will be supported on its merits alone. Such a ticket the republicans of this county have. What more will be asked?

A PARABLE.

RESPECTFULLY DEDICATED TO W. E. ANDREWS. In a little plain house in the town of LaConner. Some negroes had gathered to worship the Lord: And after the service they had a class meeting. That each for the Master might utter a word. Their leader exhorted, and spoke of the warfare Which Christians should wage against error always; And finished by asking the following question "Which way is your musket a pintin' today?" One after another they gave their experience; Some brothers were happy, some lukewarm or cold; One saw his way clear to the portals of glory, Another had strayed like a lamb from the fold, At last Brother Andrews—a renegade member, And Satan's compass for many a day— Arose, cleared his throat, though visibly nervous, He folded his arms and proceeded to say: "Dear brothers and sisters, I once was a Christian, I once was as happy as any one here: I fit for de church like a battle-scarred soldier, And stood by her banners when traitors were near."

"Hold on, dar," the leader excitedly shouted: "Please answer the question I asked you a day or two ago: Which way is your musket a pintin' today?" "I've given you credit for all you fit den, str— Which way is your musket a pintin' today?" The Democrats talk of the glory of Hancock, And boast of the record of English as well; They give them due honor; for Judas was loyal, Till money was offered; he took it and fell. I would liken their boast to the boast of young Andrews. And then, with the class-leader honestly say: "Hold on, dar, my brudder, dat isn't the question: Which way is your musket a pintin' today?" "Which way is your musket a pintin' today?" shall men who are training with Brigadier Generals, Who fought to destroy our national flag, And rise from their seats in the Forty-sixth Congress, To eulogize traitors like Davis or Beauregard, shall men who bow down in Confederate caucus, And worship the masters they humbly obey, shall they rule the nation by Washington founded? "Which way is their muskets a pintin' today?" The question, my friends, is of vital importance; The nation is waiting in anxious suspense; Each voter can wield a political musket, Then wield it I ask, in your country's defense. The issue before us is clear and unclouded; Shall the nation be ruled by the Elite, or the Gray? I can't tell, fellow-soldier and voter, "Which way is your musket a pintin' today?"

Messrs. Schwabacher Bros. & Co., of Seattle, are now offering an immense stock of ladies' fancy goods, clothing, gents' furnishing goods, hats, caps, boots, shoes, &c., at cost [this is a mammoth firm, doing business on a grand scale, and when they say cost they mean that and nothing else. Their advertisement is found regularly in the ARGUS, and their reputation is such that we need merely to mention their present clearance sale, to put our readers on the track of rare bargains.

Messrs. Ballard and Andrews left this place on the Dispatch last Saturday morning enroute for Saukum county where they intended to do some canvassing. Mr. Ballard is sure of his own election, but is meeting some appointments that Mr. Brents unavoidably missed during its tour of the Sound.

"In Politics."

Six months ago young Cauliflower suddenly conceived the idea that it would be far more profitable to hold a political office than to put in the long hours and take the moderate salary of a bookkeeper, and he spoke to several of his personal friends about it. They agreed that he would make a good police court clerk.

"You are capable and honest," said one.

"You are respectable and have good standing," said another.

"The public ought to be glad to get such a man for the place," added a third.

The fourth was an old man. He crooked his finger and drew Cauliflower aside and said:

"It's all right, but you'd better go and see Bones."

"Who's Bones?"

"Why, he's laying pipes to be elected Alderman of the ward. You want to fix him in advance. Don't let the grass grow under your feet, but go and see Bones."

Young Cauliflower saw Bones. He was a man with a red nose and lots of bad grammar. His coat was out at the elbows and his manner was worse, but he was in with "the boys" and felt sure of a nomination. He listened to what young Cauliflower had to say, and then replied:

"All very well to say that you can bring recommends as to your capability and honesty, but can you fix Ginsling? Ginsling is down on me because I didn't help him to get the ward chairmanship, and he must be fixed or I may lose the nomination. What can you do?"

"But Ginsling is a loafer," replied Cauliflower.

"Certainly he is; but how can we get office without the help of loafers? If you will secure his pledge to support me, I'll give a pledge to support you. If you want the place, don't delay an hour about seeing Ginsling."

Young Cauliflower started out and found Ginsling. His nose was of a deeper red than Bones', and he had a black eye to make the contrast more marked.

"Yes, I'm down on old Bones,"—him?" he replied. "He's no patriot. He doesn't care a cent for his country. He'd see the glorious constitution torn to shreds, and spit on, before he'd raise a hand. I'll tell you what I'll do, though. I want to be a Justice of the Peace. I don't know any more about law than a chicken does about astronomy, but I know enough to decide in favor of the plaintiff, and that's all that is expected of a Justice;—me if it isn't."

"Well, you go to Brandywine, who also wants to be a Justice, and get him to pledge that he will withdraw in my favor, and I'll pledge to support Bones."

"But Brandywine is in jail for assaulting a man," protested Cauliflower.

"No he isn't—he got out this morning. Can't promise you anything until he is out of the way. If I were you I'd see him at once. You'll find him somewhere down on the Potomac."

Young Cauliflower dodged in and out of saloons and dives and dens, and by-and-by he found Brandywine and stated his case.

"Withdraw in his favor, I'll see him—Y first?" roared Brandywine in reply. "Ginsling is a loafer, sir, and he would disgrace the office. Besides that, he once split the ticket, and I can prove that he once sold his vote for three dollars. I'll never compromise with him—never."

Young Cauliflower had been told what to say to this, and pretty soon Brandywine cooled down and said:

"Perhaps it is my duty as a pure and consistent patriot to withdraw, but if I do I must have the Eastern bay scales as a reward. A young fellow named Smasher is after the place, but you go and see old Rainbow. Rainbow can sit down on Smasher, and if he will do it I will give his son a place under me. Now, then, old Bones pledges you. Ginsling pledges Bones and I pledge Ginsling, old Rainbow pledges me, and we work the thing harmoniously. Go and see Rainbow."

Young Cauliflower went out to find him. Rainbow was willing to sit down on Smasher, but then the son was the trouble.

"He was sent to the workhouse yesterday in default of $50 fine," he explained, "and you will, of course, hand over the money to get him out. We can't run this ward without my son; and if this ward isn't pledged you won't be police court clerk."

Cauliflower went back to his desk, and he won't stand in the way of any one who wants office.—M. Quad.

A pair were married at Newport, R. I., recently, after an unbroken courtship of thirty-five years. That is what may be called a slow match.

How His Brother Went Down.

A little old man known around the foot of Woodward avenue as "John" was yesterday hunted out in the office where he works, by a stranger, who said he came from Oswego and had bad news to communicate. The news was nothing less than the death of John's brother by drowning, and the stranger happened to be on hand to witness. Old John stood for a few minutes as if trying to realize the full extent of the calamity, and then remarked:

"Poor George. I hadn't heard from him in ten years. You say he fell off the wharf?"

"Yes, he was piling lumber, and his footing gave away and he went into the water."

"Did he fall quite easy?"

"I guess so. I don't think the fall hurt him any."

"How many times did he rise to the surface before going down to stay?"

"Twice, I think."

"Do you think he had his senses?"

"Oh, Yes."

"And from where you stood you could have heard all he said?"

"Oh, yes. I was not a hundred feet away."

"Now, then," continued old John, as he braced up and got a new hold of his shovel handle, "will you answer me something in confidence?"

"I will."

"Then, sir, tell me if my poor brother hurrahed for Hancock or Garfield before he went down the last time?"

This stuck the stranger for a minute, but he answered by saying that George did not hurrah for either of the candidates as he heard.

"Maybe not—maybe not," sighed the old man—"maybe he was what they call on the fence, and didn't know whether to yell with the Democrats or holler with the Republicans! Poor George! I'm a bit sorry he didn't put himself on record!"—Detroit Free Press.

The Lapps.

Outside of the Tom-so we came upon a family of Lapps, sitting upon a green bank, quietly eating their breakfast—two men, a woman and a little child. They were very small, with brown, withered faces and high cheek bones; the men without beard or whiskers, one of the distinguishing marks of the Lapp. There was a good humor and gentleness about them, a merry sparkle in their blue eyes, which redeemed their faces from the unpleasantness of that peculiar type—the low-caste features, small up-turned noses, wide mouth, and no particular development of brain. They talked to us in some unknown jargon; hard metallic voices, shrill and squeaky, men and women alike; rattling out their words so sharply that they sounded like a shower of stones falling upon a pavement. They had reindeer skins for sale and red shoes or moccasins, turned up at the toes. The Lapps have a great eye to a bargain; have learned already the art of asking more than the value of their wares, and more than they intend to take. They will impose upon you if they can, as the cunning not to be mistaken in their sharp faces is sufficient to put you on your guard. They did their best this morning to drive a bargain with us, but not caring to be encumbered with a host of things during our walk, we were proof against their seducing offers. As soon as they found they could sell us nothing, either at their price or our own, they grew sulky, turned their backs upon us, squatted down around their kettles, and would not be persuaded to give us another look or word. In short, they behaved like children. Nevertheless they were much impressed by Herr X's white umbrella, as well as by a puggaree one of us wore upon a straw hat.—The Argosy.

Of David Swing, a writer in The Albany Journal says that his "awkwardness not seldom draws a smile over the face of one who is not accustomed to his presence; and as a traveler bearing a romantic ideal is said to have exclaimed at his first view of the Nile, 'is that all?' so must many who have gone to see and hear this celebrated pulpit orator for the first time have exclaimed, as he stole into his seat with his eyes resting on the floor rather than on the congregation, and his unclassic figure seeming anxious to vanish out of sight, 'that Swing!' His voice is no gift from Apollo. Until the moment of embarrassment is past and the soul of the speaker comes to his relief, and thought and poetry begin to breathe their vital charms around him and inspire his vocal organs, his voice is both weak and unmusical, and to not a few it is even disagreeable. He makes none of the oratorical climaxes so popular with the listening crowd. He is rarely impassioned. No listener is thrilled, but everyone is pleased and deeply impressed, without being able to know just why.

The first American inscription put up on the obelisk will be "Post No Bills."

The Earth's Magnetism.

The great physical problem of terrestrial magnetism has engaged the attention of numerous physicists lately, and it is well known that several ingenious solutions of it have been propounded. Professors Ayrton and Perry, for example, conceived the happy thought that the earth was charged with static electricity, which being carried around on the surface by the diurnal rotation, acted like a circulating current and magnetized the core. A severe blow was dealt to this hypothesis, however, by the mathematical criticism of Professor Rowland, who pointed out that the surface charge required was competent to send a spark from the earth to the moon. A theory based upon the existence of electric currents flowing in the atmosphere around the earth was promulgated later; and now, says Engineering, we have another supposition, which has a better claim to serious attention than any of the rest, because it is supported by direct experiment. Starting from the idea of M. Edlund, that an electric current is really an ether current flowing in the circuit, and that electrostatic effects are due to rarefactions and condensation of the ether, M. Selim Lemstrom considered that he might produce this ether current by mechanical action. He therefore made a paper tube having two concentric walls and mounted on an axle. A core of soft iron was placed within the tube, and on rotating the latter the core was found to be magnetic, as demonstrated by two fine astatic needles. Reversing the rotation reversed the magnetic poles; and M. Lemstrom concludes that the relative motion of the ether in the revolving tube and the stationary core was the cause of the polarity. It follows that if the tube be stationary and the core revolved a similar effect will be produced; and hence if a magnetic body like the earth be rapidly rotated around the axis in an insulating medium like the air, it will exhibit magnetism. Pursuing this idea into mathematics, M. Lemstrom arrives at an expression for the magnetic moment of the earth, which agrees very well with the formula of Gauss.

Anecdote of Andre's Capture.

Mrs. See, an old woman living on the Bedford road, about two miles from the Tarrytown depot, tells a picturesque tale of events succeeding the capture of Major Andre, as it was told her by the participants. Mrs. See, familiarly known as "Aunt Betsy," says that the party of "skinners" with the prisoners went directly to the "Mug Tavern," near White Plains—a hostelry presided over by Aunt Polly Reed. Aunt Polly was notorious for her curiosity and inability to keep a secret. While the ham and eggs were sizzling in the pan for the hungry "skinners," Aunt Polly was struggling to ascertain the identity of the melancholy young stranger, who was so handsomely clothed in a blue overcoat, claret-colored coat and narkene waistcoat and breeches. Finally Paulding seized her by the wrist and drew her close to him.

"Can you keep a secret?"

"Yes!" stammered the old woman, with hardly suppressed eagerness.

"We've got a British spy!"

In three minutes the old woman had trusted her household cares to her girl, saddled her white horse, and was galloping off to the next house, in a place then called "Twitlinga." But the fences and brush proved an obstacle, and Aunt Polly was forced to make a long detour by the road. The "skinners" finished their meal and departed, making a straight cut across the county toward "Twitlinga." As they approached the house they caught sight of Aunt Polly flying up the road on her white horse, daylight showing between herself and the saddle at every leap. Her hair streamed out behind. In one hand she swung her huge poke bonnet by the strings, while she shrieked in a shrill, quavering voice, "They've got the d—d spy! They've got the d—d spy!" There are several persons in Tarrytown who knew Andre's captors.

A young, smart-looking Scotch clergyman was preaching in a strange country church. Rearing that his hair was not properly parted in the middle, or perhaps that he might have a smudge on his nose, he quietly and significantly said to the beadle, there being no mirror in the vestry: "John, could you get me a glass?" John disappeared, and after a few minutes returned with something under his coat, which, to the astonishment of the clergyman, he produced in the form of a lemonade bottle, with a gill of whiskey in it, saying: "Ye maunna let on [tell] about it, minister, for I got it at a great favor; and I wadna hae got it at a if I hadna said it was for you." It may be well to mention that among the humbler orders in Scotland "a glass" is the expression for a dram of liquor. In the foregoing anecdote we are not told whether the minister or John consumed the gill.—Chambers's Journal.

Women's Pockets.

One of those most popular journals which are the organs of feminine clothing has recently begun to agitate with much earnestness and eloquence in behalf of the rights of women to have and enjoy pockets—exclusive of overcoat pockets—woman has either one solitary pocket or none at all. The withholding of pockets from women has undoubtedly had its origin in the fact that among girls of tender years there has been no apparent desire for pockets. The boy is eminently a string consuming animal. In his sports and occupation he has a constant need of strings, and hence he is properly provided with a pocket in which to carry kite strings, shoe strings, top strings and general strings. The girl never uses a string in any form, and therefore does not feel the need of a pocket. As the boy grows to be a man his pockets increase and expand with constant use, so that he is finally able to use ten or fifteen all at once. The girl, on the other hand, growing up without pockets, reaches womanhood without them, and as much as she may then desire pockets, custom is then against the gratification of her desire. The one pocket with which a occasional woman is provided, and in which she carries her keys, her handkerchief, her smelling salts, her pin cushion and a quantity of miscellaneous articles, is nothing more than a make shift. It has no precise locality prescribed for it. Its owner, although she knows that she has a pocket somewhere beneath her skirt, can seldom find it without a prolonged and irritating search. To some women direct access to the pocket by means of a slit in the dress is denied, and in such case a woman who wants to get at a thimble is compelled to seek the isolation of a corner of a room, where she goes through a mysterious and protracted process by which her pocket is finally reached and exhausted. It is obvious that this inconvenient substitute for the free and open pocket of the male sex, is by no means sufficient to satisfy the deep wants of the feminine nature, and that its existence is no answer to the complaint that women are virtually pocketless. There is not only no reason why women should be deprived of pockets, but there is abundant reason why her pockets should be even larger and more numerous than those of a man. Nature seems to have designed her to blossom into innumerable pockets. A man's clothing, with the solitary exception of his coat tails, fits closely to his person, and affords no room for really capacious pockets. The skirts of women may, however, hang with pockets within and without, and the capacity of each one may be three fold that of the largest pants or coat pocket. In the concealed pocket she might carry a week's supply of clothing and hair pins, and the visible pocket might be put to uses of which the masculine pocket is totally incapable. Woman is undoubtedly made to be a pocket wearing person. Now that she has awakened to the fact that she is unreasonably deprived of pockets, let us hope that she will insist upon her rights, and in a short time a woman without pockets will become as rare as a pocketless man.

Dress Mad.

Behold her at eleven. Her limbs unfettered by the long skirts of conventionality, she runs, she romps, she slides on the ice pond, she rolls hoop, she kicks, she runs races and is as fresh and as fleet of foot as the boys. Her appetite is good, her cheeks rosy, and her movements unconsciously graceful. Behold her again at twenty. No more does she run or jump or roll hoop, run races or slide on the ice, it is not "proper" or lady-like, and she couldn't if she would, for she is fettered by long skirts, tight shoes and tighter stays. Her movements has no longer the freedom and unconscious grace of childhood, for now when she walks abroad she walks to be looked at, which now in her estimation is the main object of walking. She is already in delicate health, and has a doctor to prescribe expensive advice and prescriptions for her and ascribes her complaints to anything and everything but the real cause. The doctor advises her to travel, but he doesn't advise her to keep off her fashionable fetters. She wouldn't do so if he did, and he wouldn't advise her if he knew it would bring relief, for she would no longer believe in a doctor who would make her dress like a guy. Dressing for health and freedom of limb and body is one thing, and dressing for fashion is another. A man could not endure the pinching and encumbrances peculiar to feminine attire for an hour, and a pretty spectacle he'd make rushing about in such during business hours. Yet the "weaker sex" wear double the encumbrances of the so-called stronger. To dress at all after the style uses up half a woman's time and two-thirds of her strength.

Can't Find It.

It is very well known that the Evolutionists have been dreadfully put out because they cannot find the "missing link" between man and the monkey. All the caves of Europe have been searched in vain, and a number in Asia and America; but nothing could be found. The tertiary beds in Europe, India and America, and elsewhere, also failed to produce the "missing link." It was then suggested by Lyell and others that tropical Africa and the islands of Borneo and Sumatra, which are the special habitat of the anthropomorphous apes, would probably yield something, and the expectation was held out that we should yet learn the great secret how man was developed. Carrying out this hint, some enthusiastic scientists, a year or so ago, secured a fund for the exploration of the caves of Borneo, and the work has since been carried on by experts. The results of their explorations is given in the following extract from a recent number of Nature: "The general result of the exploration may be summed up as follows: The existence of ossivorous caves in Borneo has been proved, and at the same time the existence of man in the island with the fauna, whose remains are entombed in these caves. But, both from the recent nature of this fauna, and from the fact that the race of men whose remains are associated with it had already reached an advanced stage of civilization, the discovery has in no way aided the solution of those problems for the unraveling of which it was originally promoted. No light has been thrown on the origin of the human race—the history of the development of the fauna characterizing the Indo-Malayan sub-region has been advanced—nor, virtually, has any evidence been obtained toward showing what race of men inhabited Borneo previously to the immigration of the various tribes of Malay stock which now people the island. Furthermore, the presumption that the northwest portion of Borneo has too recently emerged above the waters of the sea to render it probable that future discoveries will be made of cave deposits of greatly higher antiquity than those already examined, has been strengthened. Under these circumstances it seems advisable that cavern research in northwest Borneo should now be left to private enterprise, and that no further expense should be hazarded at any rate until the higher parts of the island in the northeast may be conveniently examined."

Arctic Explorers in Court.

The Arctic expedition just returned to New Bedford, is soon to figure in the law courts, the United States deputy marshal in New Bedford having been ordered to arrest Capt. Barry, Master of the whaling schooner Eothen, which took the party from New York to Camp Daley, in Hudson's bay. The charge against him is robbery on the high seas, and the circumstances are these: On leaving Camp Daley for the prosecution of their search the party took all the provisions they could carry, and directed Capt. Barry to deposit the remainder of their supplies on Depot Island. On returning from Back's river, however, and proceeding to Depot Island, they discovered to their indignation and disappointment that the provisions had not been delivered, and they were forced to depend altogether on the supplies of a small party of Irilick Eskimans, who had themselves passed through a most severe winter, having been obliged at one time to kill a portion of their dogs for food. When they arrived at the village there was not over ten pounds of meat in the settlement. The natives shared with them what provisions they had, but they endured much suffering from a lack of food. At one time a terrible storm set in from the north which prevented walrus hunting, and they went seven days without receiving anything more nourishing than seal-skins and refuse matter. Lieut. Schwatka, seeing that the situation was becoming exceedingly dangerous, set out for Marble Island, knowing it to be the winter quarters of the George and Mary, with two natives for guides; the best dogs that remained, and a few small pieces of blubber and walrus hide for provisions. They reached there in safety, and through the kindness of Capt. Baker the party were taken to New Bedford. Capt. Barry gives the severity of the winter as an excuse for not landing the bread and other things that belonged to them at Depot Island, but it is charged that he took the provisions to fit out an additional whaling voyage.

A young man with an umbrella overtakes an unprotected lady acquaintance in a rain-storm, and extending his umbrella over her, requested the pleasure of acting as her rainbow. "Oh!" exclaimed the young lady, taking his arm, "you wish me to be your rainbow." Two souls with but a single umbrella, two forms that stepped as one.

Beat up the yolks of six eggs with one cup of sugar, and add to the milk and chocolate. Stir for a minute, then add vanilla flavoring, and pour into your custard cups, which should be waiting in a pan half full of boiling water in the oven. Cork until you see that the custards are done. Let them cool and then grate sweet almonds over the top. Then make a meringue of the whites of six eggs and a little sugar, and pile it on top of each custard. Grate more sweet almonds over that, and set them into the oven to brown a little, or brown by holding a salamander or hot stove lid over them.

PUGET SOUND ARGUS.

LETTER FROM CLALAM.

EDITOR ARGUS:—As Clalam county is one of the small tributaries to the natural wealth of Jefferson county, it ought to be represented occasionally in your paper; and as I am one of the few who have its interests at heart, I will advise you of what is going on. We don't pretend to be a literary class, yet once in a while some uncultivated ears may want to tell what he thinks, and often you may find a few items of common sense which you can enlarge on and perhaps benefit this long forsaken country by so doing.

The Immigrant Association of Port Townsend has given a very lucid description of this part of the territory, yet there are many things which it neglected which ought to be explained. Clalam county, by its geographical position, is almost out of the way of the casual visitor of Puget Sound, and almost isolated from the more flourishing counties, the reasons for which I will endeavor to explain in this article.

The first drawback dated from '63, when Victor Smith, for reasons best known to himself and others who are now living in Washington, made a grand reserve for the government, of all the water front except a town site (which was sold in lots and have long since been absorbed by taxes) in this harbor, which is acknowledged by all who have seen it to be the best harbor north of San Francisco, and only 50 miles from Cape Flattery. Saw mills and other industries would have been here long ago if that red mark of the government was removed.

Next in order is that fraud of Neeah Bay, by the Indian Department which locks up over 20 miles of coast line including a good harbor, with over 20,000 acres of good agricultural land, for no other purpose than to isolate the Indian from that civilization which they pretend to spend millions of dollars of the people's money to advance, yearly.

Neeah Bay, by right, belongs to commerce, and this county ought to secure some benefits from its agricultural wealth and the wealth of its adjacent waters where the product is immense if properly conducted, and belongs by right to all industrious citizens who may wish to develop it. It would, if free from the obstructions of the Indian department, be a flourishing town of hardy fishermen and their families, and would eventually absorb all the industrious Indians and make them self-sustaining.

It appears the policy of the Indian department and their agents to keep the Indians forever from all the influences of civilization and chances of improvement, only as they may dictate. We will give their agents full credit for their able reports about bad white men and their influence on the Indian, yet we must protest against all white men being considered bad as they invariably are in these reports. If some of their reports could be published and read by the people living near the reservation some of the agents would be treated to a cheap suit of tar and feathers, if nothing worse.

There are serious drawbacks to the future welfare of this county. The greater portion of it is under jurisdiction of designing men who care no more for the county or its welfare than our cousins of Victoria. White men are tabooed from putting a foot on the soil for over thirty miles of coast line without permission of the government or an Indian agent; and, according to the recent decision of Judge Greene, a man who may be tolerated to live on the sacred soil of an Indian reservation is exempt from all the liabilities of a citizen and can pocket all honest debts and taxes and tell the county officers to bark up another tree. This year over $75,000 has changed hands between Neeah Bay and Quilteute, yet not one cent of taxes has this county collected—not even poll tax—and if an officer goes there they tell him they do not belong to the county. The licensed merchant of the reservation does all his business at Portland, and only recognizes this Territory while he can make anything out of it. No wonder our county is poor and children have to go miles to school when a few dollars can be scraped together to hire a teacher, while our treasury is being robbed by Indian and other reserves, and over $12,000 are expended annually on one reservation by the general government to educate feed and clothe Indian children whose fathers can count their dollars by the thousands,—and who be to the poor white trash who dare put a foot on the sacred soil of those blanketed slaves and harlots without permission. What with government reserves, Indian reserves, and the Alaska Fur Company, our poor county will always remain at the tail end of the thriving counties of Western Washington. I am satisfied the papers are too lenient towards that festering sore on the body politic, known as the Indian department which drains our treasury and operates to the disadvantage of the spirit of the age.

I agree with Professor Fowler, who says that "God made the earth for man's uses, and when one place becomes crowded people have the right to move, and because it happens by chance of birth a few are there first is no reason why they should hold all." If that was the case by the common consent of the few false philanthropists, the Indians would hold enough territory in these United States to the detriment of millions of industrious white men who are willing to make the land produce what the Indians never will, and make the vast wilderness west of the Rocky Mountains one continuous chain of cities, towns, and villages, where the church and school bells will be heard instead of the war whoop which seems to please the few who have control of that played out saying "Lo the poor Indian!"

If they would or could be made to tramp across the plains like the hardy pioneers, and keep guard to save their worthless scalps, they would not have the mock enthusiasm they now have for an Indian. It is all very well to come here in a palace car, when everything is serene, and then vilify old settlers and call them all sorts of names, when if by a scratch any of them should have started for this country in early days they would not have got half way because their TUM TUM was "waked close."

RUSTLER.

Eastern Tourists.

Probably more Eastern tourists have visited this Northwest Coast during the present season than ever before, and they all bear testimony to our unsurpassed natural advantages and great resources and are enthusiastic in regard to our future when railroads shall have superseded the tedious ocean steamers and population comes pouring in. The proprietors of the Oregon Kidney Tea are equally sanguine of its future, for it has thus far cured every case of backache or disease of the kidneys and urinary organs that it has been tried on. Sold every where.
