Description at Sea—An Adventure of Twenty Years Ago.

We left New Bedford in the year 1851 in the good ship Mary and Martha for a whaling cruise on the north-west coast of America. Our crew consisted of eighteen young fellows from the States of Rhode Island and Massachusetts—some of them wild young fellows who had violated some of the strict laws of those puritanical States, and imagined a cruise would improve their moral standing. There are always individuals who may be termed agents, prowling about the interior towns in the interest of the whalers, and they are ready at all times to advance money to those who desire it to enable them to reach the whaling ports, where, as soon as they arrive they are shipped on board some waiting vessel, and the disaffected novice, before he has had time to reflect on the step he has taken, is far at sea, where he has the opportunity of signing up his accounts with anything but pleasure on himself, and getting to the amusement of his more experienced shipmates. And so it is that many young men leave their friends and homes never to return. Some are buried beneath the blue waves' silvery foam; others on the desolate islands along the coast, with not even a stone to mark their final resting place.

After the usual amount of seasickness and signing for the good things we had left behind, we settled down to hard tack and hard abuse, for the officers seemed on the alert to take advantage of every occasion and make our lives on shipboard as miserable as possible; yet we soon became accustomed to it and supposed it all belonged to the profession.

After a rough passage of six months we arrived off the coast of Alaska, and in a short time took several whales. Everything bid fair for a successful cruise; yet discontent and grumbling was the order of the day and night, and in the language of the fore-castle, the vessel was a hull afloat.

One of the crew had been to the mines of California, and he told us marvelous stories about the richness of the diggings, and of the fabulous adventures of '49. We soon caught the gold fever, and wished the ship might put into the port of Oregon or California (British Columbia and Washington Territory were not a word then); that we might leave her and try our fortunes in the "land of gold." Many a "wrench below" was engaged in framing plans to reach the mine, and when eight bells struck the relief was as much in need of sleep as the relieved. Tim did not suffer from the harsh conduct of our officers.

During a heavy gale of wind we carried away some of our rudder fastenings, and we bore away for Sitka to repair damages and re-fit; but, unfortunately, when in sight of the harbor the wind shifted and blew a hurricane and drove the ship to sea. When it abated we were about three hundred miles from land. The weather being fine for several days our carpenter repaired the rudder, and the captain concluded to cruise the season out. What was to be done now? Several of us had made all ready to leave the ship at Sitka; but here we were to cruise six months more and then go to the Sandwich Islands to refit. What was to be done? Six months more of this abuse would be death by law; to desert the ship three hundred miles at sea was not thought of then.

One of our boat-steerers finally proposed to take a boat at night and leave the ship, and steer for Sitka, or any place on the American coast, and then coast down to Calif. This plan was secretly broached to all the discontented ones, and six of us, including the boat-steerer, concluded to leave the ship on the first opportunity, which soon offered. Five of us were in one watch, and the boat's crew as officer of another. He effected an exchange with our officer, and we were all together. Everything was soon arranged, and bread and pork and extra boat-knives filled with water were secreted ready for use. On the third night after we had made the arrangement we had the middle watch on deck. It was a beautiful night—so clear, so calm, so still. Everything appeared sleeping—the sea, the ship and all on board, save ourselves. We got our provisions and water into the boat, and took the bimini compass. We cut all the other boat-knives, and pressed the black and tacks that held the one we had taken, low and away, unhooked, and dried from the ship, without disturbing anyone on board.

It was not till after we were clear of the ship that any of us realized the position we were in. There lay the ship like a phantom in the clear moonlight, not a sound except the occasional sigh of her stern as she drifted after a swell. We silently sat and drifted, each deep in his own thoughts. At length our boat-steerer whispered: "Now, boys, man the oars for the land and liberty."

This broke the spell and each man bent to his oar and gave a long pull and a strong pull for freedom. We shaped our course due east, knowing that it would hit the broad side of America somewhere. At daybreak the ship was nowhere to be seen—we were alone on the apparently boundless deep—and an undefined feeling seemed to take possession of us all; vividly impressing upon us the utter helplessness of our position, and we knew, without the assistance of the Divine hand of Providence, none of us would ever reach the shore, for none of us had the faintest idea of navigation. About nine o'clock in the morning a strong breeze commenced blowing from the westward, which allowed us to pass from the oars. Every sail was set, and away we went at the rate of four knots an hour, for six days and nights, never slackening a tack or sheet. We made the land on the morning of the seventh day, which was the occasion of much joy as our water was getting very low.

I have not the power to describe our feelings as we silently gazed at the dark outlines of the coast, with the heavy clouds rolling up, heralds of an approaching storm. The fair wind which had brought us so far had died away, and we manned the oars and pulled for the coast. What a pull it was! All day long we bent the willing oar, and yet there was scarcely a perceptible difference in the distance between our lonely boat and the long sought shore. It was long after dark when we got close in, and we pulled very carefully, for we were fearful of running upon one of the many reefs, stretching seaward.

About midnight our boat ran on to something which slipped along her bottom with a peculiar sound. We immediately stopped pulling, and the question anxiously opposed every lip, "what was it?" It was so dark we could not see each other's faces, yet judging others by myself, fear had possession of us all. It had been a rock or sand-bank we could have run upon, but that dark mass of something which kept the sea quiet—for not a ripple disturbed its surface—puzzled us. After a few moments one of the crew vent his hand over the side to feel what it was; but drew it quickly back with the cry of "snakes!" I had read of "sea-snakes" and "sea-serpents;" but never expected to find a boat high and dry on them. After many attempts we got one up and found it to be "kelp," or what is known in Boston Bay as "Cape Ann moorings." We fastened our boat to the kelp for the rest of the night, and all slept soundly for the first time since we left the ship.

The next morning broke clear and fine, and the sun rolled up from behind the hills in all its glorious splendor, and we were enabled to have a full view of the surrounding country. Our boat lay about a quarter of a mile from shore, which was dark and high, with snow-covered mountains in the background. The shore line was steep and rocky, and long reefs making out, with the sea breaking and foaming over them. After a careful survey we found a small bend or nook of sand beach. Here we landed and found fresh water trickling from the rocks. We beached our boat up, lighted a fire and looked about to see if we could find any signs of natives. We could discover nothing to indicate that they had ever visited the spot. We accordingly determined to remain a short time to recruit. We feasted untroubled upon the mussels, of which there was an abundance hanging upon the rocks. We all felt happy at our good fortune, though we knew not what the next day would bring forth, yet we were free from the irksome duty of the ship, and the abuse of her officers.

We remained at this place two days, then taking in a good supply of mussels and water, we started on our journey seaward. Though some of us knew on what part of the coast we were, we all agreed that it was the coast of Alaska, near a Sitka. We pulled and sailed along the coast, putting in at night, when we could find a harbor, to regulate ourselves on this way for three or four days—seeing no vessel nor any signs of natives.

On the morning of the fourteenth day we descried several black objects ahead which we at first thought were rocks; but we soon saw that they were canoes filled with natives. We tried to avoid them, as we were doubtful as to the treatment we would receive at their hands; but it was of no use. There were about twenty canoes, containing each from fifty to a hundred savages. They soon surrounded us, and as we had no means of resistance, we all thought our time had come. The natives were all armed with guns, which they pointed at us, jabbering the while like monkeys. They came on board of our boat, took what they could find and, putting us in tow, paddled for the land. We soon found out that they intended to take us to their village. As it was useless to resist, we quietly resigned ourselves to our fate; but, though unexpressed, each one wished himself once more safely on board the old Mary and Martha.

About twelve hours after our capture, the Indians landed us at their village, called by them Chy-chy-nee. The whole tribe came down and pulled the canoes and boat up high and dry. The old chief who captured us made quite a speech, which seemed to interest them very much, and as he pointed at us several times during his remarks, we felt satisfied we were the unfortunate subjects of his discourse; but whether he was friendly toward us, or otherwise, we were unable to know. After the harraque, several of the chiefs brought papers to us to read. These papers had been given to them by Hudson Bay traders and captains of vessels which had visited them. These gave us great relief, as they were recommendations for good behavior. Those from the Hudson Bay traders seemed to be highly prized. After reading the papers, we concluded to call ourselves "King George," or "Englishmen." One of the papers had been given at Fort Simpson, a Hudson Bay trading post on the mainland, and we made them understand, if they would take us there they would get hundreds of blankets and plenty of rum. This seemed to please them very much, and they made signs that when the weather was good they would take us there. We were distributed around among the lodges, had dry fish and potatoes to eat, and mats to sleep on, and we were soon as contented as though we were in the midst of civilization. The old chief seemed to take quite an interest in us, and warned the tribe against molesting us; but on several occasions there were efforts made by some of the tribe to induce the chief to allow them to kill us, which on one occasion nearly prevailed. We were sent for and interrogated by signs as to the amount of blankets and rum they would give us. We made them understand that they could not get their own price when they got to the fort, and we would see that they got it. I don't know what we would have done if one of the tribe had not been able to speak and understand a little English. After this we had no more alarms, but waited patiently for the season of fine weather, when they would take us to the fort. We remained with them about three months, or until about the first of October, when our captors gave us to understand that they would take us to Fort Simpson. The canoes were launched and provisioned, and as the Indians had taken everything from us but a pair of pants and a shirt each, and indeed, we had some trouble in retaining even that much apparel, we were soon ready and upon the voyage. There were six canoes fitted out to take us—one of us in each canoe. We were three days in reaching Fort Simpson, where we were very kindly received by Mr. McNeil, the chief trader. We told him that we had been shipwrecked, and that we had not seen anything of the other boats since we left the wreck, and also, as he could perceive, that we had fallen into the hands of the natives and had been brought by them to be ransomed. The warm-hearted gentleman accepted the whole of our story as truth, and told us not to have anything to say to the natives, as he would trade with them, which he did, giving them blankets and other goods, yet reserving a large portion of the ransom until they should bring back the boat and articles stolen from us. Generally the Indians were not satisfied and there was considerable murmuring. Mr. McNeil made us go into the fort, fearing they might shoot us. That night we were put on board the Hudson Bay Company's brig Mary Dare, which was in the harbor ready for sea, and bound to Victoria—then nothing but a trading post of the company. Luckily, the captain secreted us in the hold, for the Indians, finding that we had gone, concluded we were on board the brig and came off in a threatening manner after us. The captain allowed a few of them on board, being well satisfied they could not find us. They looked about for awhile, but unsuccessfully, and left the brig in disgust. We got under weigh and proceeded to Victoria. On our arrival there we repeated the story we had told Mr. McNeil, and we were kindly treated. The Hudson Bay Company gave us each a suit of clothes and a passage to any port of Washington Territory, which we thankfully accepted. We soon arrived at Port Townsend, and from here scattered about to different parts of the Sound, and some of us have figured somewhat in the early history of the Territory. We took a part in the Indian war. Some have since gone to sea; but three of us yet remain in the Territory, Edward Lill, Alfred S. Buffington and myself.

RUSTLER.
*—The narrator of this adventure, Oscar Olney, is since dead.

The Marten.

The Marten is a native of the United States of America, and in consequence of differences existing among his family, the sables, who are mostly settled in Europe, emigrated along with his uncle the Fisher. He immigrated to this country soon after its discovery by Christopher Columbus, Esq., without a cent, having nothing but an unblemished fur, and his claws to depend on for a living. He resides among the heavy timber, and cultivates the acquaintance of squirrels, mice and other "small deer," whom he frequently invites to his table. He is religious and always preys a little before he eats. He is a gentleman of observation, and often ascends a tree to view the surrounding country, and with education would doubtless make a good surveyor. He is particular in his eating, and, therefore, must be considered an epicure. He is refined in his manners, eating only the choice morsels, and often stopping to wipe his paws, though he has not yet taken to napkins. He is very gallant, and will rush into a trap in his endeavor to succor a distressed female member of his family, frequently falling a victim to his own love of the fair sex. His size varies, but he generally measures 2 feet 3 inches from the tip of the tail to the end of the snout, and 2 feet 5 inches from the end of the snout to the tip of the tail. His family consists of himself, wife and three or four children, and he resides in unfurnished apartments, fashionably situated in a hollow tree. He can generally be found at home during the day, but dislikes company, except his family circle, and is of a retiring disposition. His nights are devoted to the chase, and managing his own private affairs. He is high-toned, and dresses in expensive furs, to which he is much attached, and will suffer death before parting with his elegant coat. Like many humans his beauty is only skin deep, but he can boast of being much sought after, having many followers, but comparatively few friends. He possesses the bump of acquisitiveness, and seldom sees anything he want, without possessing it if he can steal it quickly.—Communicated.

WASHINGTON AS A STATE.—The project of making a State out of our Territory, is one that has not been very generally discussed. The proposition is, to all those who have no "axe to grind," so supremely ridiculous that it is not seriously thought of. But there is a possibility that it may assume a shape, and be put in such a form as will require our people to answer it in one way or another. Our population according to the census returns shows only a little over twenty-one thousand inhabitants; and until that number is at least doubled, if not trebled, we ought not think of applying for admission. If we were now a State, our people would, for the next five years, be in as bad a condition as even the people of Nevada, and, like them, would be trying to devise means by which to return into a Territorial government. The people will please bear in mind that there is a probability that they will soon be called on to vote for or against the framing of a State Constitution. Let every man consider the subject thoroughly, in order that he may vote understandingly.—W. W. Union.

POOR FRANCE

The European telegraph dispatches are filled with accounts of another revolution in Paris. Paris, the center of the beautiful world of fashion and of mirth, the hub from which radiated all that was extravagant and enjoyable in the gay circles of fortune's favorites, has become a scene of famine, of crime, of civil strife and carnage.

It appears that a portion of the French population has rebelled against their government and taken all the principal places in the city. All the members of their government have gone to Versailles. The rebels have shot Generals Clement Thomas, Lecompse and Venoy, and hold Chanzy and other officers prisoners.

Petition Against the Proposed Annexation of San Domingo to the United States.

The telegraph brings the following, dated March 18th:

Sumner presented an address to the Senate remonstrating against the proposed annexation of San Domingo, signed by the President of the Central Junta of the Government of the Dominican Republic [late President of the Supreme Court, late Minister of State and Senator of the Republic]; also by De Bonilla, late Senator and President of the Supreme Court; by Valveda, General of the National Army and late Senator and member of Congress; Carlos Nonce, late Attorney of the Supreme Court Secretary of State and Minister of Foreign Affairs, and member of Congress; Eusebio Prurire, Brigadier General of the National Army; Yespana, Counselor of Republic and ex-attache to the Department of Justice; Felix Challes and Augustine Bellini, Colonels in the Army; Manuel Picicuni, a late official of the Republic, and others.

Higgins of the Colonist, has found his level at last. The Victoria Standard says that he has gone to blackmailing business men in Victoria because they don't advertise with him.

The Vice President sustained the point of order, the effect of which was to prevent the further reading of the memorial.

Sumner then proceeded to state the substance of the memorial. He said the position of the remonstrance was peculiar. They were exiled by an usurper, Baez, who was now engaged with the aid of American guns, in the work of selling his country. They protested against this as an outrage and a wrong, because their country was about to be sacrificed.

The question now was, whether upon principles of justice, they were not entitled to be heard here. After some informal remarks as to the rights of Sumner to proceed when no question was before the Senate, that Senator was about to continue, when Morton inquired whether, if it was in order for Sumner to make a speech at this time against San Domingo, a reply would be in order.

The President said that if a question of order was raised he should have to decide against Sumner's right to proceed, as he had already decided in the case of the Senator from Massachusetts.

Aid for France.

Americans! France is exhausted by this terrible war. Many of her people are starving and utterly destitute. Let us not forget her early recognition of American Independence and the prompt and generous aid she then rendered to our struggling Republic, and let us now share with her from our abundance in this hour of her need.

"Hear the Cry that Comes Across the Sea!" Rallying song and chorus. Words and Music by Geo. F. Root. Published by Root & Cady, Chicago.

The above is on the title page of a piece of music just received, and is decidedly in the right direction. It is no time to criticize the later acts of France. She needs our help and should have it for humanity's sake, even if she had not "held out the friendly hand when our days were dark."

Let every singer in the land sing it, and there will be no lack of "food to eat" or "grain to plant."

LOTS OF MUSIC.—We understand that a large (more than one-half, it is stated) of the emigrants just arrived on the Sound are musicians, and that they bring their instruments with them. One thing we don't understand, however, and that is, what attracts so many musicians hither. They will have to hang up the fiddle and the bow, for awhile, at least, and substitute the spade and the hoe.—Tribune.

This item makes our hair fairly "riz." We have been told we'd bring up there some day; in that region where sulphur and fiddlers abound. It can't be that we are in it already? Get up a petition to have 'em expelled Bro. Piosch—we'll sign it.

The San Francisco Herald says the new issues of Government bonds are meeting with more favor than many financial writers imagined. Secretary Boutwell has received flattering assurances of their popularity from all portions of the country, and has determined to place immediately on the market five per cent. bonds to the extent of $200,000,000.

The list of agents in the United States will soon be announced. Seventeen hundred have been tendered, including seventy-five private banking establishments. So far nine hundred have accepted and fifty declined the agencies. Seligman & Co., of San Francisco are among the appointees.

Business, at San Francisco, is beginning to assume its wonted channels of life and activity. The Commercial Herald says the overland route is to be the medium of an immense traffic at no distant day. This don't indicate that California has been ruined by the railroad.

BRITISH COLUMBIA.

[FROM THE VICTORIA STANDARD.]

On Saturday morning, we were informed of a shooting affray that occurred on San Juan Island on Tuesday last. It appears that six soldiers belonging to the American garrison were missed from camp. Col. Bird and a detachment of soldiers were sent in pursuit of the deserters. The detachment first proceeded to the Indian rancheria at McCoy's Bay, where they saw a canoe with the men on board and three Indians, making towards the Vancouver Island shore.

The question as regards the Alabama claims involves the recompense of the property destroyed by the Alabama and the other cruisers that were sent out. These crafts are reported to have destroyed 284 ships, as follows: By the Alabama, 69; Shenandoah, 38; Florida, 36; Sumter, 27; Tallahassee, 27; Saxon, 15; Clarence, 3; Sallie, 2; Georgia, 10; Jeff Davis, 8; Winslow, 5; Chickamauga, 4; Olustee, 4; Retribution, 3; St. Nicholas, 3; Calhoun, 3; Nashville, 2; Boston, 2; Savannah, 1; Lapwing, 1; Echo, 2; York, 1; Conrad, 1; Tuscarora, 1; miscellaneous, 16. Total, 284.

The latest dates from Quesnelle are to the 21st inst. Mr. W. Fenton arrived at that place from Van Winkle on the 21st, and reports that on Sunday, the 19th inst., on Lightning creek, a nugget was taken out of the Lightning claim which weighed $500. On Saturday, the 18th inst., the Spruce Co. washed out $100 to the pan. On Jack of Clubs creek the Discovery Co. are down 120 feet working with a windlass and very little water.

The Hon. the Chief Commissioner of Lands and Works—Hon. Mr. Trutch—has been to Washington, in connection with the International Commission now sitting there, and whither he had been summoned to give evidence, relative to the "San Juan Boundary Question."

"THE GOLDEN AGE."—We have received the first number of Mr. Theodore Tilton's new weekly, The Golden Age, published in New York. It is a sterling paper, and will immediately take a foremost place among the leading journals of the country. It has about it, in religious, political, and all other matters, an independence—a self-reliant sort of tone—that particularly pleases us; it reads honestly, candidly, fearlessly, and every department is ably filled with matter refined, elevating and instructive.

EBONY FROM SEAWEED.—The manufacture of artificial ebony from seaweed promises to become an important industry in some of the smaller sea coast cities south of here. The process consists in first treating the plants for two hours with dilute sulphuric acid, then drying and grinding them up. To sixty parts of this product, five parts of liquid glue, five parts of gutta-percha, and two and a half parts of India rubber are to be added, the latter being first dissolved in naphtha. Afterwards ten parts of coal tar, five parts of pulverized sulphur, and five parts of pulverized rosin are added and the whole heated to about 300 degrees Fahrenheit.

THE WEEKLY ARGUS.

THURSDAY, MARCH 30, 1871

We infer, from late telegraphic advices, that the people in the east are coming to believe that the Joint High Commission will amount to more of buncombe than of earnest diplomacy; though, really, we can't see how the reporter for the associated press of California knows any more about what the Commission is doing than anyone else, as its sessions are secret, and not known to those not immediately connected with it. The telegraph reporter, under date of Washington, March 20, sends the following: "During the sessions of the High Commission during the past week the relations of the two countries to each other has been considered in a general way with a view to seeing what concessions might be made by either side before any particular dispute shall be taken up for settlement. The impression which prevailed at first was that England was prepared to offer the 'olive branch,' and that mere quibbles would be discarded for a candid and frank avowal of outrages committed and damages to be adjusted. But this has given place to a fear that England is not disposed to make any magnanimous concession, and that if any arrangement is entered into for settlement of pending questions, it would be on the basis of an equivalent. The Commissioners seem rather to incline to the plan of purchasing the right to fish freely in Canadian waters without restrictions, which is looked upon as an easy mode of settlement. On the other hand it is certain that the popular sentiment would condemn the adjustment of our differences with England by our agreeing to pay England money. It is said neither revival of reciprocity treaty nor payment of a considerable sum for right of fishing in Canadian waters, would be popular with our people."

SORRY FOR IT.—The Seattle Intelligencer, which, by the way, is the most valued of our Territorial exchanges, has taken up the advocacy of a questionable policy. It seems to have made a sort of back-action leap in time, and succeeded in getting back to the time when they used to burn people for witches. It is a wonder the editor don't go back on sewing machines, and anathematize Elias Howe for having invented them! or call up the spirit of poor John Watts and berate him for conceiving the application of steam as a power! Bah! what is the use of trying to buck against progress? If the capitalist comes here and spends his money, it helps the country; if the immigrant comes in and buys of him, it helps him and the country too. The "speculator" is the pioneer, who has confidence enough in the country to spend his money in it, which from his writings, would appear to be more than the leader writer of the Intelligencer has. Anti-progressionists are played out—come up with the times old follow, and try and shake off the blues.

CLEAR HEADED.—Theodore Tilton, in his new paper, The Golden Age, proves that he is above the level of sycophancy in the following terse paragraph, which contains a homely truth, too:

A number of friends have kindly offered their advice in regard to the proper attitude of this journal toward the Administration. Fancying that we have a mysterious quarrel with the President, they are waiting for us to strike an open blow. This expectation must be disappointed. Is there any good reason for an outbreak of hostility against the Government? We know of none. It is as hard to be the enemy as it is to be the friend of the present Administration. To praise it would be unwarrantable; to blame it would be unfair. President Grant's government is too good to be bad, and too bad to be good. So, for the present, the least said, either for or against it, the better.

SHOOTING AFFRAY.—A telegraphic dispatch was received in this city from Steilacoom stating that Charles Annis, of this place, was shot on Thursday by Frank McCann, a saloon keeper at Steilacoom. The difficulty was about driving a boat too fast from Steilacoom to Tacoma. Annis had some words about it when McCann shot Annis in the mouth. The wound is not dangerous.

The California Steam Navigation Company has sold out its entire property to the California, Pacific or Vallejo Railroad.

The City election will be held in George Sterning's Reading Room on Monday next.

Boarders at the Cosmopolitan are being regaled with mountain trout.

CRUISE OF THE LINCOLN.—The Revenue steamer Lincoln, after coaling, left here on Friday evening, the 24th, at 6 p. m., for a cruise to the Cape and the Vancouver shore. Arrived at Neah Bay on Saturday morning; remained at anchor Saturday and Saturday night on account of rain and thick weather. On Sunday proceeded to San Juan harbor to make inquiries concerning a steamer reported ashore on Barclay Sound. From information obtained it seems the report grew out of the supposed loss of the Varuna, which left the Sound a few weeks ago for the Columbia river. On the same day returned to Neah Bay; had heavy S. E. wind, with rain, during the day. At 6 p. m. wind hauled to S. W. and blew a gale, causing the vessel to roll heavily. At 1 p. m. the Lincoln was obliged to slip one of her anchors and get anchorage, being in danger of going ashore. She made the run from the Bay to this port in 8 hours, passing two vessels in the Straits en route. Capt Hooper informs us he has never experienced a worse night since on this coast.

The steamer Wm. Tabor, coming in from San Diego, on the morning of the 20th, narrowly escaped being wrecked. She ran into the breakers at Point San Pedro, in a fog. The instant the peril was found out, orders were given to back her, but she thumped heavily five times, producing the greatest consternation amongst the passengers, of which a great number were on board. The captain and officers behaved with the greatest coolness, and got the vessel off safely. The only damage is a leak, which will necessitate her going into dry dock.

This is the steamer lately brought out to this coast by the Wrights.

MEETING OF THE CITY TRUSTEES.—The City Trustees held a meeting at the Court House yesterday. They appointed the following officers to take charge of the polls: Inspector, E. S. Dyer; Judges, A. H. Tucker and J. G. Swan. This was the last meeting of the present board, which is composed of the following persons: J. J. H. Van Bokkelen, President; D. C. H. Rothschild, Treasurer; H. L. Tibballs, L. B. Hastings and C. C. Bartlett.

Mark Twain has this advice for young men with literary aspirations: "Write without pay until somebody offers pay. If nobody offers pay within three years the candidate may look upon that circumstance with the most implicit confidence as the sign that sawing wood was what he was intended for."

Very good advice to some of the hangers-on to the press in this Territory—who have written for the press for the past two years, without pay or thanks, and still continue to spread ink at the rate of a gallon a week.

SHIPMENTS.—Rothschild & Co. shipped by the schooner Lottie, on Monday about twenty tons of potatoes to C. E. P. Wood, at Port Discovery, and a lot of skins (fur and hair) to New York and Europe. These will be taken by the ship Revere, now loading at Port Discovery, as far as San Francisco. We understand that Mr. Wood will also ship the potatoes by the same conveyance, to San Francisco.

PUBLIC MEETING.—The people of this place held a meeting on Saturday to take into consideration the celebration of the Fourth of July next. Capt. Fowler was elected chairman. A committee of three (Messrs. Rothschild, Hunt and Tibballs) was elected to solicit subscriptions, and make other preliminary arrangements in the matter and to report at a meeting to be held at the Court House on the second Saturday in April, at 2 o'clock, p. m.

ROSS' COFFEE SALOON.—Do you want a cup of good coffee? or a piece of pie? or a pig's foot? or anything that is good to eat? If you do, step in at the coffee saloon next door to Hastings & Brother's and you can get it—at any time.

ROYAL MARRIAGE.—The Princess Louise of England was married to her Highland Lover, in the royal chapel at Windsor, on the 21st inst. It appears the royal family of England has become so large that it has exhausted the present marital resources of Europe and has had to fall back on home production. Well, haggis is as good as sour krout, frogs, or Spanish wines; so the family will lose nothing. Necessity sometimes proves a benefit.

A man by the name of Ed. Gough, on Thursday last, had one of his legs crushed by a piece of coal which fell upon it, while he was at work in the Seattle coal mine. He has a family at Nanaimo which is dependent on him for support, and, the Intelligencer says, will be rendered destitute by this mishap.

The schooner Clara Light arrived here yesterday, from Neah Bay, bound for San Francisco. She took on board a small quantity more of freight, and proceeded on her voyage. Her cargo consists of 175,000 feet of lumber, 5 cords of wood, 2 cords of hoops, 12 barrels of salmon, 28 rolls leather, consigned to A. Packsher and 6 bundles sheep skins consigned to Goldstein, Seller & Co.

SAN DOMINGO.—The United States steamer Tennessee, with the San Domingo Commissioners on board, arrived at Key West, Florida, on the morning of the 21st inst., five days from Kingston. Wade has a report finished, to which Howe has agreed. The report is in the main favorable to annexation. The chief features deemed somewhat unfavorable are connected with questions of debt, boundary and grants.

CHARTERED.—Hon. Allen Francis has chartered the schooner Experiment, now lying with sails unbent in the mouth of Chimacum creek at the head of the Bay, to take a cargo of merchandise to Keenan, on Georgian Island, in Clarence Strait, Alaska Territory. She will bring back a cargo of salmon, etc. She will sail hence about the tenth prox.

THE STEAMER CALIFORNIA.—This steamer was seen by the Olympia, on Tuesday, in the Strait apparently making for Esquimalt. As the wind was blowing very heavily at the time from the westward it is possible the California was seeking an anchorage in Royal Roads until the wind abated. She was from Siska bound for Portland.

Letters received from China by the Japan, say that Mr. Seward left there in better health than he had enjoyed for years, and as no mention is made of his having had a stroke of palsy, the report was probably unfounded. The letters are from his nephew, the Consul General, who went out from here with him.

The German procession in San Francisco, on the 22nd instant, in honor of peace was one hour and forty minutes passing the corner of Kearney and California streets. It was two miles and a half in length. Great enthusiasm was displayed by German residents.

"UP IN A BALLOON, BOYS."—Brown, at the Cosmopolitan, sent up a balloon last night, which called forth loud shouts. It was a modest ascent, but the descent was of the fiery and untamed order.

The schooner Lottie, Capt. Fredman, came from Port Gamble to this place, on Saturday last, in one hour and thirty minutes, just six minutes more than it took the Goliath to go up.

The President has issued a proclamation to the disaffected citizens of South Carolina commanding them to retire peaceably to their homes within twenty days from the 24th of March, instant.

A direct monthly mail service, between San Francisco and Australia, touching at the Sandwich Islands, will go into operation on the 8th of April.

BURNING.—Mount Baker was taking a siesta yesterday, and the smoke the old fellow puffed from his mouth was plainly perceivable from here.

The G. S. WRIGHT.—This steamer is now having her machinery repaired at Victoria. She will leave there for Portland on Tuesday next.

Money is becoming abundant in the San Francisco market, and it is found to be difficult to invest to advantage.

The Pacific Mail Company announces that, hereafter, its steamers will stop at San Diego and Mexican ports.

BARBER SHOP.—O. W. Brown has established a barber shop in the Cosmopolitan Hotel. Give him a call.

A GOOD APPOINTMENT.—Rev. Father Chirouse has been appointed sub agent at the Tulalip Reservation. Capt. Hill, who has been Indian agent at that point heretofore, several weeks since made application to the Department to be relieved from that duty and, we understand, that it was upon his suggestion that Father Chirouse was appointed. Although the system adopted by the Administration of apportioning out these Indian agencies among the different religious denominations savors strongly of demagoguism and is of questionable policy, this appointment is rather an exceptional one and eminently fit to be made.—Intelligencer.

A quantity of Bellingham Bay coal sold by auction at Victoria, a short time since, brought five dollars per ton.

The ship Isaac Rich, Sheldon, 14 days from San Francisco, passed up last Tuesday. She will load at Port Gamble, for Callao.

The ship Kit Carson, Spence, loaded with lumber for Harry Meiggs, Callao, is in port. Will clear today. She has on board 692,000 feet rough lumber—mostly timber.

The schooner Rose left here yesterday for Victoria where machinery will be put into her, and she will be fitted for a steamer. The Rose came under the American flag with the Alaska acquisition.

A gentleman sent a lad with a letter to the postoffice, and money to pay the postage. Having returned with the money, he said, "Guess I've done the thing slick. I seen a good many folks puttin' letters in the postoffice through a hole, so I watched my chance, and got mine in for nothing."

The steamer Isabel discharged fifty-nine tons of Nanaimo coal into the Lincoln last Friday.

Gail Hamilton's Anathemas Against Long Dresses.

If the women of this country, having once tasted the freedom of short dresses, shall be mean spirited enough to go into long ones again at the dictates of any costume...

If women reinvest themselves in trailing skirts they deserve all the evils which may befall them. If women relinquish their short suits, may their husbands tyrannize over them and abuse them forever!

A NEW ENGLAND CLERGYMAN AS A KANSAS POLITICIAN.—A Kansas correspondent of the Boston Journal gives the following first-rate notice of a clerical gentleman who figured largely in a scandalous closet trial in Massachusetts, many years ago:

Isaac S. Kalkock, so well known in Boston, has his home in Lawrence. He has completely and fully abandoned the ministry, and went so far as to sever his church relationship, he offering in church meeting a resolution to this effect: "That the membership of Mr. I. S. Kalkock in this church be and the same is hereby dissolved at his own request," which he advocated and carried, thus severing himself from all church relationship as well as from the ministry.

"John," said a poverty stricken man to his son, "I've made my will to-day—" "Ah!" replied John, "You were liberal to me, I've no doubt."

"Yes, John; I came down handsome. I've will'd you the whole State of Virginia—o make a living in, with the privilege of going elsewhere if you can do better."

A young lady, on one occasion, requested her lover to dine with her. "Well, Sir," said he, "it is to me an upward impossibility and an outward alloverness."
