THE Revere, Capt. McIntyre, consummated her last trip from Port Discovery to San Francisco and back in 28 days. This, taking into account the delays incident to discharging a cargo, is remarkably quick time.

THE following vessels are loading at Port Discovery: The ship Revere, for San Francisco; the barkentine Emma Augusta, for San Pedro, Cal.; the barkentine Grace Roberts, do.; and the new barkentine Discovery, for San Francisco.

MR. NAGEL, a resident of King county for twenty-one years, and a man who has been employed in the Port Madison mill, were taken to Steilacoom last Tuesday to be placed in the Insane Asylum.

W. G. LANGE would respectfully inform his friends and the public generally, that he is now prepared to execute work in the watchmaking and jewelry line in the best manner, with a guarantee of satisfaction.

THE bark Brontes, Capt. Gatter, arrived on the 12th, with freight, as follows: C. Eisenbeis, 87 pkgs; Rothschild & Co., 16; C. C. Bartlett, 86; N. D. Hill, 10; Waterman & Katz, 68; O. F. Gerrish, 107; E. S. Fowler & Co., 15; and G. B. Throp, 28.

THE Courier says the ladies of Olympia are making arrangements for opening a Temperance restaurant, reading room and place of general resort. It is proposed to put in a billiard table, chess and draught tables, and other matters that would be proper for such a place.

THE steamer building at Port Gamble will have 115 feet keel, 24 feet beam and 6 feet depth of hold. She has the supervision of Benjamin Bigelow, and will be put together in the most substantial manner. It is the intention of the owners, we learn, to run her between Port Gamble and the Snohomish.

THE new Collector for this District, Mr. Webster, is endorsed by a San Francisco exchange as follows: "His appointment as Collector of Ports on Puget Sound, has been received on this coast with unalloyed pleasure. Mr. Webster is an old pioneer, and well and favorably known. His genial disposition, social qualities, and above all his business capacity, contribute to make his appointment one eminently fit to be made."

THE Natches road across the Cascade Mountains is now open for travel. A portion of the route is a mere trail, as the money subscribed was insufficient to complete a wagon road the whole distance. It is thought, however, to be sufficient to meet all present requirements of trade and travel.—W. W. Union.

PICNIC.—The picnic on Wednesday, held at Mr. Hasting's place, was well attended and a good time generally prevailed. The day was all that could be desired. A press of business prevented our presence, and our reporter's notes failed to reach us in time for this issue.

For several months Mrs. Kuykendall has been under the physician's care, and owing to her continued illness, the Rev. Mr. Kuykendall has been compelled to cease traveling for the rest of this conference year.—P. C. Advocate.

THE schooner Gen. Harney took on a load of empty barrels this week and left for the San Juan lime kiln, where she will load for Tacoma to be shipped by rail for Portland.

SAND STONE.—Samples of this material, which is obtained from the quarry near this city, were shipped for San Francisco on Friday, for the inspection of the builders and capitalists of that city, by request. Its adaptation for building purposes is unsurpassed, and it would not be strange if the matter should finally result in a brisk demand for it from abroad.

THE schooner Ontarico arrived here Thursday from Steilacoom, where she has been on the ways and is now in perfect order. She took on the San Juan lime, and left for there yesterday morning.

THE schooner Orcas arrived last Friday from Lopez Island, with 100,000 shingles for E. S. Fowler & Co. After being loaded she sailed for San Juan, to be there on the 15th. BURIED ALIVE.

Horrible Sequel to a Salt Lake City Funeral.

A horrible discovery was made in Salt Lake July 23, upon exhuming the body of a young man named Wm. B. Lackhurst, who was buried on the 23rd of June last. On the 20th of June Lackhurst attended a picnic and while there concluded to take a bath. He did so in a running stream near by, remaining in the water some time. He was in perfect health and apprehended no ill consequences. After his bath he went back to the picnic grounds and got in a swing. All at once his head dropped, his muscles relaxed and he fell heavily to the ground. Every effort was made to revive him, but in vain. The senseless young man was placed in a carriage and taken home. After some hesitation the physicians in attendance pronounced Mr. Lackhurst dead, and preparations were made for his interment. The body presented a very life-like appearance—so much so that his friends felt very uneasy about going on with the funeral. The funeral was indeed delayed one day, but finally the physicians reaffirmed their previous conclusion that he had died of heart disease, and the body was buried. Two friends of the family seemed haunted by the recollection of that life-like face. They whispered their fears around till they spread throughout the city, and permission was obtained to exhume the body. Upon lifting the coffin and removing the lid a sickening sight was met. The body was turned over on its side. The skin and great pieces of flesh had been torn from the face, the hair pulled out in patches, the grave clothes and coffin lining torn in tatters and the finger nails worn down to the quick by the efforts of the man to burst the cement of his grave. The sight was the most terrible ever witnessed, and the stoutest-hearted of the party nearly fainted. An investigation has been demanded to see if there is no way of fixing the responsibility for this awful blunder.

A RACE FOR A BRIDE.

"Love laughs at bolts and bars," yet, at the same time, there is "many a slip betwixt the cup and the lip." The following true story pungently illustrates both of the above truisms. A comely youth fell madly in love with a rural belle. She smiled upon his suit and doubtless sighed upon his waistcoat. They resolved to become "one flesh," but the stern father of the would-be-bridle was dead set against it and fiercely forbade the banns. But love laughs at bolts and bars, and the young couple stole away amid the friendly darkness of a moonless night, fled to a neighbor's and about dawn the next morning succeeded in securing the services of a parson. All things were made ready to tie the silken knot, and the hopes of the lovers beat high with the joys of a speedy fruition. But right here the parson manifested some doubts as to the propriety of the proceeding, and insisted on sending for the cruel parent and getting his consent before proceeding with the ceremony. After much arguing, and his promising to intercede with the girl's father, and convincing both that success would certainly crown his appeals in their behalf, they consented, and the irascible old gent was sent for. In due season, and within an hour for the messenger went consent; and if I do; I solemnly forbid the banns! These exclamations struck consternation and terror into the hearts of the would-be bride and groom. The groom ran down to the door, and looking through the lane, saw at the further end, the infuriated father coming like the wind, his white hair streaming, and wildly shouting at every breath. I won't consent, etc. With the promptness of a veteran, the lover seized his intended bride and mounted his steed in hot haste, bore her off in the opposite direction at a furious speed. The father, with the vigor of despair, plunged his spurs deeper into his foaming steed, and gave hot pursuit, followed by the parson and the assembly interested in the sequel of the race. Down the road, over hills, into forests, vocal with the song of birds, they held their mad career. But the horse that bore the lovers gradually slackened his pace under the double burden, and the avenging parent steadily gained on them. Finally he overtook the flying pair, and reaching forth snatched his daughter from her lover's grasp, wheeled his panting steed and bore her rapidly toward home. The lover, maddened but not despairing, gave chase, and back over the same road, cheered by the shouts of an excited party, rushed the father and daughter and lover. The young man soon devalued the distance between him and his intended bride, and with a grasp of iron tore her from the parental arms and essayed to bear her off in triumph. But the old man, game to the last, renewed his strength and speed, and a furious altercat in ensued. But the party of friends and the parson put an end to the struggle by giving the girl to her father, and advising the young man to wait for a more propitious occasion. Thus ended, but not finally, we feel assured, one of the most exciting races for a bride known to either truth or fiction.

Change of Color.

Sudden shocks occurring to human beings have frequently changed the color of the hair from black to white in a single night. A physician of Berlin, a strong, healthy and middle-aged man, sent his wife and only daughter to spend the summer at a watering place. The day that he expected a letter informing him of their arrival, there came one saying that his daughter had been taken ill very suddenly, and was already dead. The shock was terrible, and instantly his hair became entirely gray. He had to visit some patients that afternoon, and they scarcely recognized him. The other case was a man thirty-five years old, living in the Netherlands. He was one day passing the canal in Rotterdam, when he saw a child struggling in the water. He plunged in and brought it to land, but it was already dead by the time he had reached the body. Bending over it to try to restore life, he discovered that the dead child was his own son. The blow was so sudden and unexpected, and coming upon him when he was so much exhausted, it turned his hair entirely gray, and left him scarcely recognizable.

CHINA.—A country where the roses have no fragrances, and the women no petticoats; where the laborer has no Sabbath, and the magistrate no honor; where the roads bear no vehicles and the ships no keels; where old men fly kites; where the needle points to the South; where the place of honor is on the left hand, and the seat of intellect is in the stomach; where to take off your hat is an insolent gesture, and to wear a white garment is to put yourself in mourning; which has a literature without an alphabet, and a language without a grammar.
