BERNHARDT, EDITOR.

Seattle, W. T., Dec. 10, 1874.

Bourbons Coming to the Front.—Dr. Gwin, announced by the Examiner as "that sound Democrat and true patriot, ex-Senator Hon. Wm. M. Gwin," wrote a letter to the late Democratic publication meeting in San Francisco, which is being extensively copied and endorsed by the Bourbon Democratic press. The ex-Senator says: "In answer to that portion of your letter asking my opinion of the Governor elect of New York, I reply that I estimate him as the coming man, and destined to higher honors. The recent elections have indicated so plainly that he who runs may read that Tilden and Thurman should be the Democratic standard bearers in the great contest for the Presidency in 1876. They have won their spurs and received the belt of Knighthood, from the greatest of earthly monarchs, the sovereign people." The ex-Senator further says: "Mark my words, if the policy I have indicated is adopted, and Tilden's and Thurman's name hoisted, at once, at the head of every Democratic paper, their election is as certain as the sun rises and sets. They are new men, each in a great position always properly before the public of splendid record and belong to two mighty States. A point can be made in favor of Tilden with telling effect. In the one hundred years of our national existence but one citizen of New York has been President and he only for four years. We ought to have no controversy about candidates. Take these men and make them our Chiefs. The people have brought them to the fore and they are the very men we want. My reference to Gen. Jackson is historical. But one thing not even you have thought of, that Jackson is the real founder of the Democratic party. Although with the same principles improved it was the old party in opposition to the Federalists, the actual name of Democratic party dates from Jackson's triumph, as his opponents created the Whig party. The era of good feeling during Monroe's time was the Republican party, more generally called the Democratic Republican party."

The Doctor is slightly at fault in his historical record of party names. The party of Jefferson was only designated and known as the Republican party until after the expiration of the Monroe Administration in 1825. All the candidates for President in 1824 were called Republicans and had been supporters of the Administration of both Madison and Monroe. Crawford was the regular Republican candidate, having received the Congressional Republican nomination, and the other candidates were nominated by States. The Federal party had then ceased to exist as a party organization. From that time until 1832 parties were only known by the names of their party leaders. In the election of 1832 the Jackson party organized for the first time under the name of "Democratic Republican," and the opposition under the name of "National Republican." Many of the leading Federalists of the country, including Buchanan, Woodbury, Rives, and others, became prominent members of the Jackson party under the new name; and Henry Clay, an old Jefferson Republican, led the opposition.

The Whig party was not formed until after the election of 1832. The name was first adopted in New York under a coalition between the Anti-Masonic and National Republican parties of that State, and first appeared in national politics in opposition to Mr. Van Buren in 1836; and at that election and thereafter, the party which supported Mr. Van Buren, dropped the term "Republican" from their party designation and were thereafter called and known as the Democratic party. The historical truth is, that Van Buren, not Jackson, is the real founder of the Democratic party; and not of the Democratic party only, but of the present Republican party; which is the successor of the "Free Soil Democracy," which supported Mr. Van Buren for President in 1848, and claimed to be the only legitimate Jeffersonian Republicans.

As the war of 1812 disrupted and scattered old party associations and issues, so the war of 1861 has brought about a similar state of affairs. The Republican party of to-day does not resemble the Republican party of 1860 in a single particular. The issues upon which it was based have all been disposed of finally and forever, and its leader are almost exclusively recruits from the Democratic party since that time. The Democratic party has no political status or uniform platform. Tilden was a leader in the Free Soil movement of 1848, and was a strong supporter of the war. Thurman is an advocate of specie currency, while a majority of his party in Ohio, led by Pendleton and the Cincinnati Enquirer, go for greenbacks and inflation. Many of the old Bourbon Federalists came into power by allying themselves with the victorious party, but the war of 1812 killed the Federal party beyond the hope of resurrection. The Bourbon Democrats may occasionally find themselves with the victorious party under new alliances, but they can never revive the anti-war party of 1861, and will defeat the opposition as often as they attempt it. Haight, a moderate conservative, was elected Governor of California by a triumphant vote, and was immediately overwhelmed by his Bourbon supporters.

A year ago the opposition carried Wisconsin by organizing an independent party. The Bourbon Democrats claimed and appropriated it as a Democratic victory, and this year the Republican party has 30 majority in the Legislature out of the eight members of Congress. The same result will follow, two years from now, any attempt in New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio or any other heretofore Republican State, to bring the Bourbon Democracy to the front.

The Insane Asylum.

At a meeting of the Western Washington Medical Society, held in this city about a month since, a number of affidavits and other evidence were presented to it, showing gross mismanagement of the unfortunate inmates of the Insane Asylum, whereupon the following resolutions were unanimously passed:

Resolved, That from statements and affidavits made to this Society, we are satisfied that the Insane Asylum at Steilacoom is not conducted in a humane and enlightened manner; that the patients are not only not given such medical and moral treatment as will hasten their recovery, but are positively maltreated physically; therefore we, the Medical Society of Washington Territory, respectfully demand, that the Governor and Auditor of the Territory appoint a committee of five prominent citizens of the Territory, three of whom shall be physicians in good standing in their profession, with authority to take testimony, to inquire into the condition of said Asylum, and make a public report thereon. And further,

Resolved, That the committee must be composed of men of such integrity, that any report they may make shall be unhesitatingly accepted by all as a true report and that it be immediately published.

A committee was appointed to wait upon the Governor and Auditor and present this matter to their consideration. When that committee visited Olympia for that purpose, they arrived there in the evening and left on the steamer the following morning. Their time being thus limited, they failed to see the Auditor, but left the matter in the hands of the Governor, expecting him, of course, to confer with his colleague and communicate to him the facts of the case. A week afterwards, it was ascertained that the Governor had not communicated with the Auditor on the subject and had made no answer to the committee. About that time Dr. Williston wrote to Dr. Weed expressing his views, in a very free and confidential manner, of the situation of affairs. That letter was manifestly not intended for publication. It was handed to us by Dr. Weed to copy the facts relating to the death of a patient at the Asylum, and our attention being occupied by outside matters on that day, the whole letter appeared in print, contrary to the design of the writer and very much to the chagrin of Dr. Weed, who seemed thereby to be guilty of betraying private confidence. But we shall not regret this accidental exposure, which was the first knowledge the public had of the matter, if it results in precipitating a full exposition of the wrongs complained of. The insane are "God's poor," a sacred public trust, any abuse of which should be visited by prompt and condign punishment. If it is true, as appears by the testimony presented to the Medical Society, that corporeal punishment of the insane patients is practised at the Asylum, no considerations of personal friendship or party policy should be permitted to shield the offenders from the public indignation due to such a cowardly crime. The medical gentlemen who have undertaken the investigation of this matter, have retained copies of all the affidavits and other evidence of abuses in the Asylum, which will be published if the Governor and Auditor do not take some immediate measures for an efficient investigation. The Courier expresses the belief that Mr. Harmon has not personally been guilty of any cruel treatment or intentional neglect of the patients. We can readily credit that statement; but if cruelty and neglect have been practiced under his management, neither he nor the Governor will be permitted to screen the guilty parties.
