

ENLARGEMENT.

With the rapidly increasing circulation and patronage of the Northern Star, we for some time past have been cramped for room to represent all our local interests, devote a reasonable space to general literary matters, and have room for all advertisements offered.

We now have some half dozen columns of new advertisements offered for which we have no room. To supply the wants of our patrons, and to represent the interests of the community, we began some time since making arrangements to enlarge the Star. Last week we were up to Seattle, purchased the remainder of the necessary materials, the last of which came down the last trip of the Finny Lake. If not prevented by accidents, next week the Northern Star will come out in a new form as a five column eight page paper. The only eight page paper on the Sound.

Centennial Celebration.

Two weeks from next Monday, a meeting of our citizens will be held here, for the purpose of making all necessary arrangements for a celebration of all the interests of our whole county on next Fourth of July. We expect a full attendance from all parts of the county on the day of the preliminary meeting. The corner stone of the Athenaeum Building will be laid at the time of this meeting, the first Monday of June, with suitable ceremonies. Probably no institution in Washington Territory is destined to exert a deeper influence upon our people, or the people of the whole Territory than this new temple of science, art, and literature so soon to be erected in our midst.

All friends of literature and science are invited from abroad to join with us in forwarding this Snohomish enterprise.

Up River.

On Friday, May 12th, the steamer Finny Lake, having a large list of freight for loggers and settlers up the Snohomish and Snoqualmie, ladies and gentlemen to the number of twenty-five, availed themselves of the opportunity and went on board the boat. At half past nine o'clock, we left the landing and steamed up the river. The day was pleasant and all hands in good spirits. The stage of water was sufficient to warrant a safe trip, and soon after leaving the landing, Capt. Hill expressed a determination to go to Falls City, if possible. The boat made good headway notwithstanding the heavy current. Just above the bluff, we made a landing at Mr. Davis' farm, and left freight and one passenger. Four miles above the town we encountered the famous Kelsey rifle, said by many old river men to be the worst place on the river for twenty miles. But with a full head of steam and the skillful handling of the craft we ploughed our way slowly over it and made the landing at Stretch's ranch where we left two passengers and more freight. We were off again in a few minutes and in less than an hour we reached Quilco, the forks of the river and glided gracefully into the placid waters of the Snoqualmie. Here we left Mr. F. Mathew's family, his household furniture and his entire outfit for the place he is establishing, Mr. M., continuing on with the party. One mile and a half above Quilco, we made Reeves' landing where two gentlemen from Tacoma, Car Bros., got off with their camp kit, they being bound up the Skykomish on a prospecting tour. One mile more we again swung in to the bank and took on a couple of tons of hay for Mr. Duval, a logger, fifteen miles from Snohomish City. We were now in the most beautiful part of the lower Snoqualmie, and for the next eight miles we sailed along on the bosom of the gentle stream, its waters unbroken by a single riffle, its surface smooth and mirror like, reflecting faithfully the walls of living green that lined either bank. The tall trees cast their shadows upon the surface of the water while the floating clouds chased each other across its crystal tide. We caught a glimpse of the snow capped peaks of the Cascade range, tall towers of earth swelling domes, that seemed to pierce the heavens with their glittering pinnacles of eternal ice. Here and there on either hand, the pioneer has hewed himself a home out of these once unbroken forest solitudes. Old settlers have, most of them, with little or no capital save their sturdy arms and indomitable will, made themselves beautiful homes, with comfortable dwellings and broad acres at this season of the year fragrant and green; while the fresh cut stumps, brush piles, temporary shanty and mere patch of clearing proclaims the new comer, just commencing his long battle with hoary old forest.

The next landing made was the logging works of Jas. and F. Duval where freight was landed, and then we steamed up to the camp and farm of the Elwells, at which place ten tons of freight was landed. Two miles above on the opposite bank is the residence of Mr. Alexander Adair, where several ladies of the party went ashore for the night, when we returned to Mr. Elwells, tied up and waited till morning. Just as we stepped ashore, we saw Mr. Elwell, Sr., an old fashioned sledge, on which was piled eight tons of freight, just landed from the steamer. This load was dragged on the sled, over bare ground to the logging camp one half mile, of ascending ground, from the river. The sled creaked and groaned beneath the enormous load, the skids along the logway smoked as the runners passed over them, but the heavy team locked down to it and we halted in the forest of the camp without visible load on back and without the use of many adjectives popular among drivers of ox teams. Capt. Hill, Sheriff Stretch and several others spent the evening very pleasantly in the cozy little house of Mr. S. Elwell, who aided by his amiable young wife did their best to entertain us. At half past nine we returned to the boat and slept soundly till morning. After taking on fuel, between eight and nine, we again started up the river, the Capt. expressing a determination to reach the falls if possible; if not, to go as far as navigation would permit. At Mr. Adair's we took on the balance of our party, left the night before, and then continued on. We had now reached a part of the river beyond where a boat had never ascended; and great anxiety was felt by all, least we should meet with obstructions. A keen lookout was kept for snags, but the river was up and we reached the farm of Mr. Boise, eight miles from Elwells, without any trouble. Here we landed the last pound of freight and the last passenger except the excursionists. The boat was suitably trimmed and once more we were off, headed up stream, every one hoping we should reach the falls. In about two hours we came to a long reach of swift water, after passing several sharp bends, full of dangerous snags, eddies and whirls, that required a skillful hand at the helm. Straight up the river ahead, about a mile, we could see the water foaming and tumbling among the boulders on the bottom. On the right, was a high bank, fully two hundred feet, an immense land slide had recently occurred, filling the river nearly full; the high water had washed away all this mass of debris, except the boulders; and these treacherous enemies to navigation, stood athwart in our way threatening dire destruction if we did not retreat. On the left, opposite the slide, was about a boat's width of comparatively smoother water. Capt. Hill headed the boat, with a full head of steam for this narrow pass, hoping to slip by the sentinal rock and come above in spite of them. Steadily onward went the Finny Lake, the water rolling in a sheet of white foam from her bow, the waves roaring and leaping among the rocks on our right—swifter and stronger grow the current and narrower the channel, still she crept up. Now the rocks on the right and the foaming waves among them were only a few feet from us. Still she kept on. We could see deep smooth water above. Down goes the sounding rod. Eight feet on the right—only two on the left and we are actually lugging the brushy bank. Up she goes. A hundred feet more and she will be over it. There is a grating sound heard above the puff of the engine, the wind and the roaring flood. Her speed slackens—stops—she is aground on the bar. Efforts were made to hold her up, push off the bow, and force her over. But it was impracticable and imprudent, and reluctantly the Capt. rang the bell to back her, and we retreated off the bar, the wheel rattling among the brush as we floated below the boulders and out into the middle of the stream. We could go no farther. We were all disappointed. Our attempt to reach the falls by steamer had failed. We were all satisfied, but for this unlucky land slide we could have gone on. The stretch of swift water below the slide, is as bad as any to be met with above. We had conquered this; but on reaching the slide, our only reward was the fact, that there can be no practical steamer navigation of the Upper Snoqualmie, until the boulders are removed. The June freshets will not do it. Neither can it be done, artificially, until the low stage of the river in October. The fact, however has been demonstrated, that, to within one mile of the house of Mr. Jas. Entwistle, which is within about eight miles, air line, of Falls City, there is nothing to prevent steamers of light draft from making regular trips, at least for nine months of the year.

After dropping a few hundred yards below this slide, a drag was thrown over the bow, and we steamed, stern foremost, slowly down stream for a couple of miles, past the swift water and dangerous bends, halted and took on board the drag, turned round and in about an hour we were along side the boom at Elwell's camp. After bidding good bye to Mr. and Mrs. Elwell, who accompanied us up as far as we went and taking aboard a couple of passengers, we started for home, with the river nearly bankfull and a full head of steam. At the forks we dropped Mr. Mathew's and took aboard another passenger, and from there like a thing of life, we reached through the narrow winding road, made by the river, through the evergreen forest, and at three o'clock P. M., rounded to long side the wharf at Snohomish City. We will close this already too long description by saying, that not an unpleasant incident occurred to mar the trip. The testimony is universal, that Capt. Hill managed the excursion with consummate skill. His urbanity and gentlemanly bearing is beyond all praise. Nothing was too much for him to do for the comfort of all aboard. He is the right man in the right place and long may he live to navigate the waters of the Snohomish and the Snoqualmie.

The Port Gamble Mill Company now own four tug boats on the sound, and the four are among the largest and best of their kind on the coast. The Yakima is the largest sternwheeler on the Sound, and undoubtedly the most costly and best, while the Goldfish as a powerful tow-boat hasn't anything like an equal this side of the Golden Gate, and probably no superior there. The Favorite and Cyrus Walker are both good boats. The measur'd tonnage of the four is about 900.

How many common figurative expressions in our language are borrowed from the art of carpentry may be seen in the following sentence: "The lawyer who filed a bill, shaved a note, cut an acquaintance, split a hair made an entry, got up a case, framed an indictment, impaled a jury, put them into a box, bailed a witness, hammered a Judge, and bored a whole court, all in one day, has since laid down law and tinned carpenter."

CORRESPONDENCE.

SANTA CLARA VALLEY, CAL., April 20, 1876.

Dear Morse:—It is the "fashion" just now for papers of any reputation to have "our own correspondent," and having half promised to act in that capacity for the Star, I now address you from out the garden of California—at this season, perhaps, the most beautiful portion of our country. When I left you, a little more than two weeks ago, vegetation, owing to a late spring, had made little progress. As we steamed down the Snohomish under the safe and courteous management of Capt. J. S. Hill, I could not forget that he it was who carried me five years ago to my new home on the Snoqualmie. During these years good neighbors gradually settled about us, and a steady, if somewhat slow, progress was made throughout the entire community. We have witnessed the introduction of the telegraph, the founding of a public library, the breaking of ground for the erection of an Athenaeum building of immense size, and which it is intended shall become a center of literary culture, the organization of a Snohomish County Court, and last, but not least, the establishment of the Northern Star, under able and energetic management, and devoted to the interests of the Snohomish. Nor does our progress end here. We are promised in the immediate future an up-river steamer and a flouring mill. Not many counties can make a better showing.

I do not disguise the fact that I have, many times in my quiet home on the Snoqualmie, wished once again to mingle with the busy, bustling world which seemed to roll by in the distance. And still I could not leave without regret the home where my children have been born, and where perhaps the happiest years of my life have been spent. Tears came to our eyes as the last good-bye was said, and your little city disappeared from our gaze. The Sound was so rough that Mrs. R. had a foretaste of sea-sickness even before we reached Seattle. At the Occidental Hotel I found Judge Lewis and family (not excepting "Foolies" awaiting the arrival of the City of Panama to take passage for San Francisco. We had a long and tedious trip of seven days, encountering strong head winds during the entire passage. Disagreeable thoughts of the ill-fated Pacific would occasionally obtrude themselves, but I was reassured by the thought of a dear old mother awaiting me at home.

"For the car of Heaven bends low to her, Who comes with me goes safe to shore," Nearly all our fellow passengers were sea-sick, and put in a most irregular appearance at the table. We could the more readily have pardoned the poor fare if we had not been served by ignorant and insolent Chinese. I must, however, acknowledge the courtesy and unremittent kindness of Otis Freeman Esq., agent of the P. M. S. S. Co. of Puget Sound, who traveled with us to Victoria, and which went far to atone for a purser's insolence.

San Francisco has grown beyond my expectation—great buildings going up on every hand, and indicating a great and glorious future for the metropolis of our coast. We witnessed the illumination of the Palace Hotel in honor of the arrival of the Brazilian Emperor, and you can scarcely conceive of anything finer. I mingled, for a short time, with the stock-brokers in California street and came away well satisfied that a quiet life on the Snoqualmie is not to be exchanged for the feverish life there led by those in hot pursuit of wealth.

I am now 50 miles south of San Francisco, in the loveliest of all valleys. Every hill side is clad in loveliest green, all around us flowers of all kinds and climates are in luxuriant bloom, the farmers are cheered with the promise of an abundant harvest. In a few days we start for Salt Lake City, where, perhaps you will hear from me again.

Yours Truly, W. H. REEVES.

AUSTRIA has a Belknap. He is a small insignificant Belknap, but he does well enough for an effete despotism. He is a baron, to be sure, and very blue-blooded, but his position is only that of a first lieutenant of chassours. His name is Baron von Krehlan, and he is accused of having sold, for the sum of 8,000 roubles, to a military attache of Russia, certain strategic and topographic plans, plans of fortresses, etc., stolen from the Austrian bureaux and depots of war. The Russian military attache who obtained these documents sent them directly to the minister of war at St. Petersburg. What use Russia has for these plans may be easily surmised; and the occurrence is not likely to give the Austrians much comfort. It is probable that Baron Krehlan's treason would have remained for a long time if he had not, in his greed for gain, addressed to a member of the French embassy an offer of service similar to that which he rendered for Russia. The Frenchman immediately denounced Krehlan to the Austrian authorities. This action is attributed by the French papers to the superior honor of their representative; but it is more probably due to the fact that the French hoped to fight side by side with Austria some time, and are desirous of retaining her good favor rather than otherwise.

Camels thrive remarkably well without any care at Elgin, about twenty miles from Austin, Texas, where they were introduced at the time of the threatened Mormon war, in the expectation of a contract for transportation. Five of them were sold last week to a circus manager for $1,250.

TELEGRAPHIC.

LONDON, May 11.—A Paris correspondent says: "The interchange of views at Berlin on Salonica affairs, resulted in a collective demand on the part of the European powers for the execution of the murderers, the identification of the families of the victims, a solemn salute to the French and German flags by the Turkish authorities, and guarantees against similar massacres."

LOXDON, May 11.—This morning the Post says that 18 members of Parliament have already signed a memorial asking for the release of Fenian prisoners.

HANCOCK, N. H., May 11.—Heavy rains have caused the Connecticut river to rise to a dangerous height. The northern trains are delayed. Serious damages have already been reported on the Vermont side. The paper mills at Mill river, Vermont, are expected to give out every minute, which will flood the village. People are cleaning out their houses as fast as possible. The farmers are suffering much loss. Wells river is flooded and the people are using boats in the street.

NEW YORK, May 11.—The sub-treasury has stopped paying out silver on currency checks, and consequently silver has advanced 1 1/2 @ 2 per cent.

NEW YORK, May 12.—The paying visitors of the Centennial opening on Wednesday, numbering 76,133.

A few days more promises to complete all departments. Iowa shows among the exhibits in Agricultural Hall, specimens of soils from 30 counties, in glass tubes six feet long showing the depth of loam. Oregon's exhibit is rich in wheat, oats, woods and dried fruits. Washington Territory shows the tallest wheat and oats exhibited. California's prodigies of cacti excite general wonder.

LANCASTER, N. H., May 12.—The water in the Connecticut river is rising at the rate of an inch an hour. It is now higher than it has been for twenty five years. The entire valley of the Connecticut river is one broad sheet of water from Northumberland to Dalton.

WASHINGTON, May 13.—Up to the close of business hours yesterday, the aggregate of silver paid out at the various sub-treasuries, amounted to 4,500,000.

VICTORIA, May 13.—The steamer Grappler from Fort Wrangle, arrived this morning. She reports Sitkeen still frozen. Two Sitkeen Indians were arrested at Wrangle on the 29 of April for distilling and selling whiskey, and for resistance of the authorities making search. One of them, Shegano, a chief of some prominence, committed suicide on the 27th by strangling himself in his cell. The remainder of the tribe became greatly excited over his death, and threatened to kill some one in retaliation. They were promptly informed by Capt. Jocelyn that such act of violence would result in the immediate bombardment and burning of their village, upon which quiet was soon restored.

LOXDON, May 15.—Vienna dispatches say disturbances are feared in Syria, where the excitement is daily increasing. Two English men-of-war cruised at Jaffa, three at Beirut and one English and one French man-of-war at Latakia.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 15.—The steamer City of Panama, which arrived last night, entered her berth at the mail dock she ran into the Australian steamer Balmoria, damaging her so that one of her water tight compartments filled with water and her stern sunk in the mud. She will be raised and repaired in a few days.

MONTREAL, May 15.—The water here is still rising. The shipping interests are very much injured. A large number of temporary wharves have been carried away, and ferry boats cannot make regular trips, owing to the difficulty in finding a suitable place of landing, and carters decline to transfer passengers to and from vessels, owing to several accidents having occurred by driving into deep water.

NEW YORK, May 16.—Gold closed at 123 @ 121.

LOXDON, May 16.—Advices from Salonica say that the total number of arrests in connection with the outrage there, is fifty. A preliminary inquiry has begun. The excitement in the town is gradually subsiding.

CHICAGO, May 16.—The Tribune's Sioux City special says letters received here this morning from reliable parties, dated Black Hills, April 29, being most discouraging accounts of affairs in that country. The Indians are becoming very troublesome, frequently killing men at their own doors, stealing horses and committing other depredations. These letters say the stories of gold being there in paying quantities are lies. Provisions are scarce and high, and a great many men are on the verge of starvation. Miners are leaving as fast as they arrived a month ago.

Mr. Oliver Perkins, of Illinois, is a man of sound sense. His education has been neglected. He lately sent his boy to the school-marm with the following note: "Miss Haze—Pleas lik the barer for running away. Lik him Well. No mor at preasant. Yours respective. Mr. OLIVER PERKINS."

ARRIVED.—May 16, Str. Yaluma from Port Gamble. She was loaded with lumber for Stretch and Eddy. Captain Olney reports a heavy hail storm on the 16 at Gamble; evidence of its severity was brought in shape of a congealed mass of hail stones, adhering to the bow of the boat. The Yaluma towed the schooner Sias Fry to this place. She will load with ship knees.

NOTICE.—A meeting will be held at Snohomish City, W. T., on Monday, June 5, 1876 at 10 A. M. by the citizens of Snohomish Co., for the purpose of making all necessary arrangements for the County Celebration of the coming Centennial Anniversary.

Per the request of many citizens, Also upon the same day, the corner stone of the Athenium Hall will be laid, and work commenced on the same.

Per order of the President, Eldredge Morse, Librarian.

We notice in the Olympia Echo, that Mr. Ben. Vincent, agent for the New Wheel Family Favorite Sewing Machine, recently made a sale of three of these excellent machines in one day. Mr. Vincent has been a patron of the Star ever since it started, and it speaks volumes in his favor, and for these machines also, when without going outside his legitimate business soliciting customers, he is able to make sales, his patrons seeking his wares at his place of business. We hope his prosperity will continue, and his sales increase until he is compelled to enlarge his place of business.

ARRIVED.—May 14th, Steamer Fanny Lake, with 25 passengers and the following list of freight: J. Ross & Co., Bennett Sturford & Co., J. Davis, B. S. Welch, F. Mathews, Clark & Willard, L. Willard, Fields & Taylor, D. E. Leighton, H. Splitte, Adlick, Mills, Smith, Jackson & Co., Ferguson, J. Pike, Shone Bros., and Packard & Jackson. She ascended the river with a large list of freight for a number of loggers and farmers, the Elwell Bros. having 10 tons. 25 passengers and excursionists went up on her. She returned on the 13th and left for Seattle same day. A more complete account of her trip up river will be found elsewhere.

Last week the Fanny Lake brought the Rev. D. N. Utter to this place. He expected to arrive in time to give a lecture before the Free Religious Association Thursday evening. The steamer arrived so late he was compelled to postpone his lecture until Friday evening, when quite a large audience awaited him at the schoolhouse. Mr. Utter is a fine representative of the thorough scholarship, pure morality, and liberal thought so ably upheld by the Unitarian Church of the United States. The church, which from the number of original thinkers, and thorough scholars it contains is so often called the Literary Church of America. The remarks of Mr. Utter were intermediate in character between a lecture and sermon, were listened to with marked attention. The subject, liberal Christianity was very ably handled. We doubt if any prior effort in this community was ever received with more favor by our people. Especially was his beautiful picture of morals presented in his address, received with marked form. We hope he will feel induced to come again. We cannot have to many of such addresses upon religious and moral subjects delivered among us for the public welfare.

May 18, Str. Fanny Lake from Seattle with freight and passengers as follows: E. C. Ferguson 128 pkgs., Mehan & Thornton 16 pkgs., H. Mills 6 pkgs., J. & S. Ross 5 pkgs., Hinman & Mowatt 9, R. Haskell 4 pkgs., Shone Bros. 10 pkgs., F. Mathews 10 pkgs., W. H. Ward 10 pkgs., and 500, ft. of lumber, Miss Johns 2 pkgs., A. Jennings 7 pkgs., Adlick 4 pkgs., J. H. Hilton 6 pkgs., E. Roberts 1 pkg., I. Cathcart 2 pkgs., E. D. Smith 2 pkgs., T. P. Marks 5 pkgs., J. S. H. 43, J. Harvey 5324 ft. of lumber, and 15 passengers. The boat was so loaded with freight that some was left on the wharf at Seattle for want of room. She will load principally with shingles.

These Point Yaluma—May 8, 1876. Toward 500 M. ft. of logs, belonging to S. Hazard and P. C. Preston, to Port Gamble.

The committee appointed to investigate the subject of ladies' luncheons when traveling, report that they invariably consist of a very small sandwich, large quantities of white and yellow cake, and an immense pickle, if the latter is absent, the affair is considered a failure. A young woman, who appears to be opposed to girls being taught to sew, writes as follows to the Woman's Journal: "Some time since a gentleman of Ithaca said, in quite a company, 'I mean to offer a prize for the best shirt made by the lady students of the university.' 'If you do,' I rejoined impulsively, 'I will offer an equal one for the best chemise made by a male student. It is a poor rule that won't work both ways.'"

An amusing instance of carrying religion into business occurred some time since in this w. e. A farmer went to a broker to buy some "governments." "What denominations will you have?" asked the broker. The question was a poser, but the farmer was equal to the emergency, and replied, after a moment's reflection, "I guess I'll take part of 'em in Old School Presbyterian just to please the old lady, but give me the left of 'em in Free will Baptist."

Eighteen hundred and seventy-six—this centennial year! what noise, what commotion! but before 1876—what stillness! Yes, we can all of us look at that date and know that long before that time we shall know certainly what is beyond the veil. A Papal Brief, addressed to the Archbishop of Toledo, Spain, again denounces religious liberty, guaranteed by the new government, "as leading the state with a great crime against Catholicism." Perfect religious freedom is not a crime against any man. Any system of religion, that does not recognize perfect freedom of opinion, in any sectarian denomination, is an enemy to freedom, a suppressor of liberty, a relic of barbarism and unworthy the spirit of the age.

Any system of religion, that ignores or tries to suppress freedom of thought and speech in matters of religion, even to non-believers in creeds, violates the fundamental principles of the golden rule, "what-ever ye would that men should do unto you do ye even so unto them." That is a gospel platform broad enough for the foundation of any government.

Major Blake, Inspector of Customs at San Juan, recently found on one of the islands of the San Juan Archipelago, a fine specimen of ammonite or ram's horn shell, which strongly resembles the fossil nautilus. A remarkable character of the ammonite consists of a beautiful leafy pattern which is observed when the outer layer of the shell is removed, and is distinctly noticeable in the specimen alluded to. Ammonites are very common in Europe, but rare in America. There are more than five hundred species known, and some of them are of enormous size, measuring occasionally two feet in diameter. They are common in the "Lias" formation near Bristol, England. This specimen looks like a petrified horn of the mountain sheep. It measures 26 1/2 inches in circumference, 9 inches in diameter, and 2 1/2 inches thick. It was presented by Major Blake to Collector Webster, who has it in his office cabinet.—Argo.

Legal Notice. In the Probate Court of Snohomish county Washington Territory.

In the Matter of the Estate of L. P. SERRIN, deceased, late of said county.

It is remembered that on the 10th day of April 1876, J. N. Low, a duly appointed and qualified Administrator of said Estate, presented to this Court a petition for an order to show cause why an order of sale should not be granted. To said Administrator to sell all the Real and Personal property of said Estate to pay the claims against said Estate, and that a day be set for the hearing of said petition. And the Court ordered that Saturday, May 6th, 1876, be set for the hearing of said petition, and there being no objections, in writing or otherwise, to said petition on said day, and now on this 8th day of May comes said Administrator and presents a petition and sworn to as the law directs, and asks that an order of sale be granted. After due consideration, it is ordered, adjudge and decreed that said Administrator sell at public auction all the Real and Personal property of said Estate after legal notice has been given as the law directs. Said notice to be published for four consecutive weeks in the Northern Star.

Terms made known on the day of sale.

Witness my hand and the seal of said Court hereunto affixed, at my office in said county, this 8th day of May 1876.

R. HASKELL, Probate Judge.

Legal Notice. In the District Court of Snohomish County, Washington Territory. In Equity.

SWEN PETERSON, Plaintiff; JAMES FORMYER, Defendant.

Complaint filed in the office of the Clerk of said District Court.

THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA send Greeting, To JAMES PETERSON, Defendant: You are hereby required to appear in an action brought against you by the above named Plaintiff, in the District Court of Snohomish County, and to answer the Complaint filed therein, within twenty days (exclusive of the day of service) after the service on you of this summons, if served within the said County of Snohomish; or if served out of that last in this District, within thirty days, otherwise within sixty days, or judgment by default will be taken against you, according to the prayer of the Complaint.

The said action is brought to recover judgment upon a certain promissory note, and foreclosure a certain mortgage upon Lots 2, 3 and 4, and the South East quarter of the North West quarter of Section 6, in Township 27, North of Range 7 East, situate in said County. Said mortgage bearing date November 19, 1874; executed by you to secure the payment of Seven Hundred and Twenty Dollars U. S. gold coin, with interest and costs, and for the sale of said premises as prayed for in Complaint.

And you are hereby notified, that if you fail to appear and answer the said complaint as above required, the said Plaintiff will take judgment by default and the prayer of the Plaintiff will be granted.

Witness the Hon. J. R. LEWIS, Judge of said Court, and the seal thereof, this 25th day of March, A. D. 1876.

H. A. GUNNOR, Clerk.

Reformed Method of Teaching History.
 Barnes, the schoolmaster in a suburban town, read in the Educational Monthly that boys could be taught history better than in any other way by letting each boy in the class represent some historical character as if he had done them himself. This struck Barnes as a mighty good idea, and he resolved to try it on. The school had then progressed so far in its study of the history of Rome as the Punic wars, and Mr. Barnes immediately divided the boys into two parties, one Romans and the other Carthaginians, and certain of the boys were named after the leaders upon both sides. All the boys thought it was a big thing, and Barnes noticed that they were so anxious to get to the history lesson that they could hardly say their other lessons properly.

When the time came, Barnes ranged the Romans upon one side of the room and the Carthaginians on the other. The recitation was very spirited, each party telling about its deeds with extraordinary unction. After a while Barnes asked a Roman to describe the battle of Cannae. Whereupon the Romans heaved their copies of "Wayland's Moral Science" at the enemy. Then the Carthaginians made a battering-ram out of a bench and jammed it among the Romans, who retaliated with a volley of books, slates and chewed paper balls. Barnes concluded that the battle of Cannae had been sufficiently illustrated, and he tried to stop it; but the warriors considered it too good a thing to let drop, and accordingly the Carthaginians sailed over to the Romans with an other battering-ram and thumped a couple of them in the stomach.

Then the Romans turned in and the fight became general. A Carthaginian would grasp a Roman by the hair and hustle him around over the desks in a manner that was simply frightful to behold, and a Roman would give a fiendish whoop and knock a Carthaginian over the head with Greenleaf's arithmetic. Hannibal got the head of Scipio Africanus under his arm, and Scipio, in his efforts to break away, stumbled, and knocked down about thirty feet of stove-pipe. Thereupon the Romans made a grand rally, and in five minutes they ran the entire Carthaginian army out of the school-room, and Barnes along with it, and then they locked the door and began to hunt up the apples and lunch in the desks of the enemy. After consuming the supplies they went to the windows and made disagreeable remarks to the Carthaginians who were standing in the yard, and dared old Barnes to bring the foe once more into battle array. Then Barnes went for a policeman, and when he knocked at the door it was opened, and all the Romans were found busy studying their lessons. When Barnes came in with the defeated troops he went for Scipio Africanus, and pulling him out of his seat by the ear, he ~~knocked~~ ^{knelt} the great military genius with a rattan until Scipio began to cry, whereupon Barnes dropped him and began to paddle Caius Gracchus. Then things settled down in the old way, and next morning Barnes announced that history in the future would be studied as it always had been; and he wrote a note to the Educational Monthly to say that, in his opinion, the man who suggested the new system ought to be led out and shot. The boys do not now take as much interest in Roman history as they did on that day.—Philadelphia Bulletin.

Luxurious Underwear.
 White Indian silk is a novelty very much used for lingerie; drawers, petticoats and even sheets are likewise made of it; in fact sheets of Indian silk are now the mode for a large class of Parisian women. The initials of the owner are embroidered in the centre, with either bright red or pale blue silk, the letters being large; the top sheet and pillow cases are trimmed with old Louis XIV. guipure. The lingerie, made of Indian silk, also trimmed with Louis XIV. guipure but more frequently with Valenciennes lace. White is the best to use; pink, blue and cream Indian silks are made, but none wash as well as pure white. The best under linen is all made by hand and ornamented with embroidery worked on the garment. The fronts of chemises have the initials of the owner's name elaborately worked upon them, and the new drawers, made of cambric, to match the chemises, are shaped to fit the limb about the knee, and are left open a finger length up the outer side. This opening is embroidered, likewise the edge that passes round the knee, and the opening is then fastened closely by three buttons and button holes. These are neater than the Turkish drawers, so long in vogue. Smyrna lace, which is all pure linen, is used for trimming handsome petticoats; it washes and wears well, but is costly. Other petticoats are trimmed with frills of thick closely worked cambric, scabbed at the edge and headed with cross-bands of muslin, stitched on by the sewing machine.

A Detroit boy paid his first visit to one of the union schools, the other day, as a scholar and, as he came home at night, his mother inquired: "Well, Henry, how do you like going to school?" "Bully," he replied, in an excited voice. "I saw four boys licked, one girl got her ear pulled, and a big scholar burned his elbow on the stove! I don't want to miss a day."

 Men willingly believe what they wish to be true.
 Condemn no man for not thinking as you think.
 He that speaks ill of other men burns his own tongue.
 In prosperity we need moderation; in adversity, patience.
 The present population of the United States is estimated at 43,000,000.
