JAMES H. DODDSON, Sec.

The Prohibition Party has nominated John St. John for President.
It was evident from the proceedings and encouraged by the Democratic party, they expecting by this means to draw some strength from the Republican ticket. This is more evident from the fact that the names of the Republican nominees for President and Vice-President were mentioned and denounced in the platform as adopted as supporting measures looking for the distribution of the revenue tax on liquors among the different States. It is thus seen in the desperation of the situation the leaders of the Democratic party are determined to leave no means untried to weaken the strength of their opponents. Whosoever is foiled by this proposition, however, is not as it is managed as a national issue at this time for a scheming purpose.

The Colfax Gazette wheels into line and endorses the candidacy of Jas. M. Armstrong as delegate to Congress. In commenting upon the gentleman in the Gazette says: "The Spokane Falls Review nominates Hon. James M. Armstrong for the delegateship. Mr. Armstrong is a very popular man in this county and will draw a larger vote than any other candidate that could be named. He has the reputation of being thoroughly honest, and we do not think he would accept the nomination unless he was with the people on the railroad question. If the nomination is to be given to Eastern Washington, we believe Mr. Armstrong is the man who should have it, for the people have confidence in his honesty and ability."

It is evident that the county seat fight in Lincoln county will arise about all party questions. This fall no matter how the election results, will leave behind a deep rooted feeling of envy and hate never manifested over the results of a purely political campaign. This strife has just commenced among our neighbors and it looks as though it would be carried out to the bitter end and prove the most arduous struggle for spoil ever known in this part of the Territory. There are three rivals in the list for the county seat, Sprague, Davenport and Harrington, Davenport enjoying the advantage of possession. A meeting was recently held at Davenport where the outline of the proposed campaign was settled on. The people of adjoining counties will look upon the contest, heartily satisfied that the interest is none of their funeral.

It is evident from the heavy yield of farm products this season that the farmer will have a large surplus of grain on his hands after harvest and that the unusual heavy crop will have the effect of reducing the price of all cereals and of wheat in particular to such a low figure as will prove a loss to the producer.
This state of affairs could be modified to a considerable extent if that great carrier, the Northern Pacific railroad, would, for once, show an interest in the country and come to the rescue of the farming class.
It is well-known that a vast number of cars are hauled across the continent empty. If the company would reduce the freight charges on wheat, even for a limited time, so that the western grain could be put on the Eastern market, a market would be created here at which buyers could pay the farmer a remunerative price and at the same time obtain a fair margin for their investment. The only hope of the people in this corporation, that might, without loss to itself win the good will of the country by making some concessions in this trying hour.

The most vicious mode of carrying on a campaign against presidential candidates is that of raking over their past and pointing the most vile and base charges against them. A man's public acts are fit subjects for comment, but there is no excuse to go into the private transgressions of men, and by distorting them, attempt to manufacture capital against the accused. It is true, unfortunately true, that a man never realizes how damnably wicked he has been until he is a candidate for office. We expected to learn before the November election that both Blaine and Cleveland in their youth were horse thieves, besotted lum-bers, despisers of virtue, robbers of churches, and steeped in the guilt of every crime in the catalogue, but did not expect the stories to be sprung upon the public so early. A letter has been written from Buffalo charging Cleveland with being a libertine. This may or may not be true, but considering the weakness of people to lie about a man running for so high an office, we doubt the statement. While we are just as anxious to see Mr. Cleveland resigned to private life as our Democratic friends are to see Mr. Blaine take a back seat, yet we can see nothing to be gained by this made of warfare. It is unbecoming the press of the country to stoop to such a means of gaining an end. Parties should be willing to let their standard bearers stand or fall upon their merits as public men, and steer clear of mud throwing that defiles the thrower as much as it does the target at which the admixture is projected.

There are numerous ways of making a living in this world, a good many of which would not stand the ordeal of rigid scrutiny. When a man who possesses even an average amount of that absence of diffidence commonly called "gall," becomes hard up, thrown upon the cold charities of an uncharitable world to spar for a sufficient quantity of the necessities of life, with a few of the taxable luxuries in the shape of liquid nourishment, he will not weigh to a nicety the right or wrong of the mode of procedure he embarks in, only striving to drift away from the clutches of the myriads of the law as he scoops in the longest for wealth. Very frequently this disregard for the finer points of honesty is played with success in a community, which is no fault of the authorities, but more on account of the shrewdness of the operator. One of the neatest tricks that have been named in this locality for some time is the sale, by a party unknown, of Coeur d'Alene nuggets. Now there would be nothing wrong in the traffic of gold specimens from that celebrated camp were they simon pure samples of the product of that sally demoralized region, but there is where the wickedness comes in.
The nuggets offered were manufactured for the occasion. How this was done we are not able to say, not being in the secret. We have the information from a reliable source that the beautiful specimens fired upon the market and sold for merely nothing would be dear as a gift.
Just how many of the nuggets were sold it is hard to find out, as the parties taken in are a little shy about being sold. However, enough is known to put others on their guard, and we would advise those wishing specimens to go up to the mines and dig them out, or purchase only from those in whom they can place implicit trust. It don't pay to buy collectible stones doctored up to resemble gold quartz, or to be imposed on with pyrites of iron.

Hon. N. P. Langford, national bank examiner, reached our city Saturday, on his regular annual rounds, and examined into the condition of the First National Bank. Perhaps it is not generally known, but there is an officer in the government, known as that of a bank examiner, which is filled only by men of eminent ability. But such is the case. The Union is divided into districts in size according to the number of banks existing, and it is the duty of this officer to make a critical personal inspection once a year of every national bank in his jurisdiction. No notification is sent of his coming, and the bank officials are never aware of his presence until, by the authority invested, he walks into the bank demands the keys and books, so that it is difficult for an institution of the kind to get up an unusual appearance for the occasion. Few men in the service are better qualified for the position than Mr. Langford and his practiced eye is never at fault in a banking house.
His territory is an extensive one, embracing Montana, Idaho, Washington, Oregon, California, Arizona, New Mexico and Colorado, and it keeps him jogging along to make the rounds yearly. During his brief stay here we had the pleasure of a call from Mr. Langford, and it was with natural pride that we listened to his report on the standing and condition of the First National Bank of our city. The inspector considers the bank here the model institution of his district. Few banks with the capital of the local house manage to make anything the first year of their existence, but in this instance the bank has a remarkable record, and he spoke in the most flattering praise of the institution. The healthy condition of the First National is due entirely to the able and careful management of its affairs, showing that both the president and cashier are capable banking men. Mr. Moore, as president, brought his large mercantile experience into use when he drifted into banking, while H. L.
Cutter, the cashier, is a graduate of one of the largest banking establishments on the coast. With solid backing and careful managing there is no wonder that the First National Bank of Spokane Falls takes its place in the front ranks of banking houses in the great northwest.

The Thompson Falls Judge is reporting some time ago as intending to take a hunt for a fortnight, in August, he decided down to H. C. Hayward, J. W.
Glover, B. H. Bennett and Al. Sommers.
The mob starts out next week for the head waters of the Little Spokane, and if the things do not become too familiar with the country, they will give out things of a gummy nature should take out life insurance policies at once, as the boys have blood in their eyes.

Read the daily Review and advertise in it if you want to catch the advantage.

There are numerous ways of mak-

with pyrites of iron.

It is hardly necessary to call attention to the advertisement of Morgan & Bunce that stares the reader in the face in this issue, but we wish to impress it upon the public that the sale is just what it implies, a clean cut at cost. The firm is desirous of closing out the business and in order to do so they are determined to sacrifice the stock. The goods consist of a choice collection purchased at low rates from eastern houses and are now offered far below anything ever reached in the Territory. Most sales advertised at cost are not at cost, but in this instance everything will be marked down to bill figures. Ladies will find this an opportunity to lay in a supply of dry goods never before presented and those who do not take advantage of it will have occasion to always regret their short-sightedness.

Washington Territory Game Law.
Answering inquiries from a number of sportsmen who wish to exercise their rights and shopting in Washington territory, the following epitome of the game act of 1883 is given: Mongrel pheasant shall not be shot for four years after November, 1883.
Killing of deer and fawn prohibited between first day of January and 15th day of August, save as to elk, moose or caribou sheep.
Between first day of April and 15th day of August, killing of wild swan, mallard duck, wood duck, wild-geese, teal, butterball, greytail, spoonbill, sprigtail or canvasback.
Between first day of January and first day of August, prohibited as to grouse, pheasant or partridge.
—Pond d'Oreille's quartz mines promise to be the richest in this section. We have seen assays that run all the way from 87 to 92 per cent in silver, and that from croppings.
—They say that Capt. Bracken came in all the way from the Big Bend to see the "elephant," but departed without seeing which elephant.

Monday afternoon the Post Coeur d'Alene base-ball club, composed of young men from the regular army, measured hats with a scrub nine picked up about town. The local players never expected to make a showing against a practiced club and had no hopes of winning. A large crowd assembled on the grounds in the western part of the city to witness the game and much to the surprise of every body the home team pulled out of the contest with a tie score. The scrubbers were good players and it is a pleasure to see a club that could hit itself so gently on the grounds, never finding fault for an instant and playing together with the discipline of practiced ball tossers. The pitcher and catcher were excellent players and are the main feature of the club.
The home club show a want of practice and generalship and it is wondered that they made as good a showing as they did. On account of the interference of rain and slow playing the game was protracted until dark and only seven innings were completed. The following is the score:

Enjoying Themselves.
Saturday evening Officers Warren and Hubbard got wind of a beachnarian revel in full blast out near Johnson's plank mill, and the two made a break for that locality.
They found several of eight tramp every stage of intoxication from the jolly whores-for-expenses date to that of total idiotic collapse. They had been having a very social time and from the latter condition of the inmates of a few of the indulgers it was evident that they had been wiping the face of the earth with each other. By some undisclosed means the crowd had collected together sufficient coin to purchase a keg of beer, and not knowing when they would again have such an opportunity to fill up, they had gone in for all they could hold. After stirring the crowd up to a condition in which they could understand, the officers gave them a brief time to limits, which advise they were glad enough to follow.

Cleaning Up.
It is hardly necessary to call atten-
always regret their short-sightedness.

Communication.
SPOKANE FALLS, JULY, 23th.
To the Editor of the Daily Review, DEAR SIR: To satisfy the curiosity of the inmates of Union Block and the neighborhood, please publish the following among your items: Last evening a party of gentlemen assembled and made the walls of Union Block resound with college songs, which were rendered as only sons of Alma Mater are capable.
Among those present were Messrs.
Sherwood, Chamberlain, L. Clark and Blossom, Harvard graduates, Dr. Willard of the University of Pennsylvania, Mr. Vajan of Princeton, Mr. Norman of Oxford and Messrs. Morris, Dr. Pittwood and Mr. Dempsie. 'Twas not until the "sweet small hours" that these jovial spirits sought their dreamy couches to dream over the revived memories of college days.

District Attorney Hyde, has given our county Assessor an official opinion that the law passed by our last legislative assembly, providing for the taxation of all railroad property according to gross earnings of the road, is unconstitutional and void, for being in conflict with section 1924 Revised Statutes of the U. S.
This section provides that "all taxes shall be equal and uniform, and no distinction shall be made in the assessment between different kinds of property, but the assessments shall be according to the value of the property."

decided down to H. C. Hayward, J. W.
Glover, B. H. Bennett and Al. Sommers.
boys have blood in their eyes.

Circus Day.

Tuesday was a date not soon to be forgotten by the people of Spokane Falls. For a month past glowing pictorial posters have heralded the coming of the great and only Cole's circus, and people for miles around arranged to visit our city on the day of the performance.

These visitors commenced pouring in Monday, and by Tuesday, by far the largest crowd ever seen north of Snake river was thronging our streets. The show was advertised to open at noon, but on account of an accident on the road the first division of the outfit did not steam in until 1 o'clock.

At that hour thousands of people were collected at the depot to witness the debarcation. The ground selected for the tent is located on the banks of the river in the western part of the city, and there the army of canvasmen soon had out several acres of cloth. In order to make up time the show opened as soon as the work was completed and then the ring performance commenced at 5 o'clock.

Only the walls of the menagerie tent were run up and the dense mass of people sweltered under a broiling sun without a chance to see half of the zoological display. The stream of humanity that rolled into the main canvas was astonishing. Every reserved seat was occupied and it soon became necessary to put up additional seats and even then the ground almost to the ring was crowded.

There was not a head less than 7,000 people to the tent. The tent seats sold 6,300 tickets, and this does not include the children in arms, the walling of which, at one time, sounded like 10,000, nor those who laid at the door, of which there were a great many. On account of the lateness of the hour and the necessity of making the next stand on time the performances were hurried through with, and some omitted. The trapeze, bicyclic, roller skating and tumbling were novel features, but the riding was tame and has been equalled if not surpassed by third-rate shows.

As a whole the circus is, by no means what it has been represented to be. It succeeds through, that potent medium advertising. However it drew the people, and the owner of the outfit profited largely thereby, the object, it is supposed, of putting capital in such enterprises, the patronage received is proof of one thing at least and that is money is not nearly so scarce as the dullness of the times would indicate.

Soil Samples.
Silas Luttrell, one of the successful farmers of the country north of the city, has a bunch of wheat and oats on exhibition at the law office of Jos. Douglas & Son that shows just what this soil will produce. There is a couple of dozen beautiful full heads of wheat, the growth of one grain, and several stalks of alfalfa oats are grown on Mr. Luttrell's farm that is known as Cottonwood ranch, six miles south of Chewelah. There is no trouble in the world to grow abundant crops of good grain as can be produced in Washington Territory, but the great drawback is the want of a market. When the railroad can be induced to carry grain at fair rates, farming here can be made profitable. Until that time it is all labor with very little profit.

New Church.
The members of the Catholic church of this city met Monday evening for the purpose of discussing the advisability of constructing a church edifice and to appoint a committee to solicit subscriptions for that purpose. The chief reason for the members to start the building immediately is that, on account of the general dullness, the work of construction will give employment to and encourage the needy. Mrs. Wm. Kohlhoff and Mrs. P. Duber were appointed a committee to solicit subscriptions for the church edifice. A paper was circulated among those present and the sum of $100 was subscribed on the spot. We have no doubt the committee will meet with a liberal response, and that a handsome church will be constructed before winter.

Get it Good.
Tuesday night between 11 and 12 o'clock the keeper of the Sprague Branch Brewery on Riverside avenue took offense at a drunken man at the bar and knocking him down, dragged him out on the sidewalk where he brutally kicked him about the head. The act was witnessed by a couple of gentlemen who were passing at the time. Marshall Hyde got wind of the transaction and took the victim under his protection, giving him a bed in the jail until he could sober up. At the trial two or three reliable witnesses testified to the cruel treatment the man had received and Justice Allen fined the bar-keeper $250 and costs. Officer Hubbard informs us that the bar-keeper will now have the fellow he beat so outrageously arrested as a vag, an offense that comes under a recently passed ordinance.

Good Showing.

The result of this season's farming in the Big Bend country prove conclusively that that region will in the years to come be the great agricultural centre of Washington Territory, and justifies all the flattering newspaper descriptions of the vast section that have been published. Early this year there was a heavy travel to the Big Bend and a great many farms were located, but the early spring was phenomenally dry, and a large per cent. of the settlers became discouraged and abandoned their claims. The drought did not last long enough to permanently injure the crops, however, and the timely and abundant moisture that extended throughout eastern Washington has insured an immense yield wherever the soil has been cultivated.

E. B. Nash, Esq., a brother of our townsmen, Dr. Nash, was among the early settlers of the Big Bend this season, locating with others near the base of Badger mountain, only a few miles from the Columbia river, where there is an inexhaustible water supply besides plenty of timber. Mr. Nash arrived in this city early in the week, having in his possession a large variety of samples of the product of that country. These specimens of the vegetable kingdom grown for consumption are on exhibition at G. T. Bennett's commission house on Riverside avenue, and the farmers of this section are invited to inspect the collection. There is no exaggeration in saying that the growth in the choice farms of the northwest will stand the most critical examination. It must be taken into consideration that these products were grown on sod land, and if the soil does so well for the first crop what can be expected when the land is under a high state of cultivation. The collection embraces wheat, oats, barley, corn, beans, potatoes and garden vegetables. The grain stalks are tall and the heads thick and heavy, and taken altogether the display is a silent, yet incontrovertible proof of the possibilities of a section that has remained unknown up to a very recent date. The reward of the experiment made by a comparatively few settlers who went into the Big Bend with the determination to remain until a fair trial was given the land is so satisfactory that in another year the travel in that direction will be greater than ever. The land is all government property and open to settlers. It is clear and selling and every acre can be cultivated successfully. It is some distance off the railroad but as soon as the demand is created for a line of road so soon will one be constructed. A mail route has been located to the Badger Mountain country, the choicest portion of Douglas county, which embraces the greater part of the Big Bend, and the people of that section, who have been cut off entirely from the surrounding world, will have a good communication with the railroad. Mr. Nash, a gentleman of progressive ideas and extensive knowledge and experience, has that faith and confidence in the agricultural feature of the Big Bend, created through a personal acquaintance with the nature and producing capacity of the land. He expects to see thriving farms and lively and flourishing towns spring up in that section in a few years, a result of the emigration of intelligent and industrious farmers from the over-crowded Eastern States.

Hit Him Hard.
A party by the name of Rose got into an altercation with one Chamberlin at the Germania Hotel, and during the misunderstanding Rose hit Chamberlin a vicious blow over the head with some kind of weapon. The injured party had his assailant arrested and the case was tried before Justice Wood. Rose pleaded his own case and made a stiff defense, but it was impossible to pull the wool over the Justice's eyes, and that retailer of Justice clapped on a fine of $20 and costs, that made up a bill rather hefty for a few moments' recreation. As Rose could not fish up the coin he was given the bridal apartments in the Hotel de Hyde. Chamberlin can thank his stars he escaped with only a sore pate, as the blow came within an ace of being fatal. It seems that at one time he served in the British army and during target practice was shot in the head. The wound ordinarily would have proven fatal, but the physicians took the opportunity to practice a little science on the individual as a last resort and Chamberlin recovered, but with a trepanned head. The blow yesterday reached him but an inch above the soft place in his skull, and had it landed on the temple Mr. Chamberlin would have furnished a case for the coroner, and Rose, instead of worrying over a matter of a few dollars, would have had a coil of rope decorated at the end with an ugly noose staring him in the face.

Washed.
Tuesday morning, as the circus men were unloading the flat-cars at the depot, the wheel of a large heavily loaded wagon passed over the foot of one of the workmen creating a very painful injury. The poor fellow was carried into the Sprague Hotel and Dr. J. M. Morgan was called. The doctor found the great toe of the right foot fearfully mashed, and the nails torn off the two second toes. He did all in his power for the relief of the wounded man who can be thankful that the hurt was no worse.

The last number of the Chronicle estimates the crowd in Cole's circus at 4,500. Now, we have no objection to estimates as the crowd was "guessed" at all the way from 2,500 to 10,000 by different people present, but it puts our statement that there were 7,000 people under the canvas in the light of an unwarranted exaggeration. The ticket agent stated at an interview that he had sold 6,300 tickets, and as there was a heavy per cent. of children under paying age we consider that the figures at 7,000 is under instead of above the actual count.

Bold Robbery.

One of the boldest daylight robberies that has ever come under our observation was that of the burglarizing of Nason & Barker's jewelry establishment Tuesday afternoon. The firm occupy the east window and side of the store owned by Chas. McNab & Co. at the corner of Howard street and Riverside avenue. Mr. Nason left his place of business to go to the circus yesterday afternoon, presuming that the drug store would remain open, and therefore taking no precaution to lock up his more valuable wares. All his watches and gold rings were left in the show case adjoining the window. Those in the drug store also were taken with a desire to see the elephant and so the establishment was deserted although the doors were all locked. When Mr. Nason returned to his place of business he was dismayed on discovering that some one had paid him a visit during his absence and secured watches and jewelry to the amount of six or seven hundred dollars. It seems that the robber or robbers entered the store through a back window, gathering up twenty-three gold and silver watches and emptied two trays of solid gold rings. The ring trays were carried into the back room and there emptied. From the fact that several rings were left sticking in the trays is evidence that the thieves were in a big hurry. The robbery must have been committed about 3 o'clock. No one saw the parties, and even if they had it is doubtful if any suspicion would have been aroused. It was a bold piece of work, anyhow, and the chances are the guilty party never will be apprehended. Robberies have been committed in every city where the circus has performed, and the public has been warned repeatedly. Of course the victim here to be blamed in this case as he would never have left his place a temptation to the thieves had he known that the store was to have been locked up. We sympathize with Mr. Nason in his loss, and while there is a very slim chance of recovering any of the property we hope he may be able, by the use of the wire to bring the robbers to justice.

Pulled Out.
After a successful business career in our city since last December the firm of Sheppard & Marston have concluded to draw out of the market. A office has been hastily engaged for the past few days packing up the remainder of the stock, and by Saturday the gentlemen will be ready for departure. We wish them continued good fortune in the places they are now located at.

John Piggott is about again, but he don't look as though he had been in training for a foot race.

Why Business Men Fail.

Let me give your readers, says a correspondent of the U.S. Economist, the benefit of the replies I have received from leading men of our country to the question, "What in your observation, have been the chief causes of the numerous failures in life of business and professional men?"

"Governor St. John answers: 'Idleness, intemperance.' Alexander H. Stephens, answers: 'Want of punctuality, honesty and frankness.' Dr. J. R. James, answers: 'Incorrect views of the great end and aim of life. Men are not contented to live plain lives of integrity and uprightiness. They want to get ahead too fast and are led into temptation.' President Bartlett, of Dartmouth College, names six causes of failure: 'Lack of principle, of fixed purpose of perseverance, of President Elliot, of Harvard, replies: 'Stupidity, laziness, restlessness and dishonesty.' Dr. H. M. Dexter, of the Congregationalist, answers: 'Lack of thoroughness, lack of industry, lack of energy, lack of purpose, lack of faith in the inevitable triumph of right and truth.' Anthony Comstock's answers are: 'Unholy living and dishonest practices, lack of temperance, living beyond one's means.' Dr. H. K. Shuman, answers: 'Lack of attention to the details of business.' General G. Howard answers: 'Inquisitiveness, breaking the divine laws of the body by vice; those of the mind by overwork or idleness; and those of the heart by making an idol of self.' Prof. Homer B. Sprague, of Boston, answers: 'Lack of health, lack of energy, lack of industry, lack of a low ideal, making success consist in personal aggrandizement, rather than in the training and development of a true and noble character.' Dr. Lyman Abbott answers: 'The combined spirit of laziness and conceit that makes a man unwilling to do anything unless he can choose just what to do.' Mr. A. W. Tenney, of Brooklyn, replies: 'Lack of temperance, failure to grasp and hold, scattering too much, want of integrity and promptness, unwillingness to give success by any means in the old-fashioned way.' The Attorney General of a neighboring State replies: 'Living beyond income, speculating with borrowed money, unwillingness to begin at the foot of the ladder and work up. Young men want to be masters at the start, and are not content to learn before they have learned.' Another reason in the same line: 'Desiring success that another man has without being able to do what that man does. Giving money-making a first place and right-going a second place.'

Judge Bourge, author of "A Fool's Errand," considers the frequent cause of business collapse to be "trying to carry too big a load." As to others he says: "I don't know about a professional man's failing, if he works, keeps sober and sleeps at home. Lawyers, ministers and doctors live on their brains, and, of course, grow fat under reasonable exertion, unless the competition is too great. It requires real genius to fall in with the 'business of life.' Hon. Joseph Medill, ex-Mayor of Chicago, answers: 'Liquor drinking, gambling, reckless speculation, dishonest, tricky conduct, cheating, idleness, shirking hard work, frivolous reading, lack of manhood in the battle of life, failure to improve opportunities.' Among the causes of failures given by my correspondents many may be held under the general heading of 'wandering purpose,' 'non-stick-to-it-iveness,' 'failure to grasp and hold,' 'scattering too much,' 'trying to do too many things, rather than sticking to one thing one knows most about.' A young man spends seven years in a grocery store, and when he has learned the business he concludes to go into dry goods. By failing to choose that first he has thrown away seven years' experience. Then, after learning the dry goods business, he will conclude to become watchmaker, and at last becomes 'jack-at-all-trades,' good for nothing. A merchant says: 'Nearly all failures in legitimate business come from not serving an apprenticeship. I mean, not learning to know what one knows for another, which he does not understand. Another cause of failure is the disposition to escape, and to get rich in haste—desiring the success another man has without being willing to work as that man does, and begin, as he did, at the foot of the ladder.' How many who were in haste to get rich, to reap without patient industry in sowing, have earned the truth of the proverb: 'The more haste, the worse speed.'

A Trap Scur. Detroit Free Press. His beard was long, tangled and gray, and indicated age. His clothes were scant and ragged, and indicated poverty. His eyes were dreamy and his nose was red. These, with a to-mato can, which was only partially concealed in one of his coat pockets, indicated the tramp. The charge against him was "no visible means of support." He seemed to be familiar with the court and its surroundings, and when his name was called he stepped briskly to the bar.

"What do you do for a living?" he was asked. "I look into the future," he answered solemnly. "I see the mystic realms now and tell us what you see," ordered his honor sarcastically.

The prisoner threw his arms over the rail, raised his head, and, with a look of defiance, said: "I am a free man, and I will not be confined here by a man who is not a free man."

"You did, I presume you said just what you saw," said the accused, rubbing his hands. "You didn't see anything of an island, seagirt and dotted here and there with islands, and a still in the laughing waters that connect the island with the main land, did you?"

"No, indeed, I did not," said the accused hurriedly. "Then you can't see any farther into the future than the end of your nose, for just what I have described you are going to see, and see them every day until the festive month of March blows in."

A Terrible Fire.

Tacoma has again been visited by a terrible conflagration, one entire block being swept from one end to the other. At 12:29 o'clock this morning the cry of fire brought all who were within hearing distance to their feet, and a glance toward the north end of Pacific avenue soon showed its location. Upon arriving on the ground the flames were discovered in the rear of the American house, a frame building used as a boarding house. The fire soon spread to a small one-story building in the rear and in a few minutes that end of the block was a mass of flames.

MASS OF FLAMES. It was some time before any great number of the people arrived, and the few that were on the ground seemed helpless, and did not know what to do nor where to go. It was evident from the start that there would be a scarcity of water, and the only thing to be done was to remove the furniture and goods out of the various houses in that immediate neighborhood. For some time the fire was confined to the American house and the Bee Hive saloon, but at last good headway was made and it was apparent that at least the greater portion of the block was doomed. While the fire was confined to the Bee Hive saloon and the American house an effort was made to clear down the building occupied by the Elite photograph gallery, the gallery having been burned out of the other side. When men were engaged in throwing articles out of the Elite gallery a lamp was knocked over in an instant that building was in flames. Then the fire commenced spreading both ways and half the block was in flames. Adjoining the Bee Hive was a small building occupied as a saloon. Next came the three-story building known as the GNOTTO HOUSE. Which was used as a lodging house and restaurant. The opinion was then freely expressed that the entire block was doomed, which proved to be the case, and all efforts to the contrary were useless, so far as preventing its spreading was concerned. From there it caught a small one-story building, and went quickly down the block. It was in an instant that building was in flames. Then the fire commenced spreading both ways and half the block was in flames. Adjoining the Bee Hive was a small building occupied as a saloon. Next came the three-story building known as the

THE INJURED MEN. Charles Uhan, proprietor of the Banier market, was seriously hurt by a falling building, and was removed to the Headquarters building.

J. V. Chamberlain was overcome by a hot steam boiler, and was carried to L. H. Fell's store.

There was a rumor that a woman was seen in the second story of one of the saloons while it was burning and did not escape. How true this is cannot be said.

Mr. Imulek, an engineer, is reported to have received some injuries, but to what extent could not be ascertained.

A man whose name could not be ascertained, was seriously injured and knocked senseless. He received some severe cuts on the head and elsewhere. He was an employe in Halstead's saloon.

There was a number of others more or less injured in one way or another, but their names could not be ascertained.

WHERE THE FIRE STARTED. A gentleman states that he was one of the first on the ground after the fire started, and says positively that it originated in the small building in the rear of the American house, which was occupied by the Chinamen as a laundry. It is stated by others who are equally positive that it started in the American house.

However positive persons may be that it originated in the building in the rear of the American house, there can be no question but that they are mistaken, as where the flames first showed they were unquestionably the southwest corner of the hotel in question, as it was seen by a number of persons who were standing in the street. The flames which were headed had been made, but they were a scarcity of people and a still greater scarcity of water, and thus the fire spread until the entire block was laid to waste.

WERE BADLY DAMAGED. In tracing the route of the fire some of the smaller business places may be omitted in this rapidly constructed account, but in the main it is correct. Next south of McCaskill & Hayes' came Heman's saloon. About the time the building caught fire the company made a splendid effort to tear out a building further south. They had partially succeeded when a large fire in the building next south of the place where they were working EXPLODED FROM CAUSES UNKNOWN. And started the fire in a new place almost in the center of the block. Returning to affairs to the north of the explosion, the Grotto hotel followed Heman's. The lodgers escaped with the greater part of their wardrobes, and much of the furniture was saved, including the billiard table. A large saloon, the Rock restaurant, Uhan's meat market, Walnut's auction house, Beech's saloon, Wolf's bakery, Imulek's cigar store, Simon's cigar store, the Danfoss saloon, Slogon's tailor shop, Simon boot and shoe store, Davis' drug store, the Noying's bank and Fite's red-tape office. There were

MANY OFFICES AND ROOMS. Burned out in the second stories of the buildings along the block, whose loss it is impossible to estimate. The Elite photograph gallery and the city magistrate's were among the number. In this block, and suffering by the fire, were five firms who had heavily in the recent great fire in Tacoma—the Noying's bank, H. G. Davis, A. Simon, Sam Simon and Crowell Bros. The safe from the Savings bank was loaded on a truck for the second time in three months. There were material it was wrenched up like tinder, and nothing short of superior water works could have stayed the ravages short of the place where it stopped to the corner of Mann's block. It was successful, and the fire was stopped at this corner.

EVERYBODY WORKED SPLENDIDLY. Not only in fighting the flames, but in saving the valuable property. The scorched and blackened appearance of the buildings upon the opposite side of the avenue will amply testify to the peril they were in and the work that was done to save them. At this hour probably no individual could even roughly estimate his loss, and we will not attempt to give the grand total, but it must BE MASSY THOUSANTS. The block burned was the old and original portion of Tacoma, and for several years it has been predicted that it would burn. The buildings were of no great value, probably not nearly so much as the contents destroyed. There was but little insurance upon either buildings or stocks, a few places, however, being amply covered.

J. V. Chamberlain was overcome by a hot steam boiler, and was carried to L. H. Fell's store.

HALL'S VEGETABLE SICILIAN Hair Renewer.

Baldness does a popular remedy with such a strong hold upon the public mind as Hall's Hair Renewer. The cases in which it has accomplished a complete restoration of color to the hair, and vigorous health to the scalp, are innumerable.

Old people like it for its wonderful power to restore to their thinning locks their original color and beauty. Misguided people like it because it prevents them from getting bald, keeps dandruff away, and makes the hair grow thick and strong. Young ladies like it as a dressing because it gives the hair a beautiful glossy lustre, and enables them to dress it in whatever form they wish. That is the favorite of all, and it has become so much because it disposes of no one.

BUCKINGHAM'S DYE FOR THE WHISKERS. Has become one of the most important toilet articles for gentlemen's use. When the beard is gray or naturally of an undesirable shade, BUCKINGHAM'S DYE is the remedy.
