HENRY VILLARD, President of the Northern Pacific Railroad.

The approaching completion of the Northern Pacific Railroad, which is to be opened for travel to Portland, Oregon, and Puget Sound early in September, gives special interest to a portrait and biographical sketch of the President of the company under whose management this important national highway has been completed.

Mr. Villard was born in Speyer, Germany, in 1835, the son of a Bavarian judge, who in his latter years sat upon the Supreme Bench of that Kingdom.

He came to America at the age of eighteen for himself, living for a short time with relatives in Belleville, Ill. He studied, but soon turned to the more congenial profession of Journalism.

At first he wrote German-American papers, but he found that they offered only a limited field, and he then set himself to work to master the English language.

This task, always difficult to foreigners, he achieved so well that in 1858 he obtained an engagement to report the Lincoln-Douglas political campaign for a leading Eastern paper.

His occupation was now fixed in the line of his tastes, and for nearly a score of years he was an industrious and successful journalist.

In 1859 he went to Colorado, and to write about the new gold discoveries for the Cincinnati Commercial.

In 1860 he did political correspondence for the New York Herald, and after the close of the campaign spent the winter in Springfield as a correspondent in confidential relations with Mr. Lincoln.

During the Rebellion he saw hard and hazardous service in the field with both the Eastern and Western Armies as a representative, at different times, of the New York Tribune, New York Herald, Chicago Tribune, Cincinnati Gazette, and other papers winning a reputation as one of the most enterprising and reliable of the war correspondents.

After the close of the war he did newspaper work in this country and in Europe. For two years, from 1858 to 1859, he was Secretary of the American Social Science Association.

While in Germany in 1874 events occurred which brought him in connection with railway affairs. The German bondholders of certain American railroad companies, which had defaulted on their interest after the panic of 1873, sent him to the United States as their representative to report on the condition of the Kansas Pacific and Oregon and California railroads.

He returned to Europe, and became President of the Oregon and California Railroad and the Oregon Steamship Company in 1875, and from 1876 to 1878 he was Receiver of the Kansas Pacific.

In 1879 Mr. Villard organized the Oregon Railway and Navigation Company, which obtained control of the steamship and steamboat lines of Oregon and Washington Territory, and at once began the construction of a system of railroads to occupy the valley of the Columbia River and the new wheat and pasture country east of the Cascade Mountains. This enterprise was remarkably successful, and Mr. Villard conceived the masterly plan of joining the transportation lines thus established to the transcontinental trunk road of the Northern Pacific, under a common management, and making them its western extensions and feeders. To carry out this plan he formed, in 1881, what was known in W. H. Street as the "Blind Pool."

About ten millions of money were placed in his hands by leading bankers and other capitalists without his asking them to do so. He used the money to use his capital to make of it. He gave them, at the time only his personal receipt, without security. With this money, and with his own means, he quietly bought a controlling interest in Northern Pacific stock. In the Fall of 1881 he was chosen President of the company.

He had previously organized the Oregon and Transcontinental Company, to build branches for the Northern Pacific, and to hold a large amount of the stock of both that company and the Oregon Railway and Navigation Company. Mr. Villard has energetically pushed forward to completion his entire system of roads, and will have the satisfaction of driving the last spike of the Northern Pacific on the Western Slope of the Rocky Mountains early in September.

In person, Mr. Villard is tall and robust, with broad shoulders, a high expansive forehead, blue eyes and brown hair. His manner is frank and cordial. He lives on Madison Avenue, New York, and has a country house at Dobbs Ferry, on the Hudson. His wife is a daughter of the late William Lloyd Garrison, the devoted champion of the anti-slavery movement in the days before the war. His operations on Wall street, while often bold and on a large scale, are usually confined to protecting the stocks and advancing the interests of the companies over which he presides.—Frank Leslie's Illustrated Newspaper.

The telegrapher's strike is not as yet adjusted to the satisfaction of all concerned, but the wires are working free enough to give the daily papers their usual amount of news.

PORTLAND had a sensation Tuesday caused by one Acock shooting a man named Morey. Both were gamblers and not listed as the best of citizens.

We are in receipt of the Recreation, a literary weekly of considerable merit published at Los Angeles and edited by Edward A. Weed.

JAMES CAREY, the Irish informer through whose testimony the conspirators in the Phoenix Park murder were brought to justice, was shot and killed on board a steamer this week, by a man named O'Donnell.

Speculation on the probable nominees for President next year is now rife in the East, and almost every man of any prominence has been trotted out as prospective candidates.

Monday morning Al. Jones met with a singular accident that will require the use of court plaster for some time, and which promises to leave a delinquent in the shape of a cicatrice that will somewhat mar the beauty of his physiognomy.

LOCAL.

We are requested to announce that Rev. H. D. Lathrop, D. D., of Walla Walla, will conduct services in the Episcopal church to-morrow morning and evening at the usual hours.

Remember the Presbyterian Sunday school at 10 o'clock, A. M., in Cannon's hall. Regular services at 11 A. M. and 8 P. M.

In the proceedings of the W. C. T. U. of Eastern Washington, held at Chyney, July 20th and 21st, the following report was made regarding the organization at Spokane Falls:

We receive letters every week asking our advice as to whether it would pay the writers to locate in this city. We are not engaged grinding out advice to people as to what they should do, or what line they should follow in order to accumulate wealth.

THE BOLD SOLDIER BOYS. A Visit from one of the Greatest Captains of the Age.

For sometime it has been known that that mighty chieftain Gen. W. T. Sherman, whose achievements with the sword and the pen are to a proud audience among the great of history, was to pay a visit to this upper country in his official capacity as the head and front of the American armies.

Monday morning Al. Jones met with a singular accident that will require the use of court plaster for some time, and which promises to leave a delinquent in the shape of a cicatrice that will somewhat mar the beauty of his physiognomy.

How They Worked It. A good joke is always enjoyable to the perpetrators even if not so amusing to the one on whom it is played.

time. To make matters certain he arranged with night watchman Kohlhoff to sound an alarm clock. The solid gentleman rigged up a large tin can on the bureau in his bed room to which he attached a string, leaving the end of the window. By a simple jerk the guardian of the night could pull down the can, the noise thus created awakening the sleeper.

PERSONAL.

J. N. Squier is off this week on a visit to his Colville mine.

T. J. Lockheart and wife, of Cheney, were in the city Saturday last.

Mrs. H. E. Boothby joined her husband in the city last Friday, a good friend that Mr. R. expects to remain permanently with us.

Mrs. U. L. Collins is visiting relatives in Salem, Oregon. Mr. C. will join his wife in that city next week and will spend several weeks on the Sound.

John Piggott, a young gentleman from California, has accepted and is filling a clerkship with Messrs. Scheeline Bros. Mr. Piggott is a pleasant and accommodating gentleman, and as he likes the city will make his home here permanently.

Tuesday afternoon W. T. Stoll started forth alone behind a double team to explore the country known as the Big Bend. He goes well supplied with all the creature comforts, and though playing a lone hand will no doubt soon plenty of pleasure.

E. D. Kenfield, traveling salesman for Sader & Co's notion house of San Francisco, called upon us Wednesday. Mr. Kenfield is a very agreeable gentleman as well as a No. 1 drummer.

We regret to announce that Mrs. E. J. Weston, who was very seriously sick for the past fortnight, and was so long that her life was despaired of. However with the best of treatment the malady has been conquered, and at present writing she is slowly recovering, although it will be sometime before she regains her former vigor.

Saturday we were surprised with a visit from H. P. Squier, connected with the duty of the (Col.) The Hon. Wm. G. Honshaw, with Taggart & Dinger, real estate brokers of the same city.

The General did not proceed to make a formal, grand-tongued speech, but assumed a conversational tone and merely talked to the audience. As the people hung back to the rear of the room he requested them to come forward.

J. L. Kirkman and family have gone to Spokane Falls, W. T., where they will make their future home.

THE BAD BOY.

"I see you pa wheeling the baby round a good deal lately," said the grocery man to the bad boy, as he came in the store one evening to buy a stick of striped peppermint candy for the baby, while his pa stopped the baby wagon out on the sidewalk and waited for the boy, with an expression of resignation on his face.

"What's got into you pa to be a nurse girl this hot weather?" "O, we have had a circus at our house," said the boy, as he came in after putting the candy in the baby's hand. "You see, uncle Ezra came back from Chicago, where he had been to sell some cheese, and he stopped over a couple of days with us, and he said we must play one more joke on pa before he went home. We played it, and it is a wonder I am alive, because I never saw pa so mad in all my life. Now this is the last time I go into any jokes on shares. If I play any more jokes I don't want any old uncle in to give me away."

"What was it?" said the grocery man, as he took a stool and sat out by the front door beside the boy who was trying to eat a box of red raspberries on the sly.

"Well, uncle Ezra and me bribed the nurse girl to dress the baby up one evening in some old, dirty baby clothes, belonging to our wash woman's baby, and we put it on the front door step, and put a note in the basket and addressed it to pa. We had the nurse girl stay out in front, by the basement stairs, so the baby couldn't get away, and the ring on the bell and got behind something. Ma and pa, and uncle Ezra and me were in the back parlor when the bell rung, and ma told me to go the door, and I brought in the basket, and set it down, and told pa there was a note in it for him. Ma, she came up and looked at the note as pa tore it open, and uncle Ezra looked in the basket and sighed. Pa read part of the note and stopped and turned pale, and sat down. Then ma read some of it, and she didn't feel very well, and she leaned against the piano and grated her teeth. The note was in a girl's handwriting, and was like this:

"OLD BALD HEADED PET.—You will have to take care of your child, because I cannot. Bring it up tenderly, and don't for heaven's sake, send it to the foundling asylum. I shall go down myself. You loving, AUNTIE."

"What did you ma say?" said the grocery man, leaning interested.

"O, ma played her part well. Uncle Ezra had told her the joke, and she said 'retch,' to pa, just as the actresses do on the stage, and she put her handkerchief to her eyes. Pa said it was 'false' and uncle Ezra said, 'O, brother, that I should live to see this day,' and I said, as I looked in the basket, 'pa, it looks just like you, and I'll leave it to ma.' That was too much, and pa got mad in a minute. He always gets mad at me. But he went up and looked in the basket and said it was some dutch baby, and was evidently from the lower strata of society, and the unnatural mother wanted to get rid of it, and he said he didn't know any 'Almira' at all. When he called it a dutch baby, and called attention to its irregular features, that made ma mad, and she took it up out of the basket and told pa it was the perfect picture of him, and tried to put it in pa's arms, but he wouldn't have it, and said he would call the police and have it taken to the poor house. Uncle Ezra took pa up in a corner and told him the best thing he could do would be to see 'Almira' and compromise with her, and that made pa mad and he was going to hit uncle Ezra with a chair. Pa was perfectly wild, and if he had a gun I guess that he would have shot all of us. Ma took the baby up stairs and had the girl put it to bed, and after pa got mad enough uncle Ezra told him it was all a joke, and it was his own baby, and that we had put in the basket, and then he was madder than ever, and he told uncle Ezra never to darken his door again. I don't know how he made up with ma for calling it a dutch baby from the Poland settlement, but anyway, he checks it around every day, and ma and pa have got so they speak English."

"That was a mighty mean trick, and you ought to be ashamed of yourself. Where do you expect to fetch up when you die?" said the grocery man.

"I told Uncle Ezra it was a mean trick," said the boy, "but he said that wasn't a priming to some of the tricks pa had played on him years ago. He says pa used to play tricks on everybody. I may be mean, but I never played wicked jokes on blind people, as pa did when he was a boy. Uncle Ezra says once there was a party of four blind vocalists, all girls, gave an entertainment at the town where pa lived, and they stayed at the hotel where pa tended bar. Another thing, I never sold rum, either, as pa did. Well, before the blind vocalists went to bed pa caught a lot of frogs and put them in the beds where the girls were to sleep, and when the poor blind girls got into bed the frogs hopped all over them, and the way they got out was a caution. It was long enough to have frogs hopping all over girls that can see, but for girls that are deprived of their sight, and don't know what anything is, except by feeling of it, it looks to me like a pretty tough joke. I guess pa is sorry now, for what he did, 'cause when uncle Ezra told the grocery man, I brought home a frog and put it in pa's bed. Pa has been afraid of paralysis for years, and when his legs, or anything gets asleep, he thinks that is the end of him. Before bed time I turned the conversation onto paralysis and told about a man about '93's age having it on the West side, and pa was nervous, and soon after he retired I guess the frog wanted to get acquainted with pa, and pa yelled six kinds of murder, and we went into his room. You know how cold a frog is? Well, you'd a dide to see pa. He laid still, and said his end had come, and uncle Ezra asked him if it was the frog with the head on, or the feet, and pa told him paralysis had marked him for a victim, and he could feel that his left leg was becoming dead. He said he could feel the cold, clammy hand of death walking up him, and he wanted ma to put a bottle of hot water to his feet. Ma got the bottle of hot water and put it to pa's feet, and the cork came out and pa said he was dead, sure enough, now, because he was hot in the extremities, and that a cold wave was going up his leg. Ma asked him where the cold wave was, and he told her, and she thought she would rub it, but she began to yell the same kind of murder pa did, and she said a snake had gone up her sleeve. Then I thought it was time to stop the circus, and I reached up ma's lace sleeve and caught the frog by the leg and pulled it out, and told pa I guess he had taken my frog to bed with him, and I showed it to him, and then he said I did it, and he would maul me so I could not get up alone, and he said a boy that would do such a thing would go to hell as sure as prechin' and I asked him if he thought a man who put frogs in the beds with blind girls, when he was a boy, would get to heaven, and then he told me to hit out, and I hit. I then pa will feel better when Uncle Ezra goes away, because he thinks Uncle Ezra talks too much about old times. Well, here comes our baby wagon, and I guess pa has done penance long enough and I will go and wheel the kid awhile. Say, you call pa in, after I take the baby wagon, and tell him you don't know how he would get along without such a nice boy as me, and you can charge it in our next month's bill."
