HIT AGAIN!

Spokane Comes in for Another Visitation.
Devastating Flames Mop Out a Large Section of the City.
Losses, Insurance, Scenes and Incidents, Etc.

After a respite of just three weeks our city has once more been a victim to fire, and the site of much valuable property is now a blackened heap of smoking ruins, while the finger marks of the destroying element conspicuously mark a large number of adjacent buildings. At 7 A. M. Saturday last the citizens were made aware of the threatened calamity by the ringing of the church bell and the customary amount of lung expanding, and in a few moments crowds were rushing to the scene, and a night was commenced against the spread of the fire noble in its selfishness and praiseworthy for the zeal shown by all classes. When we reached the vicinity dense black clouds of smoke were rolling out of every window, crack and crevice of the second story of the Rising Sun lodging-house, a large two-story frame building at the southwest corner of Sprague and Mill streets, owned by L. Henderson and occupied by Mrs. Knox. At that time a single stream of water would have extinguished the fire or at least have confined it to one building. However, there was no water, no ladders, in fact not the simplest contrivance to use to check the blaze, and the entire attention of the crowd was turned to saving the contents of threatened property. Men commenced at once tearing down the outhouses in the rear of the doomed building, for it was evident that the entire corner was in jeopardy. The old Wigwam and H. C. Bell's fruit and vegetable stand, only temporary structures were leveled to the ground. The flames burst from the Rising Sun in one place, and quickly seized upon the Occidental hotel, a handsome two-story frame fronting on Howard street, and only built this summer. Ready hands removed the contents, but the building was completely destroyed. From the Occidental the flames spread to Sires' saloon and a building owned by W. B. Parks, occupied by Mrs. M. E. Robinson as a millinery store, both small buildings. This was the boundary of the fire on the north. Just across Sprague street was a lately erected building owned by Witherspoon & Kenney, which ignited by the heat, and in an instant it was a sheet of flame, spreading to Mrs. E. L. Davies' millinery shop, that was also destroyed. In the rear of Witherspoon & Kenney's store was Wm. Griffin's grocery store. It was on fire a score of times, but through the exertions of a crowd of men the structure was saved, but in a terribly scorched condition. The whole attention of our citizens was turned to preventing the fire from taking hold of the solid row of frames facing on R. Verside avenue, the rear of which were in imminent danger of igniting. Here the struggle was desperate. The heat was intense, and almost more than human endurance could stand, yet the brave boys stuck to their post when hope seemed almost gone, and by a diligent application of water succeeded in staying the progress of the fire in that direction. In the meantime the buildings on the east side of Howard street, which were on fire, were being pitched out of the boards, glass burst, and the frame work charred and smoked. Ready and willing hands redoubled their efforts, and though it looked for a time as if nothing would prevent the flames from crossing the street, yet the workers at last had the satisfaction of seeing the ruins of the burning buildings fall in, which reduced the heat and announced all real danger passed. Another gallant stand was made at Griffin's store. This building was just opposite the Rising Sun lodging house and in the rear of the two-story frame above mentioned. Its blackened and burnt appearance shows how well the crowd worked. The fire did not last hardly over an hour, but in that time six buildings were destroyed, three of them large two-story structures, entailing a loss of upward of $15,000, to say nothing of the minor losses on surrounding property.

LOSSES AND INSURANCE.
It is hardly possible to arrive at the full amount of the loss. The fire occurring in the day time, and at first burning slowly, enabled the people to remove much of the goods from the threatened buildings. The following is a list of the losses and insurance as near as it can be gathered: Rising Sun lodging house was a double two-story building owned by L. Henderson. Mr. H. had no insurance and his loss of $2500 is total. The establishment was kept by Mrs. Froust, who loses about $2000; insured in the Orient, of Hartford, for $1500.

The Occidental hotel was a new building owned by Chas. G. Lange whose loss on building and contents is about $1000. He carries two policies of $1000 each, one in the Irving, of New York, and the other in the Fire Association of London. He also held two policies of $500 each on furniture, one in the Germania, and one in the German, both of Pittsburg, Penn.

Witherspoon & Kenney's building was a brand new one, and they are in the fire for $2000, with an insurance of $1000, in the Girard, of New York.

Mrs. E. L. Davis carried a large stock of millinery goods—some of which were destroyed. Her loss in the building, in the London and Provincial; $500 in the Home Mutual of California and $500 in the Phenix of London on stock.

Alex. Sires, who owned the saloon north of the Occidental, is out about $1000 on house and stock, and insured in the Boatman of Pittsburg for $500.

Mrs. M. E. Robinson occupied the adjoining building with a stock of millinery valued at about $1000. She was only insured for $500 in the Scottish Union and National, of Edinburgh, Scotland. Much of the goods were saved.

N. B. Parks owned the building by Mrs. Robinson, but the insurance companies would not take a risk on the place. His loss is $500.

Wm. Griffin carried an insurance of $1300 on his building and stock, $500 in the Home and Phenix of New York and Hartford, and $300 in the Phenix. The building is owned jointly with Giles W. Clarke, who had an insurance of $250 in his part in the Scottish Union and National. The loss on building and goods is but slight.

Chas. W. Carson has some loss by breakage on buildings at the corner of Sprague and Howard streets, and is insured for $1000—$500 each in the Washington, of Boston, and Orient of Hartford.

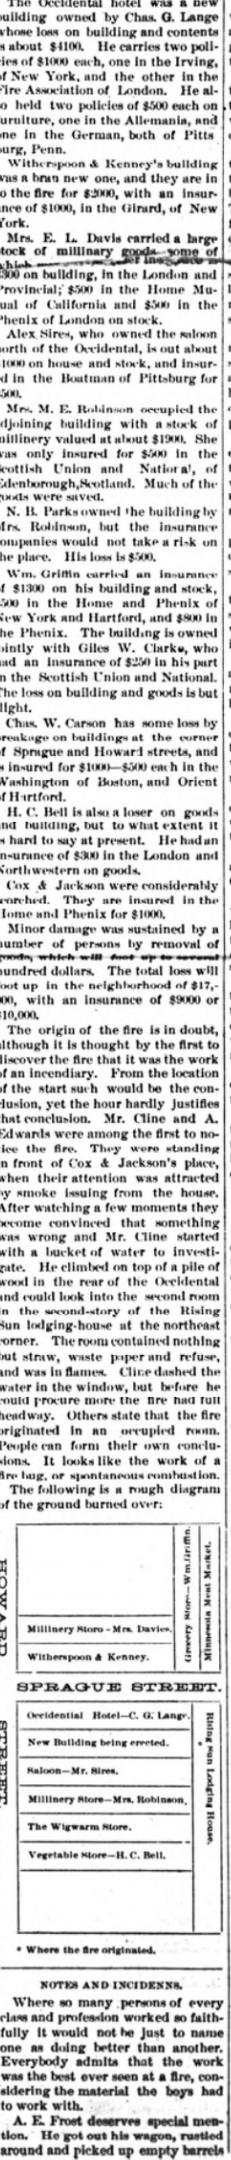

H. C. Bell is also a loser on goods and building, but to what extent it is hard to say at present. He had an insurance of $300 in the London and Northwestern on goods.

Cox & Jackson were considerably scorched. They are insured in the Home and Phenix for $1000.

Minor damage was sustained by a number of persons by removal of property, which will cost up to several hundred dollars. The total loss will foot up in the neighborhood of $17,000, with an insurance of $9000 or $10,000.

The origin of the fire is in doubt, although it is thought by the first to discover the fire that it was the work of an incendiary. From the location of the start such would be the conclusion, yet the hour hardly justifies that conclusion. Mr. Cline and A. Edwards were among the first to notice the fire. They were standing in front of Cox & Jackson's place, when their attention was attracted by smoke issuing from the house. After watching a few moments they became convinced that something was wrong and Mr. Cline started with a bucket of water to investigate. He climbed on top of a pile of wood in the rear of the Occidental and could look into the second room in the second-story of the Rising Sun lodging-house at the northeast corner. The room contained nothing but straw, waste paper and refuse, and was in flames. Cline dashed the water in the window, but before he could procure more the fire had full headway. Others state that the fire originated in an occupied room. People can form their own conclusions. It looks like the work of a fire bug, or spontaneous combustion. The following is a rough diagram of the ground burned over:

A Searcher.

The editor of the Yakima Signal, who is, by the way, a government official, saw fit to make a personal attack upon Judge F. A. Bettis of this city, in a late issue, which draws out the following scathing answer addressed to the editor of the Yakima Record, a copy of which we have reprinted for publication:

SPokane Falls, Sept. 19, 1884.
Editor Yakima Record: My attention has been called to scurrilous attack upon myself, in the Yakima Signal, a paper, which I understand is published by a fellow named Adams, who has lately gained notoriety by having been exposed in a conspiracy to break up the republican party in Yakima.

In this extraordinary specimen of venom and vengeful spite, Adams, or his alter ego says that Bettis "belonged to such an extent, that several ladies left the g. lobby."

If I am not mistaken, as a further effect of this "bellying," one Whitson, and another fellow named Adams, left the floor of the convention, and dropped the sheepskin mantle with which they were covered, and have since appeared in their appropriate and natural wolfhide.

I do not know that I have ever seen the man Adams, but I have no hesitation in branding him as a cowardly cur, who takes advantage of his newspaper to insult and abuse private citizens, and who had not the manliness, when he was in Seattle, where I was to be found, to spit any of his infamous falsehoods and venom at me.

In addition, he, as editor of the paper, and publishing the matter as editorial, assumes to vouch for its correctness, and I brand his article as an infamous tissue of falsehood from beginning to end. Neither he nor any other person ever heard me say that the Helton delegation should be sent if it broke up the convention. The pretended question which the writer of the scurrilous article claims was put to me was never asked and never answered. It is true that when Adams and his gang went around town vaporing that if they were not admitted as delegates the bolt which they have made would result, and the party broken up. I may have said that it was right that the Helton delegation should be admitted if they were en-

Mrs. Young has just furnished the rooms up stairs in the Squier, Benjamin and Mill streets, and is prepared to rent the same for long or short periods at most reasonable terms. The lady has shown a great deal of taste in furnishing these apartments, and we feel safe in saying that neater, cleaner or better kept rooms cannot be found in the city. There are fourteen sleeping apartments, single and en suite, and each and every one is finely furnished. The central location of the building, while being beyond the wealth and confusion of the Main street, is in a quiet and convenient, and we don't believe the lady will find any difficulty in finding occupants for them. Those desiring sunny, pleasant, home-like quarters should apply at once, as most of the rooms have already been spoken for.

LAST Saturday J. S. Fenn, the republican nominee for joint-representative, spent the day in this city, making the acquaintance of our people. We had only a few moments conversation with the gentleman, but was favorably impressed with his clear judgment, and felt that he would represent the district with credit in the territorial legislature. Likeable farmers, Mr. Fenn is exceedingly busy just at the present time, being encumbered with the labor of harvest. He is one of our leading farmers, and like the majority of that great class keeps himself posted upon the movements of the outside world. As soon as he has housed his crops, we will have a few more days among our people, and we are certain that the acquaintance will be mutually advantageous. Mr. Fenn is a bright, intelligent gentleman, and should be elected—which most certainly he will be—he will make a first-class legislative officer. If all the districts in the territory are as fortunate in their selection of men we can look for a legislative body worthy of this great commonwealth and one that will leave a record that will be a model for like bodies after the territory becomes a sovereign state.

Thanks.
The ladies and gentlemen who so ably and carefully assisted me in saving my goods during the late fire will please accept my sincere thanks.

THE MINES.

Jack Squier and Mr. Palmerston started north Sunday morning for the silver mines near Chewelah. We expect to have a complete report of the country from the latter gentleman. It is evident from the attention paid to this section by old mining experts that the country is rich in mineral wealth. Large parties were seen on the mountain peaks, and it is not unlikely that a very rich vein of silver will be discovered in the shape of galena and silver-bearing quartz. Old miners who have examined the rock pronounce it equal in every respect to that of Colorado or Nevada. The field is not limited in extent. Good rock being found in every portion, and some of the assays are really marvelous. At Argentum, a new town several miles from Chewelah, is located the mine in which J. N. Squier is interested. This mine is being developed and shows wonderful prospects. James E. Roe has a claim twenty miles or more north of Argentum and the rock that he has exhibited is pronounced very rich. It is evident from what we can learn that the whole country is one vast mineral bed, and that within a year there will be a greater mining camp in Stevens county than anywhere else on the coast. It will require capital to work the new mines, but the returns from the investment will make some parties enormously wealthy. Mining has been carried on in the locality on the quiet for a year, but it has gradually become known and parties are hastening to take up claims. We believe it is the intention to put up a reduction mill this fall and in that case work will go on all winter. The location of the mining country will be of great advantage to Spokane Falls, as this is the nearest point and the supplies will be drawn from this city. We look for a rash to the new silver mines in the spring and it is too late now for a great deal of work to be done.

SPokane county is good for 1000 majority, if not more, for Maj. Armstrong.

VOORHIES opened the campaign on the sound this week. It is a break "full of sound and fury signifying nothing."

SPokane has not a monopoly of fire. The Esmond block at Portland was destroyed Sunday night, entailing a loss of over $100,000.

In spite of all the lying now indulged in by the democratic ring leaders in Whitman county, it is evident that Armstrong will come out of that county with a handsome majority.

The most encouraging reports come from all portions of the territory. Armstrong is gaining strength every day, and when the old man gets out among them his popularity will increase an hundred fold.

An old veteran of the war who freely shed his blood for the preservation of the union will not be forgotten on election day. The people of Washington territory are too loyal to forget an old soldier who has every qualification necessary to awaken the confidence of the people.

The Portland Oregonian has at last got its new press in operation and comes out in an improved form with a fine dress of new type. It is the handsomest daily on the coast, and it shows wonderful pluck in the proprietor in the face of the prevailing hard times.

The republicans on the Sound seem to have pooled all their misunderstandings and Armstrong stock is going up every day. After hearing the vain vapors of Voorhies and then the sturdy, straightforward talk of Armstrong, the entire western part of the territory will rally to the support of the old soldier.

THERE is no mistaking the tocsin that has sounded from Vermont and Maine. It is a proof that the salvation of the country is dependent upon the success of the republican party. The victory in Maine at the extreme northwestern border will be re-echoed from Washington at the extreme northwestern limits of the union.

The action of the democratic territorial convention proved that body had no hope of electing the congressman. If they had had it they would have nominated a republican.
