how easy the work of destruction would be! Sometimes I watched him in his sleep, his offender still from the garden, as I crunched behind the bushes, glaring like a tiger on his prey into the parlor, where he sat learning his lesson on a low stool, beside my wife's knee.

Close to our country house by a deep pool, but it was not visible from our window. I spent several days in carving a rough model of a boat with my penknife; and when it was completed, I purposely left it in the child's way. I then hid myself near the pool, in a spot that he must pass by, in case he came to see the little toy boat on the water.

For a few days after a comrade of mine, who served abroad, came to visit me unexpectedly, with a friend of his whom I had never seen before. I could not, however, resolve to lose sight of the grassplot, and as it was a summer's evening, I told the servant to bring out a bottle of wine into the garden. I then placed my own chair over the grave, and sat, feeling sure it could not be tampered with, I endeavored to make myself easy and enjoy my glass.

I was obliged to stammer out in reply the story of the child's disappearance. The soldier who was a stranger to me, did not look me in the face, but kept his eyes fixed on the ground all the while I was talking, which caused me the greatest uneasiness. I fancied he suspected the truth. I asked him abruptly whether he thought—but broke down without finishing the sentence.

"Whether I think the child has been murdered?" said he, with a mild look, "oh, no! what could any man gain by murdering a poor innocent child?"

I could have told him what a man gained by such a deed, for no one knew better than I did; but I remained silent, though I shivered as if I had the ague.

Seeing the state of excitement I was in, they endeavored to comfort me with the hope that the child might yet be found, when we suddenly heard a deep howl, and a couple of large dogs leaped over the wall into the garden.

"Blood hounds!" exclaimed my guests. They need not have told me, for though I had never in all my life happened to see any dogs of that kind, I instinctively felt like one already condemned to death, and I gasped, the dogs of the chair coming suddenly, though I neither moved nor spoke a word.

"They are the true breed," observed the stranger, "and have probably been let loose on trial, and have escaped their keepers."

And as he and his friend turned their heads they saw the dogs snuffing the ground and running round and round like mad, without noticing us, and ever and anon raising their heads and uttering a prolonged howl, and then again laying their muzzles close to the earth, as if to get on the right scent.

Instead of turning around so large a circle, they seemed to concentrate all their efforts on one point, which they sniffed more diligently still, in doing which they approached my chair, when they set up a more frightful howl than before, attempting at the same time to tear away its legs, which prevented their getting at the ground beneath.

"They evidently scent game," cried my guest. "That is impossible," said I. "For Heaven's sake," cried the one I knew, "get up, or they'll tear you to pieces."

"Oriental exaggeration," can take a back seat. "Going West!" It encountered its brother of the Occident thus: "Yes, sir," resumed the Dakota man, as the crowd of agriculturists seated themselves around a little table, "yes we do things on rather a sizable scale. I've seen a man on one of our big farms start out in the spring and plow a straight furrow until fall. Then he turned around and harvested back. We have some big farms up there gentlemen. A friend of mine owned one on which he had to give a mortgage, and the mortgage was due at one end before they could get it recorded at the other. You see it was laid off in counties."

There was a murmur of astonishment, and the Dakota man continued: "I got a letter from a man who lives in my country house before I left home, and it had been three weeks getting to the dwelling house, although it had traveled day and night."

"Distances are pretty wide up there, ain't they?" inquired one. "Reasonably, reasonably," replied the Dakota man. "And the worst of it is, it breaks up families so. Two years ago I saw a whole family prostrated with grief. Women yelling, children howling, and dogs barking. One of my men had his camp truck packed on seven four-mule teams, and he was around hiding everybody good bye."

"Where was he going?" asked a Gaysvender man. "He was going half way across the farm to feed the pigs," replied the Dakota man. "Did he ever get back to his family?" "It isn't time for him yet," returned the Dakota man. "Up there we send young married couples to milk the cows, and their children bring home the milk."

Opium is surreptitiously supplied by San Francisco Chinamen to their countrymen in the Sandwich Islands, where it is forbidden. The drug brings $80 to $90 a pound, and the smuggling of a few hundred pounds makes a Chinaman rich. In numberless ways they contrive to introduce it. A large size is consigned to a prosperous merchant. An officer demanded that it be opened. The Chinaman declared that he had forgotten the combination. That night the safe, weighing four tons, was taken out of the bonded warehouse, carted away several miles, emptied, and left in a sugarcane field, where the officers found it the next day, with evidence that it had been crammed with opium. A man had a contract for washing the linen of the Pacific Mail steamers. Hundreds of bundles, each containing a can of opium, were pilfered from the steamer's deck by the washers, and carted to his laundry. He happened to be sick on one occasion, and his assistant, who was ignorant of the contraband trade, handled the linen in such a way that an opium can fell out. A great number of sewing machines were sent to Honolulu, and by accident it was discovered that the legs were hollow and packed with opium. Opium has been delivered at the islands in fruit cans, the cans being divided into three compartments, the two outside ones filled with fruit and the larger ones with opium. Large quantities have also been shipped to the island in stave wood, each piece of the wood being bored. Masses of coal have done service in the same way.

From different parties late from the new gold mines we learn that new and richer discoveries are continually being made, and all agree that the new mines will be a great source of wealth for North Idaho. Mr. Charles Clark, and J. E. Harris, old miners and prospectors, have just returned from the mines, bringing with them two large pieces of quartz. Mr. C. says that they got them out of the ledge near the surface. In one piece the gold is plainly visible all over the rock. In fact it makes the old miner's mouth water to look at it, and inexperienced look at it with open mouthed astonishment. The other stone is almost a solid mass of sulphurates and is supposed to be rich with silver. Gold is almost plainly visible in it. The ledge is about four feet thick at the surface. The parties discovered it on Frichard Creek. Other parties are hunting for an extension, but had not succeeded in finding the ledge when our informant left the camp. The snow is already a foot deep on the hills, so that prospecting for quartz, will have to be postponed until spring. Mr. Clark says there is no doubt but the camp will be a good one, not only for placer mining but also for quartz. The country has been prospected for several miles square showing that the gold bearing region is large enough to give employment to several thousand men. They are beyond doubt the richest diggings discovered in the last twenty years, nuggets being taken out the size of hen eggs, and claims are being jumped every day. Gold quartz leads have been discovered at Lonsdale old miners—Kooval Courier.

Council Bill, No. 57, is an act entitled to amend an act incorporating the City of Spokane Falls, W. T.

While we have no official notice we learn from our friends that the bill for division has passed the Council.

GOD'S ACRE.

A visit to Mountain View Cemetery.

About one mile southwest of the center of Spokane Falls is situated a beautiful "new cemetery."

Right to fight the bill. We expected some outbreak after the action of the House on the bill, as it is the nature of the county-secters to growl and kick when things do not go to suit them.

SCRAPINGS.

November 17th. Read Thompson & Co.'s card. Announcements are too numerous.

The real estate market is looking up. Another theatrical troupe next Saturday. Pantheon saloon open to-night. Big fight.

Paul Strobach opens his land office next week. What little news we receive from the mines is encouraging.

The ladies are rehearsing for the Old Folks' concert. Prepare for a laugh. Thompson & Co. are building an addition to their warehouse. Heap business.

Thanksgiving being a legal holiday the U. S. Land Office will be closed on that date. The Percival Brothers have closed down their shingle mill on Coocallala lake for the winter.

Preparations are being made to enlarge the factory in connection with All Saints' chapel.

A new sidewalk is down in front of the Central Block, and another great wall is supplied.

It will be soon by card that Dr. G. S. Allison has his office in the First National Bank building.

The firm of I. T. Benson & Son has been dissolved by mutual consent. See notice elsewhere.

A heavy fog, strongly impregnated with chill and dampness, wrapped itself about the city Tuesday.

The painters have sanded the front of Rima's Hotel, and it now looks like a brown stone front.

Landlord Kaiser expects to have his new lunch house in running order about the 1st of next month.

The chief subject of debate this week was the grocery store trouble. The verdict was one-sided.

Play goers have had a chance to enjoy their weakness and run down their bank account this week.

There will be a Bible reading next Thursday evening at the Congregational church. Come, and bring your Bible.

Joy, the manager of the roller skating rink, will give a masquerade at the rink tonight. It promises to be a lively affair.

Baxter & Benson, the Mill-street painters, are doing a fine piece of glass lettering to go in over the front door of Rima's Hotel.

We call attention to the change in the card of the Hilo shoe store. Trant & Chamberlain are determined not to be undersold.

Eugene Germond and Jas. Morris have purchased the lot at the southwest corner of Post and Sprague streets. It is a good investment.

It looks very much as though there will be no dearth of amusements in the city during the winter. The only danger is it may be overdone.

Several small and inexpensive buildings have sprung up about town this week. They are not much for ornament yet they go toward filling up.

We understand that Radrum is recovering from the effects of the late disaster, and fire, and numerous new houses are filling up the burnt district.

A rainbow by moonlight spanned the western sky Tuesday evening, caused by the heavy dew and fog. It was an exhibition between 5 and 6 o'clock.

The auction sale of Jas. Morris' stock has been largely attended this week and much of the goods disposed of. Thompson & Co. have managed the sale in good style.

REMEMBER! Leave your measure at THE ELITE SHOE STORE For best Fine Boot made in Spokane.

REMEMBER! THE DISTRICT COURT of Northern Idaho will hold its session at Radrum, commencing Monday, Nov. 23th. It was set for next week but has been postponed to the date above stated.

J. J. Brown is an article in another column that the accounts due the firm of H. J. Brown & Co. are payable to him. And he further states that he alone is empowered to do this business.

A matrimonial alliance is on the carpet for the first time in the city. The bride is not the heavy party as the happy groom. But we promised not to say anything about it at present.

The old ladies that have spoiled the appearance of the east side of Howard street between Riverside avenue and Main, have been removed. They go to swell the size of Post's new lively stall.

furniture and quality of contents that can be found anywhere in the Northwest, not to mention even Portland.

Hulbert Percival is the owner of a very choice piece of property on the north side of the river. He has had the land enclosed and the lumber is on the ground for a large and handsome dwelling. It is the intention of Mr. Percival to make his home with his. Glad of it.

A very large congregation assembled in Cannon's Hall, Sunday evening, to hear Rev. T. G. Watson's discourse on the life of Luther. The effort was well spoken of by those who were present. A feature was the singing of the German hymns in that language by a fine choir.

The business division Land Office has not decreased any since its removal. On the contrary it seems to be growing larger every week. The cash receipts for October were $16,628.30, and the money taken over the counter Tuesday of this week totaled up to the best sum of $4,500.

Schedule Bros. have received another large lot of goods from the East this week. This firm have their large store filled with wares of all kinds. They claim to pay the largest freight bills, hence they dispose of the largest amount of goods. Their business is growing every day.

If hard work will meet with reward then Henry French ought to take the cake. He is getting plenty of exercise fixing up the interior of his new store room on Howard street, and a very pretty job he is making of it. It will be too nice for any use when at last ready for occupancy.

Col. G. H. Bradshaw is the sole representative of all the Portland creditors of the firm of H. J. Brown & Co., by assignment from I. R. Watson, and assignments of individual creditors. Mr. Henry A. G. of the law firm of Fisher & A. G. represents San Francisco creditors. So he informs us.

A new residence was knocked together Sunday on the lot east of the Sprague House. He has put up a party just from the east end of Fish and now has a marble front it universal immediate purposes and will do for a wood shed when the owner puts on the large building he has in contemplation.

No less than three new houses have been put up or commenced within one block of A. M. Cannon's residence in the west part of the city within the past ten days. How is that for jump-up-and-jump-down. And this is only one of the town the other corners and the center are filling up just about as rapidly.

J. B. Eldred has enlarged his quarters to meet the demand of the growing shoe trade. He has snatched out the partition that formerly divided his shop, and has turned the office formerly occupied by Dr. Allison into a pegging shop. All of which indicates prosperity.

J. T. McCarroll reports that his store, close to the shufflers two square posts, and at every turn the feet and legs of the unfortunate man came in contact with the sharp edge of the wood, bruising and lacerating those members. There was nothing for him to do but use his voice, and he shouted lustily. Luckily some one was near the water wheel and the water was shut off stopping the machinery. Gilbert was in his perdition, and he was in a bad way. At that time he was severely hurt, and had not his fellow-workman been so prompt in stopping the machinery, his injuries would have been very serious. As it was the boots were torn entirely from his feet, two toes of the right foot broken, some of the bones in the front part of the left foot fractured, the limbs skinned and bruised as high up as the knees, and one hand badly mangled. The sufferer was at once conveyed to Mr. Post's residence, where the family did all in their power for him. Dr. G. S. Allison was at once summoned, who skillfully dressed the hurts, and at present writing Mr. Gilbert is recovering rapidly, with every prospect of soon being able to be about, and with the happy knowledge that he will escape without being a cripple.

Some of the young ladies of this city have banded themselves together for the purpose of doing good unto their fellow mortals in a modest but very praiseworthy way. It is too well-known that in a community as large as ours there are always some in need who may be aided, encouraged and their lives brightened by the help of those who are able to come to their assistance, and it is for the purpose of ministering unto in this class that the ladies have embarked in the project we refer to. A society has been formed by the Presbyterian Sunday School class taught by Mrs. C. S. Penfield, and under the supervision of that lady the good work goes on. It is known as the "What-are-You-Doing" society. The society meets in Mr. Penfield's rooms, and any young lady desiring may have her name enrolled. Married ladies and gentlemen may become honorary members by contributing a small gratuity monthly. The chief work done is the making of all kinds of wearing apparel for the needy, and any contributions will be thankfully received, and are solicited. There is a visiting committee in connection with the society the duty of which is to call upon all cases of distress that are brought to their notice, ascertain what can be done and report to the society, when action will be taken, and that at once. At a meeting held one day this week the following officers were elected: President, Miss Ella Myrick; Vice-President, Miss Jennie Gibson; Treasurer and Secretary, Miss Fannie Watson; Visiting Committee, Miss Maggie Gibson, Miss Bertie Spinks and Miss Emma Cannon. We wish the fair young members of the "What-are-You-Doing" society in their charitable work, and may the christian men and women of our town respond promptly in extending the necessary aid toward sustaining and helping on the organization.

Some figures. The United States Land Office at this place is doing about the largest business of any office in the Territory, and as a sample of one day's work we give the following figures of the revenue of the office for Tuesday, Nov. 13th, and it is timely to add that it wasn't a good day for people to be about either:

Preemption Filings $ 21.00 Homesteads 21.00 Timber Culture 18.00 Final Homesteads 226.81 Total $ 286.81

PERSONAL.

Prof. J. M. Torman is expected home from New York Monday. He will care all of the most instead of putting it up green, and intends to prepare enough to meet the great demand that there will be for snooked pig next year. This fall the merchants have been unable to meet the demand for bacon, ham, etc., and this demand will increase next year. We hope to see a large and permanent pork packing establishment grow out of this effort of Mr. Drumheller.

It should be the duty of some one, be it a single individual interested in the place or a committee appointed for the purpose, to look after the many new families that are arriving in our city with families of modest means, and find them accommodations. These people are not looking for alms, nor is there any idea of charity connected with the suggestion. Within the past week no less than half a dozen men, heads of families, have stopped at the Review office and made inquiries for houses to rent. In almost every instance these parties failed to secure a place in which to live, and the consequence is Spokane Falls loses them, as they are compelled to seek their homes elsewhere.

These strangers come here for the purpose of making their home, and some provisions should be made to give them comfortable quarters. They expect to pay for what they receive. Let this matter be looked into and some steps taken to provide for those who are daily coming among us.

NEAR INTO DEATH. The Narrow Escape of a Miller. Last Wednesday morning Geo. Gilbert, who is employed in Fred's Flouring mill in the capacity of assistant miller, met with an accident that came within an ace of causing a vacancy in the pay roll of that establishment. The escape from a "rightful death" was exceedingly narrow, and Mr. Gilbert can thank his stars that he got off as well as he did.

On the second floor, in connection with the machinery that propels the power to run the interior arrangements of the mill, is an unboxed upright iron shaft of a couple of inches in diameter. This piece of iron revolves at the rate of fifty or sixty revolutions a minute. Mr. Gilbert was engaged near the shaft when by some means the tail of his coat was caught by the shaft and in a moment the remorseless iron had him at its mercy. From the position he was in, he fell into the mill race, and he landed his feet over the entire width of the mill race, and he was pinned to the mill race by the machinery. He was in a very bad way, and he was in a very bad way.

Mr. Gilbert was powerless as a man, and he was in a very bad way. He was in a very bad way, and he was in a very bad way. He was in a very bad way, and he was in a very bad way.

CENTRAL BLOCK.

A Fine Piece of Architecture that is a Credit to the City. The year 1883 can be set down as an epoch in the history of Spokane Falls. In future ages, encompassed with massive iron, stone and brick blocks, under the shadow of spires designating the location of palatial houses of worship, within curbs of the park and lanes of stupendous factories and work shops, surrounded with all the marks of metropolitanism, such as street railroads, electric light towers, the rush of an endless current of humanity, etc., the ancient inhabitant will lift up his voice in the midst of a crowd of interested listeners and tell of the wonderful growth, the original "boom," of the great city of which they are merely pignory factors, that took place in the year of grace, 1883. And the strides that Spokane has made this season are worthy of remembrance. Lesser buildings by the score have been added to the place, while blocks of bricks have been constructed that will always be considered handsome pieces of architecture even after the growth we predict has been realized. Among these conspicuous blocks, the result of the labors of the year, is one that we now wish to call particular attention to. We refer to "Central Block."

We have seen many much more imposing edifices, but few that have been better built, and for finish and general appearance, both inside and out, it will compare favorably with the sister blocks that have so far been built in this city. Central Block was commenced last January, the parties interested in the building being E. H. Jamieson, Walverton Bros., and the Boyer Bros. When but partially finished John L. Wilson and J. M. Armstrong, of the United States Land Office, purchased the Boyer interest, and under the joint ownership the block is being pushed to completion. E. H. Jamieson, one of our most enterprising and successful townsmen, was the promoter in inaugurating this improvement, and through him were the other parties induced to go into the pool. The plans were drawn by our resident architect and builder, H. Prouse, Esq., who has had charge of the construction, and the work in its primary stages was supervised by the active leader in the enterprise. Laboring under the inconvenience of drawing supplies, iron work, glass, and other material, from a long distance, the progress of the work has been greatly retarded. A source of annoyance, by the way, which we hope to see obliterated in another session by the establishment of foundries at this point. However the contractor pushed ahead as rapidly as the condition of things would permit, and the building is now only awaiting the finishing touches, which will be applied in the latter part of the year. It is so far advanced that an idea can be formed of its ultimate appearance, and an opinion based upon the plans of the structure as it now stands can be only of the most favorable character. Central Block is situated on the southeast corner of Riverside avenue, between Mill and Post streets, the west walls joining on the lots cornering on Post. The building is of modern style of architecture, the beauty of which will be enhanced when the cornices and trimmings are added. The brick work has been laid with great care, the joints being very close, no expense having been spared either in material or work. The floors are the best of the market, the front being laid with sand rolled brick costing $16 per thousand. The block is two story in height, with a basement, and contains 100,000 feet of building, high ceilings on both floors. It has a frontage of about 80 feet, with a depth of 70. The street front is 20 feet wide, and the building is a wide, rosy stairway with a centre landing. Swinging doors will be present on each side, and the taking that means of entry into the building. The upper floor is cut up into suites of apartments, and a portion already occupied. The Land Office also is situated on the second story, with an entrance by sky-lights, extends the full length of the building, with lesser hall ways branching off. The front and rear have been finished with light from large windows while every inside room is lit with skylights. The finish of the interior is very tasty and rich, with an absence of all crudeness, and from the base boards to the ceiling, and from the plaster to the painting everything shows care and a disregard for expense. Mr. McCarter, Mr. Thompson and Mr. Strobach have rooms with their families on this floor and are most pleasantly located. The other suites will be occupied either as living rooms or offices. Mr. Jamieson has a suite of rooms that he will occupy for law office, and when he gets down his velvet carpets, puts up his lace curtains, and receives his mahogany and rosewood office furniture from the east he will be fitted up like a nabob. But to put aside joking, friend Jamieson has a handsome, comfortable and convenient office as can be found in the city. Besides the front stairway there are two others leading up from the rear. The store fronts will be finished in keeping with the interior style of the building, and the outside work yet to be done will add greatly to the appearance of the block. The block will cost the builders $29,000, an investment we hope to see them realize a big income from. Mr. Jamieson deserves his share of credit for the excellency of the work, as the block has been put up in a workmanship manner from the foundation stone to the eaves. If Mr. Jamieson feels that the growth of the place will justify him in the expenditure he will immediately proceed in the spring to put up another brick block on his lot at the corner of Mill street and Riverside avenue. It was to be hoped that he will look favorably upon the undertaking.

Prof. J. M. Torman is expected home from New York Monday. NEAR INTO DEATH. The Narrow Escape of a Miller. Last Wednesday morning Geo. Gilbert, who is employed in Fred's Flouring mill in the capacity of assistant miller, met with an accident that came within an ace of causing a vacancy in the pay roll of that establishment. The escape from a "rightful death" was exceedingly narrow, and Mr. Gilbert can thank his stars that he got off as well as he did.

On the second floor, in connection with the machinery that propels the power to run the interior arrangements of the mill, is an unboxed upright iron shaft of a couple of inches in diameter. This piece of iron revolves at the rate of fifty or sixty revolutions a minute. Mr. Gilbert was engaged near the shaft when by some means the tail of his coat was caught by the shaft and in a moment the remorseless iron had him at its mercy. From the position he was in, he fell into the mill race, and he landed his feet over the entire width of the mill race, and he was pinned to the mill race by the machinery. He was in a very bad way, and he was in a very bad way.

Mr. Gilbert was powerless as a man, and he was in a very bad way. He was in a very bad way, and he was in a very bad way. He was in a very bad way, and he was in a very bad way.

PECK'S BAD BOY.

"Well, you don't look very kiddy this morning," said the groceryman to the bad boy, as he stood up behind the stove to get warm, and he looked as if life was not one continued picnic as heretofore. "What's the matter with you? Your father has not been laughing with you with a boot, has he?" "No, sir," said the boy, as he brightened up. "Pa and me are good friends now. He says he has discovered that my heart is in the right place, and that I am to amount to something, and he has forgiven every foolish thing I ever did to him, and says for me to come to him any time when I want advice or money to do good with. Why, when pa found that I had pawned my watch to get money to buy medicine for the old woman, he went and redeemed it, and offered to whip the pawnbroker for charging me too much for the money. O, pa is a darling now. He went to the funeral with us."

"No, there is no joke about it," said the boy. "You see, the little apple girl's grandma lost her grip on this earth soon after she got the doctor and the medicine, and died. I was down there, and it was the saddest scene I ever witnessed. I looked around, and see that somebody had got to act, and I braced up and told the girl I was all wool, a yard wide, and for her to just let me run things. She was going to the parsonage and have the city bury the lady, but I could not bear to see that little girl play solitaire as mourner and ride in an express wagon with the remains, and not have any minister, and go to the parsonage to bury her, and she would not say grace over the coffin, but two shovels smacked black pipes and shoveled the earth in too quick, and talk Bohemian all the time. It didn't seem right for a poor little girl that never committed a crime, except to be poor and sell worry apples, to have no style about her grandma's funeral, so I told her to brace up and wipe her eyes on my handkerchief, and wait for Henry, Well, sir, I didn't know as I had so much gall. You have got to be put in a tight place before you know the kind of bated hay there is in you. I rushed out and found a motherly old lady that used to do our washing and give me bread and butter and brown sugar on it when I went after the clothes. I knew a woman that would give a bad boy bread and butter with brown sugar on it, and I cut the slices thick, and a warm heart, and I got her to go down the alley and stay with the little girl, and be a sort of mother to her for a couple of days. Then I got my bicycle and took it down to the pawnshop and got $20 on it, and with that money in my pocket I felt as though I owned a brewery, and I went to a fellow that runs an excursion hearse, and told him I wanted a hearse and one good carriage at 2 o'clock sharp, and the mourners would be ready. He thought I was kidding, but I showed my roll of bills and that settled him. He would have turned out six horses for me when he see I had the wealth to put up. I went down and told the little girl how I had arranged things, and she said she wasn't fixed for no such turnout as that. She hadn't any clothes, and the toes of one foot were all out of the shoe, and the heel was off the other one, so she walked sort of italic like. I told her not to borrow any trouble, that I would fix her out so she would credit to a regular avenue funeral, with plumes on the hearse, and I went home and hunted through the closets and I got a lot of clothes my worn years ago, when my little brother died, and a pair of her shoes, and a long veil and everything complete. I was going to jump over the back fence with the bundle when pa got sick of me and called me bank. I felt guilty, and didn't want to explain, and pa opened the bundle and when he saw the mourning clothes that he had not seen since we buried our little baby, great tears came to pa's eyes and he broke down and wept like a child, and it made me weak in some ways. Then pa wanted to know what all this meant, why I was stealing them clothes out the back way, and I told him all, how I had pawned things to get that little girl through her trouble, and had taken the black clothes 'cause I thought pa would go back on it and tell me to let people run their own funerals. I expected pa would thump me, but he said he would go his bottom dollar on me, and, do you know, the old daisy went with me to the house, and pat the little girl on the head, and said for her to keep a stiff upper lip, and when the funeral came off pa and three other old duffers that are pa's chums, they acted as bearers. I had tried a couple of ministers to get them to go along and say grace, but I guess they couldn't see any glory in it, for they turned me away with a soft answer, and I had about closed a contract with a sort of amateur preacher that goes around to country school-houses preaching for his board, but he pecked on that, and said we should have the best there was, and he sent word to our minister that he had got use for him, and he was on deck, and did his duty just as well as though a millionaire was dead. Well, I ride with the little girl as an assistant mourner, and tried to keep her from crying, and when we passed the House of Correction, where her father is working out a sentence for being drunk and disorderly, she broke down, and I told her I would be her father and mother, and grandmother, and the whole family, and she put her hand on mine and said how good I was, and that bro'a me up, and I had to better. I do't want to be called good. If people will keep
