

The Fourth of July.

To-day is the glorious Fourth. To-day all over these United States, the people are with one voice and sentiment, upholding the decided stand taken by our noble forefathers in declaring that "these are and ought to be free and independent States."

Spokane Falls, Its Growth and Prosperity.

One year ago our town consisted of seven families, one general merchandise store, one blacksmith shop, one carpenter shop, one saw mill and one boarding house.

Messrs. Cannon & Warner, dealers in general merchandise, are doing a good business and they deserve it. Messrs. Cornelius & Davis, have opened a fine drug store and will soon be able to fill all prescriptions.

Mr. E. B. Hunsaker has opened a grocery store here and respectfully invites the people of the vicinity to call and examine his stock. Small profits and quick sales is his motto. See new ad.

Mr. J. M. Jones was elected as justice of the peace. Now that Esq. Jones is prepared to do the knot tying set the boys had better wait no longer. The day of publication of THE TIMES is changed for this week (Friday) to Friday, one day later than the regular day of publication.

Mr. E. B. Hunsaker has opened a grocery store here and respectfully invites the people of the vicinity to call and examine his stock. Small profits and quick sales is his motto. See new ad.

BRIEF MENTION.

The Fourth. Enjoy yourselves. Business improving. And still they come. Base Ball this afternoon. Room for thousands more. Read new advertisements. Fourth of July Ball to-night. 4th of July Descriptive copies of THE TIMES, only 10 cents.

Mr. R. H. Hargrove, of Colfax, is in town and intends starting a saloon here.

We are informed that a Chinese wash house will be established here, immediately after the 4th of July.

Mr. Gaertner, of this place, is informed by letter of an addition to his family. The little one is a boy, and the father is happy.

Mr. J. B. Baluck, our genial shoemaker, has more work than he can do, and he has hired Mr. Grant as assistant for a short time.

Mr. M. D. Wright formerly of Colfax, has rented the place across Hangman, belonging to Mr. Grant, and intends using it for a pasture.

Short and pointed accounts of how the Fourth in various localities was enjoyed, will, if received in time be published in the next issue. Sign full name.

The business at the ferry above our town has increased to such an extent that it requires the presence of a man all the time. Read the new ad. of Mr. A. L. Pease.

Information comes to us that on the 24th or 25th of last month, quite a number of persons from Seattle and Tacoma, would start over land for this place.

We are very much in need of a hardware store, and a wagon maker's shop. A man will do well in either, at this place. Let some enterprising man come to the front.

Messrs. Cannon, Warner & Co, have received a large safe. It is the first one that has been brought to this place. They have also placed a new sign on the front of their store.

Mr. A. D. Thayer, of Waverly, has received his commission and key, as Post Master at that place, so that persons living in that vicinity, can have their mail come nearer home.

In the election held a few days ago Mr. J. M. Jones was elected as justice of the peace. Now that Esq. Jones is prepared to do the knot tying set the boys had better wait no longer.

The day of publication of THE TIMES is changed for this week (Friday) to Friday, one day later than the regular day of publication. A holiday number. Buy one for a bit.

Mr. Havermale has arrived from Dayton, and has brought with him a single mill which he intends to have in operation in a short time. This is something that has been needed very much.

Mr. E. B. Hunsaker has opened a grocery store here and respectfully invites the people of the vicinity to call and examine his stock. Small profits and quick sales is his motto. See new ad.

The Rockford saw mill is now in full blast, and is doing good work. Those wishing lumber will do well to give them a call. Farnsworth, Worley & Co, are the proprietors. Please read their new ad.

Two gentlemen by the name of Lockhart, with their families, have arrived in this place from California, and intend to locate here. They are well pleased with this country and especially with Spokane Falls.

Rev. Mr. Laird, in charge of the Spokane circuit, informs us that the Methodist society at this place intend to build a substantial church edifice this Fall. Preaching service is held at the school house the third Sabbath of each month.

Mr. Jas. Robinson, a farmer living near Pine Grove, met with quite a serious accident on last Wednesday. By some means his wagon was overturned while he was driving, and his leg broken. This is very hard, as Mr. Robinson was a hard working man and needed all his time.

THE TIMES this week, contains the promised descriptive article on the Territory. It is replete with interesting and valuable information concerning almost every part of the Territory. For those who have acquaintances or friends, who are contemplating a visit to this country, either to settle and remain, or merely to see the country, it affords a vast amount of condensed information.

SURVEYORS.—The N. P. R. R. surveyors under Mr. Weeks, are at present working down Lake creek toward this place. Mr. Weeks informs us that this route is, as far as examined yet, the most practicable way by which to reach this place. White Bluff prairie being several hundred feet higher than this place, the road will make a descent to cross Hangman, and then grade up to the level of the prairie back of town. Mr. C. A. White has severed his connection with the party and returned to Olympia. So we understand.

SPANGLE ITEMS.

Editor Spokan Times: Not having seen any items from this place I will venture to pen a few. This place since starting last fall, has advanced nicely. Having a good farming community around it, it will no doubt advance rapidly.

Some Indians say I am a chief or leader of a party. I am ashamed of this. I am no chief; I am very destitute. Some Indians say it was by my order that these people were killed; this is not true. One Indian named Chuck-chuck, who killed himself last winter, said, these people (Perkins and wife) have much money, and we must kill them.

Wheat around here is excellent considering the late spring. Our place consists of: One store which does a good business, one blacksmith shop, one cabinet shop, one hotel, one good doctor, and expect soon to have a drug store, a dressmaker and boot & shoe shop; besides a number of dwelling houses as soon as the lumber can be furnished.

We have a good school house and school, with an attendance of forty-two, taught by Miss May Spangle, whose ability as a teacher is unquestioned, as is proven by the quickness in learning which the scholars exhibit under her skillful management.

There has been some talk of a grist mill to be built on Mr. Spangle's town site, where he has a spring capable of watering two steam mills. We must say, they would be well supported by the people around here, as our nearest mill is at Spokane Falls.

Climate of Eastern Washington and Northern Idaho. To simply state the plain facts in regard to the climate of this region usually elicits an incredulous shrug from the "down easter" whose ideas of temperature are bounded by latitudinal lines.

I then said to Mus-tonic and Kype, let us go to them. Mus-tonic said it was wrong to kill them, that he did not like to have them killed. Perkins and wife were both dead when I got to them, and were lying some little distance apart. I was told that they were locked in each others arms when killed, and that three shot killed both. There were three shots fired in all, one that hit Perkins in the arm and two after she fell from her horse, when they had embraced each other to die together.

I proposed to Mus-tonic to go and bury them, but the other five said no, they would let them lie where they were. I finally prevailed on them and they assisted in carrying them across the creek a short distance, and we buried them there by covering the bodies with rocks. The ground being hard we could not dig a hole. After burying them 15 or 16 feet apart in this manner, we all returned to the baggage which was lying where Perkins and wife had stopped to lunch. I came in last and found Chuck-chuck dividing the stuff. There were four good blankets which were given out by Chuck-chuck who claimed the right to give out this property, as he was responsible for the whole matter. I got nothing but a poor old saddle blanket. Chuck-chuck took one of the blankets and three others each took one. Chuck-chuck took Mus-tonic to take Perkins's saddle. He hesitated awhile, and finally took it. Chuck-chuck then cut the outside rigging off from Mrs. Perkins's saddle, threw away the tree and kept the rigging himself. Chuck-chuck said he killed Perkins for his money but did not find any on him. Saluskin got Mrs. Perkins' bay mare; he claimed and got it. Chuck-chuck then asked who wanted the cream-colored horse which Perkins rode. Kype said he wanted it, and took it. Kype says I ordered these people killed. I say it is not so; I did not order them killed; I gave no order for the killing. If I had I should have kept all the stuff myself. This is all I know. I know this to be true. When I was small I learned to speak the truth, and when I became a big man I did not forget it.

These are unvarnished facts which every one desiring to better his condition, can verify by experience.

No FENCE LAW.—The Union was the first paper in Washington Territory to advocate the enactment of a no fence law. This position it has maintained for years, except when during the temporary illness of the editor the gentleman employed to do his work, wrote a short article taking the opposite view. The Union believes the enactment of a no fence law applicable to a great part of the counties of Walla Walla, Columbia and Whitman would add millions of bushels to the annual grain product. Thousands of cattle roam the country, increase and grow fat, on land, not an acre of which belongs to the men who brand them. We were never able to see the justice of requiring the man who bought land for the purpose of cultivation, to fence it in order to protect his crops from the depredations of the cattle belonging to the man who does not own an acre of land. W. W. Union.

There will be preaching at the School house next Sunday at 11 A. M.

Wy-ne-cott's Confession.

A correspondent of the Oregonian furnishes the following confession from one of the Perkins murderers who was for some time confined in the jail at Colville.

Some Indians say I am a chief or leader of a party. I am ashamed of this. I am no chief; I am very destitute. Some Indians say it was by my order that these people were killed; this is not true. One Indian named Chuck-chuck, who killed himself last winter, said, these people (Perkins and wife) have much money, and we must kill them.

Indian Civilization in Eastern Washington and Northern Idaho.

Editor Spokan Times: In advocating the possibility of Indian civilization, the fact must not be overlooked, that Indians have many points in common with the White race—all do not submit to one process of education. Many, in fact refuse all education except that to which the force of circumstances compel them. The number of whites is not insignificant, who have never become civilized and never wish to. And so it is hardly reasonable, with our present methods, to expect to secure the civilization of every savage.

But it is a very significant fact, that while many of these incorrigible natives will make no effort for themselves, they are very anxious to have their children learn the white man's way. They will plead for teachers, and appliances for civilization that they know will alienate their children from them. Many of the middle aged, and some, too, far advanced in years, would gladly accept instruction, and profit by it. But thus far the educational facilities afforded by missionary societies and the Indian Department, are barely sufficient for one-fourth of the children of school age.

I would emphasize this willingness on the part of the Indian to receive instruction, as the strong point in the problem of the possibility of Indian civilization; and I submit that it is not fair to claim that the red race is irremediable until after having furnished every facility, under the most favorable conditions, it is found they have no disposition or capacity for improvement. The burden of proof rests at present with the white race. Of the 250,000 Indians in the U. S. about one-half have adopted citizens dress, and about 40,000 live in houses. Over 6,000 children have attended school, the past year, and of the 10,000 who can read, 1,500 have learned during the year. The number of births exceeded the deaths by over 700, showing a marked increase, to counteract the general impression that the Indian race is dying out.

Of the eight tribes in the region included in the above title, the Nez Perce is probably the most advanced, as they have had the most assistance. Next in advancement are the Coeur d'Alenes, who have done the best with the least aid from the Government. The Indians of Colville valley are also improving rapidly, and are the principal reliance of the whites in farm labor. The Spokans are next in order, and are anxious for advancement, having made a very worthy effort which has not been fully seconded by the Government or Church.

We conclude that what has been done can be done again. If, under exceedingly unfavorable circumstances, some progress has been made, it is safe, and reasonable to say and should be vigorously proclaimed, that with the necessary facilities for the education of our red neighbors, there would be no need of any further discussion of the "Indian Problem."

At the picnic of an independent military company in Chicago on the 22d, a serious fracas occurred between the surrounding crowd and the company, resulting in several volleys from the soldiers, wounding twelve citizens, of whom three have since died.

The last Lewiston Teller contains copies of the greetings sent over the new telegraph line, between Lewiston and Dayton, with a number of names of the citizens of the respective places. As regards news, a small wire has brought Lewiston into almost instant communication with distant places. May the time soon come, when we shall be similarly situated.

Almost wholly to that purpose. Attractive, interesting, and valuable information for those who are seeking new homes, will be the main feature of that number. In fact, we intend to make the FOURTH OF JULY NUMBER of "The Times"

The most budget of information concerning Washington Territory that has ever been issued, from any press. Among the attractions of that number will be an extensive description of the Climate, Soil and Topography of

NORTHEASTERN WASHINGTON, SOUTHEASTERN WASHINGTON, NORTHWESTERN IDAHO, THE YAKIMA COUNTRY, WESTERN WASHINGTON, AND THE PUGET SOUND BASIN.

The Resources, the Wealth, the Beauty and Grandeur of each portion of the great country mentioned above, will be described by an impartial pen. We shall represent each portion of country as it is, believing that any country is worth migrating to only when the truth can be told of it to strangers.

The information we shall print will be just such as inquirers are seeking for.
