THE NATIONAL SORROW.

Further Particulars.

Charles Guiteau entered the sitting room just as the president entered the middle door from B Street. When within five feet of the president he fired and missed. The president did not seem to notice him. He fired again, and the president fell. No words passed between them. The man walked deliberately out at the center door, where he had a hack engaged to drive him away at a high speed. Being headed off, he turned and started back the way he came, and was seized at the door by a policeman. The president was laid on the floor until a mattress could be procured, when he was removed to the room in the second story of the depot. Secretary of War John A. Cass and the president's personal physician, Dr. Charles H. Smith, were at the depot at the time. Mr. Guiteau, who had been carried up stairs, was committed.

Bens, ex-chief of secret service, who happened to be standing near, said the shot, rushed upon the assassin, and just as he was about to fire the pistol with three chambers still loaded, to shoot Guiteau, it is thought, shot him and threw him to the ground. Guiteau was hurried to jail, and his body was not taken to the morgue until after the president's death. It is a matter of public knowledge that Guiteau was a man of a very peculiar character, and his insanity is a fact.

Guiteau was never a consul, but was always a persistent office-seeker from G. F. B. and Blaine. He says he would have shot Garfield before had Mrs. G. been in better health. He wanted to be minister to Austria, consul general of France, or some other high functionary. But he had no injurious means of effecting a copy of his speeches during the presidential campaign last year. He is of French descent, has a sandy complexion, is of slight build, weighing not more than 125 pounds; has a monstrosity and light chin whiskers, and his smoken cheeks and eyes far apart in each other give him a lumpy appearance. His history is that of a raving lunatic, a poor and disreputable lawyer, with neither money nor friends; yet at one time he tried to purchase the Chicago Post-Office.

Vice President Arthur to Blaine: "I am profoundly shocked at the dreadful news. The hopes you express I believe somewhat the honor of the first announcement. I wait for further intelligence with the greatest anxiety. Express to the president and his sympathy, in which the whole American people will join."

E. I. Granville, of London, sends the following to Thornton, at Washington: "It is true that President Lincoln has been shot. If so express at once the great concern of Her Majesty's government, and the hope that the report that he has sustained serious injury is not true."

Secretary Blaine telegraphs Corbett: "The president's death with the calmness of true Christian courage."

On the 31 of July G. W. Foster, of O'Fallon, issued a proclamation advising various cities to suspend the usual 4th of July celebrations and substitute appropriate services in churches at 10:30 o'clock and engage in prayer to Almighty God; and that the celebrations be then conducted in accordance with what may be known of the condition of the president.

Just before Mrs. Guiteau's arrival at Washington from Long Branch, Secretary Robert Lincoln was pacing the floor of the president's library with a downcast air, evidently recalling the scene of the sad tragedy of sixteen years ago. A few minutes before seven o'clock she arrived and was met at the front door by Attorney General Cass, Mrs. P. M. Gen. James G. Thompson, Mrs. P. M. Gen. James G. Thompson, Mrs. P. M. Gen. James G. Thompson, and Mrs. G. F. B.'s eldest son. Her son placed his arm about her waist and led her into the house, looking strong and manly, but with a sad and severe expression on his face. She was immediately taken to the double of her husband who quitted her with officious cheerfulness. If a presence seemed to cheer the president, and a favorable turn in his condition was noticed within an hour after her arrival.

Effects of Labor-Saving Machinery.

The most valuable work that is now being done, in the intellectual point of view, is what may be called the popularization of science in those branches which have a direct bearing on the struggle for life. For a long time science, in sense, disdained to make itself plain to the average man. It was set forth in ponderous and heavy books, only accessible to the learned minority. But now the great effort is to simplify. Bagehot, Sumner, Wells, Jevons, Ceruschi, and nearly all the economists of the modern school, write and lecture in a style which can be comprehended by the masses. There are also cheap publications and monographs upon various economical subjects intended to convey instruction in a popular form. Whenever error begins to exercise any influence on the course of events, all these appliances are at once brought into operation for its extirpation.

One of the most venerable fallacies with which we have to deal is that labor-saving machinery reduces the area of employment. There are traces of it as far back as the time of Louis XIV. and Queen Elizabeth. It seems, at the first glance, to be an obvious truth that if a machine be invented to do the work of ten men, nine will be deprived of a job. But if the matter be searched further it will be found that human wants are insatiable, and that they increase with the means of gratifying them. It is in fact, in this respect that civilization differs from barbarism. Science had long been regarded as the enemy of the poor, and it is time for abstract truth to win its way in the world. When civilized societies are beginning to be organized on the basis of machinery, it is time to resort to the inductive method by which alone old opinions can be revolutionized.

This is partially done in a monograph recently published. The author is Fred Perry Powers of New York. Some of the illustrations are quite strong and convincing. A writer holding the opposite view having asserted that eighty compositors and proof readers, four pressmen and two presses do work in the Tribune office of New York, which in the process of use by our fathers would require 207 presses, 334 pressmen and 5,000 compositors and proof readers, the author upsets the whole calculation by merely inquiring: Did the Tribune as a matter of fact employ 6,000 men? If it did not, how can the 5,000 men be said to have been thrown out of employment? He holds that if the steam press had not been invented the Tribune would not be issuing its vast numbers of sheets at 4 cents a copy. He adds: "When one thinks of type making and press making and paper making, it is apparent that the application of steam in printing has vastly increased the number of persons employed in the trade."

Some of the other illustrations which he gives are more clearly worked out. He takes the case of the corn sheller, as follows: "To shell the crop of 1877 by hand, at the rate of 5 bushels per man per day, would have required the labor of one of over 800,000 men. Just think of the price to which it would enhance the price of corn unless the men employed in shelling the corn were the fallowen of Egypt. The best shelling machine, with two men, will shell 1,500 bushels per day. Less than 6,000 men shell the whole crop. Have 854,000 men been thrown out of employment by the corn sheller? Such a question needs no answer.

If labor-saving machinery should have a marked effect anywhere in reducing employment, it should be in the ordinary vehicles of transportation superseded by the railway, but statistics show that such is not the fact." Mr. Powers on this head says: "The census returns indicate that in 1850 the manufacture of carriages and wagons employed 15,900 men, while in 1870 it employed 54,500 men. During the same period the number of horses in the country increased not so rapidly, but yet larger from 4,338,819 to 7,145,370. The number of carriage and wagon makers increased over 200 per cent, while the population increased only 68 per cent." During the same period the number of persons engaged in railway carriage building went up from 1,554 to 19,931, which must be regarded as additional employment.

Colonel Carroll D. Wright, of Boston, contributes the following facts in a paper read before the Local Science Congress: "To produce the goods now manufactured annually by Massachusetts, and to carry on the work of her railroads without the employment of labor-saving machinery and steam power, would require a population of 9,000,000 in place of 1,650,000 as at present, and this by a low grade of labor." * * * This vast estimated population of 9,000,000 in

A HOME SCENE.

It was our pleasure, a few days ago, to stand upon the mountain which seems as a background for the Moran prairie. Situated upon this eminence, and provided with a field glass, it was our privilege to view a very large portion of the great Spokan country. For the benefit of those who are so situated as to be unable to stand where we stood, we will give a faint outline of the surrounding country. Looking toward the south and west, the whole country seemed to be beneath our level. Far down the green mountain-side farms and houses were numerous, and upon the vacant lands herds of cattle and horses were either grazing or resting beneath the shade of scattering pines. Little springs were putting out here and there, and nature's bountiful hand seemed to be providing for the needs of the soil. Away down in the valley, and among the pine groves, flows the clear stream which drains the eastern portion of our county. A forest extends for many miles to the south and west of us, near the edge of which the young and growing town of Cheney is plainly seen, where the hand of man has supplanted a hillside forest by whole streets of business houses. A little farther to our left, and about three miles beyond the town line, the town of Spokane is plainly visible in the deep midst of a flourishing farming settlement. Still farther to our left, the rolling prairies and Black mountains of Idaho are discernible, and the grass-covered plateau, Steptoe Butte, rises prominently above the Palouse region.

Looking toward the westward, we see the bunch grass hills among which are located the renowned Four Lakes. Upon these hills Gen. Wright stood when he planned the subjugation of our native tribes years ago. White Bluff Prairie is plainly seen, over which dozens of farms are scattered, through which wagons, stages and carriages are passing along. Marshall is nestled in the west lands, where only a cloud of smoke betrays its presence.

Turning to the north and east, we see the valley of the Spokan, covered by waving grass, its many herds and scattering farms; and down by the great falls is situated the metropolis of our adopted country, beautiful and important in its growth and importance. Still farther to the north is the famous Colville Valley, and beyond this noted land can be seen the low snow peaks of the Kootenai mountains. And eastward yet a little farther beyond the N. P. railroa I wish its way beyond Coeur d'Alene and Pond d'Oreille lakes toward the Atlantic.

Altogether, this is a delightful scene, permitting the beholder to witness from one spot a matchless country of singular beauty, varied industries, fields of waving grain, woodland mountains, growing villages, flocks, herds and droves, and pleasant homes of happy, industrious herdsmen.

LEADVILLE, July 8.—The "Chronicle" this afternoon contains an interview with Mrs. Theodore Dunsmuir, the divorced wife of Charles J. Guiteau. She was married to Dunsmuir at Boulder, Colorado, in 1878, and is now residing in this city. She showed a degree of adversity granted in 1874 on the ground of adultery, allowing her alimony, and prohibiting Guiteau from marrying until her death. She says that he was very cruel to her from the time of their marriage; that when he was a member of Henry Ward Beecher's church he would lead in prayer, and as soon as meeting was dismissed tell her of some of his swindling schemes; that when given a note to collect for a client he would turn over only half the collection and report that it was impossible to collect the remainder. Guiteau's father is cashier of the First National Bank of Freeport, Illinois. While in New York Guiteau got to spending all his money; and time at fast houses and finally told her that she would have to support herself. She went to Saratoga and remained two months, and on returning found that Guiteau had a bad disease. Her friends discovered the fact and urged her to get a divorce, which she did. She was afterwards a clerk in the treasury department at Washington. He never paid any alimony. Last February she received a note from Guiteau requesting permission to remarry. She answered, saying that permission would be granted on payment of $100. He wrote again, saying he had no money, but was about to marry a wealthy lady and would pay the money as soon as he was married. To this she paid no attention. She thinks that the attempt at assassination of the president was simply prompted by his morbid desire of notoriety, for which he would, she thinks, give his life.

LET THE WAR OF WORDS CEASE.

For many months past, a war of words has been waged warm and earnestly in Spokan county, over the superior importance of prospective towns. This could be reasonably expected while that important question of county seat location was properly before the people. But now that question is settled. The question of appeal is only one of form, as well as one of expense. The hopes of a reverse being made in the decision by the supreme court (of which the judge who has already decided the points sits as one of three) are utterly hopeless. Cheney has the county seat; and aside from the "grand steal," gained it according to law, by the expressed wish of a small majority of the legal voters of Spokan county. The change is quite advantageous to Cheney, and is of but little loss to Spokan Falls, where so many other helps of greater importance are developing so rapidly to the advantage of the acknowledged metropolis.

It is high time that verbal and printed words against the interests of any town in the county should cease. Let any man verbally or in writing praise his own home town and surroundings as much as he pleases, so long as he keeps truth on his side. But let us hear no more discouraging statements made against supposed rival towns or settlements. Such a course is always attended with results prejudicial to the proper growth of our common country.

We have a good country. The county of Spokan is large; its industries are varied; its towns are numerous; its present is prosperous and its future bright. No single township possesses all the advantages of this great county; and yet there is no school district in our midst which is not susceptible of sustaining a large and prosperous settlement. Let us join hands in our common struggle to develop this the fairest of fair lands, and make the most rapid progress possible under our favorable opportunities.

PROSPECTIVE CHANGES.

The present visit of Vice President Oakes, of the N. P. R. R. Co., to the Spokan country, is one of particular significance. Coming, as he does, on a tour of observation, he will very naturally notice closely the present condition of the country, its natural advantages, present improvements, the condition of crops, etc. He will make a note of these facts, and keep in memory his first impressions of this new and beautiful country.

Should this distinguished gentleman be privileged to visit this country again some five years hence—and we hope he may—the same old story of wonderful progress in a new country will be told once more. Along the line of the Northern Pacific he will see little towns; he will then travel upon the paved walks of cities. The wooden fronts which are now looked upon with a considerable degree of pleasure will have given place to brick and stone. Our printing presses will be run by steam. Our broad prairies and rich valleys will be well tilled, almost wholly fenced, and dotted all over with pleasant homes and neighborhood schools and churches.

Neighboring mountains will be reluctantly surrendering the rich treasures which they have kept hidden so long. Some of the prettiest dwelling houses, flower gardens and lawns in all the world will then greet the beholder. Manufactories will then turn a thousand pulleys at the great falls of the Spokan. The wheat, even of the Palouse region, will be hauled down Hangman creek valley on a railroad, and made into flour at our dozens of mills. Our sister county on the north, with her unsurpassed valley, and the impetus given her by mining operations and immigration, will be shipping her hundreds and thousands of tons to and from the railroad. Travelers from the east, west and south will be coming into our county by hundreds, and tourists and pleasure seekers will be seen upon every street corner.

HORSE THIEVES.

The art of stealing horses in this country has become a science. It is practiced by both the Indian and white races. Horses are caught and ridden off the range, untied from stakes, and even taken from fields and barns. It is positively unsafe to turn horses loose upon the prairies of Spokan county, so numerous have thieves become of late. An organized band of these desperate fellows is said to be operating on the prairie east of Spokan Falls. These fellows are in hopes that all their devilry may be laid to their mutually disreputable red brethren. The honors should be equally divided between the two races, as well as just punishment, when the thieves are caught. Our proper officers should be on the lookout. The exercise of a little diligence and moderate running ought to bring to light some of the guilty parties. When found, they should be most severely punished. In cases of this kind the ordinary course of law should not be adopted. Better fellows than they are have frequently tested the merits of strong hemp. Let's give some of them a reception.

The N. W. Tribune says C. B. Carlisle, of this city, has submitted in writing a proposition to publish a paper in Cheney. Now, Kellogg, you are too much given to jokes to make us believe that. At least we are not willing to take your word for it. Mr. Carlisle is publishing a paper in this city, and a pretty good paper it is, too. We want Mr. Carlisle and his venture to remain with us just as long as the money of his friends and his credit holds out; and we all propose to put him on the back as long as success is with him. It is too absurd to think that Mr. Carlisle would even dream of starting a paper in Cheney, as his published statements show clearly that he does not lean that way. We fear Mr. Kellogg is afraid the new paper will get a subscriber or two in Cheney, and thus attempts to make people believe that its proprietor would willingly carry water on both shoulders at once. Show your document, Mr. editor of the Tribune, else make a just apology to our brother of the quill.

It seems to be the intention of the new president of the Northern Pacific Railroad Company to commence construction on the Cascade division as soon as the result of surveys (now about completed) is received in the East. He has telegraphed Gen. Sprague to this effect. This is cheering intelligence. If the company will put in practice what it has indicated in words, and give us direct communication with Puget Sound, we will all have occasion to rejoice. Our natural outlet is Puget Sound. Nature made it so. All the ephemerality of the present age cannot prevent it, except for a season. Without a railroad to our own natural seaport, this fair country will have to pay tribute to an inland city which has no interests in common with our own.

TELEGRAPHIC!

THE PRESIDENT'S CONDITION.

SPECIAL TO THE TIMES.

WALLA WALLA, July 8 2 P. M. The following telegrams have been received here which we forward to THE TIMES:

WASHINGTON, July 7. At 10:45 tonight Attorney General McVough said, "The president is improving. He is not in danger, but great hopes are entertained of his recovery."

WASHINGTON, July 8. At 2 o'clock this morning the condition of the president is substantially the same as reported last night. It is feared that Mr. Carlisle will not be able to stand the shock much longer. Dr. Byington is attending her.

The president's room is artificially cooled, to give him an opportunity to sleep, which gives him strength. The members of the cabinet have gone home to rest—the first time since the shooting took place. It is not thought by the most prominent physicians that the liver is touched, as the president's symptoms do not indicate it.

Vice President Arthur dreams the idea of the presidency. He suffers from criticism and abuse.

WALLA WALLA, July 12. 11:50 A. M.—The Steamer has received the following from Washington:

The President is slowly improving. Temperature, after rising for a short time, again fell. He is now taking light food without trouble, and has favorable supposition. His physical strength is keeping up and his head is clear. The President's attending physicians say he is not entirely out of danger, but they have confidence in his ultimate recovery.

Governor Foster, of Ohio, has telegraphed the governors of all the states and territories requesting them to confer together and set a day apart as a day of national thanksgiving and prayer for the President's recovery.

Twelve thousand dollars have been sent from Chicago and added to the Mrs. Garfield fund. [This fund is a sum of two or three hundred thousand dollars pledged for Mrs. Garfield, in case it was needed, to ease the mind of the President.]

The President's room is kept cool by a refrigerator, and by pumping twenty thousand gallons of fresh air into the room in a given space of time, such as the physicians may recommend. The temperature of the room is kept at about 75 degrees.

Secretary Blaine has telegraphed Lowell, U. S. Minister to England, that he has strong hopes of the President's recovery.

Wool.—Wool growing in the Palouse country is fast assuming proportions and promises soon to be one of the main industries of this fast developing section. As an instance, we mention that on Thursday and Friday of last week Lippitt Bros. paid out $12,000 for this staple for shipment below. With the greater percentage of wool money put in circulation in this country, combined with the receipts from other quarters, we see no reason why the cry of "hard times," should continue to be heard in this part of our fertile and productive land.—Cazette.

There is no point in the Spokan Country that is more promising than SPOKAN FALLS, which is beautifully situated at the superior falls on the Spokan river, where the Northern Pacific Railroad is already located.

Business & Professional Men. Cannot locate at a point in Northeastern Washington which gives promise of greater importance in the future.

SPOKAN FALLS is situated as follows: about 80 miles south of Colville; 65 miles north of Coeur d'Alene; 130 miles east of the Columbia river; 28 miles west of the Idaho line; 47 miles west from Coeur d'Alene Lake; 10 miles north Four Lake country; 237 miles by projected line of N. Sevier, at the Head master Mr. Abelson.

The Spokan Times

Confessed Farmers.

How few husbandmen have any... settled convictions regarding... methods of conducting farm operations?

Whenever a new man (that is, a merchant or manufacturer, retiring to the country) commences with much enthusiasm to till his freshly acquired acres, he feels that he needs information, and forthwith orders a supply of agricultural journals, and hurries to attend farmers' meetings and cattle shows.

As an available and abundant water-power, the great falls of the Spokan are equaled by only four similar powers in the world. The river above the falls divides into four streams, and after a succession of falls, unites in one stream near the point where the waters take the last grand leap of about 60 feet.

Yes, the N. P. railroad makes this the most important point on its route in Eastern Washington. Its chief engineer, superintendent of bridge construction, chief of surveyors, and many other employees of the company have already established themselves in this city as general headquarters.

Now, we believe there are some settled points in agriculture—some facts, some principles which should be considered as removed from the field of controversy; and if we ever expect to make progress we must endeavor to multiply these settled facts. At another time we will endeavor to point out some of the fixed principles which may be regarded as safe to follow in soil cultivation.

A Colorado Court, in the case of Elmore against Malloy, decided that a promise to pay a sum of money, upon condition that a railroad should be built to a place named on before a specified day is void as a wager. The court says: "The courts of this Territory have enough to do without devoting their time to the solution of questions arising out of idle bets made on cock and dog fights, horse races, the speed of ox teams, the construction of railroads, the number on a dice, or the character of a card that may be turned up. If we enter upon the time when the Colorado Central railroad reaches Golden, or when it will reach Georgetown, we may well despair of ever finding time for the despatch of these weightier matters which affect the personal and property rights of the respectable people of this Territory."

Fort Coeur d'Alene is 30 miles east, Camp Spokan 55 miles west, and Fort Colville 65 miles north of this city, and this depot, as a military necessity, is their base of supplies.

Our business men have done well in the past, and they are now entering upon an era of unusual activity, with positive promise of increased prosperity.

Very good. With a mill race, well or free built, be built over the Spokan river near Spokan Falls.

ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS.

SAN JOSE, CAL., March 14.

FRANCIS H. COOK, Esq.

As I anticipate coming to Washington Territory some time this coming season, and as I am unacquainted, I take this opportunity of writing you a few lines, your name having been given me as a suitable one to address for the information I want.

How many inhabitants have you now, and of what nationality, mostly?

About 525 inhabitants, mostly Americans. The population of our town will probably be doubled during the next eight months.

Is the Spokan falls convertible into a mill power, and if so, by whom is it owned?

As an available and abundant water-power, the great falls of the Spokan are equaled by only four similar powers in the world. The river above the falls divides into four streams, and after a succession of falls, unites in one stream near the point where the waters take the last grand leap of about 60 feet.

Will the Northern Pacific railroad go through your town, and if so, how soon?

Yes, the N. P. railroad makes this the most important point on its route in Eastern Washington. Its chief engineer, superintendent of bridge construction, chief of surveyors, and many other employees of the company have already established themselves in this city as general headquarters.

What industries are tributary to your town?

Farming, mining, lumbering, stock-raising, manufacturing and railroad building. Industry of these, lumbering, tourists and prospectors always make Spokan Falls their objective point when visiting this new, beautiful, interesting and rapidly developing country.

Have you any churches, schools or libraries?

We have two schools, one Episcopal chapel, Methodist and Congregational organizations, with plans already perfect for church edifices; one public library, and one literary society.

At about what price is land here?

Government lands can still be found and secured under existing laws. The price of farming lands varies according to location and soil. Railroad wild lands are sold in tracts not exceeding 320 acres to actual settlers who will improve the same, for $2.50 per acre.

Are there any military posts near you?

Fort Coeur d'Alene is 30 miles east, Camp Spokan 55 miles west, and Fort Colville 65 miles north of this city, and this depot, as a military necessity, is their base of supplies.

Have business houses prospered in your town?

Our business men have done well in the past, and they are now entering upon an era of unusual activity, with positive promise of increased prosperity.

What is the supply of water and timber in Spokan and Stevens counties?

Very good. With a mill race, well or free built, be built over the Spokan river near Spokan Falls.

A free bridge will be constructed from a central street of town to the opposite shore, at a cost of about $6,500, as soon as plans can be submitted and the work performed. Our liberal citizens, aided by a few non residents, pay for this improvement by voluntary subscriptions.

How is Spokan Falls for location and health?

Our city is most beautifully located on a level, gravelly prairie, partially surrounded by scattering forest trees. The river never overflows its banks, although but a few feet below the level of the town above the falls. Drainage very good. We know of no location in the world more conducive to health. Ladies are especially captivated with the town and its surroundings.

Which is the most important town in your county?

Spokan Falls.

What other towns have you?

Spangle, Medical Lake, Cheney, Spokan Bridge, Rockford, Clifton, Sprague, and others—all on the high road to prosperity.

Is the population of your county increasing?

Yes, very rapidly.

What kinds of business are represented in your principal town?

Spokan Falls has seven general mercantile and clothing establishments, one drug store, two livery stables, one bank, one job printing office, one newspaper, two milliners, fur hotels, two restaurants, two hardware and tinware establishments, two bakeries, one harness shop, two breweries, four saloons and two bar rooms, one gunsmith, two blacksmith shops, one saw mill, one grist mill, two jewelry shops, one telegraph and U. S. signal office, one express and stage office, the N. P. chief engineer's and other offices, one shoe shop, one agricultural implement warehouse, two barber shops, one N. P. warehouse and supply depot, one notation store, one wagon-maker, &c.

How to reach this country.

Inquiring letters are so frequently received, as to the best mode of reaching this new country, the rates of fare, the shortest routes, &c., that we have compiled the following facts for the express benefit of those who would come among us. Those persons who have friends contemplating a visit to this country, either for pleasure or profit, ought secure some extra copies of this week's edition of THE TIMES:

There are three routes which Eastern people may take in coming hither. If a person wants to save time, and desires to bring stock, wagons &c., the quickest and most direct route would be to come from Omaha to Ogden, thence by season road to this new country, traversing the distance from Ogden in two or three weeks, when rails are good—say in the month of June, July or August. The same having neither wagons nor teams, can come by rail to Kelton, at a cost of about $50 in emigrant car, thence by stage to Walla Walla, at an expense of $50, exclusive of meals, and on to Colfax or Spokan Falls, at an additional expense of 10 and seven dollars, respectively. The remaining route is via San Francisco, by rail, thence to Portland, Oregon, by ocean steamer; thence to Astoria, by boat; fare to Portland, $2 to $30, according to cabin occupied, and state of opposition on the route; to Astoria, $18, exclusive of meals and berth. The overland railroad company makes but little difference in office of through tickets to San Francisco or Kelton. At the present time, the route via San Francisco and Portland is undoubtedly the easiest and cheapest, provided you are not accompanied by your own team, everything being taken into consideration. First class fare from Omaha, St. Joseph or Kansas City, to Walla Walla, via Kelton, is $124 25; via San Francisco, $82.

Immigrants from Oregon and California, in the earlier part of the season, when they have the money to spare, often come by water to The Dalles or Astoria; thence overland by teams. Those who travel without teams should come by boat to Penawar or Astoria, and there take the stage for this upper country via Colfax. Many families make the entire trip overland.

Puzzled Southerners come by way of Portland and Astoria, unless they want a delightful horseback ride over the Cascade mountains in mid-summer. The Snoqualmie route is the best for horsemen, leading the traveler by way of the Kittitas Valley, Yakima City and Anasworth. Be sure that your saddle horse is a gentle, sure-footed, strong, and in splendid condition for travel.

The shortest and quickest route from Portland is via the N. P. railroad and stage.

Accommodations on the Columbia river boats are excellent, and every attention is paid to the comfort and convenience of passengers. No one who has an opportunity to do so should fail to take a trip either up or down the Columbia river, where the scenery is magnificent and beautiful in the extreme.
