Home.
That word home always sounds like poetry to me. It rings like a peal of bells at a wedding, only more soft and sweet; and it chimes deeper into the ears of my heart. It does not matter whether it means thatched cottage or marble house, home is home, be it ever so homely, and there is no place on earth like it. Green grow the horseleek on the roof forever, and let the moss flourish on the thatch. Sweetly the sparrows chirrup and the swallows twitter around the chosen spot which is my joy and rest. Every bird loves its own nest; the owl thinks the old ruins the fairest spot under the moon, and the fox is of opinion that his hole in the hill is remarkably cozy. When my master's nag knows that his head is towards home he wants no whip, but thinks it best to put on all steam; and I am always of the same mind, for the way home, to me, is the best bit of road in the county. I like to see the smoke out of my own chimney better than the fire on another man's hearth; there's something so beautiful in the way in which it curls up among the trees. Cold potatoes on my own table taste better than roast meat at my neighbor's, and the honeysuckle at my own door is the sweetest that I ever smell. When you are out, friends do their best, but still it is not home. "Make yourself at home," they say, because everybody knows that to feel at home is to feel at ease.

When my master's nag knows that his head is towards home he wants no whip, but thinks it best to put on all steam; and I am always of the same mind, for the way home, to me, is the best bit of road in the county. I like to see the smoke out of my own chimney better than the fire on another man's hearth; there's something so beautiful in the way in which it curls up among the trees. Cold potatoes on my own table taste better than roast meat at my neighbor's, and the honeysuckle at my own door is the sweetest that I ever smell. When you are out, friends do their best, but still it is not home. "Make yourself at home," they say, because everybody knows that to feel at home is to feel at ease.

Home.
That word home always sounds like poetry to me. It rings like a peal of bells at a wedding, only more soft and sweet; and it chimes deeper into the ears of my heart. It does not matter whether it means thatched cottage or marble house, home is home, be it ever so homely, and there is no place on earth like it. Green grow the horseleek on the roof forever, and let the moss flourish on the thatch. Sweetly the sparrows chirrup and the swallows twitter around the chosen spot which is my joy and rest. Every bird loves its own nest; the owl thinks the old ruins the fairest spot under the moon, and the fox is of opinion that his hole in the hill is remarkably cozy. Special Business Notices.

R. W. Forrest has just received and opened an extensive stock of staple and fancy groceries, which he is selling at bottom figures. Store opposite the postoffice, Spokane Falls.

On Monday night, about 10 miles west of Deep Creek, two large gray horses, one large gray horse, one dark brown horse, branded with circle H on left shoulder, one dark brown horse, branded with one dark brown horse, both about five years old. A liberal reward will be paid for the return of said horses.

J. J. ENRIGHT, Deep Creek Falls.

Persons contemplating visiting Colville, Peon Prairie, Coeur d'Alene or Pen d'Oreille lakes, or any part north or east of the Spokan valley, should go by way of SPOKAN FALLS, and get a view of the grand and magnificent Falls.

R. W. FOREST, Prop'r.

Reapers of life's harvest, women, mechanics and teamsters, all need a good pair of overalls. They never come amiss, and member Mills, Leak & Co's are the best in the market.

Mills & Leak's Overalls are by all the most popular in Eastern Washington. They have been tried, and they stand all tests. Good for cold or damp weather. Call on merchants who keep them for sale.

CALIFORNIA HOUSE.

Table listing arrivals at the California House, including names like M. Hunt, M. Loarn & wf, J. Davis, J. Van Dusen, etc., and their destinations like Dayton, do, do, etc.

VERY GOOD NEWS.—From Mr. G. F. Graves we learn that forty miles of iron rails have been received at Ainsworth. Ties and bridge timbers are being furnished at a rapid rate, and tracklaying is being pushed forward with renewed zeal.

Travelers by the new stage-line reach Portland, from Spokane Falls, in four days. By the first of next month it is presumed the road will be in running condition to the Summit, distant from Ainsworth some sixty miles. Here some heavy trestlework will have to be finished, when the laying of rails will again be continued. Mr. Graves assures us that after the first of next month travelers by the new route can reach Portland in three days' travel. This will be a saving of things down to a fine point.

REVEREND.—Our genial and well-souled friend, Capt. James Esart, has returned from his trip into Montana. Most of his tour was accomplished on horseback without company. He returns much improved in health. After spending a short season with relatives in this city, the Captain and his estimable lady created a family tent just below the falls, where their children are expected to join them in a prolonged reunion. May their pleasures be continued for many days in a wish in which a host of friends heartily join.

BRIEF MENTION.

Notice advertisement of estray cattle. The taxable property of Spokane county amounts to $800,000.

There are 2,916 school children in Columbia county, an increase of 400. The telegraph wire has been stretched to Cowley & Ford's ferry.

The Democratic Central Committee for Spokane county will meet next week.

Mr. Peery has erected a blacksmith shop on the corner of Main and Mill streets.

A severe frost visited several gardens within three miles of Colfax on the 25th of July.

Divine services in school house tomorrow at 11 o'clock. Sabbath school at 2 o'clock.

No mail from Colfax Thursday evening, on account of some mistake regarding mail sacks.

Indians are leaving for the fisheries down the river, and are starting for Montana, to hunt buffalo.

Hon. D. C. Cameron, of member of the recent Legislature, is visiting this morning.

Mr. Tarbox will be a sheriff on the Independence.

Died.—In this city, Aug. 13, Minnie C., daughter of J. S. Gray, aged 12 years, 9 months and 14 days.

Grasshoppers and scorching weather have destroyed many fields of grain in Columbia and Walla Walla counties.

District court, for the counties of Spokane and Stevens, will be held in this city, commencing one week from next Monday.

We are indebted to Mr. R. G. Williamson for a fine bunch of pianos recently left in this office. The stinks averaged nineteen inches in length.

Married.—At the California House, in this city, Aug. 9, 1880, by Robert Cranford, J. P. Charles H. Gibbs, of Peon Prairie, and Miss Millie Freeman, late of Humboldt, Nevada.

Mr. Morris, of Rattle's Run, recently had two horses and a colt stolen. The colt returned with an Indian brand, and a hair rope attached to its foot. This is suggestive, indeed.

Kenneth Macleay, of the firm of Corbett & Macleay, Portland, is visiting this section of country, accompanied by Dr. H. Watson, of Portland, and Mr. Booker, the British Consul at San Francisco.

County Commissioners are still in session. In addition to the nine voting precincts in this county, seven have been added, for the convenience of all residents. The board will probably adjourn to-day.

The Republican primary for Spokane precinct will be held at the school house at 2 o'clock today. The county convention will be held at the school house in this city on Saturday next, commencing at one o'clock.

Z Lewis has disposed of his lumber on the Coeur d'Alene reservation, heretofore advertised in the TIMES. He has purchased a saw mill east of this city, and will add to it new and more powerful machinery. Don't fail to call upon him in the future.

King & Davenport have commenced the erection of a stable on the corner of Howard and Front streets; dimensions of main structure, 38x70 feet, with walls 20 feet; addition, 28x70 feet. Building will front on Howard street, and will be the nicest in the city.

A few days since, a white man stole a horse from Mr. Nelson, who lives near the Coeur d'Alene ranch, and swapped it to another man working on the railroad, giving ten dollars to boot, and riding off towards Baker river. He was pursued, and it is hoped will be caught.

The main camp of gravers on the line of the N. P. R. R., in charge of Mr. Harris, the superintendent, is now in progress at Ainsworth, near Falls within a few miles of the terminus of the line. It is a fine example of the art of grading with a view to the construction of the line, and is a credit to the men engaged in it.

Mr. R. S. Davenport, creek, reports crops in good condition on the slope between Hangman creek and the mountains. The acreage has been increased, as has heretofore been intimated in these columns. The yield per acre will probably be greater than that of last year.

BOUND OVER.—H. C. Paige, once a worthy agent of Wells, Fargo & Co., but now a prisoner, accused of robbing his former employers, was brought back to Pendleton to receive preliminary trial, which he waived, and circumstantial evidence being rather strong against him, he was bound over in the sum of $3,000. Failing to obtain the same, he was incarcerated to await the action of the grand jury. At Unatilla the officers searched his former abode and found there various keys belonging to Wells, Fargo & Co's treasure boxes, and the fact that he failed to give them up when dismissed, will bear hard against him as this coming trial.

From conversations with several farmers, we believe we are correct in stating that the amount of grain will be equal, if not in excess, of the crop realized last year. Although the crop, generally, are not as good yet the amount sown was enough greater than last year to supply the deficiency.—Duyton News.

A FINE BUILDING.

ONE OF THE BEST WOODEN BUILDINGS IN WASHINGTON TERRITORY IS LOCATED AT SP. KAN FALLS.

Enter upon the beautiful town site of Spokane Falls from whatever direction you may, one of the most prominent buildings attracting one's attention is that large structure on the corner of Howard and Main streets, occupied by Mr. J. S. Graham, the merchant. Centrally located, as compared with both geographic and business interests, this fine building is a prominent landmark in our city. It covers a space of ground 30x100 feet, is two stories high, and is neatly and finely finished. The store room, on first floor, is 30x100 feet, with ceiling fifteen feet high. This sales room is well lighted, airy and comfortable. The business office is located near the central part of the building.

An inside stairway leads to the second floor, where all rooms are over eleven feet in the clear. The most important feature connected with this second story is the Masonic Hall, which, including anterooms, is very neat paper, high ceilings, and other accessories, in a complete and comfortable manner. It is one of the very best rooms in which to speak with perfect ease.

The hallway to the upper story is airy and well-lighted, and leads to numerous suites of rooms, commodious and nicely finished. This is the haven for professional men. Here we find lawyers D. P. Jenkins, L. B. Nash and Chas. Chilberg, student with the latter, also, doctors J. V. Jones and Morgan, Mr. and Mrs. Whitman also have a fine suite of rooms here, with windows fronting Howard street. Without sparing pains or cost, this building has been completely finished, with an index to comfort and utility. A cellar will, in future, occupy a space beneath this structure, 30x40 feet. We are proud of this building. Strangers are attracted by it as prominent among the many edifices of the rising and permanent growth of our little metropolis. While, however, it stands first among the long list of good buildings, we dare not say how long it will remain at the head. This is the age of wonders for Spokane Falls. At present it is the most valuable property in the city.

The central location, excellent design and fine finish of this building, are due to the keen foresight and business sagacity of J. S. Graham, Esq., recently of Portland, who foresaw "millions in it," and invested largely. Alas! the venture has proven to be a wise one, and Mr. Graham is beginning to realize his most sanguine expectations. While business is flourishing in the store department, all offices on the second floor are rented, from which good returns are realized. The ground on which the structure rests is valued at nearly twice the amount originally paid by Mr. Graham, a few months ago; and the months which are quickly succeeding each other simply add to the value of this property.

FINE TRUT.—Capt. Geo. J. Ainsworth, who has just returned from a visit to his father's place at Gravelly lake, near Steilacoom, gives an account of his success on a fishing excursion to Chamber's lake, which proves that there are some of the finest fish there to be found anywhere, and that he may be trusted for lack to catch them. About thirty trout of unusual size were taken, among them one twenty-eight inches long and weighing five and a quarter pounds. Let his friends think this is only a fish story. Capt. Ainsworth is right in his prize with him. This, we believe, is the biggest trout yet reported.—Oxymania.

That will do for the section of country west of the Cascades, but several larger trout have been caught in Coeur d'Alene lake, one of which weighed 114 pounds.

Birdy parties are not unpleasant to have in a community. On the afternoon Mr. and Mrs. H. Esart, in company with a limited number of people (including himself and wife) spent their time, in honor of the birthday of their oldest daughter, Etlich. A very pleasant afternoon was enjoyed by all, and when the long table was spread with a plentiful supply, it made one feel "it was good to be there." A number of valuable presents were given Miss Etlich, by members of her family and invited friends.

EPISCOPAL CHAPEL AND SCHOOL BUILDING.—The location selected for the immediate erection of the Episcopal building, in this city, is on the northwest corner of South and Lincoln streets. The structure will be neatly built and sided with rustic. Dimensions—Main building, 23x45 feet; rear structure, 9x14 feet; addition to center of south side, 12x12 feet. The foundation will be of wood, 16 inches high.

From conversations with several farmers, we believe we are correct in stating that the amount of grain will be equal, if not in excess, of the crop realized last year. Although the crop, generally, are not as good yet the amount sown was enough greater than last year to supply the deficiency.—Duyton News.

Yakima County.

Yakima county has an area of 7,648 square miles, of which 2,000 square miles are valley, bench and level land, of rich soil, easy of irrigation, and with the many other attending attributes of nature it is essentially well designed for agriculture.

Upon this class of lands the plow and the reaper may be applied with assurance of success. Again, 6,648 square miles of the county's area consists of high hills, table lands, and diversified generally, not irrigable, interspersed with numerous water courses and springs at suitable distances for stock raisers to build upon, so as not to overburden the range and yet not too far apart. The little streams have fine little valleys, not large enough to make farming an object, but just right for gardens, orchards and hay meadows. This class of lands is especially adapted to stock raising, horses, cattle and sheep, according to adaptation of locality. The soil is rich and covered with nutritious grasses that the healthful climate cure in the stalk. Hence nature seeds the ground, mows and stacks the hay in the uncramped atmosphere, and when winter comes feeds the stock. At least stock has been cared for by no other hand than nature for the last ten years, save in very few instances, and has survived even the severest winter storms. The county is also abundantly supplied with pine, fir, cedar and other forest timber, excellent for lumbering purposes. Hence affording to a willing people a diversity of industries, respectively—stock-raising, farming, mining and manufacturing.

But of these industries, farming and mining have their well defined localities. Mining must be pursued where the mineral deposits exist, and is not limited as to the quantity of its yields, for they are always marketable and of easy shipment. Farming must be confined to localities especially favored by nature, the prime condition of which is the facility for irrigation and here as elsewhere, a suitable surface for the use and convenience of farm machinery is another essential condition.

Yet we have those among us who are already trespassing on the stock range, regardless of nature, vainly endeavoring to achieve success, with prospects more futile than had the farmers of western Kansas and Nebraska, where for the past decade they have constantly battled against nature, even, with weapons to destroy the countless millions of grasshoppers, and with prayers long and loud to the end that the drought might be choked off. But each succeeding year witnesses their misapplied labors, with more disastrous results. Nature in her system of laws is more formidable than man with all his endeavors and ingenuity. Had the industrious people who settled upon the broad belt of country accepted and appropriated it to the uses and purposes for which it was created, they would have prospered from the earliest moment of its occupancy. It is essentially a stock country, and as such may well defy superiority. It never fails in rich pasturage, superior facilities for procuring winter feed, and market, despite the drought and fleeting clouds of grasshoppers. So with Yakima county, and much of what is said in this respect of Yakima county will with propriety apply throughout the Columbia Basin. It is true that certain portions of Walla Walla, Columbia and Whitman counties, and in a few other localities, oasis like spots are well adapted to agriculture and yield largely. But some of the antagonistic features are these: There is danger of getting only partial crops; the good and suitable land lies in too small patches for the most advantageous use and convenience of machinery; it takes one half or more to shove the residue over the succession of portages, up to Portland and down the slough to market. Whereas, on the other hand, in stock we never fail. Our machinery is simple, our conveyance is furnished by the marketables. The demand for our stock increases two-fold, as California and other localities increase their population and diminish their stock ranges. In short we, the Columbia Basin, shall soon be obliged to furnish the Pacific

A Portion of Columbia County.

Traveling along the "upper road" from the Tokumom to the mouth of Assotin river, thence on the Assotin flat to the Grande Ronde river, a country is seen which would surprise even those best satisfied with our portion of the universe. Patalia flat is thickly settled with an enterprising class of citizens, who with an excusable feeling of pride, are ready to present the advantages of their immediate section. It is indeed a beautiful sight to a stranger. The rolling prairie, dotted here and there with homes of evidently thriving people, is not an unpleasant subject for thought with one who desires the prosperity of his fellow being.

The Alpowa ridge, and the section of country about the head of Alpowa creek is also very attractive, and judging from the substantial improvements being made, the people there are satisfied with their location. Across the Assotin, which is a fine stream, and destined to furnish water power for machinery of gigantic proportions at some future day, and we commence the ascent of a long hill, at the top of which begins what is called the Assotin flat. Proceeding a few miles and the settlements are noticed, which become more dense as we near the timber. This flat has been settled in a remarkably brief time, and were it not for scarcity of water in the northern portion, every foot of land would be made to yield to the efforts of civilized man in a surprising period.

Between what is called "Ten Mile creek" and Grande Ronde river is what we are pleased to call "Evergreen prairie," and right well it deserves its name. Covered by a luxuriant vegetation, the bunch grass a foot in height, and as green as a town lawn, even in August, varied with a bunch of timber now and then, the soil exceedingly productive, a prairie ten miles in length, and we have what may be called an "evergreen" country. We were informed that the land in this vicinity is all taken. And in conclusion, we would add, that in addition to the recommendation of a beautiful country, the people along the route are possessed of such hospitality that any attempt to describe their kindness would be a failure.

Beecher's Bad Financial Judgment.

Henry Ward Beecher is unquestionably a man of genius, and he has some of the eccentricities of genius. One of these is the incapacity to take care of money, whose value he seems unable to understand. His pastoral salary is $20,000, and he is often embarrassed financially. Some years he has, I am told, earned $50,000; but his pockets, even then, were incessantly empty. What does he do with his money? This is a question continually asked by his friends; but it has never been answered. He cannot answer it himself; he has often tried to, though without avail. In this respect, he resembles Daniel Webster, who took from anybody and everybody, willing to give, and who never paid anything back. Whatever was lent him was a permanent investment, and those acquainted with him were well aware of this fact. Beecher does not borrow; he spends only what he has honestly earned. Nevertheless his improvidence is such that he is constantly unable to meet his bills when they are presented. He is, I hear, dunned and dunned in Brooklyn, tradesmen being compelled to wait for a year or more, sometimes several years. He has no objections to paying—he would be glad to—but he has not the means. One and probably the chief cause of his irregular deficiency is that he cannot resist the temptation to buy anything which happens to strike his fancy. If his purse be full he hands out the cash. If his purse be empty he gets credit. He has, it is said, repeatedly told men who have had bills against him, "I am sorry to put you off. I want to pay, but I not only haven't the money, but I know not where to get it. Be kind enough when I come to your establishment again not to sell to me unless I pay you cash down. I shall take it as a favor to be refused. If everybody would refuse me it would be a great relief to me. I am bothered to death with bills I have forgotten all about." Some persons take his counsel, but most of them do not. It is hard for shopkeepers to decline to trust the great preacher when he honors them, as they think, by his patronage. But if they would do as he asks them, they would save both him and themselves a vast deal of trouble. Monetary carelessness if a part of his temperament, and entirely beyond his control.

None but enterprising, reliable men need apply for space in these columns.

The practice of free "puffing," from this date, will be discontinued. If we do make favorable mention in our local columns, without extra charge, of any business or firm that are creditably represented in the advertising columns of THE TIMES, our readers will understand that such mention is made because the persons mentioned are worthy of confidence and patronage. After mentioning, as a matter of news and encouragement, the starting of any new business, the same will thereafter be ignored. If the proprietor or firm show no inclination to do business in a business-like manner, for notices and advertisements of all shows, lectures, entertainments or parties, whose objects are made for advertising and for a possible competition will always be required. The ones who want "free advertising" are those who do least to encourage the publisher. There is disappointment in store for them.

The Spokan Times

The County Seat.

From the Palouse Gazette.] The Gazette last week asserted the opinion that Spokan Falls is the proper point at which to permanently locate the county seat of Spokan county, and we will now briefly give our reasons for forming this belief.

The Spokan river at the Falls affords a water power capable of operating vast manufacturing, and it is unquestionably the best power that nature has provided anywhere west of the Rocky mountains and north of Snake river.

There is not only an immense water power at Spokan Falls, but the extensive country which backs it will furnish the necessary raw material with which to feed enormous manufacturing industries.

Coeur d'Alene lake is surrounded by a heavy belt of timber which can easily be run down the river to the Falls and there be manufactured into lumber with which to supply the great agricultural belt north, south and west of the town.

The Spokan valley, the rolling tablelands and the mountain slopes are covered with nutritious grasses which are capable of feeding hundreds of thousands, yes, millions of sheep; the products of which will in the near future be manufactured at Spokan Falls.

Travel the wide West over and one cannot find a more desirable or favorable location at which to establish extensive woolen mills. A few miles to the north, south and west of the Falls are broad tracts of rich agricultural lands which are capable of producing millions of bushels of wheat, and we predict that in a few years the waters of the Spokan river will be used in propelling extensive flouring mills at the Falls, which will supply Washington, Northern Idaho and Montana Territory with flour.

Spokan Falls will soon be situated on a great thoroughfare, the iron arms of which will extend to one of the best harbors in the world, on west, and to the great lakes on the east, thus giving direct commercial intercourse with the great marts of the United States.

With its immense water power, its proximity to raw material, and its excellent means of transportation, Spokan Falls is destined to be one of the most flourishing towns on the N. P. R. R., between the Cascades and the valley of the Yellowstone.

We are firm in the belief that this assertion will prove true and for this reason we think that it would be folly for the citizens of Spokan county to do anything to discourage or retard the growth of a town capable of such great possibilities.

Men of means, of energy and of indomitable perseverance have wisely settled at Spokan Falls, and have invested their money and materially added to the wealth of the county, and now, citizens of Spokan county, it is for you to decide by your ballots whether they shall be encouraged in their undertakings, or whether you will by your votes, injure their immediate prospects, impede the growth of the town by locating the county seat at Depot Springs, a town which at present exists only on paper and which lacks the resources for prosperity which exist at Spokan Falls.

It will be urged by opponents of the Falls that the town is not located in the geographical center of Spokan county. Very true; neither is Depot Springs. The distance from the eastern to the western boundaries of Spokan county is at least one hundred and seventy miles. Spokan Falls is probably about seventeen miles from the eastern boundary, and Depot Springs about twenty-six miles from the boundary. It will be readily seen that neither of these towns are in the geographical center of the county. Depot Springs lacks at least fifty miles of being midway between the eastern and western boundaries of the county, hence the argument against the Falls would apply with equal force to Depot Springs. It will not for a moment be claimed by any of average intelligence that the present boundaries of Spokan county will long exist. The territory is too extensive, and it will eventually make two and possibly three counties. A county thirty miles in length, is large enough for practical corporate purposes, and when county seats are located, the future probabilities and possibilities should be considered more than immediate needs and interests. Spokan Falls is as near as may be the geographical center of the future county of Spokan, and when all its natural advantages are fully considered, it does not seem possible that reflecting men will cast their votes for the removal of the county seat, unless, indeed, it be the isolated few who are governed more by personal motives than by a broad and generous spirit. It should be the aim of all reflecting men to ever labor for the greatest good to the greatest number, not only in the present but for the future, and we believe that this can be done in the pending question, by locating the county seat at the slightly and thriving embryo city of Spokan Falls.

Camp Coeur d'Alene.

From the Palouse Gazette.] The military post is pleasantly located in the pine woods at the foot of Coeur d'Alene Lake, with the officers' quarters several hundred yards distant from the shore facing the water, and company quarters, offices, hospital, etc., surrounding the large parade ground, with laundry, shops, etc., still further back, and on either side presenting a pleasing picture to the stranger and suggesting the happiness and content of those who are so fortunate as to have their homes at this truly beautiful and romantic place.

Mr. Yonson, the post trader, and worthy P. M., occupies a store building on the road approaching the garrison, some distance back of the officers' quarters. He carries a stock of general merchandise composed of such articles as are required by the people at this post and in the surrounding country. In the rear of the store there is a bar, conducted in a quiet and orderly way. The portion of the sutler's establishment has recently been overhauled and arranged for the accommodation of the public, and will soon be provided with a first class billiard table.

All about the post is busily and actively. Three officers' quarters and several other buildings are in course of erection, and a number of citizen mechanics are employed in various ways. The hull of the little steamer is completed and in the water, and the workmen are now engaged in placing the machinery and finishing the upper works. The boat will probably be ready for her trial trip some time during the present month. She is a model of beauty and well calculated for the work for which she was built. The officers and men are most comfortably provided for, and while paying strict attention to duty, manage to pass the time off pleasantly. A library, well filled with newspapers and periodicals, purchased with regimental funds, is open for the benefit of officers, men and citizen visitors. A steam saw mill, operated by soldiers, manufactures building material of all kinds, and is one of the most useful and economical institutions of the post. Soldiers as well as officers enjoy the proprietorship of numerous sail and row boats, and are very accumulating in placing them at the disposal of citizen visitors. For excellent trout fishing Coeur d'Alene lake cannot be equaled in the north west. Its waters are alive, so to speak, with beautiful, large and gamey trout, and a catch of from one to two dozen is not uncommon for an hour's fishing.

Visitors are kindly received by the people at the post, and Coeur d'Alene lake is destined at no distant day to be one of the most popular summer resorts on the Pacific coast.

Insurance business is good. Several responsible companies are advertised in the TIMES.

National Democratic Platform.

First—We pledge ourselves anew to the constitutional doctrines and traditions of the Democratic party as embodied in the teachings and example of a long line of Democratic statesmen and patriots, and embodied in the platform of the last National Convention of the party.

Second—Opposition to centralization and that dangerous spirit of encroachment which tends to concentrate the powers of all the departments in one, and thus to create whatever may be the forms of government, a real despotism; no summary laws separation of Church and State for the good of each common schools to be created and protected.

Third—Home rule, honest rule, honest money, consisting of gold, silver and paper convertible in coin on demand; the strict maintenance of the public faith, State and National, a tariff for revenue only.

Fourth—The subordination of the military to the civil power, and a general and thorough reform of the army.

Fifth—Right to a free ballot as the right preservative of all rights, and must and shall be maintained in every part of the United States.

Sixth—The existing administration is representative of conspiracy only, and the gains of the right to surround the ballot boxes with troops and deputy marshals to intimidate and obstruct the election, and the unprecedented use of the veto to maintain corrupt and despotic power, justify the people and impede its institutions.

Seventh—The great fraud of 1876, by which upon a false count of the electoral vote of two States, the candidate defeated at the polls was declared to be President, and for the first time in American history, the will of the people was set aside under threat of military violence, struck a deadly blow at our system of representative government. The Democratic party, to preserve the country from the horrors of a civil war, submitted for a time in the firm and patriotic faith that the people would punish the crime in 1880. This has preceded and favors all others. It impresses a more sacred duty upon the people of the Union than ever addressed to the conscience of a nation of freemen.

Eighth—We execute the course of this administration in making places for political criminals, and demand a reform by statute which shall make it forever impossible for a defeated candidate to bribe his way to the seat of a usurper, by villainous means.

Ninth—The resolution of Samuel J. Tilden not again to be a candidate for election to the exalted place to which he was elected a majority of his countrymen, and from which he was excluded by the leaders of the Republican party, is received by the Democrats of the United States with sympathy and respect for himself as citizen, and as one who, by elevating the standard of public morality and purifying the public service, merits the lasting gratitude of his country and his party.

Tenth—Free and a living chance for American commerce on the sea and on the land; no discrimination in favor of transportation lines, corporations or monopolies.

Eleventh—Amendment of the Burlingame treaty; no more Chinese immigration except for travel, education and foreign commerce, and therein carefully guarded.

Twelfth—Public money and public credit for public purposes solely, and public lands for actual settlers. Thirteenth—The Democratic party is the friend of labor and the laboring man, and pledges itself to protect his interests against the corporations and the combine.

Fourteenth—We congratulate the country upon the honesty and truth of the Democratic Congress which has reduced the public expenditure $40,000,000 a year; upon the continuation of prosperity at home and the national honor abroad, and above all, upon the promise of such a change in the administration of this government as shall insure its genuine lasting reform in every department of the public service.

National Republican Platform.

The following is the platform passed by the Republican convention held at Chicago.

Republican rule has restored upon a solid basis payment in coin for all the national obligations, and has given us a currency absolutely good and equal in every part of our extended country. It has lifted the credit of the nation from the point where 6 per cent. bonds sold at 96, to that where 4 per cent. bonds are eagerly sought at a premium. Under its administration railroads have increased from 31,000 miles in 1860, to more than 84,000 miles in 1879. Our foreign trade has increased from $700,000,000 in 1860, to more than $2,000,000,000 in 1879. Our exports, which were $80,000,000 less than our imports in 1860, were $294,000,000 more than our imports in 1879.

Without resorting to loans it has since the war absorbed the ordinary expenses of the government, besides the accruing interest on the public debt, and disbursed annually more than $30,000,000 for soldiers' pensions. It has paid $80,000,000 of the public debt, and by reducing the balance at lower rates, has reduced the annual interest charge from nearly $151,000,000 to less than $50,000,000. All the labor in the country has revived, labor is in demand, wages have increased and throughout the entire country there is evidence of a coming prosperity greater than we ever enjoyed. Upon this record the Republican party asks for the confidence and support of the people, and this convention submits to their approval the following statement of the principles and purposes which will continue to guide and inspire its efforts.

First—We affirm that the work of the last 21 years has been such as to commend itself to the favor of the nation, and that the results of the costly victories which we have achieved through immense difficulties should be preserved; that the peace regained should be cherished; that the disservice which a new party restored should be perpetuated and that the credit secured to the nation should be transmitted undiminished to future generations; that the order established and the credit acquired should never be impaired; that the debt reduced should be extinguished by the payment of every dollar in coin; that the revenue industries should be ever promoted, and that the commerce already so great should be encouraged. Second—The constitution of the United States is the supreme law, and not a mere contract of confederated states. It made a sovereign nation, whose powers are denied to the nation, while others are retained by the states, but the boundary between the powers delegated and those reserved is to be determined by national and not by state tribunals.

Third—The work of popular education is one left to the care of the several states, but it is the duty of the national government to aid to the extent of its constitutional ability. The intelligence of the nation is but the aggregate of intelligences in the several states, and the destiny of the nation must be guided not by the genius of any one state, but by the average genius of all.

Fourth—The constitution wisely forbids congress to make any law respecting an establishment of religion, but it is idle to hope that the nation can be protected against the influence of sectarianism while each state is exposed to its particular domination. We therefore recommend that the constitution be so amended as to lay some prohibition upon the legislation of each state and to forbid the appropriation of the public funds to the support of sectarian schools.

Fifth—We reaffirm the belief avowed in 1840 that the duties levied for the purpose of revenue should so discriminate as to favor American labor; that no further grant of the public domain should be made to any railroad or other corporation; that slavery-making perpetual in the states, its infra-territorial, poly-my, must be in the territories that everywhere the protection accorded to American birth must be secured to citizens by American action; that it is the duty of congress to develop and improve our water courses, to harbor, but we insist that further subsidies to private persons or corporations must cease; that the obligations to men who served its integrity in the day of battle are unimpaired by the lapse of 15 years since their small virtues; their perpetual honor and shall forever be the grateful privilege and the sacred duty of the American people.

Sixth—Since the authority to regulate immigration and to regulate the relations of the United States and foreign nations rests with the congress of the United States and its treaty-making powers, the Republican party, regarding the unrestricted immigration of Chinese as an evil of great magnitude, invokes the exercise of that power to re-train and limit but immigration by the enactment of such just, humane and reasonable provisions as will produce that result.

Seventh—That the purity and patriotism which characterized the earlier career of R. B. Hayes in peace and war, and which guided the thought of his immediate predecessor to him for a presidential candidate, have continued to inspire him in his career as chief executive, and that history will accord to his administration the honors which are due an able, honest and courageous fulfillment of the public business, and will honor his interposition between the people and proposed partisan law.

Eighth—We charge upon the Democratic party the heinous crimes of patriotism and justice to a supreme and unassailable right for office and patronage; that the possession of the national and state governments, and of the control of state and postal laws, they have obstructed all the efforts to preserve purity and conserve the freedom of suffrage, have devised fraudulent returns and certificates, have labored to unseat lawfully elected members of congress to secure at all hazards the vote of the majority of the states in the house of representatives, have endeavored to occupy by force and fraud a place of trust given to others by the people of Maine, and rescued by the courage and action of Maine's patriotic sons, have by methods vicious in principle and tyrannical in practice attacked partisan legislation to appropriate bills; have crushed the rights of individuals and vitiated the principle and sought the favor of rebellion against the nation and have endeavored to obliterate the sacred memory of the war to overcome its insuperable results, freedom and individual equality.

We affirm it to be the duty and purpose of the Republican party to use all legitimate means of this nation to secure the perfect harmony which may be practicable, and we submit to the practical sense of the people of the United States, to say whether it would not be dangerous to the best interests of our country at this time to surrender the administration of the national government to a party which seeks to overthrow the existing policy under which we are so prosperous, and thus bring destruction and confusion where there is now order and confidence and hope.

How to Reach This Country.

Inquiring letters are so frequently received, as to the best mode of reaching this new country, the rates of fare, the shortest routes, &c., that we have compiled the following facts for the express benefit of those who would come among us. Those persons who have friends contemplating a visit to this country, either for pleasure or profit, might secure some extra copies of this week's edition of THE TIMES.

There are three routes which Eastern people may take in coming to this country. If a person wants to see time, and desires to bring stock, wagons, &c., the quickest and most direct route would be to come from Omaha to Ogden; thence by wagon road to this new country; traversing the distance from Ogden in two or three weeks, when roads are good—5 to 7 months if of June, July, or August. The route is by rail to Kellon, at a cost of about $50 in emigrant car; thence by stage to Walla Walla, at an expense of $50, exclusive of meals, and on to Colfax or Spokan by mail or stage. The route from Walla Walla, at an expense of $20, exclusive of meals, and on to Colfax or Spokan by mail or stage. The route from Walla Walla, at an expense of $20, exclusive of meals, and on to Colfax or Spokan by mail or stage.

Immigrants from Oregon and California, in the earlier part of the season, when they have the money to spare, often come by water to the Dalles or Alamo; thence overland by teams. Those who travel without teams should come by boat to Penasco or Alamo; and there take the stage for this upper country via Colfax. Many families make the entire trip overland.

Puret Saunders come by way of Portland and Alamo, unless they want a delightful horseback ride over the Cascade mountains in mid-summer. The Snoqualmie route is the best for horsemen, leading by the way of the Ringling Valley, Yakima City and Ashworth. Be sure that your saddle horse is a gentle, sure-footed, strong, and in splendid condition for travel.

Accommodations on the Columbia river boat are excellent, and every attention is paid to the comfort and convenience of passengers. No one who has an opportunity to do so should fail to take a trip either up or down the Columbia river, where the scenery is magnificent and beautiful in the extreme.
