

PUGET SOUND HERALD.

STEILACOOM, W. T., Thursday Morning, May 1, 1862.

LATEST EASTERN NEWS.

The following embraces about all the news of interest contained in the summary omitted last week, with three days later advice added.

At Yorktown, yesterday, the enemy's works were carefully examined by Gen. McClellan, and found to be very strong, and the approaches difficult. The enemy was in force, and the water batteries of Yorktown and Gloucester were much increased.

On the afternoon of Sunday, Ship Point had been taken, our gunboats shelling out the batteries. All fortified places of importance, before Yorktown, will be taken.

The following is an account from official dispatches to the Secretary of War:

That portion of the army of the Potomac recently concentrated at Old Point, advanced on Friday morning in the direction of Yorktown. The right was assigned to Morrill's brigade, of Porter's Division, with two companies of the 8th Pennsylvania cavalry, acting as skirmishers.

The President sent to the Senate, yesterday, a treaty negotiated by Secretary Seward and Lord Lyons, for the more effectual suppression of the slave trade.

Our Nation.—It is admitted in Washington, by parties attached to the foreign diplomatic bodies, that should the United States succeed in its movements, it will emerge from this war the greatest military power on earth.

Arrangements are fully completed for the rapid construction, by Ericsson, of six boats similar to the Monitor, but of larger size.

WASHINGTON, April 8. The rebel position extends across the Peninsula from Yorktown to Warwick, near James River. Generals Lee and Joe Johnston are both reported there, one commanding at Yorktown and the other at Warwick.

THE SANTS FE MAIL HAS ARRIVED. The Texans, 1,000 at our evacuation Santa Fe and were marching down the river.

Count Kerolan, a Frenchman, has invented a new patent, keyless lock 244,140,625 combinations. It has five rollers, each marked with twenty-five letters, at one of which the lock is set.

Our forces at Island No. 10 continue to bring in valuable property hidden by the retreating rebels. Yesterday two splendid batteries of light artillery of rifled cannon were discovered in the woods.

A letter from Beaufort, April 10, says the place was occupied on Thursday night by a detachment of Packer's brigade; they landed without opposition and even without finding a guard stationed to challenge their approach.

On Saturday and Sunday a guard crossed from Beaufort and took possession of the beach southwest of Fort Macon, cutting off the rebel communication with their meat supplies.

WASHINGTON, April 11. The steamer King Philip, from New York, arrived to-day. Our forces before Yorktown are stated to be hourly gaining ground.

April 10.—The latest news from Fortress Monroe says everything is quiet there. Gen. Sherman, from Fort Royal, has arrived and reported himself to the War Department.

Contributors who have come inside of our lines from Fort Royal in the last few days from Charleston, say the people of that city are dreading an attack from our forces.

Gen. Wigfall, in command of a brigade several miles from Fredericksburg, it is understood, has resigned, in consequence of a misunderstanding with his superior officer.

MISCELLANEOUS ITEMS.

The laying on of hands, one of the old forms of healing, sometimes proves an aggravation in cases of love sickness.

No man can tell from his ledger whether he is rich or poor. He is the one of the other, according to what he is, not according to what he has.

The rebel view of the battle of Mill Springs seems to have been very erroneous.

Two odds make an even; two negatives make an affirmative; two roughs make a smooth—that is, a rough job and a rough man make smooth work.

Stupid people may eat, but shouldn't talk. Their mouths will do well enough as banks of deposit, but not of issue.

A good wife, says Busby, knows how to make the domestic ties strong. She always puts tape on her husband's shirt collar.

A man swallowed a set of teeth lately, in Cleveland, and, at last accounts, he was experiencing, as was to be expected, a terrible gnawing at the stomach.

Prentiss doesn't believe, with the old Wisconsin hunter, that we are to have prevailing winds from the South, because the South can't raise the wind.

The old geographical figures describing the world's population are doubted by modern calculators, who fix the number at 1,181,000,000 to 1,802,000,000. It is estimated that Africa has probably 100,000,000 inhabitants.

Subjecting speeches, reports and public documents to postage according to weight, will have a tendency to make speeches and reports less heavy than they have always been.

"Orpheus C. Kerr," in the Sunday Mercury, thus describes Capt. William Brown's appearance at the Christmas Ball: "In the evening there was a ball, to which a number of the women of America were invited. Capt. William Brown came up from Ancon on purpose to attend, and looked, as the General of the Mackerel Brigade generally expressed it, like a bag of indigo that had been out without an umbrella in a hard shower of brass buttons."

The "local" of the Venango Spectator falleth to philosphizing. He says: "This is a sunny world, and even out of his evil good cometh to somebody. If a man steals a horse, doth not the owner thereof say unto the printer, 'Advertise the animal, and behold the dollar for the payment thereof.'"

"So he goes on to say, if a smash up take place in ye grocery, ye local editor wouldn't have a horse stolen nor a grocery 'bus' that such good may come. Excellent follow; will he pledge us in a proof glass of petroleum?"

The Farmer's Corner.

THE SENSES OF THE BEE.—Two naturalists, J. Samuelson and Dr. Hicks, of England, who have been making microscopic investigations of the nature and habits of the bee, incline to the opinion that the antennae or "feelers" of the insect are organs of hearing, and perhaps of smell, as well as touch.

They report also that they have discovered, at the roots of the bee's wings, vesicles with nerves attached, that may serve as organs of smell, which certainly is a curious place to look for a nose; but the wonders of insect life are not yet half revealed.

A beautiful contrivance attached to the wings is worthy of notice. It is necessary to the flight of the insect that it should present to the air as broad and unbroken a surface of wing as possible. To secure this, the front edge of the hinder wing is furnished with a row of exquisitely formed hooks, and on the opposite edge of the interior wing is a rib or bar, to which the hooks are attached at the pleasure of the insect; thus giving it the advantages of broad wings, and also enabling it to fold them compactly when not in use.

SONGHEM STRAW.—A farmer on the Columbia River made seventy-five gallons of sorghum syrup last fall. The seed of his sorghum ripened well.

Sorghum or Chinese sugar cane will grow wherever corn can be grown. Warm land suits it. That which inclines to be sandy is best.

We are entirely sure that this cane can be raised east of the mountains; and we have seen perfect specimens of the plant which were grown in this valley.

This cane has become a staple crop in the Western States. J. H. Smith, of Quincy, says he can make sorghum sugar at four cents a pound and syrup at twenty-four cents a gallon.

A farmer with some knowledge of the cultivation of this plant, and the manufacture of its juices in the valley of Walla Walla, would be on the high road to fortune.

Mr. Hodges, the sugar mill manufacturer of Cincinnati, is going into the sorghum business at Dayton, on an extensive scale. He has invested $8,000 in sugar machinery, and engaged some one hundred acres to work next fall.—Oregon Farmer April 1.

WHY DO ANIMALS NEED SALT?—Prof. Jas. E. Johnston, of Scot and, says: "Upward of half the saline matter of the blood (75 per cent.) consists of common salt; and as this is partly discharged every day through the skin and the kidneys, the necessity of continued supplies of it to the healthy body becomes sufficiently obvious. The bile also contains soda (one of the ingredients of salt), a special and indigestible constituent, and so do all the cartilages of the body. Stint the supply of salt, therefore, and neither will the bile be able properly to assist digestion, nor the cartilages to be built up again as fast as they naturally waste." It is better to place salt where stock can have free access to it, than to give it occasionally in large quantities.

CURIO SIDA POSK.—We have had much to say about curing hams—a word now about side pork. Take out the bone and lean meat along the back; cut and pack the pieces snugly in the barrel; put more salt on the bottom and on each layer of meat, than will probably penetrate it; then boil and skim the old brine, if it is sweet, and add enough to cover the meat two or three inches. This last addition should be as strong as ham brine. As soon as the meat is packed pour on the brine, boiling hot. It will penetrate much quicker than cold brine, and give the meat an improved flavor.

FINE HAY.—Every farmer is aware that fine hay or straw is much more readily eaten by stock than that which is coarse. Every farmer knows that where the soil is rich and the growth thin, there is a tendency to coarseness of stalk. A mixture of timothy and clover produces the best hay; and we have found that half a bushel of seed per acre—equal parts clover and timothy—produces a quality of fodder which farm stock prefers to any other.

TO PREVENT HORSES KICKING.—A subscriber to the Country Gentleman, being possessed of a horse that would kick every thing to pieces in the stable that he could reach, and having found a remedy for it, (after trying every thing, such as fettering, whipping, hanging chains behind him for him to kick against, &c.) sends the recipe to this journal. It is simply fastening a short trace-chain about two feet long, by a strap, to each hind foot, and let him do his own whipping.

SCRATCHES ON HORSES.—Having seen in your valuable paper some remarks in regard to scratches on horses, I would say there is only one remedy, and that is to keep the cuticles on the inside of their legs soft, by an application of soft grease, and peeling them off. If this is done, my word for it the horse will not be troubled with them; and with those affected, the application of this simple remedy will effect a sure cure.

DANDRUFF IN THE HAIR.—A correspondent asks by what means this nuisance may be prevented, and, if it has already made its appearance, how it may be removed?—Answer, it is much easier to prevent than cure it. The prevention consists in the avoidance of sharp combs and brushes, and daily bathing the head with cold water. Numerous cases of dandruff have been produced by scratching the head with sharp combs and brushes. If any one doubts it, let him try the same practice upon the back of his head. He will find, in a few days, how it scalds, itches, and causes dandruff to show off in considerable quantity.

When the difficulty already exists in the hair, it is to be removed by the same simple means which will prevent it. I do not intend to deny that certain heads are disposed to this brassy secretion, but these persons should bat a small part of the case of dandruff which one sees.

SAVING FOR OLD AGE.—No one doubts that it is wise to make a provision for old age, but we are not all agreed as to the kind of provision it is best to lay in.

Certainly, we shall want a little money, for a destitute old man is indeed a sorry sight, and suggests to every one the suspicion that his life has been foolishly, if not wickedly spent. Yes, save money, by all means. But an old man need not just that particular kind of strength which young men are most apt to waste. Many a foolish young fellow will throw away on a holiday a certain amount of nervous energy, which he will never feel the want of until he is seventy, and then, how much will he want it! It is curious, but true, that a bottle of champagne at twenty may intensify the rheumatism at three score. It is a fact, that over-acting the eyes at fourteen may necessitate the aid of spectacles at forty, instead of eighty. We advise our young readers to the saving of health for their old age, for the namix hold-good with regard to health as to money—waste not, want not. It is the greatest mistake to suppose that any violation of the laws of health can escape its penalty.

Nature forgives no sin, no error. She lets off the offender forty years, sometimes, but she catches him at last; and inflicts the punishment just when, just where, just how he feels it most. Save up for old age, but save more than money; save health, save honor, save knowledge, save the recollection of good deeds and innocent pleasures, save pure thoughts, save friends, save love. Save rich stores of that kind of wealth which time cannot diminish, nor death take away.

"Please give me a few pennies to pay for a night's lodging, sir," said a beggar in a whining tone to a gentleman one night in the streets of a large city.

"Better work than beg," replied the gentleman, handing the beggar a dime.

"Better work than beg," said the beggar to himself. "That is so, I guess. I have tried begging." It does not go very well. I will try work.

He tried hard, and after a while he earned a dollar. With this he bought old rags, which he sold for a dollar and a quarter. He bought more rags and was soon able to open a sort of rag shop for himself. By and by he began to make paper. Next he sold books. Finally he became a rich and benevolent man. He found working to be better than begging.

And so will you, lazy loitering boy, find industry better than idleness. Idleness is a dealer in rage, misery and death. If you enter its service you will get those things for pay, and pretty rough pay it is. But industry deals in gold, health, and happiness. Serve her and she will make you a real man by and by. I hope that idle, lazy boy will outlive in her service right off.

If you require a person to become security for you, don't ask the man who promised he would do anything for you when he knew that you didn't want anything done.

If you have a rich aunt fond of tracts and tea, there is no necessity for your talking to her about billiards and brandy and water.
