THE PUYALLUP COUNTRY.

Within the past year, we have heard no section of our Territory so often adverted to in terms of praise as the Puyallup. From time to time we are treated to a eulogistic dissertation on its merits as an agricultural country...

The Puyallup, at the nearest point, is about fifteen miles from Steilacoom, and stretches away there to the mountains on the one hand and the Sound on the other. It is about five miles wide and thirty-five miles long.

Some twenty five or thirty claims have already been taken in the valley, leaving yet to be taken farms for between six and seven hundred families.

The soil is a mixture of fine sand with loam or soft clay, and is plowed with very little labor at any season of the year.

Those of our farmers who hold claims there prior to the Indian war, and which consequences were compelled to abandon them at the time, are again returning thither as fast as circumstances will admit.

Almost a FIRE—On Saturday night last, nearly the whole town (fortunately not quite all) was in church, the house occupied by Mrs. Webster was discovered to be on fire.

Business CHANGES—As will be seen by advertisement elsewhere, J. R. Meeker & Sons have retired from business.

COMMENCEMENT—This migratory race are beginning to move toward the Sound. Forty-three of them landed at Victoria, on two vessels, in three days. We shall soon have them up here.

THE THIRD AUDITOR'S REPORT.

To the Editor of the Puget Sound Herald: I think, with "the server of the Times," it is extremely large that citizens of this Territory have not been equally favored by the Delegate with some of the citizens of Oregon, in the way of public documents.

The Third Auditor's Report, on the war debt of this Territory and that of Oregon, is among the most important documents to the people of this Territory of any that could have been sent for the benefit of the public I quote from said Report, showing some of the strongest grounds of the Report adverse to the war debt.

"Of the number, Tilton, Adjutant General, Shaw, Asst. Adjutant General, Fitzgerald, et al., eight in all, were at the same time in the service of the United States, at various salaries, from $2000 to $10000 per annum, they nevertheless reported by the Commissioners for their pay in advance, according to army rates, agreeably to their respective rates.

"The cost of the troops were discharged on the 17th of October, 1856, only three days before the Commissioners commenced their examination of the claims styled by the Act of Congress of the 18th of the preceding August as growing out of the late Indian war; yet Gen. H. H. Hays, the chief of the staff is continued in service and reported for pay until the 30th of the following June, 1857; Quartermaster-General Miller until the 30th of September of the same year," &c.

"As has been repeatedly mentioned in these remarks, the last two companies of the troops of our Territory were discharged on the 17th of October, 1856. The commissioners appointed under the act of Congress to examine these claims met at Portland, Oregon, organized, and commenced their duties on the 1st of the same month, with a secretary and clerk, and everything necessary for the prosecution of their duties.

"Under an order of Gen. McAlister, of the same date as the report of the commission, Gen. Miller proceeds to charge for his services as Quartermaster-General at $7.85 per day from the 1st of October, 1857, to the 11th of February, 1858, one hundred and thirty-four days, $1049, and for office rent $65, which is approved by the commissioners in full, notwithstanding the endorsement upon the voucher by Gen. McAlister, that Gen. Miller was a member of the Legislature sixty days of the above time; and I think that $1114 should be deducted. Under the same authority, Gen. Miller charges at the same rate for his services from the 11th of February to the 1st of Sept., 1858, two hundred and six days, making $2018 85, and for the rent of office $252 60, making altogether $2772 45, all of which is approved by the commissioners in full.

"And what equivalent did Gen. Miller render for the above large sum for nearly a whole year's service? Why, some small abstracts, with only twenty-six vouchers, all told, amounting, exclusive of his own pay, &c., to only $4,001 20, besides the amount he drew from the United States at the same time for his pay as a member of the Territorial Legislature, as shown by the remarks of Gen. McAlister.

The Report from which the above extracts are taken fell into my hands by the most recent accident. It did not reach this Territory under the frank of the Delegate, as have any quantity of specimens upon the acquisition of Cuba, and on a variety of other kindred subjects, of little or no immediate interest to our people.

It might be interesting to the people to know why out, and, in fact, the only action taken by Congress or the Departments upon the war claims during the last two years should have been studiously kept away from public view, especially when it would have cost the Delegate nothing to give the trouble and time of writing his frank, to have given it a fair circulation. It appears that the Military Committee of the House of Representatives referred the report of the commissioners for examination to the Third Auditor of the Treasury Department. He makes on it a report of seventy-seven pages. The Delegate from this Territory makes a speech upon the same, on Feb. 21st, 1859, containing two quotations, one of five lines and one of eleven, from said report, and that speech has been sent to this Territory by cartloads; and, for aught that appears in that speech, the Delegate occupies the position of a man fighting a shadow.

The people of this Territory are not furnished with the means of knowing upon what grounds the Auditor made his objections, or to what he objected. The portions of the report quoted are only two out of seventy-seven pages; but they serve to illustrate the subject nearly as well as it could have been illustrated by Punch.

While the hard-working farmer abandoned his farm to desolation, served through the whole Indian war, with no possibility of selfish interests, but actuated purely by a desire to defend his family and purely, officers who never risked either life or limb in the service, drawing pay from the Government for other nominal duties, were retained in office by the Governor for nearly one whole year after the discharge of the volunteers, and their accounts certified to by the Governor. And, as the Auditor truly remarked, "What services did these officers render as an equivalent to the government for the charge of $7.85 per day for nearly one whole year?" Let me tell you nothing. Thus the whole claim of the volunteers for services has been jeopardized and delayed by such acts on the part of I. I. Stevens in conducting the war. Why must the Quartermaster General be kept in service until the 1st of September, 1858? If the truth must be told, to put money in his or some other individual's pocket, and for the sake of paying such a large amount from the government, all the claims of our volunteers for their services, and those for supplies furnished are east into a pail.

I have heard much talk among a few strikers in this Territory as to the superiority and manner in which the business transactions of the war were carried on, over that of Oregon, and especially of the very superior style of the Quartermaster General. Yet the Auditor finds that some of the sub-Quartermasters were better business men than the General, and the commissioners find that the papers made out in Oregon were more regular than the papers of the Quartermaster in this Territory.

The result has been that on this Report of the Third Auditor the whole claim is again referred to the same officer, who is to report to the House of Representatives by the first Monday in December next, giving the amounts due each company and individual engaged in such service, under certain rules prescribed by the House, the substance of which rules may be briefly stated. 1st. No person entitled to pay unless called into service. 2d. Volunteers are to be allowed the same pay with equal grades of the army, with two dollars per month extra. 3d. No person shall be paid in more than one capacity or for the same time. 4th. No person shall be paid beyond the period of actual service. As I said before, I. I. Stevens made a speech in the Auditor's Report, with the very extensive quotations of sixteen lines, in which the Quartermaster General is spoken of as a man of remarkable ability, (if he meant his ability to sign vouchers for a good salary, I think so too) and apparently speaks of the Indian war; but it would appear from the same document that there was little or no war in which he (the said Stevens) did not play the hero. I have yet to learn that he was in any battle during the whole war. It is one remarkable characteristic of that gentleman, at his personal desire for self-aggrandizement, is so overwhelming as to compel or induce him to be eternally repeating the two first initials of his name. To hear him in a public speech remind me of one Stebbins, who was elected an ensign of a company of militia in one of the Eastern States. Highly elated with his sudden elevation from the rank and file, he rushed to a well-filled empty barrel lying near by, and, placing his mouth to the bung-hole, exclaimed in a loud tone, "Ensign Stebbins! Ensign Stebbins!!" then turning to the company, remarked that it sounded well. I regret that your space will not enable me to give more of this Report, or even the whole of it. I regret still more that the people had no opportunity to see and reflect upon its contents, be it the meeting of the Democratic Convention, but I may yet better judge whether it would be policy to instruct their delegates to vote for one Delegate to Congress, who, by his acts, has damaged the prospects of the war claim, or whether it would not have been better to nominate some man who could defend the lawful and well-earned claims of the volunteers, without being compelled to defend every irregular act of one to defend himself.

SALE OF CIRCASSIAN GIRLS.—The London Post thus speaks, in a recent number, of the traffic in Circassian girls in Turkey: Perceiving that when the Russians shall have recovered the Caucasus, this traffic in white slaves will be over, the dealers have redoubled their efforts, even since the commencement of the peace conference, to introduce into Turkey the greatest possible number of women, while the opportunity of doing so lasted. They have been so successful that never, perhaps, at any former period, was white flesh so cheap as it is at this moment. There is an absolute glut in the market, and dealers are obliged to throw away their goods, owing to the extent of the supply, which, in many instances, has been brought by steam, under the British flag. In former times, a "good middling" Circassian was thought very cheap at £100, but at the present moment the same description of goods may be had for £5.

BETROTHAL CEREMONY.—A new and interesting fashion has been introduced in Cincinnati—that of celebrating betrothals, or engagements between young people, by the giving of a party and inviting guests to weddings. In Germany and other parts of Europe this is almost the universal custom. Should it prevail here, says an Atlantic paper, and should betrothals be announced in the newspapers, the ladies will be the daily papers with as much eagerness to find who is betrothed, as they now do to read the marriage and death. The practice will have a good effect on both male and female jilts. When the law in Massachusetts caused the parties intending marriage to post a notice to that effect for three weeks in some public place, several Boston papers published such declarations under the heading of "Marriages Intended."

LOCALITY OF PIKE'S PEAK.—Pike's Peak, so well known of late in connection with the gold discoveries in its neighborhood, is situated on the Rocky mountains about 39° North latitude, and 105° West longitude. It is stated to be about 60 miles east of the western boundary line of Kansas Territory; 60 miles south of the southern line of Nebraska; 150 miles due south of Fort Laramie, and 800 miles west from Independence, Mo. It flows from the source of two large rivers—the Arkansas, which takes a southerly direction, and the South Platte, which runs northeast.

"SUBSTITUTE."—According to Webster, a substitute is a person or thing put in the place of another to answer the same purpose. The Trinity Journal gives the following example: "There is a tavern-keeper up north, who, they say, hasn't been sober but once for three years— that was when his liquor got out during a protracted storm. An acquaintance says that in the famine he invented a substitute, compounded of dried apple-juce, cayenne pepper, tobacco-stem, oak bark and turpentine, which, after several trials, was pronounced a very superior article of gin."
