About Ben Adhem.

BY MISS WEST.

"About Ben Adhem (may his tribe increase!)
Awoke one night from a deep dream of peace,
And saw within the moonlight on his room,
Making it rich, and like a lily in bloom,
An angel, writing in a book of gold.
Recording names that were his own;
And to the presence in the room he said:
'What writest thou?' The vision raised its head,
And, with a look made of all sweet accord,
Answered, 'The names of those that love the Lord.'
'And is mine one?' said Adhem. 'Nay, not so,'
Replied the angel. 'Alas, I have forgot
But cheerily still, and said, 'I pray thee, then,
Write me as one who loves his fellow-men.'
The angel wrote, and vanished. The next night
It came again with a great swarming light,
And showed the names whom love of God had blessed,
And, lo! Ben Adhem's name led all the rest."

LOVE SONG.

BY JOHN BROWN.

O, moonlight deep and tender,
Your mist of golden splendor,
Round my betrothal shroud!
O, oh leaves dark and dewy,
The very name you seem,
Two hearts so ready to beat,
To murmur in my dream.
O, river, dim with distance,
Flow thus forever by,
A part of my existence,
Within your heart doth lie!
O, stars, ye saw our meeting,
Two hearts and one soul,
Two hearts so ready to beat,
To mingle and be whole!
O, happy night deliver
Her arms back to me,
Or keep them all and give her
A blessed stream of me.

I Know a Little Rose.

I know a little rose,
And O, but I love her,
Could I but be a drop of dew
That lies upon her breast!
But I dare not look so high,
Nor die with such an event,
It is enough for me to be
The dust about her feet!

In 1774, Dr. Webster was a popular preacher of the Kirk of Scotland, in Edinburgh. Business brought him to London, and one day, when passing the House of Lords, his curiosity induced him to make an effort to step in and see them. None were admitted without an order, except noblemen's servants. Webster, being ignorant of the rule, requested admittance.
"What Lord do you belong to?" said the door-keeper.
"To the Lord Jehovah," replied Webster.
"The Lord Jehovah," repeated the keeper, "I have kept here seven years, but I have never heard of such a Lord." Jack said he had his fellow-keeper on the front steps; "here's a chap who says he belongs to Lord Jehovah; don't you know such a Lord?"
"Never heard of him," says Jack.
"But," says Webster, (willing to keep up the illusion) "there is such a Lord."
"Pass 'em in," said Jack, "I s'pose it's some poor Scotch Lord."
This occurred at a period when there was not one in twenty persons of all the manufacturing and rural districts in England who could read the Bible, or write his own name. Sabbath schools were introduced in 1788. Now the people are intelligent and happy, and cannot only read and write, but have found out who the Lord Jehovah is.

An Englishman, dining in a Chinese village, was greatly enjoying a savory dish,—something of a hash, it appeared—and would have expressed his pleasure to the waiter, a tall, solemn Celestial, who, however, understood nothing of English, but could utter a word or two of the language of China. But though eloquence was, therefore, denied them at the time, wit was present, and answered the purpose. The smacking of lips indicated satisfaction, and then came a question, ingeniously put. Pointing at the portion of meat in the dish, and which he supposed to be duck, the Englishman, with an inquiring look, said, "Quack, quack, quack!" The waiter, gravely shaking his head, as much as to say, "No," replied, "Bow, wow, wow!"
Sometimes in the spring of '37, the steamer St. Nicholas "opened at New Orleans with a Calloppe—the first one ever heard in those parts—causing the greatest consternation among the servants, most of whom supposed they must now give an account of their sins, sure enough. But one of them, a girl, stood and listened for some time, and at last walked into the house and expressed her opinion thus: "Missus, I don't know 't'wixt 't'wixt Gabriel, 'cause I ain't feared a bit; but if it is him, he's playin' 'Wait for the Wagon, sure's you're born!"

A couple (not long married) were contending about what should be the name of their first and only child.
"William, my dear, I want to name him Peter."
"Oh! no, my love; I don't like Peter—he denied his master. Let us call him Joseph."
"Why, William, I can't bear Joseph—he denied his mistress."

An idle fellow, complaining of his hard lot, said he was born the last month of the year, the last day of the month, and the last day of the week, and he had always been behindhand. He believed it would have been a good deal in his pocket if he had not been born at all!
This man belonged to the same school of wit, no doubt, with him who hired himself out to labor for life at eight dollars a month, with an agreement that he should have half his pay at the end of every month, and the rest when his time was out!
We have just heard a good 'un. Not long ago, a distinguished divine of this city was walking with a friend past a new church in which another distinguished divine is the shepherd. Said the friend to the D. D., looking up at the spire, (which was very tall and not yet completed) "how much higher is that going to be?" "Not much," said the D. D., with a sly laugh, "they don't own very far in that direction!"

A Louisville paper has some answers to correspondents. Here is a sample: "Jenny—Ministers are not more addicted to dissipation than men of other professions. A few of the Kalkoff type take gin toddies and liberties with females, but the great majority of them are as good as lawyers and doctors. If you want a true Christian, marry an idiot."
Very few of us are conscious of our own defects. The hunchback does not see the hump on his own shoulders.

A LIVE SUBJECT.

BY MISS WEST.

There are epochs in every medical man's history, each of which comprises a lifetime of horror. Only three short weeks ago, I was one of the greatest students of medicine and surgery in the United States. To-day—well, let me not anticipate.

Two years have elapsed since I was sent from Mobile, by my father, to study medicine at the North. I listened to my first course of lectures in Philadelphia, and there made the acquaintance of Professor—, who is probably the best demonstrator in physiology that ever taught the young idea how to shoot, allopathically, on his side of the Atlantic. I was fortunate enough to become a particular favorite of his, and was introduced by him to one of the cleverest surgeons in, I think, the world. His name is—, I will call him the Professor, however. He is one of those individuals for whom you at once conceive a great solicitude, a wonderful partiality, and it was the latter, at the first time we met, I felt for him.

He was a strange being; at least he seemed so to me on our first meeting, and forever afterwards. Oftentimes he drank deeply; and while under the influence of drink, he would let fall curious hints concerning "blighted hopes," "the rascality of kindred," and "the folly of supposing any affection sprang from the ties of consanguinity." On one of these communicative occasions he told me a heart-rending history of family experience. I gathered, by piecemeal from his conversations, the fact that one of his own blood had treated him most heartlessly, and driven him, by fraud of the grossest character, from his native place to this country, penniless and friendless.

I ought to say, en passant, that his drinking bouts were conducted strictly upon the gentlemanly plan, and were seldom or never made known to the public, or even to the majority of those who ranked among his immediate friends; and furthermore, I should remark that he is well advanced in years, although no doubt you know that already.

"My evil spirit is upon me," he would sometimes say to me, and then he would illustrate, in his conduct and manner, the most singular phases of hypochondria I ever saw.

It appears that he was born in the town of C— (I must be guarded, for I am now violating confidence) and was unfortunate enough, considering the laws which give the elder brother everything, to be ushered into the world after his brother John. For this frere he felt the intensest affection. To him he confided a history of his hopes; to him he looked more than to his infirm father for advice; to him he communicated a narrative of his love, and of his successful wooing. The maiden of his choice was beneath him in wealth and station, but his brother approved of that choice, and he was content.

It is necessary to my object, in penning this narrative, only to state that the elder brother secured the girl, robbed by a fraud of the basest character her honorable lover of all his means, (also reducing the old father to penury by forgeries) and then decamped, taking the girl along to Italy.

"Did you never take vengeance upon the scoundrel?" I inquired, when he related these facts to me.

"I did not regard either of them as being worthy of my indignation," he replied; "and I never followed them an inch."
"Did you ever hear from them?" I asked.
"Yes, several times; the last news I got was to the effect that she had become shameless and betrothed, and was living in a condition of public infamy in Paris—of course he had left her."
"And he?"
"Had become a gambler—some wrote to me, a thief," (here he chuckled). "Certain it was, he had squandered all of his ill-gotten means."
This was all I could gather of his early and domestic history. But to the point of my communication.

Three weeks ago, the professor was to explain to us all (a class of students) a certain condition of the human stomach, and he was to do this practically in the dissecting-room. There was a dispute to the propriety of some of the late Dr. Marshall Hall's teachings with reference to the divisions of the nervous system, and the Professor was to settle the dispute, scalpel in hand. The division of Dr. Hall, permit me to say, arranges the nervous system into three sections; the cerebral, or sentient voluntary; the true spinal, or excitatory; and the ganglionic, or nutritive, or secretory.

The Professor is one of the most skillful of lecturers, and a precise and handsome demonstrator. His devotion to the anatomical branch of medicine, amounts to almost a monomania. The patience with which he will work around and elaborate the simplest preparation for his cabinet is unparalleled.

Connected with the mosted questions concerning the stomach were others which it is unnecessary for me to describe; but they made it imperative that the body to be dissected should be that of a male adult somewhat aged.

The Hamilton and Burr Duel.

BY MISS WEST.

As over half a century has passed away since this remarkable duel, and as the public opinion has now entirely changed as to the propriety of such a barbarous custom, it is probable that but few are aware of the particulars of the event, or of the excitement it created all over the Union. No duel, in any time or country, caused so intense a sensation as this one. Its fatal result spread like the winds through every hamlet and village of the United States. Maledictions and curses followed Burr until he fled his native land—so ostracized, it is true; but the mark of ostracism was upon him; and from the moment of Hamilton's death, his career of political greatness was closed forever.

Both antagonists, in early youth, had entered the armies of the republic under Washington—both had served their country faithfully in the tented field, and both had risen to high rank in the civil honors of the Union. Divided in political opinions and feelings, they were never intimate, although both were frequently engaged on the same side in legal cases at the bar.

In the spring of 1804, while Burr was Vice President of the United States, he was nominated for the governorship of New York by his friends, and Morgan Lewis was nominated by another portion of the democratic party. The federalists, as the opposite party was called—and among whom Gen. Hamilton was the most conspicuous—made no nomination. In this election Lewis beat Burr by a very heavy majority. Chagrined and mortified to be thus put down by the federalists, (for that party had taken sides with Lewis against Burr) though Burr could command the largest number of pure democratic votes, he wrote a letter to Hamilton, complaining of certain votes alleged to have been uttered by him during the contest, the uttering of which was mentioned in a certain letter from Mr. C. D. Cooper, of Albany, to Mr. A. Brown, of Bergen, in the same county. This letter, after speaking of the election, says: "Gen. Hamilton, Mr. Burr's brother-in-law, it is said, has come out decidedly against Burr; indeed when he was heard, he spoke of him as a dangerous man, who ought not to be trusted." Another letter was also alluded to by Burr, which was written by Cooper to Philip Schuyler, Esq., reiterating the above, and saying still further—"I could detail to you a still longer list of names."

It appears Burr got possession of these letters, or one of them, and he then enclosed it to Gen. Hamilton, in the following note:
New York, June 18, 1804.
Sir: I send for your perusal a letter signed Charles D. Cooper, which, though apparently published some time ago, has very recently come to my knowledge. Mr. Van Ness, who does me the honor to deliver it, will point out to you that clause of the letter to which I particularly request your attention.

You must perceive, sir, the necessity of a prompt and unqualified acknowledgment or denial of the expression which would warrant the assertion of Dr. Cooper.

I have the honor to be, Your obedient servant,
A. Burr.

Gen. Hamilton wrote a long reply to the epistle, wherein he virtually declined either the acknowledgment or denial of the offensive expressions complained of, saying that if Burr still insisted on an explanation upon a basis so vague, he (Gen. H.) could say no more, but must abide the consequences.

Gen. Hamilton wrote a second note, declaring that Gen. Hamilton's letter furnished him new reasons for demanding a definite reply as to whether or not he had uttered the offensive expressions complained of; and that his friend, Mr. Van Ness, would await such reply, or his refusal to give it. Gen. Hamilton still declined saying anything on the subject; and some notes passed between Gen. Hamilton and Mr. Van Ness, but never a definite reply to Mr. Pendleton's fatal challenge from Burr to Hamilton, which the latter accepted, resulting a few days' delay of the hostile meeting; he having much business to transact in the circuit court, which was then sitting, and some private arrangements to make. This being communicated to Burr, the request was at once acceded to.

On the 4th of July, the society of the Cincinnati took their annual dinner at Ross tavern in Broad street. At this dinner, both Hamilton and Burr were present. Little was it imagined by those assembled, that the two most distinguished of their guests at the festive board were about to meet in fatal combat. So secretly had the matter been conducted, that beyond the principals and seconds none were aware of anything save political difference between the two men. It is said that on this occasion Hamilton was particularly pleasant and agreeable, while Burr, naturally reserved, appeared more distant and grave than ever. Hamilton was solicited to give the company a song, which he finally complied with, remarking, "Well, you shall have it," and gave the soldier's song of "The Drum," a favorite of his, which his companions had often heard him sing before, in the long winter nights of the revolution, at head-quarters, when the aid of Washington. It is also told that Burr, who sat on the left of the President of the Cincinnati on this occasion, was observed to lean his head on his hand, and incline his ear toward the singer and listen with remarkable attention; indeed, it was the only thing that seemed to rouse him during the dinner.

What were his thoughts? Perhaps the martial song of "The Drum" carried him back to the days of his youth, when marching with Arnold up through the dreary wilds of the Kennebec—or when he stood by Montgomery before the walls of Quebec, and saw him fall at the moment of attack. Again he heard the wild war-cry of Morgan as he rushed at the head of his riflemen into that city; and he once more beheld, in his mind's eye, the discomfiture of the Americans on the plains of Abraham, on the memorable 31st of December, 1775. Or it may be that he saw the bold field of Monmouth rise in the dim past, when his own military fame was at its zenith, and the name of the "gallant young Burr" echoed through the army. As the last trill of Hamilton's song died away, perhaps the future appeared, and he beheld his antagonist lying in the cold embrace of death, his eloquent tongue hushed forever.

On Friday, the 6th of July, Mr. Pendleton, Gen. Hamilton's friend, informed Mr. Van Ness that the circuit being closed, Gen. Hamilton would meet Col. Burr any day after the Sunday following. The seconds arranged upon Wednesday morning, 11th of July, 1804, at 7 o'clock, for the meeting of the parties, on the dueling ground at Hoboken. Beyond Wehawken Bluff, some hundred yards or more this side of the mansion built and now occupied by James G. King, Esq., near the margin of the North river, lies the old dueling ground. It is concealed from the river by dwarf cedars, stunted chestnuts and oaks, and it is at best a gloomy looking place.

A little before 7 o'clock, Burr and his second, Mr. Van Ness, were on the ground, as agreed upon. Burr was a small man, thin but active. His countenance was not remarkable; but his eye, though small, was singularly black, keen and brilliant. His smile, when he did smile, was extraordinarily fascinating—so much so that his enemies gave it the term of disagreeable—a thing of effect.

Probably no man was ever created, more full of self-possession than Burr on all occasions. The parties before the ground, and the parties exchanged salutations! Such are the principles of honor!

Hamilton, in stature, was but a trifle, if any, taller than Burr, of spare make and frame. His features were very regular and intellectual, and his forehead high, broad and massive.

The seconds proceeded at once to make the necessary arrangements. In the meantime the principals stood apart while these proceedings were going on. What were the thoughts of each can be imagined. On the same ground, Aaron Burr had already fought one duel; it was with John B. Church, a political opponent, and near friend of Hamilton. On the same ground, Gen. Hamilton's eldest son, Philip Schuyler Hamilton, had been killed by Mr. Baker.

The seconds measured the distance fixed upon together—ten paces. They then cast lots (coming up a piece of silver) for choice of position, and also which second should give the word to fire. Both chances fell in favor of Mr. Pendleton, Hamilton's second. The pistols were then loaded by the seconds, in the presence of one another, and the parties took their chosen stations.

"Each looked to me, and strain, and plain,
As what they never might see again."

Mr. Pendleton then stepped forward, and explained the rules agreed upon, which were these: "The parties before the ground, and the parties exchanged salutations! Such are the principles of honor! whether they are ready; being answered in the affirmative, he shall say 'present'; after this the parties shall present and fire when they please. If one fires before the other, the opposite second shall say one, two, three, fire—and he shall then fire or lose his fire."

"Gentlemen, are you ready?" said Mr. Pendleton.

"Both bowed in the affirmative."

"Present!"

The parties presented and fired, both pistols going off not far from together, and Hamilton fell mortally wounded. Burr advanced a step or two towards his antagonist, gazed for a moment, and was then hurried away by his second, to the surgery, to prevent, as Mr. Van Ness afterwards said, recognition by those approaching.

Hamilton was taken to the boat and carried over to Mr. Bayard's residence, which stood just below the present White Fort, where he died about 3 o'clock the next day, after having received the sacrament, forgiven his enemies and at peace with the world.

There is no doubt, Hamilton did not intend to fire at Burr the "first time," if he himself accepted being hit; but his pistol did go off, whether at Col. Burr, or from pain in receiving his mortal wound, cannot now be told. The ball passed through the limb of a cedar tree about four feet out of Colonel Burr's range.

Burr left the city two days after, keeping himself concealed in the meantime. He was indicted for murder by the grand jury. He journeyed secretly to South Carolina, where his daughter, the wife of Joseph Alston, Esq., resided, and on the opening of Congress, at Washington, presided as Vice-President in the year 1805, when his term expired. His subsequent career and trial for high treason are matters of history. He intended to revolutionize the Spanish province, as was afterwards done, but never did the last day of serving the Union, as his bitter enemies charged him with. At the conclusion of his memorable trial at Richmond, he left for Europe, a broken down man, destined never again to rise. Even there he was persecuted. Ordered out of England, and finally driven from France to return to New York just at the commencement of his last war, like a tired stag, hunted back to his home, forsaken by all the herd over whom he once lorded.

He returned to his profession, the law—engaged almost solely in chamber practice, and seldom addressed a jury. In cases of disputed titles to property in New York city, he was invariably employed—in some instances changing the ownership of estates of great value. A few of his old friends still cling to him, but he has made no new ones; wrapped up in his stern self-pride he seemed not to care for the coldness of the world. He pursued his legal avocations until within a year or two of his death, and died on Staten Island, in September, 1836, at the age of eighty-one. The last years of his life were passed in comparative comfort, possessing a handsome annuity, and receiving also a pension of about twelve hundred dollars for his services in the revolution.

The reader may judge if, according to the code of honor, there was any apology for Burr in challenging Hamilton; surely there was none for the latter in accepting it. Of the judgment of the world upon Burr, it may be truly said:

"The evil which men do, they often know,
The good is often forfeit with their choice."

Slips of the Pen.

After all, it is with men as with dinners—the plain and simple ones are those we have recourse to the oftener, and of which we tire the least. Creditors and poor relations never call at the right moment.

The love that is led with presents always requires feeding.

Promises go further than performances, on the principle that Hope has as many lives as a cat, whilst Gratitude no sooner crosses our path than it is crushed with as little pity as a black beetle.

Timidity in a man is admired by a woman a great deal more than it is liked.

Scandal is a visitor who never calls without bringing her work with her.

Abuse of women, like the abuse of wine, only falls on the head of him who freely indulges in it.

It is difficult to see any fault in a child, or a book, or a pudding, or any one we love, how is it possible that we should see any in ourselves?

PUGET SOUND HERALD.

STEELACOOM, W. T., FRIDAY, NOV. 18, 1859.

THE SAN JUAN ISLAND QUESTION.

No portion of the citizens of the United States are more deeply interested in the preservation of the most friendly relations with Great Britain than we are, who dwell on the shores of Puget Sound; and to none can it be more welcome to hear and know that Gen. Scott has made such a disposition of the delicate matters entrusted to him as to satisfy the irritated susceptibilities of the British officials of the Island of Vancouver and of British Columbia, and allay the morbid ruffled state of feeling growing out of the occupation of the Island of San Juan by our troops.

We are sincerely glad to witness this favorable turn of affairs, and confidently trust it is but the prelude to a yet more agreeable and important measure: the acknowledgment of the Canal de Haro as the channel determined in the treaty of June 16th, 1846, as the boundary between the United States and the Island of Vancouver.

It is one of the most noxious signs of the times, that party leaders, presses and conventions, can boldly avow and justify such determining influences in the selection of the judicial officers of the land: that is, boldly acknowledge and glorify in the choice of men who should take their seats as Judges with the pre-determination to decide a certain class of cases to suit the political notions of an ultra portion of their party, and in obedience to the "higher law" rather than that written law which they have to swear to follow and be bound by.

THE WEATHER.—It is quite manifest to the "oldest inhabitant," heretofore, that a genuine old-fashioned winter has set in upon us. The Indians say the hair upon animals is very long this fall, thus indicating the approach of an unusually severe winter.

NEWS.—We are indebted to the polite pen of Capt. Geo. Thom, of the corps of Topographical Engineers, for two valuable maps received yesterday. One is a map of Utah Territory, showing the routes connecting it with California and the East, compiled in the Bureau of Topographical Engineers of the War Department.

MURDER AND BURNING.—The British Colonist a week or two since, published an account of a frightful murder and suicide committed at New Westminster, by a Mrs. Crote, wife of one of the Sappers and Miners lately arrived there.

INDEPENDENCE OF THE JUDICIARY.

One of the worst phases of party politics of the present day, the one to be most rebated and dreaded for ulterior effects, is the tendency to select candidates for high judicial stations with distinct and direct reference to their known expressed partisan views touching questions upon which they may have to sit as judges, under oath, to decide according to law and precedent.

It is time for a resolute head to be made against the mischievous heresy, and the countless evils that must as naturally flow from it as decomposition follows death.

Jews in the United States.—This is the golden age, says the New York Evening Post, of the Jews in America. They number some two hundred and fifty thousand, who still adhere to the faith of Abraham.

HOME AGAIN.—Just as we are going to press, the U. S. steamer Massachusetts is coming in with the troops on their return to this port.

A farmer in Maryland recently found a wasp's nest on the roof of his house, and put it, wasps and all, into a sack, intending to throw it into a pond.

A most valuable discovery of diamonds has lately been made at the foot of the Ural Mountains, Russia. One consigned to Mr. R., of Rasthenon, as a specimen, brought the lucky owner the amount of $80,000.

At the army entry into Paris, the English people present were surprised at many things, one of which was the regimental dogs accompanying the hardy warriors, the dogs all decorated and bedizened with laurel wreaths and flowers.

A ray of artificial light travels at the rate of 79,000 leagues in a second of time.

PERSONAL.

Among the passengers by the last Pacific Mail Steamer was Mr. McGill, recently appointed Secretary of Washington Territory. He is accompanied by his wife and an interesting family, who, we hope, will ere long become reconciled to a residence in this country.

Mr. Chas. C. Terry, of Seattle, we are glad to learn, was also a passenger by the same steamer. His safe return is welcomed by all who know him.

Mr. E. R. Geary, Superintendent of Indian Affairs for Oregon and Washington, visited Steelacoom on Friday last, for the purpose of settling the claims of parties in this county who had located on, improved, and were subsequently compelled to abandon the lands now known as the Puyallup Indian Reservation.

Col. Casey and Rev. G. H. Atkinson were passengers in the steamer from Columbia River. The Colonel returned immediately to San Juan, but Mr. Atkinson passed the Sabbath with us; preaching during the day and discoursing on temperance in the evening.

Liouts. Reynolds and McKibbin came up on last Friday morning, in the Wilson G. Hunt, from Semiahmoo. Both received a hearty welcome at the hands of numerous sincere friends.

Last, though not least, among the passengers by the Northerner, is Capt. Jordan, of the Quartermaster's Department. He arrived here on Thursday evening, 10th inst. A brief interview with this gentleman was highly gratifying to us, and more than confirmed the favorable impression previously conceived of him.

SAD CASUALTY.—Mr. W. G. Halsey, of Albany, says the Oregon Statesman, writes to us that on Saturday, the 29th ult., Mr. A. Hackleman, with Messrs. W. Davis and J. J. Davis, living near Albany, Linn county, started on a hunting expedition into the mountains.

Buena Vista, Tennessee, was the scene of a tragedy recently. Some weeks since Mr. John F. Jack, an opulent gentleman of that village, was informed that his daughter, a lovely girl of eighteen years, had been seduced by Dr. Bunch.

Prince Alfred, the midshipman, when aboard ship with his messmates of the same age, or a little older than himself, throws off all restraint. No servant is allowed him, he stands his watch, sleeps in a cot, pays, like every one else, twenty-five cents for his daily mess.

A farmer named Joseph Smith, resident of Kent county, Canada, was killed the latter part of September in a very singular manner. He had ordered his servant girl to shoot any person who might be seen approaching his grapevines.

Seriter, of Detroit, and Tieman, of Chicago, both of whom Phelan has lately beaten at billiards—are to play a match game for $1000 at an early day. Much more sensible, that for the two beaten ones, than to try any more experiments upon Phelan.

LOCAL ITEMS.

We take the following items from the Pioneer and Democrat of last Friday, 11th inst.:— ADMIRALTY DECISION.—Judge McFadden rendered a decision in the case of the steamer Keokuk vs. Northerner, yesterday. The Judge awarded $1500 to the owners of the Northerner for damages sustained by that vessel in the collision, and also ordered half the costs of suit to be taxed against G. A. Meiggs, owner of the Keokuk.

SOIL.—"Eden Farm," formerly the property of Mr. E. D. Warbass, of Cowitz Landing, was recently sold at public auction, and knocked down to the highest bidder, Mr. F. A. Clark, for $2,600—being just about half what it was expected to bring. The farm consists of 320 acres, excellent land, substantial improvements, and admitted to be one of the loveliest locations in the Territory.

The schooner Gen. Harney, Capt. Roeder, arrived here on Saturday last from Bellingham Bay, with 40 tons of coal for this place. The coal being much superior to that heretofore got out, and being now delivered here at $8 per ton, whereas it formerly was $12, many of our citizens have commenced using coal instead of wood, which, at $4 per cord, is said to be far more expensive.

We rejoice to see the price of this coal gradually being reduced to a figure within the means of all, and hope soon to see it afforded at a price still lower than the above. Many of our people will prefer coal to wood, and when satisfied that it costs no more, will gladly exchange one for the other.

THE PRINTER'S APPEAL.

In seasons when our funds are low, Subscribers are provoking slow, A few supplies keep up the flow Of dimes departing rapidly.

Our bonds and due-bills are arrayed, Each seal and signature displayed; The holders vow they must be paid, With threats of "Law in Chancery."

Then to despair we're almost driven— There's precious little use of livin'— When our last copper's rudely riven From hands that held it lovingly.

But larger yet those dues shall grow, When interest's added on below, Lengthen'ing our chin a foot or so, When gazing at them hopelessly.

The prospect darkens—on ye brave Who would our very beards save! Waive, patrons, all your pretensions waive, And pay the printer cheerfully.

Ah! it would yield us pleasure sweet, A few delinquents now to meet, Asking of us a clear receipt, For papers taken regularly.

No description can give an adequate idea of the intense rigor of the six months' winter in the Siberian region. Stones crack with the noise of thunder. In a crowded hut, the breath of the occupants will fall in flakes of snow, like and spirits turn to ice; the snow burns like caustic; if iron touches the flesh, it brings the flesh away with it; the soles of your stockings may be burnt off your feet before you feel the slightest warmth from the fire; linen taken out of boiling water instantly stiffens to the consistency of a wooden board, and heated stones will not prevent the sheets of the bed from freezing.

"She Always made Home Happy." Such was the brief but expressive sentiment which a friend wished us to add to an obituary notice to one "who had gone before." What better tribute could be offered to the memory of the loved and lost? Eloquence with her most lofty eulogy, poetry with her thrilling dirge, could find nothing so sweet, so touching, so suggestive of the virtues of the dead, as those simple words: "She always made home happy."

A wise man endeavors to shine in himself; a fool to outshine others. The first is humbled by the knowledge of his own infirmities; the other lifted up by the discovery of those which he observes in others. The wise man considers what he wants, and the fool what abounds in others. The wise man is happy when he gains his own approbation; and the fool when he recommends himself to the applause of those about him.

A young lady in Delaware has recovered $500 from a gentleman, because the latter had courted her in '54 and '55, promised marriage in '56, and "hit on" to another gal in '57.

A woman in Bangor, Me., has an infant nine weeks old that weighs two pounds and a half. The child weighed just one pound at its birth.

At the Queen's ball in London, recently, the Duchess of Richmond carried $150,000 on her head in the shape of a diamond tiara.

A Rochester journal says that Blondin has realized $1,000 from his last exhibition at Niagara, and that he has probably realized $5,000 this season.

Rev. A. B. Wheeler, of North Bridgewater, Mass., has managed to become involved to the extent of $80,000, and only pays 45 cents on the dollar.

There is a mail carrier at Enfield, N. C., who has carried the mail on horseback, fifty-five miles, twice a week, for forty-five years, missing but one regular day in that time.

Special Notices. Hall's Sarsaparilla Yellow Dock and Iodide of Potass. Prepared from the finest root Jamaica Sarsaparilla and English Iodide of Potass; admirable as a restorative and purifier of the blood, it cures the system of all morbid and impure matter, removes pimples, boils and eruptions from the skin, cures rheumatism and pains of all kinds. All who can afford should use it, as it tends to give them strength and prolong life. Sold by Druggists generally, at $1 per bottle. R. HALL & CO., Proprietors, 105 and 115 Clay St., San Francisco.

Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry. We regard the Wild Cherry tree as one of Nature's own physicians—a sort of Good Samaritan of the Forest—for its medicinal gum has relieved the sufferings and saved the lives of thousands. The Balsam prepared by Dr. Wistar is a pure and perfectly reliable preparation of the real Cherry essence, and it is a remedy by no means "had to take." We speak confidently and proudly in its praise, from having witnessed its renovating influence in consumptive cases, when all other prescriptions had proved of no effect. Sold by all respectable druggists.

Wheaten's Vegetable Food. In removing bile, forcing an appetite, imparting health and tone to the system, and dissipating dyspeptic symptoms, are truly wonderful. Every nervous, debilitated, weak and emaciated person, male or female, should try it at once. One wine-glassful, taken three times each day, before meals; or, if the patient should be a lady or child in a debilitated condition, half the quantity will do until sufficient strength is restored, which will be realized in a very short time, and convince the patient of the truth of the above named happy results, which have gained for these Bitters such a valuable reputation everywhere. Sold in quantities to suit by PARE & WHITE, Sole Agents, 229 Washington st., San Francisco.

MISCELLANEOUS ITEMS.

Spurgeon has got the foundation stone of his new Tabernacle laid. It is to cost $25,000, and to be ready by 1861. Three thousand spectators were present on the occasion, and $5,000 was collected on the spot; one gentleman laying down a check for $5,000.

When Napoleon I. entered Italy, in 1790, he gained six victories in fifteen days, and took one hundred and twenty standards, fifty-five pieces of cannon, and fifteen thousand prisoners. Napoleon III. is by race an Italian, by birth a Dutchman, by school education a German, by military education a Swiss, by political studies an Englishman, and by his crown he is a Frenchman.

The Mayor of a certain town out west proposes to kill half the dogs of his town, and tan their hides with the bark of the oak half.

A Yankee physician, named Bates, from Ashfield, Mass., has established himself and is doing a good business in Hakodadi, Japan.

A party of menagerie showmen have hit upon a plan of getting among the people in Ohio. They follow the rival candidates for Governor—who are canvassing the State; and after the political beasts have exhibited themselves, they try the others.

The Boston Ledger, now discontinued, is reported to have sunk $10,000 in the attempt to establish it.

A fly trap, invented at Berlin, Conn., caught in a dining room in a hotel in Manchester, N. H., 1800 flies in one minute, on a wager, and won the stakes.

A coroner in Arkansas, after empanelling his jury, said: "Now, gentlemen, you are to determine whether the deceased came to his death by accident, by incidence, or by the hand of the incendiary." The verdict was that "The deceased came to his death by accident, in the shape of a bowie-knife."

It is no more than right that men should seize Time by the forelock, for the rude old fellow, sooner or later, pulls all their hair out.

Mrs. Fantaling says: "If it were not intended that women should drive their husbands, why are they put through the bride ceremony."

To find out the number of children in a street, commence beating a bass drum. To find out the number of idle men, start a dog fight.

Within five years in Indiana there have been erected twenty-seven hundred school-houses at an expense of eleven hundred thousand dollars. In the last year, six hundred and fifty school-houses were built at a cost of three hundred thousand dollars. This sum is obtained by a special school-tax that was paid by the people with general cheerfulness.

The most capacious pocket-book on record is the one mentioned by a coroner's jury in Iowa, thus:—"We find the deceased came to his death by a visitation of God, and not by the hands of violence. We find upon the body a pocket-book, containing $2, a check on Fletcher's Bank for $250, and two horses, a wagon and some butter, eggs and feathers."

A navy surgeon, who was very fond of prescribing salt water in cases of sickness among the ship's crew, one day fell overboard, whereupon one of the Jack Tars exclaimed: "Shiver my timbers, Jack! Bear a hand, quick! The doctor has tumbled into his own medicine chest!"

"That's a fine strain," said one gentleman to another, alluding to the tones of a singer at a concert the other evening.

"Yes," said a countryman who sat near, "but if he strains much more he'll bust."

Some one of the "craft" says that: "A brother editor tells us that when he was in prison for libeling a justice of the peace, he was requested by the jailor to give the prison a puff."

We never knew a man disposed to scorn the humble who was not himself a fair object of scorn to the humblest.

Dr. Guyot's Improved Extract of Yellow Dock and Sarsaparilla, put up in quart bottles, contains more of the pure Honduras Sarsaparilla than any other preparation extant, which is chemically combined with the Extract of Yellow Dock and the Sassafras of the day, thus making the remedy more thoroughly efficient than any other Sarsaparilla before the public. At the same time it is perfectly free from all mineral poisons, which cannot be said of any other of the Sarsaparilla compounds. The invalid should beware of mineral and metallic poisons, which enter into and form the active base of most of the Sarsaparilla and Panacea of the day. Guyot's Compound Extract of Yellow Dock and Sarsaparilla does not contain a particle of either substance, as any one can ascertain by applying the necessary tests.

Let all poisonous Sarsaparilla preparations alone, and use Guyot's Improved Extract of Yellow Dock and Sarsaparilla, which is thoroughly efficacious, perfectly harmless, and purely vegetable. All kinds of disease yield to its purgative influence. As a purifier of the blood, and the various skin diseases, it has no equal.

Be sure and get the QUART BOTTLE, and by druggists generally. P. M. & W. H. G. General Agents, Importers and Dealers in all valuable Patent Medicines, 129 Washington street, San Francisco.
