THE SEVEN MINERS FROM IDAHO.

BY R. G. ADAMS, A. M.

There were seven miners attempted to go Down to the States from Idaho;
They wandered across the wilderness stark Till they reached the ruins of old Fort Clark.
No Indian's form, and no tip's smoke,
The awful stillness of nature broke,
By wail lamenting, and by wail
'Round them chirped the prairie birds.
In remotest distance the antelope Branched from sight like young men's hopes,
The fox looked out of his den as they went,
And the wolf howl of followed their scent.
The tall grass sighed like a broken harp
When swayed by the northwest wind so sharp.
The horses portended a fall of snow,
As they journeyed onward from Idaho,
Their human backs on a sea of land,
In a moment might strike a snag, and strand;
But they feared not Nature, though rough her touch,
But all they feared was the human clutch
That seeks for the tail of hair on the crown
And this their thought as they journeyed down
When they came near the sight of the ancient work
An Indian they spied in ravine to left;
But when they had crossed to the opposite bluff
The sight they beheld it was wild enough,
There were fifty lodges emitting smoke;
There were fifty wolf-voices from these broke
And thirty fifty savage, small and large,
Gathered like waves 'round a sinking barge.
About these men that had ventured to go
Down to the States from Idaho,
Each face with the blood of a foe was painted,
Which was scooped from his heart as he died,
And scalp were like bits around them strung,
Where the gray locks shone by the side of the young,
And woman's fair curls which their beauty retained, Still slick and long, though with blood they were stained.
Some swung their tomahawks lightly about,
As to meet the strangers they sallied out
And some were armed with pistols and guns
Which to stay a foe they discharge but once,
And some were equipped with a bow and an arrow,
That could kill a man or could kill a sparrow.
The miners they saw that resistance was vain
And so met them with smiles, though their hearts were In pain,
For a slow death by torture loomed up in their sight,
As a dull, lurid comet sweeps up through the night,
Yet they raised those rude hands with a most friendly shake,
These hands that they dreaded far more than a snake
And the man that was oldest of all the group,
With a courage that never was yet known to droop, Brought him in means of saving their souls,
That had fallen like hurricanes over their path.
At last he remembered the portents of death,
As lovely as infant as ever had smiled;
It was hidden down deep in his pocket's recess,
An infant he never had seen to possess,
A bed that on earth had been dug to out-blow
As he dug in the places of Idaho.
He brought it out, and displayed by signs
That to clasp that babe he had left the mine.
And wandered across the desolate prairie, Fearing no danger, no adversary.
Each savage gazed with a keen, quick glance
On the child with its innocent countenance,
And the hands that were feeling for scalping knife Fell down by their sides as the setting of their life.
The brave lately knit with the forest of hate
At once became calm and serene and sad,
And a council was called to consider the cause, (For such is the course of their customs and laws.)
This father they brought with his pictured papoose,
To act as a plender to hearts still obtuse;
They met in a wigwam, each headman and chief
Was to give his opinion, in oration brief.
With eyes that were closed he should not suspect
What the right might accrue to, or what might reject.
But no speaker there was that could cut his heart loose
From the feeling aroused by the pale-faced papoose.
That picture engraved by stray beam of the sun
Had conquered those savages, every one,
And they suffered those miners in safety to go, Back to their homes from Idaho.

feet, here on ground where the wickiup of the Indian is still standing, a busy mart has sprung into existence in almost the space of a single glance. Everything seems teeming with life and wealth. Homes of comfort, elegance, abound everywhere, whose generous inmates dispense a more open-handed hospitality than it has ever been my fortune to meet in eastern lands, anywhere from the waters of the Penobscot to the Rio Grande.
The object aimed at by eastern capitalists in the construction of the U. P. Railroad and its branches have been three-fold. Ist. To extend the hand of protection and fraternal love across the barren waste of mountain and desert to the young and vigorous nation that has sprung into existence on our western coast.
Nor has this willingness to be bonded together in the brotherhood of a great nation been alone confined to the east. In the hour of the nation's peril the generous and hearty support of the western slope was not asked for in vain. I remember well the thrill of joy which ran through the whole eastern states when the telegraph announced that California, Oregon, Nevada, Colorado, and Idaho had decided to keep step to the music of our national air, and the blood and treasure of the giant West was poured out like water in the defense of the starry flag. [Applause.]
In view of this, then, it was no unmeaning return for the faithful devotion of this young empire, which your enterprise and your industry had so successfully assisted in planting upon the Pacific coast, that the people of the east cordially united with the Government in the munificent donation which has secured to you the early completion of the Central and Union Pacific railways.
I say advisedly that this gigantic enterprise—the most wonderful and, may I add, the most successful ever undertaken by any nation or by any age in the world's history—had its first inception in the desire to tie together with bands of iron the great east and the growing west into one harmonious and national unity.
Nor will I deny that the ever shrewd and calculating Yankee has had an eye, while voicing the millions of national treasure to these great enterprises, to the traffic which this great channel would open, to his manufactured goods in exchange for the precious metals with which your mountains abound.
Nor were these objects I have named, though all-important in themselves, the only aims to be accomplished by the construction of this great national highway. It has been to open a speedier transit for the trade of India, China and Japan, where markets have been accumulating for centuries. Nor should the importance of this traffic be overlooked.
For the trade of the east, commercial ambition has struggled in every age. The ruling power of Europe always held this golden key to the political supremacy of the world.
Greece and Rome shared largely in this trade and it constituted no small portion of their national grandeur. It built up the cities of Italy, Florence, Genoa, Padua, Pisa, Milan, and Venice. After these maritime cities, it enriched the Spanish and Portuguese nations, until from these enterprises add gallantry of the little Dutch Republic carried away the palm of preeminence, so graphically sketched by the pen of our historian, Mr. Motley.
With the trade of the east and the west centered in the British Isles, her merchants have become princes and her traffickers the honorable in the land.
Is it possible to divert this trade from its old, long and tedious channel by ocean? and can it be made to pour its golden stream of wealth through the channel which our national munificence is about to open?
With these problems we might occupy our attention for hours, but I pass to the more immediate objects of interest, viz: the objects aimed at by the company which to-day I have the honor to represent in attempting to build the Idaho, Oregon and Puget Sound branch of the Union Pacific railroad.
Let us look for a moment at the map, and we will suppose the Central and U. P. railways have formed their junction near the north end of Salt Lake. Looking from this point to the northwest is a wide valley at whose head is a very low pass across the Raft river range of mountains, and light grades will carry us over this and down on the western slope to Raft river. Rounding the northern point of the Goose creek mountains we find ourselves on the great plateau of the Snake river plain that reaches from the mouth of Goose creek to Old's ferry. But I need not weary you with an extended description of a country so well known to you all. Suffice it to say that but one mountain barrier crosses our pathway clear to Portland and Puget Sound. Providence has so arranged that the magnificent Columbia has cut its way through the snowy Cascade range and opened an easy route without grades or deep snows to the Pacific ocean. By this route the heavy grades of the Sierra Nevada are entirely avoided as well as the most fearful depth of snows—both great items in the successful operation of railways. Leaving the question of snow out of the consideration, it may not be known to you gentlemen that the engines of the U. P. R. can haul from Salt Lake Basin to Omaha three full laden freight trains which the Central road can deliver to us. So much for the question of grade.
Again: The distance to Portland, at least, is not materially increased, if at all. And in building to the Sound, we are meeting the great important trade of China and India.
The ocean currents and the winds are so ordered that, in the language of the sea-faring men, "the farthest way round is the surest way home." And hence vessels from China and Japan take a northerly course, and make our coast near the straits of San Juan de Fuca —the entrance of Puget Sound. Now could a vessel run down the safe and commodious harbor of Puget Sound, ship her cargo by rail to Chicago, New York, and Boston, and by telegraph, receive returns of sale and the amount placed to her credit in some banking house on Puget Sound—all this accomplished in less time than she could have made the trip along the coast from the straits of San Juan de Fuca to San Francisco. You see, gentlemen, a great object is gained, for you know that time, in the language of the lawyer, has become "the essence" of all modern commercial transactions.
Nor should the important way of freights and traffic be overlooked. I venture to predict that should the construction of this branch be made a fixed fact, that before the cars could reach this region, that the impulse given will have created a way business that would handsomely pay for the running expenses of the trains, and that this business would enormously increase year by year.

In view of this fact, I am confident that the U. P. R. will construct this branch even though they should fail in getting a grant subsidy, which they are asking for. But it must take more time of course. With the Government assistance, I could confidently invite you, gentlemen—two years from the approaching New Year's day—to an excusion over the railway from Monument Point to Puget Sound.
Men have expressed to me some fears lest the U. P. R. K. of California, should build on eastward and form a close connection with the Smoky Hill road from Kansas, as a sort of revenge, perhaps, for the construction of this branch of the U. P. to Oregon. I answer confidently, that I hope so, and further, that the great Northern Pacific railroad will also be built—as it will be soon as needed.
It will be no detriment to the commercial world to have two, and even three, competing lines from ocean to ocean.
If capitalists are willing to risk their money in such investments, I have no fears but that they will pay. And if the anticipations of far seeing men are only half realized, the business capacity of at least two roads in less than five years after one channel is fairly opened.
With all the natural advantages of this route we are now examining you are all familiar, with its freedom from heavy snows, its light grades, and cheapest in operation—I compute you, therefore upon being located not upon the branch leading to the Pacific coast at some out of the way harbor, but you will be astonished to find the commerce of both the old and new continents passing by your doors. For I challenge any man, versed in the geography of this country, to show

Local Matters.

DEATH OF AN OLD CITIZEN.—Mr. P. A. Bern, an old citizen of this town, died last Thursday, after a long and lingering illness.

A NEW RECTORY.—The congregation of St. Luke's Episcopal Church, of this city, has lately purchased the private residence of J. M. Fletcher, Esq., to be occupied as a rectory.

A fine commentary on critics may be illustrated by an incident that befell the editor. We had seen a gentleman who lives not a thousand miles from here, and requested him to take the Register.

BENEFIT.—The benefit of Mrs. P. A. Bern was a success. There was about $300 in currency taken at the door, we should judge.

A man by the name of McClure, an old resident on Salmon Creek died Jan. 7th, '69, on the farm of J. F. Smith, Esq., on Willow Point in this County, of cholera morosa.

CATERWAULING.—The "workmen" lately discharged from this office for not attending to their own business, have laid their grievances before the public through the medium of the Herald.

WHERE, O where is the printer's devil? In the article written by our late workmen, unfortunately one name is omitted, the name of Washburn, Jr., printer's devil.

We have received a bottle of Dr. J. W. Murray's "Lung and Liver Balm." We regard it as one of the best preparations of the human system we know of.

We would call attention to the notice of H. H. Leonard and R. W. Downing. They have cedar posts for sale, also blocking and timber of all kinds.

Rev. W. H. Stov, Rector of Trinity Church, Portland, will officiate in St. Luke's Episcopal Church, in this place, next Sabbath, exchanging pulpits with Rev. Mr. Nicholson.

IN MEMORIAM.

At a meeting of Vancouver Fire Engine Company No. 1, held at the Engine house on Tuesday, Jan. 12, 1869, the following resolutions were adopted—

The Oregon Herald calls the Vancouver Register "Captain Adams' Biography." Some editors are not anxious for the public to know their private history.

PERSONAL.—The telegraphic districts of Washington Territory and British Columbia have been consolidated, with Mr. Lamb, of the latter district, as superintendent.

FALSE ALARM OF FIRE.—Some one on Sunday eve, threw down a stump of an old cigar. Another sung out, "Fire," the bells began to ring, and the churches were soon emptied of their worshippers.

Rev. Dr. McCarty.—A letter, received by a gentleman of this town, states that the venerable Dr. McCarty, for a long time chaplain at this post, lately fell down stairs in a hotel in Washington City and broke his leg.

We are requested by Mr. Maulsby, School Superintendent, to say that he will make a distribution of the county school fund on the second Monday in February, 1869.

We have experienced great difficulty during the past week in obtaining late intelligence.—Seattle Intelligence.

JAPAN is importing a great many guns.—Ez.

Class in grammar—positive, bore, comparative, borer, superlative, Leander Holmes.

Why is McCormick like an angel that wears a starry crown? Ans. Because he struck a lyre and knocked Beriah down.

Why is Hicks, the local of the Oregon Herald, a sheep? Because he is a ewe (U) at the start.

Mr. PEANUTTER is an excellent ground squirrel. He draws his chief support from vegetables.

FIRST PREMIUM GOLD MEDALS AWARDED TO WHEELER & WILSON FAMILY SEWING MACHINE! Over 80 Competitors. AT THE Great Paris Exposition, 1867, Being the highest honors and all the Gold Medals awarded to any Sewing Machine Company at this Exposition.

As a HOLIDAY Present, Nothing will be more appreciated THAN ONE OF THESE MACHINES. America, England and France, now unite in this grand Proclamation: Good news! good news the cable brings, Over all the wire it flies, Wheeler & Wilson's sewing machine Brings back the golden prize. Our "Circle Sew" first struck the note, "John Bull" then caught the sound; It comes from France the other back, Wheeler & Wilson's crown. And now, no more the people doubt, No king it stood the test— The thing is fairly noted about And they will say the best.

W. M. STODDARD, Agent, Cor. Sacramento and Montgomery sts., San Francisco. 1-100.

FLORENCE SEWING MACHINE. CLEAN SWEEP OF THE PREMIUMS IN 1897.

GOLD MEDAL AT AMERICAN INSTITUTE FAIR, NEW YORK. GOLD MEDAL AT FAIR OF THE MECHANICAL ASSOCIATION, LOWELL, MASS. GOLD MEDAL AT MARYLAND INSTITUTE FAIR, BALTIMORE. FIRST PREMIUM AT NEW ENGLAND AGRICULTURAL FAIR, PROVIDENCE, R. I. AND AT THE NEW YORK STATE FAIR, BUFFALO. THE FLORENCE WAS AWARDED A Silver Medal at the Paris Exposition. Silver Medals being the highest on Family Sewing Machines. The Gold Medals were awarded for the Sewing Machine, and the other to the original inventor of Sewing Machines. Reported the Judges at the Great American Institute Fair, New York City, 1897. The whole number of Sewing Machines on exhibition in thirteen of these fairs are entered for competition. Florence, this machine being taken every first prize. The article bearing the number 26, the Florence Sewing Machine is decided to be the best on exhibition. It was also decided to be the best in the class. Its name is known to the judges. The Board of Judges determined to create the standard of excellence in articles on exhibition by deciding to give the first premium to any article unless it was produced by competition. It is the best in the class, and the judges to be of great utility, and equal in appearance to any article known to them, whether in exhibition or not. Its merits are: First—Good materials and thorough workmanship. Second—More compact and sturdy than make the usual improvements in Sewing Machines. Third—The ingenious arrangement for adjusting the thread, during the passage of the stitch, and the gathering up of it in the back of the work. Fourth—The Reverse Feed. Fifth—The fact of new work on the face of the cloth. We therefore decide that it remains the best of the class.

The Committee on Family Sewing Machines. At the numerous Fairs held on the Pacific coast in the last four years, have unanimously decided in favor of the Florence, this machine being taken every first prize. Since the Agency has been established in California. Among the gentlemen who served as judges, we mention Messrs. Thomas Hamilton, George Schumacher, Samuel Blair, J. N. Andrew, Thomas C. McNeil, A. F. Brown, and S. G. Brigham—men well known as being among the first and best mechanics in the State—establishing beyond question the superiority of the Florence as a Family Sewing Machine. If there is a Florence Sewing Machine within one thousand miles of San Francisco that is not giving entire satisfaction, I am informed of it, it will be attended to WITHOUT EXTRA CHARGE or SERVICE of ANY KIND TO THE OWNER. SAMUEL HILL, Agent, 111 Montgomery Street, San Francisco.

MANHOOD.—IN THE YOUNG. And rising generation, the vegetative powers of life are strong, but in a few years how often the pallid hue, the lack-lustre eye, and emaciated form, and the impossibility of application to most effort, show its baneful influence. It soon becomes evident to the observer that some depressing influence is checking the development of the body. Consumption is talked of, and perhaps the youth is removed from school and sent into the country. This is one of the worst movements. Removed from ordinary diversions of the ever-changing scenes of the city, it is too much enfeebled to give rest to the healthful and rural exercise, thoughts are turned inwards upon themselves.

If the patient be a female, the approach of the menses is looked for with anxiety, as the first symptom in which Nature is to show her saving power in diffusing the circulation and relieving the cheek with the bloom of health. Alas! increase of appetite has given by what it feeds on; the energies of the system are prostrated, and the whole economy is deranged. The beautiful and wonderful period in which body and mind undergo so fascinating a change from child to woman, is looked for in vain; the parent's heart bleeds with anxiety, and fancies the grave but waiting for its victim.

HENOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU, for Weakness arising from excesses or early indigestion, attended with the following symptoms: Indisposition to Exertion, Loss of Power, Loss of Memory, Difficulty of Breathing, General Weakness, Horror of Disease, Weak Nerves, Trembling, Dreadful Horror of Death, Night Sweats, Cold Feet, Wakefulness, Dimness of Vision, Languor, Universal Lassitude of the Muscular System, Often Excessive Appetite with Dyspeptic Symptoms, Hot Hands, Flushing of the Body, Dryness of the Skin, Pallid Countenance and eruptions on the Face, Pain in the Back, Heaviness of the Eyelids, Frequent Black Spots Flying before the Eyes, with Temporary Suffusion, and Loss of Sight, Want of Attention, Great Mobbidity, Restlessness, with Horror of Society. Nothing is more desirable to such patients than Solitude, and nothing they more dread, for Fear of themselves; no Repose of Manner, no Earnestness, no Speculation, but a hurried Transition from one question to another. These symptoms if allowed to go on— which this medicine invariably removes—soon follow Loss of Power, Fatigue, and Epileptic Fits, in one of which the patient may expire.

During the superintendence of Dr. Wilson at the Bloomingdale Asylum, this said result occurred to two patients; reason had for a time left them, and both died of epilepsy. They were of both sexes, and about twenty years of age.

What can we say that these excesses are not frequently followed by these fearful diseases, Insanity and Consumption? The records of the Insane Asylums, and the melancholy deaths by Consumption, bear ample witness to the truth of these assertions. In Lunatic Asylums the most melancholy condition is seen. The melancholy is usually sudden and quite dangerous—perhaps fatal or fatal ever exists. Should a sound of the same nature, it is a terrible affliction.

Low relief sends their grief legitimized. What we suggest the existence of the above symptoms, and symptoms, as we mentioned, to offer an antidote of gift of medicine for the removal of the consumption. HENOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU, and the melancholy death by Consumption, bear ample witness to the truth of these assertions. In Lunatic Asylums the most melancholy condition is seen. The melancholy is usually sudden and quite dangerous—perhaps fatal or fatal ever exists. Should a sound of the same nature, it is a terrible affliction.

RECOMMENDATIONS. Mr. H. T. HENOLD, Dear Sir: Your communication regarding our terms of advertising was duly received, and from a perusal I had formed against advertising in your paper. It was not, however, intended. During an accidental meeting in a Drug Store the other evening, my mind was changed on the character of your paper. It was then highly recommended to me by the two physicians present. I concluded please find our rates of advertising. Yours, &c. T. B. STENHOUSE, Editor and Proprietor of Daily and Semi-Weekly TELEGRAPH.
