THE LAND OF THE LIVING.

BY EDNA FETTER.

"Are you still in the land of the living?" inquired a man of an old friend. "No, but I am going there," was the reply.
On, land, so full of breaking hearts,
O'erhang with shadows blinding,
Where half the world the other half
In sheet and shroud are wailing.
We stretch our eyes away—away
Past this domain of sorrow,
And watch the flitting, on the clouds
Of an aerial morrow.

Each year we see the brightest leaves
In Autumn's hands the sweet,
Each year the bird-notes die away
Which rang for us the cheeriest;
Each day the cruel mouth of Death
The life to life is giving,
And yet, we still the fading land
The region of the living!

Oh! aged man, whose silver hair
Is like a ring of glory!
God bless you for that precious truth,
Our hearts repeat the story;
And while we sit in vacant homes
Heaven's golden bells are pealing
Along the darkness of the night,
Making the same reverseing!

—Ed. Phil. Journal.

WE clip the following from the "Editor's Department" of Arthur's Magazine for May, 1866. Many here will recognize the fair writer, and be glad to see her pen descriptions of our scenery reproduced. The whole was taken from a letter addressed to the editor, a "very dear friend" of the writer:

The winds of California are very trying to delicate persons, particularly in the summer season; and my health, never firm, began to fail, and I at last became so ill that my husband obtained change of station. He was relieved from duty in California, and sent to this post in Washington Territory, where we have been living ever since—most delightfully and healthfully. The climate here is charming—cool in summer, mild in winter—with the most perfect autumn the heart of man can conceive. Ever Vancouver is one of the oldest posts on this coast, being originally founded by the Hudson Bay Trading Co., who sold it to our Government. It is a spot of exquisite beauty. The garrison stands on a gently sloping hill, commanding a fine view of the little town of Vancouver, which, with its pointed roofs and many steeples, has quite a foreign aspect, and reminds one of pictures in geographies of little "huddled up" French towns! Not only is the town in view from the garrison, but the river—the majestic Columbia! rolls beautifully in sight, and beyond it we can see the blue hills and tall pines of Oregon! A prospect of wide and varied beauty is always before us, and to me is ever full of delight and comfort. The buildings in the garrison are very primitive, being built of logs, but one story, painted yellow, with green blinds and wide verandas, snug, cozy little homes; in front of the quarters sweeps a fine broad gravel road, or carriage drive, and beyond it lies the parade ground, of noble extent, and studded here and there with magnificent fir trees. Behind the garrison extends an immense forest, running back to the Coast Range. This forest has been to me "a heritage" of peculiar delight; it is intersected with broad roads and cunning winding paths—although I have been able to go but a few miles in it, and it is full of treasures to those, who like myself, love "Mother Nature" and the gifts she brings. The trees in this forest are tall and stately, the ferns exquisite, the mosses rare and beautiful; the birds bright-winged, and the flowers messengers of purity and loveliness! I never saw such an Eden before in my life. Indeed, beautiful as earth is, I did not believe such a spot of perfect beauty existed on her bosom.

My friend and I go out nearly every day. We hear rumors of fierce panthers and treacherous gray wolves, but we see nothing more harmful than the tiny chipmunk, or a little green snake, bright as a string of emeralds. We take with us however, our faithful dogs, and armed with sticks! go forth quite heavily into this forest of beauty—this enchanted realm, which is only divided from the garrison by a road—so that in looking from the back windows, the fresh piney smell of the woods comes in delightfully, and I can distinctly hear the cry of the jay and the "chirp chirp" of the saucy chipmunk!

Looking out from one end of our piazza, Mount Hood—stately and pure! clad in everlasting subliming snows—is fully visible, being but sixty miles distant. At sunset a crimson glory rests upon the mountain, and then its beauty is truly indescribable. Have you seen Bierstadt's "Mount Hood"? But I am sure no mortal hand could do justice to its beauty. I have been several times up the Columbia river with my husband, on his medical inspecting tours. The scenery is very grand. It overpowers the mind. The thought comes forcibly upon the heart—"What hath God wrought!" This is a wonderful country! sublime and majestic in scenery! powerful in resources, it impresses one with the idea of progress and greatness! I like the people. They are sturdy, active, warm hearted—with a breadth of purpose and promptness of action, which delighted and surprised me. I shall always feel grateful to my Heavenly Father, for permitting me to live, for a while at least, upon this beautiful, wonderful coast. It charms and delights me. Were it not for my precious friends at home, I should desire always to live here. I am better and stronger physically, than I have been for years.

Read, Citizens, Read.

The Oregonian of Friday May 25th, in a long article relative to the plot which was framed by the enemies of the government all over this coast, to plunge us into a civil war, has the following in relation to that part of the scheme which contemplated the seizure and destruction of the Vancouver arsenal. We have the authority of Gen. Alford himself for saying that such a plot was formed, and that he was fully prepared to meet it. It involved confederates in this county every one of whom before and since acted with the democratic party. We do not think that every member of the party in this county was made acquainted with the design, but leading men were and were committed to it. Gen. Alford had their names. While the plot was pending Gen. A. said to us "let them come on, we'll hoist them with their own petard." Men of Clarke county read the following, and if you are prepared to sustain men who so guiltily conspired against the peace of the country, vote the democratic ticket. But if you condemn such a conspiracy vote for the union nominees.

FLOR TO SEIZE VANCOUVER ARSENAL.
Before the Presidential election, and while he scheme for a general uprising on election night, was pending, the order in California had a general arrangement by which the State's arms were every where to be seized and if possible, also, to secure the arsenal at Benicia. In Oregon, the order was issued EVERYWHERE as fully as possible, but it was thought that not enough guns were in their possession to cope with the soldiers, and such citizens as Gen. Alford could arm. IT WAS, THEREFORE, DETERMINED TO GET POSSESSION OF THE VANCOUVER ARSENAL. The plot was as follows:

On the west side of the garrison is a row of stables; the armory or store-house for arms is nearly a half mile to the east in an enclosure separated entirely from the garrison and guarded by one sentinel; and the magazine is in the same enclosure but standing by itself, down on the flat toward the river and usually guarded by one sentinel. Within that enclosure there were not beside the sentinels, more than half a dozen men, usually, including Captain Eason, military storekeeper, and his clerks. The plot was to take forty picked men from the Portland encampments under command of one of the Captains of the guard, cross one or two at a time to the Columbia river opposite the Ordnance grounds. When all were ready they were to cross at midnight to the north side of the river, landing opposite the magazine, thence to crawl up to the enclosure of the Ordnance grounds, and wait for the concerted signal. Two trusty men were to go by way of the town to the rear of the stables before mentioned AND FIRE THEM a few minutes after posting of the midnight sentinel, and when the fire should be well under way, to raise the greatest possible alarm, assisted by other confederates within the garrison. This was expected to attract to the fire, very person in or about the Ordnance grounds, except the sentinels. A couple of active men for each, were expected to gag them so as to prevent any outcry. In the first confusion of the alarm the "Captain" with his forty picked men were to spring into the grounds, FORCE THE ARMORY TAKE WHAT ARMS THEY COULD CARRY AND HAUL WITH A TEAM ON HAND, SPIKE OR RENDER UNSERVICEABLE THE REST, BLOW UP THE MAGAZINE with a three minutes fuse, retreat to their flatboat, and go down the river a short distance to a point before selected and ENTRENCH. The object was not really so much to procure arms as to DESTROY. SO THAT GEN. ALFORD COULD NOT ARM THE CITIZENS OF OREGON.

This patriotic and earnestly democratic scheme was frustrated by a member of the order—one of the party—who got possession of the papers, and gave them, with an express of the whole plot, to Captain Porter, the Provost Marshal for Washington Territory, who instantly informed General Alford. A confederate at Vancouver informed the order here that their plot was known and preparations adopted at the garrison to defeat it. The expedition was therefore not undertaken.

For the strict truth of these statements, we can furnish affidavits of responsible parties. The south-bound conspirators may deny—they will do so, for they are sworn to it—but the facts are grounded on the testimony of competent and reliable witnesses.

(From the Albany Journal.)
Traitors In Conclave—Leading Democrats Known Members of a Treasonable Organization.

THE PROOF.
ALBANY, May 16, 1866.

Ed. Albany Journal—Sir: It is with deep feelings of duty that I write to myself, my country and my God, that I pen these lines for publication. I have been frequently inquired of to know the reason why I left the so-called Democratic party; and that all may know my reasons, I here solemnly declare that I left the party because I became convinced by proof undeniable that its leaders were men who are in favor of the South and enemies to the Government. They say this is not so. I say that I know it to be so. I have kept the means of my knowledge to myself, but I can keep it no longer; and though it is a heavy task, I feel it to be my duty to let the world know the facts I shall state. I have been to hear several of their candidates speak, who profess great love for their country, which is false. I was in one of their secret meetings in N. H. Cranor and George R. Helm's office, in this town. I was foolish enough to be decoyed into that meeting by men whom I thought honest, and friends of our Government, but I was sadly deceived. They have now brought out as a candidate for the Legislature one of their "officers," who held secret meetings to plan and plot against the Government—George R. Helm—an officer of the meeting that I attended.—Other leading Democrats were there officiating. I cannot say certain what name the organization went by, but I do know that the object of said organization (I will here say that I do not feel bound by any oath that may have been given, when that oath would bind me to hold my peace and let traitors destroy my country. I have weighed well this matter,) was to destroy our country, for they did then instruct me to resist the draft, and if I should be drafted, how to let their friends of the rebel army know that I was their friend, so that I need not fear them or they me. To make me feel safe and believe that the South could never be whipped, they said that the Northern armies were composed of men who would betray their country. They cited me to some battles where whole regiments of Federal soldiers had been taken prisoners by a few rebels, and said it was done by Northern men giving the rebels a secret sign, which they showed me how to give. I have said the object of this organization was to destroy our country. Is it not true? when these very men who now profess to love their country, were, during the war, here in Oregon, holding secret meetings to learn men how to betray their country! What hypocrisy! I must do my duty. Now as to the signs; I do not know that I need try to give them all, as I was never instructed in giving them but once. Suffice it, for the present, to say, that they have signs by which they recognize each other. They drop pieces of paper upon which are written certain characters on the side walk, and other public places, to give an alarm and be ready for any emergency.—When in the army they are to bite off their cartridges, let the ball fall to the ground, and give their ram-rod a certain flourish; then ram down the powder without the ball, then hold their gun across the left wrist so that their friends may know who they are. When I say their friends I mean the rebel army, for loyal men would not understand their signs. Such are the men who are running for office on the Democratic ticket, professing love for their country. Oh! what love! I make these statements in full view of the responsibility I incur, believing that some honest Democrats will see with whom they are associating, and for whom they are about to cast their votes. For further particulars call on me in Albany.

S. S. MARKHAM.

The following occurred within gun-shot of Madison, Wis:

Adam Smith is an old settler, although not a very old man. He is a farmer, but also keeps tavern, and is postmaster for the district. A short time ago he received a letter in his office addressed "Hon. A. Smith." This letter, it appears, had been lying in his office some time when a party of bloods happened to call in to have a chat with Adam and take a little refreshment. While sitting there a woman came in and inquired for a letter, which Adam handed to her after looking over his pile of letters, and he came across the letter above named, for which he could not find an owner. He took the letter in his hand, and leaning over his bar said, "Look here! I reckon I have lived in this neighborhood pretty nearly twenty years, and I do think I know every man and woman in this 'ere district, especially of the name of Smith, but I'll be switched if I can find a man by the name of Hon. A. Smith." One of the young gentlemen said, "Let me look at that letter, Adam," and Adam handed it to him. After looking at it he said, "Adam, were you not a member of Assembly a short time since?" Adam replied, "Yes." Whereupon Mr. P.—said, "Why Adam, this letter belongs to you, and means Honorable A. Smith, of course." Adam at first seemed to be entirely taken aback, but recovering himself said, "Gentlemen, what will you take? But hang a man who does not know enough to write a man's name in full!"

THE California Puck tells a long story in the following lines:

"Since then, Jim said, then grant's this boon,
Pray let us be united soon!"
Says she, "I'd be delighted!"
Then with a twinkle in her eye,
"I've always thought that you and I
Had better be you-an'-I-ied."

The question, does getting drunk ever advance one's happiness? would seem to be put at rest by the Irishman who went courting when drunk, and was asked what pleasure he found in whiskey? "O, Nelly! it's a trate intirely to see two of your swate purty faces instead of one."

GEN. GRANT AND THE PRESIDENT.—The Galesia (Illinois) Daily Gazette, of March the 14th, notices the nomination of Gen. Grant for the Presidency by a Republican meeting in Rochester, New York. It says that Gen. Grant is a soldier and not a politician, that he has taken no part with either Congress or the President as against the other, and that his opinions must be gathered from his official acts. The Gazette then adds, with an emphasis which attracts some attention from the fact that Galecia is the home of Gen. Grant:

We know all his hopes and sympathies are with the great and patriotic Union party of this country. In feeling and sentiment he is thoroughly identified with the millions of loyal people who, in the long years of war and carnage, and blood, gave their hearts, their blood, and their treasures to our country.

He has neither sympathy nor toleration for any party, nor any set of men who were against the country in its terrible time of trial and peril and danger through which it has safely passed.

With no ambition but to serve the best interests of his country, guided by the loftiest patriotism, looking to a regenerated nation, now resting upon the basis of universal liberty, all loyal and good men can turn to him as their reliance and hope. If the good of the nation demand it there can be no doubt that he will, at the proper time, respond to the unanimous voice of his loyal countrymen, and permit them to rally under his banner, which will prove no less victorious in peace than it was when the storm-cloud war hung over it.

TRUTH VINDICATED.—The address of the Union State Central Committee of Pennsylvania promulgates the following truth:

The oft repeated and well established truth of history has again been vindicated. No man, in any country, can take sides against his Government when engaged in war, whether foreign or domestic, and retain the confidence and respect of his fellow-citizens when the termination of that war. And such is the unavoidable fate of parties. Either the party which antagonizes the Government during the war must go down, or the nation must perish. Our nation is too young to die. Those who opposed our armies in the field of battle have been defeated. The party whose leaders opposed the prosecution of our war for national existence has been beaten in the ballot box. Our people have just given another of the highest proofs of the fact that "man is capable of self government." The people at the ballot box have declared their adherence to the principles which were made triumphant by the skill and bravery of American officers, soldiers and seamen since the storm of battle. Let all good Union men continue to be faithful and true to the cause of their country, and all will be well. The nation, purified by the fiery ordeal through which it has lately passed, will start upon a new era of progress. The enemies of the government will everywhere respect and fear our greatness and power, and the downtrodden and oppressed of every clime will seek and find an asylum in our midst.

PACIFIC RAILROAD.—A Washington dispatch of April 21st says:

Quartermaster General Meigs has written a letter urging the immediate construction of the Northern Pacific Railroad, and showing that the vast saving in expense to the government in the transportation of troops and supplies will amply compensate the Government for the aid asked by the company. General Grant has placed the following indorsement upon it:

HEADQUARTERS ARMY OF THE UNITED STATES, WASHINGTON, April 24th.
The construction of a railroad by the proposed route would be of very great advantage to the Government, particularly by saving in the cost of transportation to supply troops whose presence in the country through which it is proposed to pass is made necessary by the great amount of immigration to the gold-bearing regions of the Rocky Mountains. In my opinion the United States will receive an additional benefit by the construction of this road, by the settlement it would induce on the line of the road, and consequently the less number of troops necessary to secure order and safety, and for these benefits should be compensated by the General Government beyond the grant of land already awarded by Congress. I would merely give it as my opinion that the enterprise of constructing the Northern Pacific Railroad is one well worth fostering by the General Government, and such aid could well be afforded as would insure the prosecution of the work.
U. S. GRANT, Lieut. General.

An Irishman fell in love with a lady, but she, instead of reciprocating his affections, fell in love with another man and married him, which caused him to exclaim in the fulness of his heart: "Och, would that you had been born twins, so that I could have had half of you."

WHAT singular creatures girls are. Offer one of them good wages to work for you, and then ten chances to one if the old woman can spare one of her girls. But just propose matrimony, and see if they don't jump at the chance of working a lifetime for their victuals and clothes.

"Sir, you have broken your promise," said one gentleman to another. "Oh, never mind, I can make another just as good."
