THE OLD FARMHOUSE.
At the foot of the hill, near the old red mill,
In a quiet shady spot,
Just peeping through, half hid from view, Stands a little moss-grown cot,
And straggling through at the open door,
The sunbeams play on the matted floor.
The easy chair, of patched with care,
Is placed by the old heart-stone;
With winking gables, in the old fire-place,
The evergreen evergreen,
And the picture hangs on the whitened wall And the old clock ticks in the cottage hall.
More lovely still, the windows all,
The flowered curtains, While amidst the leaves, on the moss-grown arched,
The marble builds her nest.
And all day long the summer breeze Is whispering to the budding trees.
Over the door, all covered o'er With a mass of dark green bays, Lays a smothered, whose worth is told,
In the events of other days;
And the powder-bush, and the hunter's horn, Have hung beside it for many a morn.
For years have fled, with a noiseless tread, Like fairy dreams away,
And left in their flight, all shorn of their might,
A father—old and gray;
And the soft wind plays with his snow-white hair,
As the old man sleeps in the easy chair.

Tragedy of a Poor Girl's Life.
We find the annered melancholy story in the St. Louis Republican. We have never read anything more impressively sad or more beautifully related:
On Thursday night a respectable young girl, named Annie Durham, terminated her life by inflicting a fearful gash in her throat with a razor. The deceased was about twenty-four years of age, and had resided in the city about three years. She was a sewing girl by occupation, and maintained a struggling existence by incessant labor. Sometimes work was done by her mother, and she was not small she managed to support herself decently.
But frequently there was no work to be had, and she was compelled to accept the charitable assistance of the few friends she had in the city, repaying them whenever a favorable opportunity enabled her to do so.
For the last two years she has lived at the house of Mrs. Manning, 1235 Collins street, and with exception of this lady and the family of George F. Adams, at whose house the fatal act was committed, she seems to have had but few acquaintances or friends in the city.
Within the past few weeks her health had been bad, and work once more became scarce.
As a necessary consequence to this state of things, poor Annie became despondent and heart-broken. Since her arrival in this great, rich city, life had been a toilsome struggle to her, and she was almost weary of it.
Some days ago she went to Adams, and told him her troubles, complaining of her ill health and her inability to procure work.
Adams, who is a gentleman of kind heart, told her to come to his house and stay until she obtained work. Annie accepted the invitation, but it was evident to Adams that she was not at ease. She had a proud, independent spirit, and it wounded her to accept benefits from comparative strangers.
For the first few days she remained in Adams' house, and it was evident despondent, and she was brooding over her condition, and she was brooding over the desperate design of destroying her life. One she asked Mrs.
Adams for some laudanum, complaining of headache, but through fear of some evil design it was not given her. But the determination to commit suicide had taken hold in the desperate brain of this unhappy girl, and on Thursday night, it is not known what hour she consummated the act with a desperate resolve and in a manner so horrible as to render its narration an unpleasant task.
She slept in a room on the third story, and in the bed with Miss S. Roderick, also living in the same house. On Thursday night, when Miss Roderick entered the room for the purpose of retiring, she found Annie Durham in bed. Some few words passed between them, but there was nothing in the manner or the appearance of the deceased calculated to attract attention. The light was extinguished and silence reigned in the apartment. Adams and his wife were out at some social gathering, and did return until a late hour.
The room immediately adjoining the girls' apartment was occupied by Parker, but neither that gentleman nor any of the other occupants of the house heard any noise during the night. Yet what a scene of horror was transacted while they slumbered peacefully. The poor girl ended her life in the darkness. By some means, probably during the preceding day, she had obtained possession of an old razor belonging to the proprietor of the house.
Waiting until her companion was asleep and the house still, she seems to have addressed herself to the fearful deed. Turning her face to the wall, and grasping the razor in the right hand, she dragged the blade across her throat with terrible determination, and force, cutting at the carotid artery and jugular vein, leaving a gaping and fearful wound two or three inches deep and five or six inches in length. The stream of blood spurted out against the wall as if thrown from a syringe, and the crimson fluid saturated sheets and bedding. Death must have been almost instantaneous. There was no struggle, no noise made—not even a suppressed groan indicated the awful tragedy.
The soft splash of the falling blood was the only sound, and the world-wearied sewing girl was at rest forever.
In the morning Sarah Roderick awoke early, and, having to light the fire, got up and dressed without lighting a candle, and went down stairs without having learned the scene which had transpired while she was asleep. Later in the morning, the absence of Annie from the breakfast table caused inquiry to be made, when the horrible facts of the suicide were developed, and the scene which ensued in the household was a scene of the imagination of the deceased. It appears that the deceased was a native of the Isle of Man, and first emigrated to Canada, where it is said she has a brother living, and subsequently came westward, arriving in this city about three years ago.

The jury returned a verdict in accordance with the facts above given.
There is something impressively touching and melancholy in the circumstances of this girl's death. It was shown on the inquest that her character was unimpaired; that she was ever ready to labor earnestly for her living, and much wearily effort that she surrendered her young soul to despair. In extension of her crime we cannot but remember that, as far as earning a living was concerned—young, pretty and intelligent—she needed but one step in a city like this to be removed from all fear of destitution. But rather than follow the path of dishonor, she chose the nobler one of death. The face of the deceased was worn and thin, and with the pallor of death, streaked with blood, presented an appearance calculated to haunt the memory with an abiding and vivid impression. The hand which had grasped the razor retained in the rigidity of death a crooked position, and the pallid fingers seemed pointing to the ghastly rent in the throat.

SKELTON LEAVES.—Many of our readers who have admired the exquisite tracery of leaf structure displayed in the decouped skeleton of plants may be glad to know how to make such skeletons for themselves. The following method has been communicated to the Botanical Society Edinburgh by Dr. G.
Dickson. A solution of caustic soda is made dissolving three ounces of washing soda in two pints of boiling water, and adding one and a half ounces of quick lime, previously sieved; boil for ten minutes, decant the clear solution and bring it to a boil. During the boiling add the leaves and stir, and with some time—say an hour—occasionally adding hot water to supply the place of that lost by evaporation. Take out a leaf, put it in a vessel of water, and rub it between the fingers under the water. If the epidermis and parenchyma separate easily, the rest of the leaves may be removed from the solution and treated in the same way; but if not, then the boiling must be continued for some time longer. To bleach the skeletons mix about a drachm of chloride of lime with a pint of water, adding chloride of lime to liberate the chlorine.
Steep the leaves in this until they are whitened (about ten minutes), taking care not to let them stay in too long, otherwise they are apt to become brittle. Put them into clean water and float them out on pieces of paper. Lastly, remove them from the paper before they are quite dry, and place them in a book or botanical press.

FIVE DOLLARS A MINUTE.—The audience which listened to the late course of lectures delivered in this city by Professor Agassiz of the Natural History of Brazil, paid over five dollars a minute, and the Professor was occupied in lecturing. That is to say he was paid five hundred dollars for each lecture, or three thousand dollars for the course of six lectures. The time occupied for each lecture was about one hour and forty minutes and he thus received five dollars for each minute he spoke. This was what the association for the advancement of science paid him.
But, as the association made a handsome surplus, the audience have paid considerably more than that sum. And yet, each lecture was reported in the daily papers, and sold for four cents each. So those who did not attend, but bought and read the lecture in the newspapers, can see how much the knowledge and entertainment they each secured for four cents cost originally, apart from the printer's expense.

MARRIAGE OF AN INDIAN CHIEF TO A WHITE WOMAN.—Hole-in-the-day, the celebrated Indian Chief, has taken a new wife, this time varying the programme by selecting a white woman as his mate. Mr. and Mrs. Hole-in-the-day at present stopping at the Merchant's Hotel.
Mrs. H. we understand, was a domestic employed in the laundry department at the hotel in Washington where Hole-in-the-day his suite were putting up during their recent treaty conference. His Chippeway Highness saw the young lady in question, who was comely in person, and bethought himself she would make a fine addition to his harem. So he proposed and without much ado or formality was married, after the manner of Christians.

Mrs. Hole in the day, is a young lady of modest and intelligent appearance. Her royal husband, we understand, does not design to take her to Crow Wing, to his harem of half dozen or more Indian wives. That would not be pleasant for the last Mrs. H. If designs living at St. Cloud, in the style and manner "white folks."
He is abundantly able to do this, as he is a man of great wealth—having a large income of annuities from the Government, and a large farm well stocked with horses, cows etc., besides his reservation of a mile square at Crow Wing. Hole-in-the-day is an Indian of no ordinary kind. He is the smartest man in his tribe, and has long been desirous of living after the style and manner of his pale-faced brethren. His ambition can now be gratified.—St. Paul, (Minnesota), Pioneer.

THINGS TO BE UNLEARNED.—Not being historically true, the searchers after truth now tell us, let the story of Pocahontas and her baptism was the invention of the artist, and not at all a matter of fact; 2d, that the story of William Tell as narrated and dramatised, is a fiction; 3d, that Nero and the whole jolly good fellows instead of the monsters they were represented to us; and finally, that the story of the gathering of savages and English Quakers under the big tree at Shackamaxon Pa. in the far famed Wm. Penn Treaty, is simply the invention of Benjamin west. Who first gave it to the world on canvas.

A PITCH LAKE.—It is announced that the Pitch Lake of the island of Trinidad is one or two hundred acres in extent, and consists of a penetrable, but tenacious pitch, of uncertain depth, but tenacious for any kind of excavation, and yet not hard enough to sustain excavation. The pitch is mined out and shipped in large quantities to Europe, but closer over the chasms as fast as made, and the supply appears inexhaustible.

A Wife Commences Suit against her Husband and his Business Partner.
A proceeding somewhat unusual in legal matters was yesterday instituted in the Circuit Court, and which, if successfully prosecuted, may open a new field for litigation.
The suit is brought by a wife against her husband, not for divorce, as is frequently the case, but for the means of subsistence and support. The parties are Sarah W. R. Vinton, complainant, and Otis F. Vinton and Joshua A. Brigham, defendants. The petitioner, in the introductory part of her bill, states that she was married to the defendant Vinton in the year 1851, and that she has invariably and all times conducted herself in a proper and discreet manner, as becomes a faithful and exemplary wife. Such conduct, however, if the allegation of the bill may be believed, was not properly appreciated by her husband, and, instead of a reciprocal feeling of affection and kindness, she received only neglect, coldness and disdain. The difference between the parties seems to have arisen during the past year, and the wife charges that her husband's conduct has been outrageous that he would not suffer her to speak to him on the most ordinary topics of conversation. The statement is also made that Vinton has failed to supply her with the necessaries of life, and that she has been obliged to run in debt for those articles of necessary and suitable and proper for a lady in her position in life. The cause of the neglect appears to be, as is frequently the case, the undue influence of one Mrs. Jane Brigham, the reputed wife of the other defendant and a partner in business with her husband.

It is charged that for a long time he has been the constant companion of Mrs. Brigham, and that both have by look and conduct exhibited the greatest hatred and dislike of the complainant. So completely under the control of Mrs. Brigham has the complainant's husband become that he has not spoken to the petitioner for more than three months.
It is also averred that he is in the habit of spending more than half of his time in the exclusive company and society of Mrs. Brigham in her private apartments, at her residence, in an improper, scandalous and illicit manner. The petitioner alleges that the complainant left her and told her that he was going to leave the State to avoid supporting her.
It is claimed that the defendant Vinton is worth something like about $4,000, and that he is in partnership with the remaining defendant, Josiah A. Brigham.

The averment is made that said Brigham is trying to secure the control of the business and of the reason readily discharged, the bookkeeper of the concern on the plea that the business would not warrant them in keeping one. The complainant avers that her husband is now at the Hyde Park house, and she charged, upon information and belief, that he is about to depart from the State in company with said Brigham and wife for the purpose of abandoning her. Complainant thereupon asks the court for a writ of exceat, and the defendant, Josiah A. Brigham, departing out of the State; also for a writ of injunction to restrain the defendant from disposing of or using any of the estate of said Vinton.

Both the writs prayed for in the bill were issued, the complainant furnishing the necessary bonds.
BOOK MAKING.—The New York Times says The literary activity in this country at the present time is remarkable. We saw, the other day, in the private office of one of our prominent book publishers, three towering piles of manuscript volumes which had been forwarded to the house within the course of a fortnight. When it is considered that we have more than twenty publishing houses of prominence in this city, and that each of them books are published, or can be published. This is hard on the poor writers but were it otherwise it would be harder still on the poor readers. We may remark, also, that the activity of magazine writers is no less remarkable than that of book writers. We are informed by the editor of one of our popular magazines that he receives from two hundred and eighty to three hundred contributions every month, while the limit of his magazine prevents his using more than a dozen out of the whole. We are almost afraid to say—when we consider what may be the result of our remark—that the magazine editor referred to complains of the real scarcity of good poems and stories. Most that are sent to him are, in his opinion, atrociously bad—though of course their authors would not agree in this judgement. But we suspect he is right.

A MODERN JOSEPH.—A singular love affair has recently occurred in Portland, Maine, which, in a mild way, is not wholly unlike the wooing between Venus and Adonis. A lady of very superior personal attractions, and the wife of a man of means, had the misfortune to fall in love with a young man who is the soul of honor and very good looking at the same time. The woman was so carried away by her unlawful passions as to almost wholly disregard the laws of propriety. She constantly placed herself in his way, gave him the most tender and lingering looks, but all to no purpose. Finally she secured a presentation to the object of her infatuation. It availed nothing, however, as the young man was governed by the most correct principles. Her advances failed to meet with the faintest response. His coolness only seemed to increase her ardor, and she fairly haunted him. The husband of the infatuated lady was at last made aware of the position of affairs. He loved the woman devotedly, and instead of treating her as she had well deserved, set about to win his wife from her singular attachment. Separation was the only remedy that suggested itself.
He could not well leave the city. The man might be induced to, though he was well situated. Overtures were made, and the result was that the good looking and honest chap departed for parts unknown, taking with him it is said, $1,000 in greenbacks as a reconpense for venting. So much for a graceful figure and manly face.

Heartless Depravity—A Cure Case.
The S. F. Times relates the following case of heartless depravity:
A well known clergyman, resided here, recently received a letter from a lady living in the State of New York, requesting information and advice under the following circumstances: Some months ago, a man of gentlemanly appearance and prepossessing manners, made the acquaintance of her daughter and the friendship thus formed ripened into an intimacy which resulted in his becoming recognized as the betrothed husband of the young lady. He came from San Francisco on business connected with mining operations and had obtained the position he held in the family on his representation that he was unmarried. Alleging business difficulties as reasons for not exposing his fiancée, he left the East to return to California. But assured her mother and herself that he would not be long absent, and in a few months would be in a position to fulfill his engagement. He left, and for some time kept up a regular correspondence with his betrothed, his letters breathing a spirit of loyalty and devotion that enchained her confidence. But as time passed on, and first one cause of delay, then another, appeared in his letters, the young lady grew very uneasy; so uneasy that her mother became convinced that her anxiety was due to something of greater importance than the procrastination of her lover.
Taking a favorable opportunity, she questioned her, and then, amid tears, of shame and humiliation, the fatal truth was elicited, that she had committed herself blindly in her honor, and had been betrayed. From the time she learned her weakness, the poor girl seemed to lose half her life, and all her hope, and her mother writes that her condition was critical in the extreme for added to the mental afflic-tion under which she labored, the physical debilitation of her error was exposed, and her constitution was completely undermined by incessant anxiety and self-reproach.
Not knowing where to turn for succor in this emergency, and fearing the worst, the poor lady wrote for information as to the character and social status of her daughter's false lover, and the aid of the detective pri-vies having been enlisted, an investigation has been made resulting in the discovery that the scoundrel who is answerable for so much misery and pain, is a married man, and has a wife and family residing in this State, having left some time ago, and if proper steps are not speedily taken, it is quite possible that he may seek to escape the consequences of one villainy by committing another, and condone the offense he has committed against a young and confiding girl, by deserting the wife who has brought up his children at her knees. The case altogether is one of those terrible ones in which, whatever the result one heavy sin must remain irrevocable, and one life be rendered desolate. Such deliberate treachery should be punished as society alone can punish, by ostracising the offender from all respectable circles.

MINCHAUENIEM.—Some ancient books of travel in China have lately been published in London. They contain very curious narratives. Friar Oderic, who spent three years (from 1280 to 1281) in Northern China, says the Khan's palace in Pekin was of vast size and splendor, supported by twenty four columns of gold, and that its walls were hung with red leather said to be the skins of the best wild beasts in the world. In the middle of the palace was a great jar, more than two feet high, and entirely formed of precious stones called mardacas, and so fine that it was said to be worth more than four towns.
It was hooped around with gold, and fringed with a network of pearls. Outside from the palace court filled with drink, and beside it were many golden goblets for the use of those who thirsted. "When the great lord," he continues, "wishes to make an entertainment, he has fourteen thousand barons, with hundreds on their heads, waiting upon him at the banquet, and every one of them has a coat on his back such that the pearls on it alone are worth some fifteen thousand florins. In short, the court is truly magnificent, and the most perfectly ordered that there is in the world, with barons, gentlemen, servants, secretaries, Christians, Turks, and idolaters, all receiving from the king what they need. In the Khan's ser-aglio were houses with two lanes double headed ostriches, giants twenty feet high, and "women all hairy with long grey hair." Ibu Batuta, who visited the Celestial Empire twenty years later, describes a Chinese magician as follows: "He took a woolen ball with several holes in it, through which long things were passed, and laying hold of one of them, slung it into the air. It went so high that he lost sight of it altogether. There now remained only a little of the string, a thing in the conjurer's hand, and he desired one of the boys who assisted him to lay hold of it and mount. He did so, climbing by the string, and we lost sight of him also. The conjurer then called to him three times, but getting no answer, he snatched up a knife, as if in a great rage, laid hold of the string, and disappeared also. By and by he threw down one of the boy's hands, then a foot, then the other hand and the other foot, then the trunk and last of all, the head. Then he came down himself, and puffing and panting, and with his clothes all bloody; but presently he took the lad's limbs, laid them together in their places, and gave a kick, when, presto, there was the boy, who had got up and stood before him. All this astonished me beyond measure, and I had an attack of palpitation like that which overcame me once before, in the presence of the Sultan of India, when he showed me something of the same kind."

A SENSE OF DUTY.—A widower of three months, over 50 years of age, wished to marry a young lady of 24, but being a member of the church, wished the approbation of the members, and called on the deacon. He told the deacon that he was going to marry from a sense of duty—that having property he felt he ought to give some one a home. The deacon thought the lady in question had a good home already, and if that was his object simply, he had better marry Aunt L., who was one poor and infirm, with a family of children on her hands. The widower left without being able to see the matter in that light.

Robert Bonner of Ledger fame, is about to build a splendid marble building at the corner of William and Spruce streets, New York.
Ten years ago Bonner had to borrow money to pay his advertising.
One hundred and ninety-one barbers in Boston, and eighty-five in the neighboring towns have petitioned the Legislature to pass a law compelling the closing of barber shops throughout the State on Sunday.
During a severe gale on the British coast a steamship lost one of her paddle-wheels, and in order to make the other work, the stock of coal running short, four hundred pigs were burned to keep up the fire.

A boy 15 years old, named Thomas P. O-hill, while coming out of the Boylston schoolyard at Boston, April 7th, was struck in the temple by a portion of the facade which a violent gust of wind blew down, and was instantly killed.
Miss Ella of Hamilton county, Indiana, after several days of horrible suffering from hydrophobia, gradually became more tranquil under the "bromide of potassium" treatment of her physicians, and is now reported to be convalescent.

A society of vegetarians has been organized in Dayton, Ohio, the Director being a woman, who avers that she has lived solely on vegetable diet for fifteen years. A correspondent who has seen her says, indeed, it is quite easy to believe it when one takes a look at her.
A St. John paper calls attention to the fact, that by cutting the Bay of Vera Cruz (no very arduous or costly undertaking), the passage between New York and Alaska would be shortened about 400 miles, saving the circumnavigation of the whole coast of Nova Scotia.

The New York Court House has cost, up to this date, $2,700,000, and the Board of Superiority have recently made a new appropriation of $1,000,000, to complete it. The original estimates for this structure were only $250,000. Ornamental architecture is evidently one of the most expensive of municipal luxuries.
A member of the Philadelphia Select Council lately offered a resolution instructing the Commissioners on City Property to have "a fountain in each square, surrounded with a lake, covering a half acre or more, being eight or ten inches in depth, which would form an area for such natant exercises as boys delight in.

A correspondent tells the following story of one of the farmers in the vicinity of Culpepper whose possessions lay in a district where both brick and marble were used.
The old chap one day, while surveying carefully the strata in the soil where his fence once stood, remarked with much feeling, "I haint took no sides in this here rebellion, but I be doggonned if sides haint took me."
A good story is told of an old gentleman who went to Trinity Church, Boston, lately, while the Rev. Mr. Gauslaud was repeating the service to deaf mutes, by signs, etc. After watching the proceedings for a few moments, he arose from his seat, took his hat and started for the door, and, as he passed out, shook his head reproachfully at the deacon and muttered, "I can't stand them ritual tantrums, no how."
CHANGING THEIR FOR.—A distinguished Alabamian recently said: "We have given way entirely too long to the rule of the disunionists; we have been driven to the wall by their policy, and wrecked of every vestige dear to us; and still they persist in the right and they claim to dictate to us, and even to the General Government. If we had stood firm 1860, and not have yielded to the assumed right of precipitating us into rebellion, we would have been able to save Alabama from the unfortunate net of secession."

J. H. WILSON, St. Helens.

THE RESULT.

The result of the election in this County has taken everybody by surprise. Candor compels us to state that the large majorities by which some of the Union Candidates are elected is not a criterion showing the political complexion of our people.

Now that the contest is over we trust, and our people have a right to expect, from the officers elect to enter upon the discharge of their duties with zeal and fidelity. Especially should our County Commissioners as soon as possible endeavor to secure some retrenchment in our expenditures and also to examine the financial condition of the county and make a full exhibit of the same to the people.

MEETING OF TRUSTEES OF THE VANCOUVER SEMINARY.

Pursuant to adjournment the Trustees of Vancouver Seminary met June 6th, 1867, at the residence of W. D. Nichols. The meeting was organized by electing S. R. Whipple temporary Chairman, and W. D. Nichols Secretary.

Cavalry will proceed by the way of Umatilla, Oregon, to Miller's Ranch and then take the old stage road to the junction of that road with Canyon City and Boise road. He will establish a temporary camp near Washoe ferry on Snake river and await orders from General Crook, commanding the district of Owyhee.

ARMY INTELLIGENCE.

Captain Darragh with his detachment of Indian scouts, will proceed to Camp C. F. Smith, Oregon, by the way of Harney Lake and report to General Crook for further orders.

ALL SORTS OF PARAGRAPHS.

THE MORTALITY OF BACHELORS.—Dr. Stark, of the Scottish Register Office, has compared the vital statistics of married and unmarried men, and announces that the mean age of the married at death is 69.2 years, while that of bachelors is only 47.7—excluding those who die before twenty-five in both classes. We do not wish to set everybody against the poor bachelors, says the Scientific American, but this point seems to demand the attention of life insurance companies—if indeed bachelors ever imagine their lives worth enough to anybody to deserve insuring. We did not know that the command "increase and multiply" was tacitly attached to the promise "that thy days may be long in the land," etc.; but it seems, so far, that if bachelors wish to recover an average of twelve and a half years of life, or such part thereof as may not be already irrevocably forfeited, they should make haste to be married. Celibacy appears to be one of Nature's capital offenses.

ALL SORTS OF PARAGRAPHS.

POLLARD IN ANOTHER ROW.—As it has been at least ten days or two weeks since we heard of Pollard being in a row, we began to think that something serious had happened him, when the following from a Richmond paper relieved us: Gordonsville, April 13, '67. To Thomas H. Wynne: You are a damned thief and liar. Pay dishonored drafts this day and arrearsages of your bond, and cease to retail your cowardly lies and gossip about me, or I will cut your tongue out or grind you to dust by exposing your thieving and villainous transactions with Yankee companies. I am on my way back to Richmond. H. RIVES POLLARD.

ALL SORTS OF PARAGRAPHS.

On returning to Richmond Pollard was arrested and had to give $1,000 security to keep the peace for a year.

ALL SORTS OF PARAGRAPHS.

FRANKLIN.—The Boston Transcript advocates the claims of Benjamin Franklin to be associated with John Winthrop in the two statues which Massachusetts will send to the art gallery at the Capitol. It says: "Franklin is probably the most comprehensive mind that America has produced—once a diplomatist, statesman, revolutionary leader, moralist, economist, man of science and man of the world; an original thinker, also, in every department of thought and action in which energy was exercised. Pennsylvania cannot think of claiming him, and if his statue is not sent from Massachusetts it will have no place in the great national collection."

WESTERN NEWS.

(From dispatches to the Daily Oregonian.)

WESTERN NEWS.

New York, June 1.—General Sherman in reply to certain citizens of New York, says: "The Indians number about 300,000. Being pressed by the encroaching settlements they have become nervous, and in some instances positively hostile. I fear they may combine and do infinite mischief. I have daily calls for protection in a hundred places a hundred miles from each other. This requires constant attention in the appropriation of forces so as to protect the most vital interests. I feel bound in honor and duty to stand by my post."

Local Matters.

A Cemetery.—It is high time that some definite action should be taken in the matter of procuring a suitable burial ground for the use of the city.

THE STEREOGRAPH.—We take especial pleasure during the present dearth of what may be called even passable talent in the way of theatricals, to meet a man of the acknowledged ability as the proprietor of the Stereograph, Mr. Warwick.

SALMON.—We learn that a large number of men are engaged at the Cascades in catching salmon for California and Eastern markets.

LEVER.—Col. Hodges, the very efficient Quartermaster of this Depot, has caused the driving of piles along the banks of the Columbia on the Military Reserve, to prevent the springing away of the banks.

THE DALLAS MOUNTAIN.—The Dallas Mountaineer gives our friend Crawford the following first class puff.

THE TANNER TROUPE.—Will give another of their remarkable performances at Metropolitan Hall on Monday evening.

CHALLENGED.—Governor Cole came over from Portland on Monday and offered his vote, which was challenged on the strength of a rumor that he voted in New York last November.

ANOTHER.—The boys in the garrison on Wednesday last organized another Base Ball Club by and under the name of the "Sherman Base Ball Club."

CORRECTION.—Mr. M. Wintler of this town shipped a considerable quantity of wool to Portland during the past week.

SICK.—We regret to learn that Mr. Andrew Riggs, of the Alta House, and Mr. A. W. Nye are both suffering from a dangerous and severe attack of bronchitis.

RIPE.—The strawberries on Fourth Plain and Mill Plain are now getting ripe, and we hear of a number of picnic parties being contemplated to visit those localities.

BUILDING.—We observe that several new houses are being built in the suburbs of the town.

EARLY.—Mr. Gay Hayden has in his garden already green peas and other vegetables.

It is reported that the whole Union Legislative ticket has been elected in Walla Walla county.

FLORENCE SEWING MACHINE COMPANY.

Florence, - Massachusetts, MANUFACTURERS OF THE CELEBRATED REVERSIBLE FEED SEWING MACHINES Making Four Distinct Stitches.

While a large number of Machines have been offered to the Public, some of which possess points of excellence and acknowledged merit, we have long felt that others have experienced, the superiority of a Machine more perfect in its mechanical structure, combining in the highest degree simplicity with durability, and while capable of doing a greater range of work, and that could be easily understood and comprehended by all.

To supply a Sewing Machine free from the objections attending its use, has been our object. For we had not only to set as others as they appeared years ago, but also to improve from time to time, by more recent experience. This we claim has been accomplished by the liberal expenditure of capital, and the patient, valuing labor of years; and in presenting our Machines to the public, we should make strong assertions respecting its merits, which we are prepared to substantiate in every particular.

Regarding the Chain and Loop, or Knot Stitches, we claim that this is regarded by the masses as best suited to all kinds of work. But to meet objections sometimes urged against this favorite stitch, we have added the Knot, Double Lock and Double Knot, either of which is stronger and more elastic than the Knot; thus enabling the operator to select a stitch perfectly suited to every grade of fabric, and where necessary new seams much stronger than it is possible to do by hand.

The FLORENCE makes four distinct stitches with as much ease as ordinary Machines make one, and with as much speed.

The result of repeated tests has been, all we could desire, and from its first introduction the FLORENCE has gained in its sale, and been regarded as a household necessity; proving that the public fully appreciate its utility, beauty, and durability combined in the FLORENCE Machine.

We claim for the FLORENCE the following advantages over any and all Sewing Machines: 1st. It makes four distinct stitches, Lock, Knot, Double Lock, and Double Knot, on one and the same Machine. Each stitch being alike on both sides of the fabric.

2d. Every Machine has the reversible-feed motion, which enables the operator, by simply turning a thumb screw, to have the work run either to the right or left, to stay any length of time, or to reverse the ends of fabric without tearing the fabric.

3d. Changing the length of stitch, and from one kind of stitch to another, can readily be done while the Machine is in motion.

4d. The needle is easily adjusted.

5d. It is almost noiseless, and can be used where quiet is necessary.

6d. Its motions are all positive; there are no springs to get out of order, and its simplicity enables the most inexperienced to operate it.

7d. It will sew, gather, fell, bind, braid, quilt, and make all the stitches used in the most delicate needlework.

8d. It is fully protected and licensed by Elias Howe, Jr., and his associates, and our own Letters Patent.

9d. While possessing the above and many other advantages, the Florence is sold at corresponding prices with other first class Machines, and a careful examination will fully substantiate all that we have claimed for it, and justify the assertion we now make, that it is the best Sewing Machine in the world.

We warrant every Machine to be all that we claim for it, and will give a written guarantee in full satisfaction.

Further references may be had by addressing J. L. FARISH & Co., Agents, Portland, Oregon.

FLORENCE Sewing Machines!

COPY OF THE REPORT OF THE COMMITTEE OF AWARDS AT THE FAIR OF THE AMERICAN INSTITUTE, NEW YORK, 1865.

To the Florence Sewing Machine Co. For the Best Family Sewing Machine.

Highest Premium! Gold Medal!

REASONS: 1st.—Its simplicity & great range of work. 2d.—The Reversible Feed Motion. 3d.—The perfect Finish and substantial manner in which the Machine is made. 4th.—The rapidity of its working and the quality of the work done. 5th.—The S-S-Adjusting Tension.

The FLORENCE was awarded the First and Highest Premium at the State Fair of California, the only Fair on the Pacific Coast at which any two double thread Sewing Machines were exhibited in competition in 1865.

The FLORENCE received the only premium awarded by the Mechanics' Institute of San Francisco in 1864 and 1865, for any Sewing Machine, Sewing Machine Co. or Agent. The claim of a competitor to a medal without any foundation whatever.

Wherever the FLORENCE has been brought into competition with other Sewing Machines, it has always been declared the best. It is the most simple, the most substantial, the most efficient, and its use is easily learned. Every Machine sold is guaranteed in the full sense of the word.

PROVIDENCE SCHOOL For Young Ladies.

CONDUCTED BY THE SISTERS OF CHARITY, VANCOUVER, W. T.

THIS INSTITUTION, which was commenced in the year 1854, is delightfully situated at Vancouver, on the north bank of the Columbia river. The beauty of the surrounding scenery, and the salubrity of the place cannot be surpassed.

The course of studies embraces the various branches of a solid and useful education, and a particular attention is given to form the pupils to household duties and plain and fancy needle work.

Parents may rest assured that every care will be paid to the comfort of the young ladies placed at this Institution, while no pains will be spared to nourish in them those principles of virtue which should render education profitable.

No undue influence will be exercised over the religious opinions of the pupils; however, for the maintenance of good order, all are required to conform to the external discipline of the house.
