The Closing Scene.

The following is pronounced by the Westminster Review, to be unquestionably the finest American poem ever written:

Within the sober realms of lifeless trees,
The russet year inhaled the dreary air;
Like some lanned reaper in his hour of ease, When all fields are lying brown and bare.
The gray raven looked from their bazy hills, O'er the dun waters widening vales, Sent down the air a greeting to the mills,
On the dull thrasher of alternate fairs.

All sights were mellowed, and all sounds subdued,
The hills seemed further, and the valleys long,
As in a distant woodland hewed His winter log, with many a muffled blow.
The embattled forests, erewhile armed with gold,
Their banners bright with every martial hue, Now stood like some and beaten host of old, Withdrawn afar in Time's remotest blue.

On sombre vias the vulture tried his flight;
The dove scarce heard his sighing mate's complaint
And like a star slow drooping in the light, The village church vane seemed to pale and faint.

The sentinal cock upon the hill-side crew—Crew thrice—and all was stiller than before; Silent, till some replying warbler flew His alien horn, and then was heard no more.

Where erst the jay within the elm's tall crest, Made garrulous trouble round her unledged young;
And while the oriole hung her swaying nest, By every light wind like a censor swang.

Where sang the noisy martins of the eaves, The busy swallow circling ever near—Foreboding, as the rustic mid-believer—An early larvest and a pious year.

Where every bird that waked the vernal feast, Shook the sweet slumber from its wings at morn;
To warn the reaper of the rosy east, All now was sunless, empty and forlorn.

Alone, from out the stable, piped the quail;
And croaked the crow through all the dreary gloom;
Alone, the pheasant, drumming in the vale;
Made echo to the distant cottage loom.

There was no bud, no bloom upon the bowers; The spiders wove their thin shrouds night by night,
The talist-down, the only ghost of flowers, Sailed slowly by—passed noiseless out of sight.

Amid all this—in this most dreary air,
The wooding shed upon the porch Its crimson light, as if the year stood there, Firing the floor with its invested tair.

The white-haired matron, with momentous tread,
Piled the swift wheel, and with her joyless tread Sut like a late, and watched the flying tread.

She had known sorrow. He had walked with her,
Of supped, and broke with her the ashen crust,
And in the dead leaves still she heard the stir Of his thick mantle trailing in the dust.

While yet her cheek was bright with summer bloom,
Her country summoned, and she gave her all;
And twice war bowed to her his sable plume—He gave the sword to rust upon the wall.

He gave the sword, but not the hand that drew And struck for liberty the dying blow; Nor him who, to his sire and country true, Fell 'mid the ranks of the invading foe.

Long, but not loud, the droning wheel went on,
Like the low murmur of a hive at noon;
Long, but not loud, the memory of the gone Breathed through her lips a sad and tremulous tune.

At last the thread was snapped, her head was bowed;
Life dropped the distaff through her hands serene,
And loving neighbors smoothed her careful while death and winter closed the autumn scene.

The Paupers of the Republic.

There are thirty thousand idle vagrants in Washington Territory, thirty thousand supported by the tolling, tax-ridden, industrious white men of the Republic! Thirty thousand consumers of bread and meat paid for by you, laboring men of the country! Thirty thousand pets of the abolition faction who converted them from useful chattels to idle, lazy, dissolute paupers—from servicable laborers to loafing vagabonds!
Thirty thousand blessings of the radical war for the dissolution of the Union, and the impoverishment of the Southern people, and the galling bondage of the laboring men and women of the entire country!

How delighted the hard-handed farmers, mechanics, and artisans of the North would be could they have a glimpse of the paupers supported by the tolling, tax-ridden, industrious white men of the Republic! Thirty thousand consumers of bread and meat paid for by you, laboring men of the country! Thirty thousand pets
of the abolition faction who converted them
from useful chattels to idle, lazy, dissolute paupers—from servicable laborers to loafing vagabonds!
Thirty thousand blessings of the radical
war for the dissolution of the Union, and the impoverishment of the Southern people, and the galling bondage of the laboring men and women of the entire country!

Every sunny day thousands of them swarm about the public places and leading avenues of the capital, wandering about aimlessly in rags, or strutting consequently on the promenades in silks and broadcloths—prostitutes, thieves, beggars. Enter the galleries of either House—note the thuggish police assigned to spectators is occupied by a gaping, bullet-pated, thick-lipped woolly headed, animal jawed crowd of niggers, the dregs of broken-up plantations, idle and vicious blacks released from wholesome restraints of task-masters and overseers—look at them! Greasy, dirty, loopy, they drowsily look down upon the assembly wisdom of a disreer-ed Union—sleepily listen to legislators who have given them their freedom and now propose to invest them with the highest privileges of American citizenship. Appropriate, isn't it—bigots on the floor, barbarians in the galleries—the black pattern of sectional hate, fanaticism, and intolerance fringed by the sable shreds of ignorance, vice and squalor!

How long, oh God of our fathers—how long must we endure these things? How long shall black treason be tolerated in the halls once set apart to devising measures for the prosperity, the glory and grandeur of all the people of the Republic—how long will white men permit the yoke of servitude and bondage that negroes may enjoy a perpetual holiday, without money and without price?—La Croix Democrat.

Nearly all the timber required to form the temporary protection to the great dome of the Temple of Jerusalem has now arrived in this city. There is reason to hope that the works may be finished before Easter.

The Final Fate of the Universe—Astronomical Speculations.

If two bodies were placed in space without any force acting upon each other, they would gravitate, they would immediately start toward each other, and would rush together. The sun and planets which constitute the stellar system, to which our solar system belongs are prevented from falling together into one mass by their revolutions about each other. The revolutions of the planets around our sun, and of the satellites about their primaries, have been sanctioned with that wonderful precision which is the just pride of astronomical science, and astronomers are endeavoring to determine the processes by which the revolutions of the planets and satellites are maintained. Already the approximate locality of the centre around which our sun with its attendant planets is sweeping his vast orbit, and it is suggested that it is probably the common centre of the orbits of all the suns of our stellar system.

If the force of gravity extends across the inconceivable spaces which separate the several stellar systems of the universe, those systems must rush together unless they are held apart by revolutions around each other. If light were an emanation, as held by Newton, the spaces between the solid bodies of the universe might be absolutely empty; and, in that case, the revolutions of the bodies around each other might go on forever. On the other hand, if light is a vibration in a subtle fluid, the vibrations of the molecules of bodies revolving in it, and they must finally come together in one mass. The experiment so ingeniously devised by Arago, and carried out with such honorable regard for the fame of its designer, by Messrs. Foucault, Berge and Fizeau, to determine whether there is a difference in the velocity of light in its passage through air and water, has demonstrated that light is a vibration. It follows from this that as far as light extends, space is filled with a material fluid, which resists the motion of bodies revolving in it; and bodies within this space must gradually wind their way inward, and ultimately come together into one mass.

The moon must be drawing very slowly nearer and nearer the earth, and the two bodies in the far distant future will come together. The solid crust of the earth will be broken up by the shock, an immense quantity of heat will be generated by the moon's motion, and the two bodies will fuse together into one molten globe. As the new and enlarged earth is cooled upon its surface, a second series of geological deposits will be constituted, accompanied, perhaps, by strange, and inconceivable forms of animal and vegetable life.

At the time the earth is winding its way inward toward the sun, and must ultimately fall into an incalculable pebble, into the fast glowing mass. The same fate awaits all the planets, and our solar system must one day be a single globe. When this globe is cooled to the right temperature, it may be covered with a multitude of habitable islands, and every rise which will watch its revolutions around the sun. The sum of our planet's population, and the price of our planet's population, will be the same as the sum of all these suns into one common globe. And not this only, for they will predict the final coming together of all the stellar systems of the visible universe into one mass of matter.

Supposing, however, the ethereal fluid which fills the visible portion of the universe is limited in extent, so that the last vibration of heat will reach its boundaries and cease, what then becomes of the force of the universe and the doctrine of the conservation of force?—Scientific American.

A CAPITAL GUEST STORY.—We do not generally give much credence to ghost stories, but the following which we find in the Lynchburg News, appears so intrinsically reasonable, in view of the awful doom which doubtless awaits the wretch that would swindle an editor, that we cannot for a moment doubt its truth. The story is at the rate of 192,000 miles per second in all directions in the form of a swift-swelling, hollow globe. When the temperature of absolute cold is reached (403-2 degrees) the last vibration of heat will leave the mass of matter, and will expand outward through all natu-ry space and time.

Supposing, however, the ethereal fluid which
fills the visible portion of the universe is limited
in extent, so that the last vibration of heat will reach its boundaries and cease, what then becomes of the force of the universe and the
doctrine of the conservation of force?—*Scientific

Marriage Extraordinary.

A short time since we received a letter from an old acquaintance, a former resident of Atlanta, but who recently settled in Boston. We were pleased to hear from "Bill B." as the boys used to call him, but we had to smile some at one item of news he writes. Here it is:

Married—in Boston, Mass., by Rev. H. M. Dexter, D. D., at Berkeley Street Church, Mr. Henry Gwin, late of Savannah, Ga., to Miss Abby N.
Pidge of Boston.

Now this simple announcement would probably convey to the careless reader no other idea in her name, as

Money Market. San Francisco Local Tender rates. New York Gold Questions.

The Spring Trade.—Everything gives indication of lively times for Walla Walla and Walla in the coming season.

CHANCE FOR SPECULATORS.—There has, thus far, been no ice put up in this Valley, this season, for summer use.

Important to Farmers. Land Business attended to. Contested Land Cases will receive close attention.

Deeds, Mortgages, Agreements, and Other Papers Made Out. Law Books for the use of Customers.

Shupe's Photograph Gallery. WALLA WALLA, W.T.

WHERE ARTISTS AND L'FAIKRE PICTURES are being taken by all the various parties of the art.

FAT CATTLE.—The cattle, and other stock in the Valley, have fared better this winter than ever before.

COPPER MINE.—A miner, who has spent several years in the upper country, says there is a well-defined copper vein in the Grand Coulee.

THE O. S. N. Co. has the steamer Okanagan taken below the Dalles last week.
