DEMOCRATIC CENTRAL COMMITTEE. The members of the Walla Walla County Democratic Central Committee are requested to meet at Walla Walla, on Monday, February 18th, 1878, for the transaction of such business as may be brought before them.

THE UNIVERSITY STEAL.—Thirty free scholars have been appointed to the Seattle University, and so that steal is made to stick.

THE CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION is being carefully nursed with a view to the election of two republican senators. The democrats in congress will nip that game.

J. D. HOOVER, member of the mutt-head legislature, is badly implicated in the robbery of the Pierce county treasury. In the legislature Hoover stood up manfully for every thieving bill. These rogues have the merit of consistency.

JUSTICE TO THE DISTILLERS.—Anything in the world that the United States can do to compensate distillers for the trouble given them by Bristow ought to be undertaken cheerfully and without a moment's hesitation. It was a great cruelty to accuse these distillers of robbing the government, and a greater outrage to prove it. Let them have justice.

ANDERSON, of the Louisiana returning board, is a convicted criminal of the crime of forgery. His offence was that of changing the returns of the State whereby Tilden was counted out and Hayes counted in. The man who profited by the fraud is in the white house; the criminal goes to the penitentiary. It is a maxim in law that the receiver is as bad as the thief.

BERIAH BROWN, by common consent regarded as the dirtiest libeller that ever conducted a newspaper, and yet has the cheek to talk about vindicating his character in a court of justice, and demands the efficiency of the libel law. The dirty old ink slinger, if he had his deserts, would be whipped at a cart's tail from one end of the territory to the other.

OREGON'S SENATOR.—Of the eulogies on Morton in the senate the flattest and most commonplace efforts were those of Senators Paddock of Nebraska, Mitchell of Oregon and Wallage of New Hampshire. Senator Mitchell sought to make his part impressive by adapting the song tone of a rural preacher, and one had only to close his eyes to realize the music of an Oregon whang-doodle mourning over its first-born.—Chicago Journal.

GREAT SHRINKAGE OF VALUES.—A Quaker of Philadelphia is responsible for the statement that men in that city who were estimated, four years ago, to be worth fully two millions of dollars, are now seeking loans on their property on easy mortgage terms. Shrinkage in property valuation, hard times, oppressive taxes, and extravagance in living, have combined to produce the trouble. If this be the case with the so-called rich, what must be the condition of the poor in that city? Philadelphia is not the only city in such plight.

A PROPOSED TAX.—The leading merchants of Salt Lake are petitioning the legislature of Utah territory to pass a law imposing a tax on commercial travellers and business men. The tax is to be levied on the amount of their sales. That paper thinks it unfair to permit persons from abroad to solicit trade and negotiate for sales of goods without paying the same license as the local merchants. It says the "drummer injures the resident dealer in proportion to the amount of his sales; and having no license tax to pay, he is placed in advantageous competition with those who have to contribute to the support of the municipal government."

A CUNNING SCHEME.—A Seattle paper, referring to the manner in which the details for the constitutional convention have been arranged, says: "The most skillful caucus manipulator and ring politician could not devise a scheme so well calculated to throw the whole management into the hands of a small combination of active and unscrupulous politicians. The number and distribution of the delegates, their election at a special election, and the early day at which the elections to be held and the convention to be assembled, all tend to defeat and delay the project of state government, or to place the whole matter in the hands of a few active and unscrupulous politicians if any such choose to embrace the opportunity."

TIME'S CHANGES.—In 1864, George B. McClellan and George H. Pendleton were candidates for president and vice-president of the United States. After fourteen years they now re-appear in public life, the one as governor of New Jersey and the other as the successful candidate for the senate from Ohio. Things have changed considerably since 1864, remarks the New York Sun. Then the republican party was united and strong under the leadership of a rightfully-elected president. Now it is divided and weak, and distrustful of them who wrong fully sits in the white house. Then the conduct of the war was the sharp party issue; to-day the great question before the people is whether the stealing of the presidency through fraud shall go unrebuked.

THE NEZ PERCE CAMPAIGN.—It appears that it cost about a million of dollars for supplies and transportation in the recent war against Joseph's band of Nez Perces. It will be not above the figure to add another million for other expenses—say nothing of the loss of life and the sufferings of the wounded soldiers engaged in the arduous campaign. What is the result?—The victory? Joseph and a portion of his band have been captured, and it now costs the government more money to hold them as prisoners than it would cost to keep them at O'Brien's Hotel. This is the economy of the peace policy system. It is the humanizing, christianizing plan of maintaining the Indian bureau. It operates, so far as the Indians are concerned, first to corral them on government reservations, there to be swindled by agents and starved into desperation. Next, to aggravate them to outbreak and the slaughter of adjacent settlers. Then follows a war against them. And, the finale, is a capture, a peace, and the placing of the Indians on some other reservation where the whole unfortunate routine shall be in due time repeated. Meantime, however, the agents upon the reservation, from which they were driven by fraud and famine, draw full rations for the original number of Indians, and all of their own salary, with scrupulous punctuality; the particular sect which runs the reservation enjoys its peculiar perquisites; and the contractors to furnish Indian supplies amass fortunes. The Indians, the government, and the troops, are so profitable to continue the peace policy system—notwithstanding it is at the sacrifice of soldiers' lives and costs the government millions every year—that it is astonishing how any good citizen, who prefers paying a tax to knavery, can wish to have the thief system abolished, and to transfer the Indian bureau to the war department, where it ought to be. Fighting men, as soldiers are, rarely steal. It is the sanctimonious scoundrels in office who abstract heavily from every purse they can draw upon.

THE FRAUDULENT COMPROMISE.

It almost invariably happens that, when a compromise is proposed between two competitors or contestants, the proposition comes from the side which has felt its way and become convinced that its only hope is in the compromise it proposes. The man who has his pistol still in his pocket is very eager always to arrange a compromise with his foe. And if the latter, in that situation, consents to surrender the great advantage he has, and becomes a party to a compromise which shall transfer the advantage to the proposer, he must not wonder—however much he may complain or protest—if he finds himself suddenly prostrate and helpless under the fire of his crafty adversary. The most conspicuous instance in the world's history, wherein craft, at disadvantage, managed to obtain the mastery over the honest competitor who had won, yet not possessed himself of the prize, is that which is presented in the case of Hayes and Tilden. It was the most unfortunate compromise, for the democracy, that ever occurred in the history of the republic.

Murder will out, and at last the bottom facts of the infamy of the compromise of the presidential election, known as the electoral commission, are being revealed. The revelations come from the radical side, and however much we may despise the betrayers, it is impossible to read their confessions without concluding that they are in the main telling only that which is true. Chandler, of New Hampshire, has turned state's evidence. He was personally engaged in the iniquity of counting in Florida for Hayes, and relates just how he managed it, and admits the perjury, the bribery, and the other infamous means by which the atrocious fraud was perpetrated. He is a responsible witness as to the similar great frauds committed in Louisiana, and in relation to the disgraceful and criminal bargain which was subsequently made in Hayes' interest, between Stanley Matthews and Foster, of Ohio, on the part of Hayes, and certain Southern politicians. But he tells enough that is true, of his own knowledge, to prove upon Hayes the fact that the later did scheme and bargain to have himself counted in, while he was very well aware that Tilden had been honestly elected.

But the proof of the iniquitous proceeding does not rest with Chandler alone. General Boynton, of Ohio, another radical, and one of the ablest of his party, corroborates Chandler on material points, and challenges any to gainsay or contradict what he asserts as to the bargain between the agents of Hayes and Southern men. He reveals something else, moreover, which is, in some respects, even more important. Gen. Boynton declares that there were nine radical senators who positively refused to vote to sustain the presumption that Hayes was elected president, in the event of the submission of the question to the senate and the house, agreeably to the requirements of the constitution. The result of the constitutional count would have been, accordingly, the declaration that Tilden and Hendricks were duly elected president and vice-president of the United States. These nine senators—all radicals—were informed President Grant of their determination. The sequel is known. It is before us. It was the second chapter of the stupendous fraud—the compromise which brought forth the electoral commission, and caused the perjury of the supreme court justices who voted to give the office to Hayes in wanton disregard and willful violation of their solemn oaths to determine the case justly.

It will be remembered that Edmunds, of Vermont, proposed the trick of the electoral commission, as a compromise. By the light now thrown upon the whole affair, it is known that Edmunds proposed the compromise after he had learned that nine of his radical brethren in the senate would so vote as to give the election to Tilden. His compromise was, therefore, on the pattern of "heads, I win; tails, you lose." And yet, the democrats in congress, with a sure thing in their hands, against precedent, against principle, and with everything to lose and nothing to gain, allowed themselves to be inveigled by the crafty and unscrupulous Vermont, who never observed a trust or was faithful to a pledge, and walked directly into the cunningly-baited trap. As a matter of course, had the radicals not known that the compromise was their only hope or chance for Hayes, they would not have agreed to it. They were not mistaken in their reckoning. By it, and it alone, Hayes was enabled to win. The contemplation of the scheme is far from agreeable to us as democrats. It is too exasperating, too mortifying, to compositely think upon or write about. Yet it may serve as a mournful precedent and an awful warning for the future—although it is hardly possible another such a case can ever occur. It is some comfort, nevertheless, to have the truth revealed, at last. And that it is extorted from the enraged rogues of the Chandler stamp and from the honest partisans of the Boynton order—radicals all, as they are—makes it not the less convincing. The guilty Hayes must constantly suffer the stings of an accusing conscience.

BRITISH REGRET AND LAMENTATION.—Practically, all are agreed that the capital of Turkey and the key of the East is in the hands of the czar. Indignation will be of little avail. It will be alleged that no deception has been practised, and we shall discover that this was one of the terms of the armistice which was never communicated to us. Yesterday a British military and naval force could at any moment occupy Constantinople, while an Austrian army could cut Russia's communications. To-day the situation is entirely altered. The British fleet can advance to Constantinople, and may find itself even barred out of the Dardanelles. The czar can now afford to laugh at Austrian menaces, since his communications are open from Constantinople to Odessa or Sebastopol. Our pottering over a trumpery six millions will probably cost us ten times that sum; but whatever the cost, it is still to be hoped that the country will see its honor vindicated. The direct attack upon our honor will raise a feeling of resentment not to be appeased until we have taught our foe that we have the will and the power to punish chicanery and maintain the empire which he is seeking to undermine.—London Post.

THE SENTIMENT ON THE MONEY QUESTION.—The bankers everywhere in the United States clamor for the gold standard and oppose the re-coinage of silver. The people everywhere demand the repeal of the gold standard and want the constitutional lawful tenders, gold and silver, restored. There are one hundred thousand bankers. There are over seven millions of grown men. All the bankers want gold. The people all insist upon silver and gold. What is the duty of the government? Are the one hundred thousand bankers to override the seven millions of people? The people are in earnest in their determination to have the money standard of the constitution restored, and the government is in duty bound to obey their will.

THE GREAT FRAUD.—The democratic party in every section of the Union unite in denouncing the great public crime by which the people were defrauded of the right to be governed by rulers of their choice. But in the interest of the public tranquillity, democrats will oppose the re-opening of the discussion of the question. The issue has been decided; it concerns us now only as it bears upon and shapes our present duties.

THE POPE'S DEATH is reported by telegraph. He died at an early hour on the morning of the 7th. With the exception of St. Peter, he lived longer than any of his predecessors.

Our Washington Letter.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31, 1878. EDITOR STATESMAN.—The most cheering indication on the face of public affairs here is the decided tendency of the democrats in congress to stand together in a struggle for economy and retrenchment. Until quite lately it has seemed almost certain there would be lack of harmony on these subjects, and that the republican leaders, with an experience in leadership of nearly a score of years, and used to the excesses and corruption of war times, and the unsettled period immediately following, would succeed in keeping the government in the old road to bankruptcy. But there is a good hope of better things. Expenses will be reduced in all branches of the government. The army will be reduced in numbers, and excessive expenditures for the force decided upon will be cut off. The army, which has cost since the year a fifth as much as the whole amount of our public debt, will become far less expensive. Our relations with foreign countries will be made to cost less. The revenues will be collected for less money. In short, unless there should be an unexpected lapse from virtue on the part of the democrats, the carrying on of the government will be very materially reduced. It is time, for the general government is not only exhausting the people by burdensome taxes, but is setting a fearful example of extravagance to states, cities and individuals.

A new bill is introduced in the supreme court late. Under the law the salaries of certain grades of postmasters are fixed upon the basis of the business at their offices in a given preceding period. The wording of the law was such that various postmasters, thought they could get increased pay under it for time served to the date when the new law went into effect. Test cases were tried in the court of claims, and, on appeal, in the supreme court, and this latter court decides against the applicants. This court also decided the other day that the sale by the confederate government of cast-iron articles, made by it in the city of Charleston, S. C., did not take away the title of the owners, or give title to the purchasers.

The Pacific railroad men are now here in force. All the roads, from Duluth to the Gulf of Mexico, are represented. The chief interest, of course, is in the rival southern roads. The aid subsidy resolution passed by the house a few days since is not considered a dangerous blow to any road that seeks government aid. The resolution does not prohibit assistance to works of "national necessity," and every man interested in a Pacific railroad feels that his particular road is excepted from the prohibition. But what with quarrels among themselves and the rapidly growing and consolidating belief that economy is the greatest and most pressing of "national necessities," I believe all these railroad subsidy men will come to grief.

A levee system for the Mississippi river and some of its tributaries is, however, not to be classed with the railroad schemes, and government aid to it would meet comparatively little objection. Captain Eals has been paid, with little grumbling from any quarter, an enormous sum for his jetties at the mouth of the great river, and will yet receive much more. It is to be made a distinction between the money for this purpose, and payment for the construction and preservation of levees.

It is very generally conceded now that the silver bill of Mr. Brand will, in some shape, pass the house and senate, even over a veto. I confess I cannot yet figure out a two-third majority in the senate, but the friends of the bill find no difficulty in doing so. If rumor is correct the "boss" of the Louisiana returning board—Wells—is on his way here to consult the president of his creation as to probable means of defeating justice in Louisiana. The other members of the board remain at New Orleans to stand trial. The coming interview between Wells and Hayes should be made the subject of a great painting. The event will live in history, whether or not the artist of this generation puts it on canvas. The local robber, under his assumed name of crime, comes to the man benefitted and made powerful by that crime, to ask for protection. The great man has no power to grant it; his own position would be imperiled if he should attempt it. There is but one thing for Wells to do. He must go home and get the president. His fate is an example for all time to subordinate rascals and teaches them not to make the receiver secure in his plunder until they, too, are secured against punishment for the theft.

BONDHOLDERS AND LEGAL-TENDERS.—The bondholders and legal-tenders, and all who speak, write or act in their interest, now insist that our first and paramount duty, as a government, and as a people, is to secretly observe and scrupulously obey the terms of the contract—as they alone understand it—which the United States has made, through the issuance of its bonds, with those who hold these evidences of indebtedness. They claim that the government is pledged to pay gold, at full one hundred cents on the dollar—with gold as the standard—for what it received in paper, which sold at from as low as forty cents to no higher than seventy-five cents, on the gold dollar valuation. In other words, to strike the average at fifty cents on the dollar—the fair figure at which to put the sales of bonds for gold—the bondholders now insist that they shall be paid, in gold, at a premium, principal and interest, two dollars for one, the sum they, figuratively, and actually as well as figuratively, loaned to the government more than thirteen years ago. Meantime these bondholders have been drawing from twelve to fourteen per cent. per annum, on their purchase-money, for the bonds they bought and hold. At the time they purchased gold was not the standard. They bought with that knowledge. They took the advantage of the necessities of their country. They played the part of the curb-stone broker or the pawn-shop keeper with it. They loaned it fifty cents on the dollar, on its paper, and, in payment, gave it its own paper, and then charged it either six or seven per cent. per annum for that which was not a loan, but an exchange of paper which happened to be an accommodation at the time to the government, as the borrower—quite as the note, with interest, of a doubtful debtor is reckoned bad, but still to be preferred to the contingency of his due-bill. Since the loan on these terms gold has come to play the leading part, and as a "star," it carries off the most clamorous applause and also the bulk of the receipts.

SCHURZ HARD AT WORK.—A Washington correspondent of the Chicago Times writes that Schurz is working with all the tremendous energy of his nature to grasp thoroughly the details of the business of his department and the character of his chief assistants. He is now ready to go hand in hand with any congressional committee that desires his help, and while it is an impossibility that any one administration will be long in correcting all of the evils of his corruptly managed department, yet the most important ones will be remedied. The Indian bureau is to be transferred to the war department, and this will at once perform the purification of that branch of the service that no civil management could reach. After the Indian bureau will come the re-organization of the land and pension offices.

NORTHERN IDAHO proposes to be represented in the Washington territory constitutional convention, a call having been issued for the election of a delegate.

LAND CLAIMS.—Persons wishing to buy improved land claims on favorable terms, will apply to the editor of the STATESMAN. No charge for information.

SCHOOL REPAIRS.—R. Guichard, clerk of school district No. 34, desires to have the school house painted and generally placed in repair, and to that end will receive proposals for painting the interior of the building.

STREET IMPROVEMENT.—The street crossing at the intersection of Third and Alder streets is being raised and made passable for pedestrians. This is the filthiest hole in the city, and having frequent occasion to pass that way we are pleased to note the improvement.

REDUCTION IN PRICES.—Messrs. Johnson, Ross & Winans renoued their card this week, and announce a reduction in prices. Their stock of goods is very large, embracing all the latest styles and first qualities, and we can vouch that their prices will be found as low as the lowest. Buyers should in all cases examine their stock before making purchases.

CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION.—The following telegraphic dispatch explains itself: NEW TOYAMA, W. T., Feb. 13, 1878.

TO W. H. NEWELL: The Democratic Central Committee (meeting) in each judicial district, to nominate one candidate at large, and one for each district. Convention in first district, at Walla Walla, March 9th. Ratio of representation same as in last Democratic Convention. FRANK CLARK, Sec'y.

THE EUROPEAN WAR.—At last accounts the Russians were under the walls of Constantinople, and about to enter the city. England was intensely agitated, and the war feeling was in the ascendant. A credit of $30,000,000 had been voted, and it looked as though England was determined to stop Moscow aggression. Indeed, a rumor has been current that England has declared war, but we are unable to trace the report to any reliable source.

ONE OF our best exchanges is the Walla Walla Statesman. Generally men become older they lose that fire and snap which are so essential to the successful newspaper editor; but our old friend Newell is an exception to the rule, and so long as he lives the STATESMAN will be the leading journal of Washington territory. May it be a hundred years. Douglas Lusk penit.

WE are not in the habit of copying notices complimentary or otherwise of ourselves, but the above is so prettily put that we cannot resist the temptation to scissior it.

PROBATE COURT.—The following were the proceedings in the probate court: In the matter of the estate of John Murphy, deceased; inventory amounting to $300 found and examined. In the matter of the estate of Margaret Johnson, deceased; executor's annual account examined and allowed. In the matter of the estate of Odella Hellmuth, deceased; petition for distribution filed and hearing set for Wednesday, March 27th, 1878, and ordered published. In the matter of the estate of Joseph Hellmuth, deceased; petition for distribution filed and hearing set for Monday, April 1st, 1878, and ordered that service of citation be made by publication.

SURGICAL OPERATION.—Tuesday last a very successful surgical operation was performed by Richard Goranson, veterinary surgeon, late cavalry, U. S. A., upon a fine three-year-old stallion, the property of Mr. Joseph Carroll, of Toucanan, Columbia county. The horse had been suffering for some time from a tumor, or growth of the lower jaw, as large as an egg; the growth of bone preventing the mastication of food, and rendering the animal almost worthless, and would have caused death in the course of a few weeks. The tumor was removed in a very short time by the doctor, much to the gratification of Mr. Carroll, who showed his appreciation of the doctor's skill by tendering him a $100 fee. Such ability as a doctor possesses—as shown by numerous other practical demonstrations—as well as his acknowledged skill for the position which he holds, is certainly valuable to a community where stock raising is so important an interest.

CHARGED WITH MURDER.—In our issue of last week we gave the particulars attending the sudden death of Charles Newland, an old settler living near the head of Mill Creek. At the time his death was believed to have resulted from poisoning, and subsequent examination disclosed the fact that there was enough strychnine in his stomach to have killed two or three men. Suspicion at once pointed to a neighbor named Frederick Noble, with whom he had a dispute about a land claim. This man had directed the deceased, and from all the facts that attended the case, and from all that Noble had deliberately placed strychnine in a sack of flour found in Newland's house. Noble was at once arrested, and committed to the Lemhi county jail. The accused has a wife and three children, and it was partly from voluntary statements made by his wife that evidence was obtained connecting him with the fatal deed.

L. F. HOLMAN, the man who escaped from the county jail, is again in his old quarters. As already stated he was arrested at Sacramento, and sheriff Thomas notified of the fact. Deputy sheriff Thompson at once started to bring the fugitive back, and found him in the Sacramento jail. A friend had given him $100 which he had hidden in the Walla Walla jail, and with this sum he started on his journey. He traveled by way of the John Day country, and suffered great privations on the route. At Sacramento, when arrested, he was disguised in a pair of false whiskers, and thought himself perfectly safe. Some one evidently recognized him, and in a moment's parlay "gave him away" to the police. His wife had passed through Sacramento, supposed on her way East, and it is possible that through her movements his whereabouts became known. He is now securely bound, and it is not likely that he will have another opportunity to escape.

A PARTISAN CONVENTION.

The "small fry" politicians of the territory have managed so as to make the choice of delegates to the constitutional convention turn upon political preferences. This action kills the whole movement, and men of influence and character will take no further interest in an embryo that has been killed at the moment of its inception. Our acquaintance with public men east of the mountains is very general, and we have yet to hear of a man of mark or character who is willing to accept the doubtful honor of a party nomination for a seat in the convention. A day or two since a couple of very intelligent and highly distinguished gentlemen canvassed this matter over in our presence, and neither of them could name a single prominent man who could be relied upon to accept a partisan nomination. It is possible that Gen. A. J. Cain might be induced to take the place of delegate at large. But with him the list is exhausted. Hon. L. M. Ringer has been suggested, but the fact that he was a member of the legislature at the date of the passage of the bill is held to disqualify him under the organic act. In the republican ranks it is possible that the land office may be able to furnish candidates to represent that part of the territory east of the mountains; but this source failing, we doubt whether any respectable republican will be found willing to accept a party nomination and undertake to frame a partisan constitution. Sterling republicans like Hon. J. C. Smith, and Hon. Park Winans, are outspoken in their denunciation of a policy that drags party into a question where it is absolutely necessary to have a union of every shade of sentiment if we would have the slightest hope of success. The way the "cards are stacked," it is absolutely certain that with party tickets in the field the republicans will have ten out of the fifteen members of the convention. Give the movement this strong republican aspect, and the democratic congress will resist and defeat the admission of Washington as a State in the Union. This is the inevitable result, and as a matter of course men of character and influence will cease to take interest in the embryo that is already strangled.

HOLMAN'S ARREST.

Deputy Sheriff Thompson furnishes us with much interesting information in relation to Holman's arrest. At the time of the arrest he was on his way from Stockton to Red Bluffs. The cars had stopped for a moment at Sacramento to enable the passengers to refresh themselves, and Holman had just stepped out of the cars to enter a restaurant, when he was approached by a detective and told he was wanted. At this time Holman wore a heavy black beard, and was quite well disguised. In the conversation that followed Holman represented himself as an immigrant, who had just come through from Missouri. The officer asked him if he had acquaintances at Walla Walla? He replied that he knew nobody here, but had heard a good deal about Walla Walla and possibly might come here. He finally told the officer not to "detain him, as he had a ticket through to Red Bluffs and did not wish to be left behind." The detective was now satisfied that he had the right man, and told him he would "take him in any way." On the way to the station house he positively denied being Holman, or having knowledge of any such man. After being locked up, he told the officers he had a valise on the cars, and asked them to get it for him. This was done, when on overhauling the contents of the valise, the detective found a number of letters that clearly identified the prisoner with the missing Holman. On being confronted with these letters, Holman owned up that he was the man. The Sacramento officers then telegraphed to Sheriff Thomas, and at his request held Holman until Deputy Sheriff Thompson could go after him. These letters are now before us, and from them we learn that a man who signs his name "Albert Henshaw, Lone Rock Postoffice, Wasco county, Oregon," was active in aiding Holman to escape. Holman after his escape went by the name of M. Donald, and Henshaw appears from one of the letters to have sent him $102. This money was sent through a registered letter, in which Henshaw states that $52 of the money was sent by his (Henshaw's) father. The letter seems from the letter to live in Linn county, Oregon. It might perhaps be well to let these parties know that it is a criminal offense to aid a fugitive in making his escape. One of the letters appears to have been written by a relative of Mrs. Holman. The writer speaks of Holman as having been a bad man in Missouri. The following is an extract from this letter: "I have known him (Holman) from a boy; he is a hard one; watch him close; believe not a word he says. I also knew his wife from a child; she is respectably connected; my brother married her sister. Her father wrote to me after Holman broke jail, asking me to hunt for him up, and stating he would pay me well for my trouble. Holman, if he had his just deserts, would have been hung long ago, and if he had been in Missouri at the time of the shooting he would have been hung. His wife has plenty of friends who would like to help hang him."

Will the Next be a Bond Panic?

For some years past capital has sought investment in bonds, and the demand for this class of securities has undoubtedly had much to do in stimulating the issue of bonds.

Capital has great influence upon legislative bodies, and those having authority to plunge the public into debt. The case with which school districts, villages, townships, counties, cities, and states could issue bonds and raise money, has operated to produce an extravagance in expenditures for all classes of public improvements which has no precedent in the world's history.

Under the practice of issuing bonds, not only extravagance in public improvements has grown up, but the number of officers has been greatly increased, salaries have advanced, and current expenses have more than doubled in nearly every department of local government.

Under the practice of issuing bonds, not only extravagance in public improvements has grown up, but the number of officers has been greatly increased, salaries have advanced, and current expenses have more than doubled in nearly every department of local government.

During all this period of extravagance, capital has shunned business investments and the farmer and manufacturer have found it difficult to borrow money at less than twelve per cent.

As we have always said, capital is beginning to avoid this class of securities and many holders of bonds are unloading to escape the effects of a panic.

While this condition of things must result in heavy taxation, it cannot fail to enforce rigid economy on the part of municipal authorities and cause capital to seek investment in real estate and business enterprises.

Let extravagance cease—let there be no increase of municipal indebtedness—let money seek investment in real estate and legitimate business pursuits—and we may confidently rely upon great improvements in business and general prosperity.

A DIFFERENCE OF OPINION.—A poor tailor, dining for an old friend the other day, wrote as follows: "Dear Jim: This little account has been standing for seven years, and I think it is high time it was paid."

BLANK DRESSES at this office.

FASHION NOTES.

Bridal slippers or boots are trimmed with flowers.

Large cords are no longer used on stylish dresses.

Long tulle veils, studded with silver stars are worn.

Flat pockets of lace are seen on the most elegant dresses.

Metallic ribbons are popular for trimming light dresses.

New silks have a polka dot, or flower in satin of the same color.

Neckties for ladies are out of fashion; cravat bows are worn instead.

Cashmere stockings in pale shades of blue, embroidered with damask roses, are requisite.

One of the prettiest ornaments for the hair for the evening is a gauzy butterfly in gold or silver.

Low slippers are of the same color as the evening dress, and are worn with stockings of the same shade.

Princess dresses of black or white lace over white satin, are the latest imported novelty for dresses.

The newest design for an orange-knife, shown at Tiffany's, is in solid silver, the edge finished like a saw.

Old-fashioned pouches or reticules are worn again suspended from the side to hold the handkerchief and fan.

Portemonnaies composed of Russian leather in the form of a horse-shoe mounted with silver, are the latest currency-holders.

MURDER BY PROXY.—Patterson, Jan. 25th, 1878.—In the habeas corpus hearing to-day of John Kane and Michael Bergan, arrested on Saturday night last for the murder of Patrick Burns, on Good Friday of 1870, a new "spectator" was put on the stand.

The principal witness produced by the Commonwealth was Jas. McDonald, alias Harry Man, brought here from Mauch Chunk, where he was committed to answer the charge of murdering George K. Smith, at Audenried, several years back.

McDonald swore he was not guilty of Smith's murder, but had procured Thomas O'Neil and Martin Bergan to murder Burns at the request of Kane. He said Kane approached him repeatedly about killing Burns, because Burns had informed operators of the colliery where they all worked of the thefts of Kane and others.

McDonald said he arranged with O'Neil and Bergan to assassinate Burns, who went with him to Tuscarora and laid in wait for their victim forty-eight hours. They murdered him while he was on his way to work early one morning at a lonely point in the woods.

STEELES' PAIN ERADICATOR.

The Most Wonderful Discovery of the Age. The World moves, and unless we progress we must go backward. Nothing remains stationary.

IN OFFERING THIS MEDICINE IT IS NOT intended to deceive the people as a cure for every complaint on earth; but a really scientific article of the greatest merit, which will prove a boon to suffering humanity—look on account of its adaptability to both man and beast, its readiness of application, and the price being within the reach of all. It will actually cure

Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Contracted Cords, Sore Throat, Lameness, Sprains, Headache, Cramps, Burns, Scalds, Inflammation of the Kidneys, And all Nervous and Inflammatory Aches and Pains.

DR. STEELE, who has for years been in the Proprietary Medicine business, and who has traveled in various parts of the world in search of information, has great confidence in the ERADICATOR as the "No. 1" of safe, sure and reliable remedies for general use as a Family Doctor.

Provide yourself with a bottle without delay, and you will always keep it in the family and save money. Don't be lulled by some other preparation. Take only STEELES' PAIN ERADICATOR. We can produce thousands of testimonials as to its curative power, but a trial will prove to the most skeptical that it is truly an Eradicator of Pains, Aches and Inflammations. It has been used so constantly by horsemen as a Liniment, and has saved more valuable property of that kind than any other preparation. Take pains to see that you get the genuine.

Put up in large bottles, and for sale by druggists and dealers. If you happen to be in a locality where STEELES' PAIN ERADICATOR cannot be obtained, send to the nearest wholesale druggist, or to the Agents.
