Change Wanted.

From a gentleman who resides in Centerville, Walla Walla county, we learn that the present arrangements of running trains over the Blue Mountain branch is decidedly dissatisfactory to the farmers and business men of Centerville and Weston.

Successful Skippers.

In yesterday's issue says the Dayton Chronicle of the 12th inst., we spoke of the elopement of David Blampode and Miss O. L. Lounigian, of Watsburg, and of the old gentleman's frantic pursuit of the runaway pair.

Know Where to Come.

For several days past many of the prominent settlers of Walla Walla county have called upon the editor of the STATESMAN in regard to the rumor that the Northern Pacific had relinquished its land grant of every alternate odd section in Walla Walla and Wacou counties.

LOUISIANA.

The Sale by France to the United States.

In question debate narrowed down to the question whether New Orleans and the Florida should be bought or simply swept down upon and taken. ENTERPRISE.

The following message, which was received in this city, Saturday evening, after the DAILY STATESMAN had gone to press, was published by us as an extra, and copies of the same sent to all the settlers of Walla Walla county.

WHAT WALLA WALLA NEEDS.

A telephone system. A large hotel. An opera house. One more tannery. A wool, pulp and paper factory. A good circulating library.

A Vicious Attack.

This forenoon, as James, a 15 year old son of Mr. George Deckers was riding out and leading a large bay stallion for exercise, the latter, for some cause or other became very angry, and laying his ears back jerked the young man's leg with his teeth and seized him from the saddle to the ground.

LAND OFFICE DECISIONS.

A recent article in the Chicago Tribune directs attention to the manner in which the railway companies holding or claiming lands in the west have operated to the injury of settlers, and refers to the efforts that for several years these companies have been making to use the Interior department as an aid in defeating claims of settlers to lands within or near their grants. There can be no question that for a long time the rights of individual settlers were held very lightly against the claims of railway corporations. The craze for railway extension that for several years ran high in the western states, not only induced communities to mortgage themselves and grant the most extravagant aid to railway builders, but by the power of a public opinion that could not be ignored, forced the government into a policy, the evil fruits of which have become only too apparent. Under this policy the Interior department has been burdened with a load of rulings and decisions that of itself has little power to cure. The department prescribes its injurious policy. The commissioner of the general land office is almost helplessly bound by decisions of his predecessors, not only in specific cases, but in classes of cases; and while the secretary of the interior has somewhat wider discretion, he too, is limited in his authority to pass outside of lines established by former secretaries, no matter how obviously wrong these lines may be. Thus it is, for instance, that the present officers of the department are powerless to correct the decision under democratic commissioners, the last of whom (Hendricks, from Indiana) loaded the books with rulings so extraordinary in their nature, that nothing less than his personal reputation has served to save him from most injurious suspicions. Until the present secretary assumed charge, very little was done to bring about an interposition of the government in behalf of the people where corporations were concerned, or to bend the department toward a new policy suited to the condition of things that succeeded the condition that produced the old. The Chicago Tribune has rendered the government a service in laying the state of the case before the north-western public, where perhaps it has been imperfectly understood. The Tribune is in error in most of its statements of fact, as for example, when it states that the Kniskern case in Minnesota had been permitted to stand in favor of the railway company; whereas Secretary Teller overruled that order and gave the land to the settler; and again, in stating that the lands in the lapsed grant to the Gulf and Ship Island railway had been withheld from settlement, the contrary being the case. But these are minor points, for the misstatement of which the Tribune may readily be pardoned. It has never been pointed out that the present secretary has held as a leading proposition that in all cases of dispute the presumption is to be in favor of the actual settler. In following this, Mr. Teller has bound the department by a number of decisions, which irrevocably settle several principles. The decision in the Kniskern case is one of these, which will save their homes to hundreds of families. In the Graham case (also in Minnesota) he has decided that lands in any way appropriated at the date of the definite location of the line of a road do not pass under the grant, but are excepted, or rather are not granted; and until the date of the definite location of the line of road, a railway grant is only a float, and does not attach to any specific tracts, so that an entry, whether void or voidable, existing at the date of definite location of a line excepts the land covered thereby from the operation of the grant. During the last year, being the year since Mr. Teller's accession to the office, 75 per cent. of the cases brought between settlers and railways have been decided against the railways, whereas before that the percentage was about 80 per cent. the other way; and of the remaining 25 per cent. most are still pending. This change of policy in the Interior department is one of the most important and significant features of the present administration. It means, in fact, that the government declines to certify ownership in itself to any class of corporations, and that the best that may be done to cure the effects of a policy that was formerly forced upon the executive branches is being done as rapidly and with as little noise as possible.

MALINGUING THE ARGONAUTS.

The California papers would appear to be filled with nothing but the obituary of pioneers, who, from the fall of '49, or the spring of '50, "waded through an existence which, in many cases, consisted of a plug hat, crooked-neck cane, reminiscences and whisky. Beh! The pioneers of California, who made it what it is to-day, were maligned while alive and forgotten when dead, as most of them are. The refuse, now paying tardy tribute to the ravages of time and whisky, were, in ninety cases out of a hundred, men who, being gifted with iron constitutions, out-lived far better men, and any usefulness they may have had at any time in their career. California pioneers were, to a large extent, a pretty tough lot, and the demise of all left alive would, while necessarily ridding of some good men, could not be a fair-minded man be considered a misfortune to the state.—North-west News.

THE OREGONIAN ON THE MOSES RESERVATION QUESTION.

The Oregonian thus expresses its views in regard to the wholesale slicing up of Moses territory: "The Walla Walla Statesman has intervened Delegate Brents in regard to the taking away of Moses' lands. As we suspected, it was through his efforts that the order of restoration was issued. Mr. Brents looked at the matter from the politician's point of view and is unable to see that he did any wrong in the matter. Speculators who wanted the lands, and politicians who are always meddling in matters which do not concern them, urged him to apply to have the strip taken from Moses, and he did so. The Indians were not developing the mines, he says, and there were but four hundred of them. The President of the United States gave the reserve to Moses, and promised him upon the faith of the government that he and his people should hold it as their "permanent home." The number of Indians on this reserve, or the use to which they were putting it, cuts no figure in the matter. The President had no more right in good morals, to take this reserve or any part of it away from Moses than he has to rob Mr. Brents of his private land. It is as much an act of dishonesty to rob Indians as to rob white men.

WESTWARD.

The immigration to the north-west this spring promises to exceed in volume the great movement of last year. In many places in Pennsylvania and in Ohio we heard of associations being formed of men who intend to go to Washington Territory with their families, and who are holding weekly meetings to determine on locations for settlement and to make arrangements for low rates of transportation. Railroad agents in Europe send reports of an unprecedented demand for pamphlets and other publications concerning the new regions of the United States, and of a brisk demand for passage tickets in advance of the usual dates for the season's business to begin. The Canada papers speak of another great exodus to the north-west. In fact, a peculiar feature of the immigration movement of 1883 promises to be the distribution of settlers along the whole line of the new railroad between the Red river of the north and the shores of Puget Sound, a distance of two thousand miles. In all this immense region, embracing a great variety of climatic conditions, soil and scenery, there is very little land that is not habitable. With the exception of a strip of about a hundred miles, in the great plain of the Columbia between Walla Walla and Riverville, the whole of the so-called Northern Pacific belt offers advantages for settlement of one sort or another. The country that is not good for agriculture is valuable for pasturing sheep and cattle, or for lumbering, or for mining coal and the precious metals. Our advice to intending settlers in the north-west is not to postpone moving any longer than is necessary. The country is immense, and it will take many years to fill it up; but those who come early will get the best location and profit most by the rapid development of the region.

WE DO THINGS ON A LARGE SCALE.

English penny postage has long been pointed to as a triumph of governmental attention to the middle classes and the poor. After October 1st, we too, shall have "penny" postage, our two cent being the equivalent of the penny. But England is not quite three-fourths as large as the state of Missouri, and Missouri and Illinois together are larger than Great Britain and Ireland. We extend penny postage over an area equal to sixty Englands. Our new postal notes will be sufficiently more convenient than those popular in Great Britain, but the average cost will be a little higher.—Ex.

WHAT IS BUTLERISM?

This word is appearing rather frequently in the columns of some of our esteemed contemporaries, especially those published in the region north-east of us. It is not in the dictionary. We are asked to define it. Well, in the light of the latest information available, we should say that Butlerism means the conglomerate science of being smart and honest at the same time, of knowing shams, of hating shams, of going for shams both theoretically and practically, and of not caring a tinker's dam who gets hurt. That is the general idea which may be got from the word. But the White House, with all that the name implies, still has a certain charm for the sanguine imagination.

THE PARTY IN POWER.

In a leading editorial, the San Francisco Call, of a recent date, aptly remarks that there has been some discussion in the east as to the necessity of forming a new party to carry out needed reforms. A certain professional reformer says that neither of the parties now in existence will do, for the reason that the Republicans distinctly represent money, while the Democrats do not distinctly represent anything or anybody. A leading Republican defends his party, assuming that its alliance with money is one of the consequences of its being the party in power. In other words, money, always conservative, attaches itself to whatever party has been long enough in power to demonstrate its ability to govern the country so as to avoid financial convulsion. If the Republican party had made no closer alliance with money than is thus outlined, the people would have no quarrel with it. The charge against the party is that it has permitted great corporations to direct its policy, and that under their direction legislation has uniformly been in the interests of capital, so far as such interests are opposed to those of labor. The doubt as to the usefulness of the Democratic party, as an agent for the overthrow of the Republicans, arises from a very distinct blending of interests and purposes among the leaders of both parties. A large and influential portion of the Democratic party, as represented in congress, is as completely under the influence of money as any Republican that can be mentioned. Thus we find Democrats voting with Republicans in favor of such measures as Chinese immigration, the demoralization of silver, and exemption of the property of corporations from a just share of taxes. The New York elevated railroad case was a test of the Democracy of that state. The simple proposition was that the company should declare dividends only on the capital actually paid in, and in that Gov. Cleveland and the legislature went to pieces. A Republican governor and legislature could have done no more. It is argued, and with some force, that there is no sense in going into a contest against the aggression of organized capital with leaders who will give the battle to their opponents, if there ever comes a time when they can. At the present time a very reasonable stand against the aggression of organized capital will satisfy the mass of the people. These aggressions have not yet aroused the people to anger. There is a very general idea that corporations should be required to submit to law, but little or no disposition to "cinch" them. If organized capital grows aggressive and impetuous, as there are signs that it will, there will be more temper and less reason in the methods proposed to subject it to law. The people are now occasionally informed that the rights of property are too sacred to be subject to the caprice of the public. The interests of the public, it is urged, are in many cases opposed to the interests of the corporations, and consequently the public is not a just judge in disputes arising between them. To this argument the answer may be given that human life and liberty are at the caprice of the public. Exact justice may not in all cases be done either in dealing with life or property, but property is no more exposed to danger than life or liberty. Whatever party may be in power is, from the force of circumstances, conservative, but when the party out of power is conservative to nearly the same degree, there is little chance for a lively contest between them.

IT'S AN ILL WIND, ETC.

The popularity of the hanged Molly Maguire has been turned to account by several of their widows, by making it the advertisement for their groceries in the Pennsylvania mining regions. Mrs. Jack Kehoe keeps the tavern which her husband started in Garrettsville. A pool table fills the center of the bar-room, which is the largest apartment in the building, and over the bar hangs a framed lithograph of Jack Kehoe. This is the room in which the most desperate of the Mollys met to discuss the advisability of murdering objectionable bosses. Mrs. Kehoe presides over the bar. She is 35 years of age, tall, and handsome. She was once said to be the most beautiful Irish girl in the Mahanoy valley. "The miners' home" supports Mrs. Kehoe and her family comfortably, and she has some money in bank. A year or two after Kehoe's execution she began receiving offers of marriage, but refused to give ear to them. One indefatigable suitor, John Carey, pressed his suit so ardently that she relented, and they were married a few months ago. Before his marriage Carey worked in the mines. Since he settled himself in the tavern, however, he has devoted his time principally to fiddle playing, and his rendition of the "Shan Van Vocht" is, in Mr. Monahan's opinion, "better than blind Tom cud do." His wife retains her first husband's name for business purposes, and rules the family and Carey with a rod of iron. This. Munly left a pretty widow. Last July she married a miner named Murphy, and opened a saloon in Gilberton. Mrs. McFadden has one near Landsford, and is still young and good-looking. Pat Hester's widow lives near Locust Gap, and keeps the bar once owned by Pat. The widow Carroll sells rum in Tanqua, in a small, old-fashioned tavern called "The Home." The wife and two children of Jimmy Kerrigan, "The Squealer," also live in Tanqua, while Kerrigan is loafing about the country, despised by nearly everyone that knows him.

IN OUR SPRING GARB

BEHOLD US NOW.

OUR PREPARATION COMPLETE!

Every Modern Novelty on View!

ON MONDAY APRIL 2, 1883

We shall inaugurate the season with an exhibition of Spring Fabrics which we openly assert has never been approached in this Territory

DRESS GOODS AND SILKS!

In these departments we are specially prepared to place before the public every conceivable novelty procurable in the eastern markets. In former years our space was limited and our light was bad, but this season everything is changed. Our establishment now is the most commodious in the Territory, and our light cannot be excelled by any store in the United States.

Dress Trimmings, Buttons, Gimps, Fringes, Ornaments, Etc.

In former seasons we have carefully noted the numerous complaints of the scarcity of desirable goods of this description in Walla Walla, and this season we made our preparations accordingly. From the leading trimming houses of New York we have selected this season an assortment of those goods which has excited the profound admiration of ladies who have already examined them.

French Sateens, Percates, Lawns, Sere Suckers, Suitings, Piques, Cretonnes.

In these departments we have on view an elegantly appointed stock of those goods which in brilliancy of appearance has never been approached in this city.

Our Specialty--Black Silks, Summer Wraps from New York and Boston, Antique Guipure and Bunting, Lace Curtains, Hosiery in Endless Variety, Special Novelties in Lace Goods, Persian Table Covers, Etc., Etc.

LADIES' AND CHILDREN'S SHOES!

In this department we are now prepared to compete with any house on the Pacific Coast. We receive all goods of this description direct from the most celebrated Eastern Manufacturers. We claim that our prices are 25 cents lower than any house in this Territory, and we are anxious to prove it. We have been charged with selling shoes away under regular prices as an "advertisement"--that charge is perfectly true, it is an "advertisement," and what is more, it is going to remain so. Some houses deal exclusively in boots and shoes, and boast of that fact. We sell dry goods, clothing, and boots and shoes, but what we boast of is our prices. It is an undiscovered philosophy that will induce the public to pay $5 for a pair of shoes in a house that deals exclusively in boots and shoes, while they can buy the same for $4 in a house that sells dry goods, clothing and boots and shoes.

BRILLIANT LIGHT!

Every body who has ever entered any establishment to purchase dry good need not be told of the insupportable boon of having good light. In a dark store a lady cannot tell cotton from wool, or dark blue from black, consequently it is absolutely impossible for a person to exercise their own judgment at all. You may just as well take what you get and say nothing because in reality you have no choice in the matter. All kinds of goods look well in the dark, and where the goods are "shoddy" a dark store is a great advantage to the store-keeper. In our establishment the light is as perfect as in any dry goods house in America. In this connection we make no assertion whatever, we are dealing with facts that exist as clear as daylight. You can tell the colors of an article in any part of our store as clearly as you could outside in the street. If goods have any defects there is no possible way of concealing them. If goods are solid, or ship worn, or faded with the sun, you cannot tell anything about it in a dark store, but you find it out when you go home, and perhaps you live so far away that it wouldn't be possible for you to return them. When people pay their money they like to see what they are getting; they are not buying on chance, they are not dealing in a lottery, they are paying their money, which they invariably have to work for, and they (unfortunately for dark stores) like to judge for themselves.

OUR PRICES AND OUR SYSTEM!

We are assured of the fact that each and every lady who has entered our establishment knows that Doheny & Marum completely demolished the structure of high prices in Walla Walla.

We Were Only Half Prepared.

In former years with limited space, with bad light and with scanty stock, we were unprepared to meet public requirements, and were hampered in our ambition to remodel the trade of this city.

NOW WE ARE PREPARED!

Having now a vast assortment of dry goods, clothing and boots and shoes purchased direct from the manufacturers, we are prepared to guarantee our prices as low as any house in San Francisco.

ONE PRICE--All Goods Marked in Plain Figures!

These principles were unknown in this territory when we inaugurated them a few years ago, but at present large numbers of storekeepers throughout the country are commencing to "advertise" one price. This is a clear illustration that the business men of this territory are forced to admit that the principles we laid down are the correct ones.

On Monday, April 2d, and following days we respectfully invite the public to visit our establishment.

 When to Sow Spring Grains.

Many are willing, says an exchange, to make the condition of the soil as regards dryness the criterion for sowing. Although they may plow and cultivate the ground as soon as dry enough, they are not disposed to sow their seed until it is warm enough for it to germinate and grow rapidly. They contend that seed sown when all the conditions of favorable growth prevail, will germinate quicker, come up thicker, make stronger and more vigorous plants, and push forward with greater power to overcome obstacles and disease or the attacks of insects, than that sown in unfavorable conditions, coming up thinly, and feebly, and making a slow and feeble growth. They contend that plants never fully recover from a check received in their earlier growth. If these conclusions are correct, and we think that they are sustained by science as well as by experience, it would not seem difficult to arrive at some rule or rules for spring seeding. In the first place, as soon as the soil is in condition to till without injury, it should be prepared, and thoroughly prepared, for seeding. Then, if the weather is cold and unpropitious, withhold the seed until there is a favorable change and a prospect of continued warm weather. This favorable change may occur the latter part of April, or it may not occur until May, but until it does occur it is not advisable to put the seed in the ground. Farmers are pretty close observers of the weather, and can generally determine quite correctly, when a warmer change has occurred, whether it is likely to continue. With the improved drills now in use, seed can be sown quite rapidly, and the seed bed is prepared, and a very few days will suffice to drill in all the spring grain our farmers are in the practice of sowing. It is certainly a great satisfaction to a farmer to see his grain come up promptly after sowing and exhibit a broad blade and a healthy green color. This result is only attained when the soil is rich, finely pulverized, moist and warm, and not much is gained by sowing before these conditions are fulfilled. —Agricultural World.

THE BEST OF ALL LINIMENTS FOR MAN OR BEAST.
 The man who shot into Giteaux's cell, was tried by military court-martial and sentenced to eight years imprisonment. He has served out about one year of the term. Since his imprisonment over 900,000 citizens of the United States have signed petitions to the President for his pardon. The latest petition was from the New York Garfield Club, and contained 175,000 names. The petitions were referred to Secretary of War, Robt. T. Lincoln, by the President. The most noticeable feature of the case, however, is this: A lawyer named J. G. Bigelow of Washington City, undertook to procure Mason's pardon, as was asserted at the time, as a gratuitous labor, in the belief and assertion that as a matter of justice the pardon should be granted. Sergeant Mason has a wife and child left destitute by his incarceration. They excited the sympathy of the country, which poured in its subscriptions for their support in small sums until the aggregate reached a considerable amount. Of this money $3,500 was handed to Mrs. Mason's credit, and now this lawyer Bigelow comes forward in a suit, claiming the whole of it for his services. The public will draw its own conclusions as to the justice of his claim, from the matter as stated. The comment of the Albany (N. Y.) News on the subject is to the point. That journal says:
