A REAL HERO.—Two weeks ago on board an English steamer a little ragged boy, aged nine years, was discovered on the fourth day of the outward voyage from Liverpool to New York, and carried before the first mate, whose duty it is to deal with such cases. When questioned as to the object of his being stowed away, and who brought him on board, the boy, who had a beautiful sunny face and eyes that looked like the very mirrors of truth, replied that his stepfather did it, because he could not afford to keep him, nor to pay his passage out to Halifax, where he had an aunt that was well off, and to whose house he was going. The mate did not believe the story, in spite of the winning face and truthful accents of the boy. He had seen too much of stow-aways to be easily deceived by them, he said; and it was his firm conviction that the boy had been brought on board and provided with food by the sailors. The little fellow was very badly used in consequence. Day by day he was questioned and questioned, but always with the same result. He did not know a sailor on board, and his father alone had secreted him and given him the food which he ate.

At last the mate, wearied by the boy's persistence in the same story, and perhaps a little anxious to inculcate the sailors, seized him one day by the collar and dragging him to the fore, told him that unless he confessed the truth in ten minutes from that time he would hang him on the yard arm. He then made him sit down under it on the deck. All around him were the passengers and the sailors of the mid-way watch, and in front of him stood the inexorable mate, with his chronometer in his hand, and the other officers of the ship by his side. It was the finest sight, said our informant, that we had ever beheld—to see the pale, proud, sorrowful face of that noble boy, his head erect, his beautiful eyes bright through the tears that suffused them. When eight minutes had fled, the mate told him he had but two minutes to live and advised him to speak the truth and save his life; but he replied, with the utmost simplicity and sincerity, by asking the mate if he might pray.

The mate said nothing, but nodded his head and turned as pale as a ghost, and shook with trembling like a reed with the wind. And there, all eyes turned on him, this brave and noble little fellow, this poor wretch from society owned not, and whose own stepfather could not care for him—there he knelt with clasped hands and eyes upraised to Heaven, while he repeated audibly the Lord's Prayer, and prayed the dear Lord Jesus to take him to Heaven.

Our informant adds that there then occurred a scene as of Pentecost. Sobs broke from strong, hard hearts, as the mate sprang forward to the boy and clasped him to his bosom, and kissed him and blessed him, and told him how sincerely he now believed his story, and how glad he was that he had been brave enough to face death and be willing to sacrifice his life for the truth of his own word.

The following story is told by a New York paper: "A little seven year old living in Waterford, Saratoga county, taking pattern of his father, stoutly avowed himself a democrat. His grandfather, who is a republican, promised him a pony and carriage if he would desert his colors and declare himself a republican. The next morning at breakfast, Freddy looked very grave, and was uncommunicative. After a brief meal he arose and went into the kitchen, where Bridget was at work. Resting his head upon his hands, he indulged in deep meditation for a moment; then suddenly looking up he asked: "Bridget, do you know what I am?" "No," said the girl. "Well, I will tell you," said he; "I am a darned old copperhead." "What," said Bridget, "I tell you I am a darned old copperhead, the meanest kind of a democrat." This settled the case, and Freddy clings to his party at the sacrifice of pony and carriage.

THERE is an old English statute which prohibits people from getting married after a certain hour in the day, because such a solemn obligation ought to be entered into only when the parties are duly sober!

ONE BY ONE.

"One by one the sands are flowing,
One by one the moments fall;
Some are coming, some are going,
Do not strive to grasp them all."

"One by one thy duties fall thee,
Let thy whole strength go to each;
Let no future dreams elude thee,
Learn thou first what these can teach."

"One by one (bright gifts from Heaven),
Joys are sent thee here below;
Take them readily when given,
Ready, too, to let them go."

"One by one thy griefs shall meet thee,
Do not fear an armed band;
One will fade as others greet thee,
Shadows passing through the land."

"Do not look at life's long sorrows;
See how small each moment's pain;
God will help thee for to-morrow,
So each day begin again."

"Every hour that flees so slowly,
Has its task to do or bear;
Luminous the crown—and holy,
If thou set each gem with care."

"Do not linger with regretting,
Or for passing hours despond;
Nor, the daily toil forgetting,
Look too eagerly beyond."

"Hours are golden links, God's tokens,
Reaching Heaven; but one by one
Take them, let the chain be broken
Ere the pilgrimage be done."

Address of Marshall F. Moore.

TO THE VOTERS OF WASHINGTON TERRITORY.

In consequence of the lateness of the canvass, the wide extent of territory to travel over, and want of physical strength occasioned by wounds received in the defence of my country, I shall be unable to visit all sections and see and converse with all my fellow citizens. It is my purpose, however, to visit every county in the Territory prior to election day, and add as much as possible to my present knowledge of the wants and interests of the whole country. I came to the Territory to make it my permanent home, and whether elected to Congress or not, it will still be my home. Since my arrival in the Territory, some two years ago, I have spent a large share of my time, and more than the entire amount of my salary, in traveling over the country to acquaint myself with its resources and its citizens in every section. I did not come here "to feast upon your bouquets and leave you in time of sorest need," neither have I at any time been impelled to leave a Territory, State, or the United States, when my services were needed in its defence. The nomination for delegate to Congress was not sought by me, much less forced upon the convention at Vancouver. I am before you bound to no clique, faction or monopoly. I have no ends of my own to subserve, no enemies to punish, nor private friends to reward. If elected, I shall do my duty honestly and faithfully as the representative of every class, every section and every interest. It shall be my constant aim to foster and encourage all important railroad schemes relating to the Territory; its agricultural, commercial, manufacturing and mineral resources, and aid as far as in me lies, its speedy growth in population and material wealth. I shall pay special attention to the building of light houses, fortifications and defenses on our sea coast and harbors, and in the improvement of our river navigation; the opening of roads, the construction of bridges, government buildings, and every enterprise calculated to benefit the country.

It is not to be presumed that appropriations for these purposes will depend upon the politics of the man who urges them. Work is what is needed to accomplish this—not speech-making, but work in the common miter, with individual members and influential friends, both in Congress and out of Congress. My services in the late war enable me to rely confidently upon the friendship and hearty co-operation of all my old comrades in the field, and not even doubting the President himself. My acquaintance with the various Heads of Department in Washington City, and with the leading men in the East, will assist me in securing prompt attention to the adjustment of private claims, accounts, general correspondence, &c. Having no vote in Congress, my time will not be occupied in the discussion of national politics to the neglect of the interests of the Territory of Washington. In the settlement of our claims against England, growing out of the Alabama crusade, the weight of my influence shall be in favor of our own Government, and upon the (to us) important question in connection therewith, I shall resist to the fullest extent of my ability any encroachment upon the boundaries of our Territory upon the North, or the relinquishment by the Government of San Juan Island and the other Islands of that Archipelago.

Standing before you, my fellow-citizens, as the nominee of the democratic party of Washington Territory, I confidently appeal to you, and to the conservative sentiment of the country, to decide upon the integrity and fidelity with which I shall fulfill all my promises and honestly represent you in Congress.

AN EXCHANGE tells of two young men in Nashville, Tennessee, who loved two sisters and were cruelly refused. They then went to the bridge crossing the river, and with one last look to heaven, one farewell glance at the earth, one thought of their loved, they together—were rescued by a friend, who opportunely appeared on the scene, and invited them to take a drink.

Two walking sticks; a broom; one dozen pair of woolen socks—nice for spring; pair of boots—eagle on the legs; one pup; four years' pew rent; and his picture, are Grant's latest gifts. "He gathers them in; he gathers them in."

IS AMERICAN LIBERTY DYING?

What is reconstruction? Another name for despotism. What are the ideas of the American republican party? A monarchy under a new phase. Look, all ye, whose fathers fought to lay the foundation of such a glorious government as we were blessed with up to the year A. D. 1860; contemplate the condition of the reconstructed States of the South, and then ask yourselves, if such were the expected fruits of the struggle of '76. The election is over. Grant, the man of luck, yesterday the unknown, unheard of; today, whose name is upon every tongue, is placed, by fraud and deception, into the office once held by a Washington and a Jefferson. His elevation was only obtained by crushing out the rights of the South; the rights of her sons, whose fathers fought and died to lay the foundation of that freedom, which the party who have elected Grant now rob those sons of.

If the shadow of that revered and honored rebel, Washington, who righteously rebelled when on earth against the despotism which England sought to inflict upon her colonies, now walks amid the political and social chaos of Virginia, that State so loved by the Father of his country, what must it think of the picture presented.

In Western Virginia, there are no less than twenty-five thousand disfranchised citizens; men, who the Constitution declares, never can again become citizens. Born on her soil, living there all their lives, taxed heavily to support the municipal, State and National governments, these men are nevertheless aliens on the spot where they first drew their breath, on the soil to defend which their father's best blood was spilled.

In the county of Greenbrier alone there are fourteen hundred disfranchised men, comprising the wealth, intelligence, and moral worth of the locality; and in the town, out of a population of twelve hundred, there are only eight voters. In West Virginia, there are not less than twenty-five thousand men, who are not allowed to hold office, sit on a jury, teach a public school, obtain judgment on old debts due them, or enforce contracts; while at the same time all these men are not only taxed, but taxed eight times heavier than before the war. Not one of these men vote. Do you now see how this man Grant was elected? God help our liberties.

But this is not all. Each county has a Board of Registration. The Boards control every office in Virginia. They can unseat any man from office who is not a voter. No man can hold office who is not a voter. No man is a voter who is not registered, or even when registered, can remain thus on the books, without the consent of the Board. These Boards can scratch the name of any official, high or low, from the list, and he drops at once into oblivion, powerless and officially dead. Was there ever such a despotism on God's earth before, among civilized nations? Never. Citizens of the United States, do you see now the secret of the election of U. S. Grant? Do you understand the cause of the death of liberty in this once free and beautiful land? Do you see the secret of this inexplicable sympathy which Russia entertained for the administration which came into power in 1860? Russia, one of the most brutal, heartless, shameless, degrading governments on earth, three quarters of whose people are ignorant and debased serfs to-day, despite their so-called emancipation. This Russia, is the firm friend of the dominant party of this country; no wonder there is a bond of union between them. In political principles, in ideas of progress and reform, they are perfectly in accord.

But the picture of the hour is a sad one to contemplate. Liberty is dying. Despotism of the most atrocious character is assuming its place. One more struggle only is left for patriotism. It has now begun, and will culminate in 1872. That is to be the eventful epoch of our history. On the evening of the 4th of November, 1872, the sun is to set upon the American Republic with all its beauty and simplicity restored, or it will introduce to the world that political monster, an American monarchy. The conflict that will settle that question has now begun; whether it will be waged from now to that hour, by opinion, or by force, remains to be seen. That it will rage ere the close of the coming administration, like a hurricane, is almost an absolute certainty.

Thank God, the right of resistance to tyrants is heaven-born. Patriots gird up your loins. The cup of our political misery is almost full. We have borne long and patiently. Forbearance has ceased to be a virtue. We tell our domestic tyrants to beware. They stand over a volcano. The fires are raging; and when the elements burst forth, as they will, when insulted, spit upon, crushed, and dying Liberty, breathes its last, God have mercy upon their miserable, guilty souls; for that mercy will be needed. Man will show none.

This picture in Virginia foreshadowed the vote for Grant. The like picture in other States helped on the fraud. Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Missouri, North and South Carolina, gave the same picture of debasement and white slavery.

Let the thinking minds of this apparently dying Republic remember that "when Cæsar meditated the invasion of Britain, the great Roman Republic was not dead, but every new breath seemed to betoken the action of a malady that must soon prove fatal. Marius, Sulla, and Cataline, had done their work, and their history had revealed the general corruption of the times. Faction had taken the place of patriotism; selfishness had consumed public spirit. All that men like Cato and Cicero could do, in the face of the enemy of the Commonwealth, was to break the force of the fall which had become inevitable. Laws which had been just and wise so long as the citizens to be governed by them were virtuous and few, were made to observe all evil purposes now that the citizens had become to the last degree unprincipled, and grown to be almost innumerable. The province of government had been restricted to the narrowest limits that good men might be secured against oppression. But the time had come in which had men abused the liberty which good men only had known how to use. Nowhere was it more needed than in Rome, that the government should be strong. But nowhere was a government of that nature more impracticable on the basis of existing law. Rome had become a den of desperate gamblers, and the winnings which the chances of the game were to distribute, consisted of the plunder to be obtained from the provinces which the Republic had subdued. Time was when men in Rome cared about guarding the public honor and augmenting the public virtue; but the greatest effort now was, how to appropriate public functions as a means of access to the public wealth. No man knew better than Cæsar, that when a Republic has passed into such a state, its days are numbered. It deserves to perish. When it loses the power of self government it needs a master, and it is the law of Providence in such cases that the master shall come.

Has our master come? Not yet—not yet. When he does, he and his, shall be made to wade through seas of blood for his throne and his crown.—Ex-henry.

ANECDOTE OF THE ELDER BOOTH.

Mr. Elihu Burritt contributes to the February number of Packard's Monthly an interesting article, under the title of 'Breathing a Living Soul into Dead Words,' in which the following anecdote is told of the elder Booth:

The elder Booth was a man who threw into his impenetrations an amount of heart and soul which his originals scarcely have equalled. He did Richard III to the life and more. He had made human passions, emotions and experiences his life's study. He could not only act but feel rage, love, despair, hate, ambition, fury, hope, and revenge, with a depth and force that half amazed his auditors. He could transmute himself into the hero of his impersonation, and he could breathe a power into other men's written words which, perhaps, was never surpassed. And what is rather remarkable, when he was inclined to give illustrations of this faculty to private circles, he would pass from Job, David or Isaiah, or other holy men of old. When an aspiring young professor of Harvard University went to him by night, to ask a little advice or instruction in qualifying himself for an orator, the veteran tragedian opened the Bible and read a few verses from Isaiah in a way that made the Cambridge scholar tremble with awe, as if the prophet had risen from the dead and were uttering his sublime visions in his ears. He was then residing in Baltimore, and a pious urbane old gentleman of that city, hearing of his wonderful power of elocution, one day invited him to dinner, although strongly deprecating the stage, and all theatrical performances.

A large company sat down to the table, and on returning to the drawing room, one of them requested Booth as a special favor to then all, to repeat the Lord's Prayer. He signified his willingness to gratify them, and at eyes were fixed upon him. He slowly and reverently rose from his chair, trembling with the burden of two great conceptions. He had to realize the character, attributes and presence of the Almighty Being he was to address. He was to transform himself into a poor, sinning, stumbling, benighted, needy supplicant, offering homage, asking bread, pardon, light and guidance. Says one of the company present: "It was wonderful to watch the play of emotions that convulsed his countenance. He became deathly pale, and his eyes, turned tremblingly upward, were wet with tears. As yet he had not spoken. The silence could be felt; it had become absolutely painful, until at last the spell was broken as if by an electric shock, as his rich-toned voice, from white lips, syllabled forth, 'Our Father, which art in heaven,' &c., with pathos and fervid solemnity that thrilled all hearts. He finished; the silence continued, not a voice was heard nor a muscle moved in his rapt audience, until from a remote corner of the room, a subdued sob was heard, and the old gentleman (the host) stepped forward with streaming eyes and tottering frame and seized Booth by the hand. 'Sir,' said he, in broken accents, 'you have afforded me a pleasure for which my whole future life will feel grateful. I am an old man, and every day, from boyhood to the present time, I thought I had repeated the Lord's Prayer, but I never heard it before, never.' 'You are right,' replied Booth. 'To read that prayer as it should be read, caused me the severest study and labor for thirty years, and I am far from being satisfied with my rendering of that wonderful production. Hardly one person in ten thousand comprehends how much beauty, tenderness and grandeur can be condensed in a space so small and in words so simple. That prayer itself sufficiently illustrates the truth of the Bible, and stamps upon it the seal of divinity.' 'So great was the effect produced,' says our informant, 'that conversation was suspended but a short time longer, in subdued monosyllables, and almost entirely ceased; and soon after, at an early hour, the company broke up and retired to their several homes, with sad faces and full hearts.'

A MAN who was arrested for stealing goods at a fire, the other day, pleaded in excuse for an extenuation of his conduct, that he had been in the place but a few days, and hadn't learnt the rules.

GRAFTING AND BUDDING.

Having a practical knowledge of more than forty years in grafting and budding fruit trees, I have thought proper to communicate some of my experience, with a hope that it may benefit some of your readers.

Scions or grafts may be secured any time between November and April, before the buds are much swelled in spring; they should be put, till wanted, in some cool place, neither too damp, nor too dry, where they will neither grow nor die.

In grafting a thrifty-grown pear or apple tree, which has been bearing for a number of years, I adopt this method:—Saw off the most upright branches, where they are two or three inches in diameter, the stumps being pared off smooth; make three or four cuts, at different places, down just through the bark an inch or more; raise the bark on one side, only of the incision, to its full extent, for the reception of the grafts; let the grafts be shaved down on one side, like a tooth pie; insert them in the places made for their reception, close to that side not raised; press them down; tie them fast with some woolen or cotton yarn. This should be done about the middle of May to the first of June, or even till July. I have found, from repeated experience, this to be the best time for the operation; they knit much quicker, heal up better, and are not so liable to sprout. In the place of grafting wax, I use a composition of clay, fresh cow and horse manure, equal parts of each, with some hair; mix it up with some water to the proper consistency; place this around and on top of the stump, about one inch in thickness. If the weather remains dry for a day or two afterwards, it will require no rags to support it.

Budding or inoculating in many cases answers better than grafting. Stone fruit, in particular, is mostly performed on small trees or branches. Most people I find, think it can only be done in the month of August; but it can be done from May to September; the last, when the tree is full of sap and the bark separates freely from the wood, is the time to perform this operation, which is generally done in this manner: Take a branch of the summer's growth, which you wish to propagate; cut off about an inch, with the bud in the middle; split in two, the part that holds the bud to be shaved down, with little wood in the middle and none at the ends; let the leaf or its stem remain; then make two cuts in the tree just through the bark, like a T upside down; raise the bark, and slide it up as far as it will go; press it down; tie it there with soft woolen or cotton yarn; let the core of the yarn press on the bud; and at the end of two or three weeks it may be loosened.

The following spring, if alive, the top of the tree may be taken off about one inch above the bud. The morning and evening is considered the best time to perform this operation, and where it will be shaded.—Cor. Gen. Telegraph.

THE MUSICAL FISH.—One day as I was returning to Tallahassee, from a hunting excursion, in Florida, says a recent traveler, "we were rowing along by the shore, about sunset, when suddenly a strange, grave, and prolonged sound struck my ear. At first I thought it must be a drone, or fly of extraordinary magnitude; but seeing nothing I questioned my guide as to what it would be. 'Oh, massa,' he replied, 'dat is de fish what hab de lab poison.' 'Lab poison! and pray what's that?' 'Yes, massa; when you eat one ob dese fish, you fall to sleep in lab and you can never get out again.' I tried to laugh my black friend out of his notion, but in vain. In spite of what he said, however, I had my musics fried that evening, and found, as I expected, that I was none the worse for the experiment. The musician fish is white, with a few blue spots near the belly. It is about sunset when these fish begin to sing, and they continue their music during the night, imitating the grave and sonorous droning of an organ, just as it reaches your ear when you stand outside a church.

THE LITTLE ONES.—Do you ever think how much a little child does in a day? How from sunrise to sunset the dear little patter around to us—so aimlessly. Climbing up here, kneeling down there, running to another place, but never still. Twisting and turning, rolling and reaching, and doubling. If testing every bone and muscle for their future uses. It is very curious to watch it. One who does so will understand the deep breathing of the rosy little sleeper, as with one arm tossed over its curly head, it prepares for the next day's gymnastics. A busy creature is a little child.

HENRY ANSOLO, an Englishman residing in Pennsylvania, committed suicide by hanging himself on the 18th of April. He said, as his wife sat down to read the bible, that the people of this country were becoming too religious for him to live here any longer, and went to the barn and hanged himself. He'll not be troubled much with religion hereafter.

A WASTING paper complains that times are so hard, that folks in that section find it very difficult to make "both ends meet." They are not cut to make "times" we have here, where there is not one man in fifty who can find either end, let alone make them meet.

Character of Southern Loyalty.

That infernal, hell-blasted villain, Wm. G. Brownlow, made his appearance in East Tennessee upon the adjournment of the Executive session of the United States Senate, of which he and several other notorious scoundrels are leading members. The consequence was that a new reign of persecution, despotism, outrage and bloodshed, was at once instituted. A telegram from Nashville asserts that some of the members of the Southern Methodist church have lately been assaulted and tortured by Brownlow's loyal ku klux, for the offense of preaching Christ and him crucified after being ordered to desist. At a place about six miles from the city of Nashville, in Middle Tennessee, on the 27th of April, at night time, the Rev. Jacob Smith, a quiet and unassuming minister of the gospel was assaulted by an armed mob of Brownlowites. He was taken from the brother's house where he was stopping, to the woods, and there stripped to the shirt, and tied to a tree in his nakedness with strong cords, and unmercifully beaten. This outrage took place near the spot, where, a short time since, Rev. Mr. Neal, another Southern Methodist preacher, was shamefully beaten and maltreated. The persecution of the preaching Christians by the loyalists in Tennessee equals almost the persecution of the early martyrs.

This is but one account of a system of outrages so damnable in their character, that were the world not created, the influence of its christian sympathies would be exerted to their abolition by any and every means. But as it is in this country at present, so long as the leaders can steal from the people's treasury and have the means to feed their corrupt partisans, were the blood hounds of the world set upon the helpless women and babes of the South, no hand would be reached to stay the slaughter, so long as the system of oppression of the South pays a dividend in the North!

But the character of Southern "loyalty," so called, can best be ascertained by referring to the details of the deeds committed in its name. The barbarism of the dark days, of the pagans of Central India, or of the cannibals of the South Sea Islands, is not more revolting than the major number of the deeds of blood and rapine which characterize the triumph and rule of what is known as "loyalty" in the trampled South.

When it is considered that the white villains, who are the rulers and dispense a sort of crude "justice" based upon the unwritten character of the negroes—those mostly who were unscrupulous, and uncivilized in slavery times—we see upon what a slender thread the life and property of a Southern christian hangs. And yet to keep this power up in the South, Congress has done everything in its reach, the army and navy is at its back, and the North applauds, and cries Amen! But a coward by nature, a villain at heart, and a devil by education only will applaud such doings. As ye sow, ye shall reap; and we say to the hypocritical and pharisaical North that the harvest of sorrows which they will some day reap in reward for the seed they have sown, will fill every home with a ghost and every heart with sorrows and moanings.—Democratic Watchman.

"LAND, labor, and money," is the battle-cry of the new party which is arraying the toilers, the producers, against the blasted, loafing, hand-lord drones. The sound coming up to the ear in Wall street, is the distant rumbling of a storm which may prostrate those who have had their heels on the necks of the people. The members of the new party are "some on their muscles," and don't handle their tools with gloves.

I speak what I know when I say that every dollar appropriated by Congress for the Sioux Indians during the last ten years, eighty cents has been stolen, and only twenty cents have reached the poor Indian.

A CLEAN SWEEP.—The advices from all parts of the Territory are cheering. Moore will beat Garfield on the Sound, and while some of the river counties may give Garfield small majorities, they will come to the Cascades about even, and Moore will be elected by the democratic majorities east of the mountains.

State of Washington.

At the last session of the Legislature a law was adopted submitting to the people of the Territory the question of calling a Constitutional Convention, preliminary to asking for admission into the Union.

Our expectations in that regard have not been realized, and hence it is doubtful whether, at this time, the people of the Territory are prepared to favor the State movement.

With them all considerations that relate to the public good are lost sight of, and the one sole idea is that of obtaining power and place. As a necessary result, those "personal organs" are without influence, and their favoring a measure is calculated to dampen it rather than improve its prospects.

A RADICAL EDITOR ON CARPET BAGGERS.—The editor of the Chicago Tribune, the leading radical paper of that city and the Northwest, is now in Louisiana, and in writing to his paper, gives the opinion of the carpet-bagger from the North, who infect the South as the locusts did Egypt, denouncing everything they find.

THEY (the rebels) entertain an irrevocable animosity against carpet bag office seekers, and I really cannot blame them for it. It is a plausible fact that a very large majority of these gentry are scamps and thieves; rotten driftwood who have been floated down the Mississippi, and squatted on the offices.

Reward of Loyalty.

General Grant rewards loyalty and devoted service in the cause of the Union, says the New Hampshire Patriot, in a very significant manner. For instance, he removed General Blair from office and appointed General Longstreet to another, on the same day.

General Blair was one of the most able, active and efficient of the Generals of the Union army, and Longstreet was one of the most able, active and efficient. Generals of the rebel army. Again, he has removed from the Governorship of New Mexico the gallant General Mitchell, and appointed Colonel Crow in his place.

Hundreds of cases have already occurred in which soldiers and officers of the Union army have been removed from office to make places for stay-at-home patriots. Their "war record" did not save them, nor does their devotion to radicalism.

Speech of Hon. Frank P. Dugan.

The largest audience that has assembled in this city for a long time, met at Cosgrove & Bender's Hall, on Friday evening last, to listen to a speech from the above named gentleman, upon "Reconstruction, Finance, and the Corruptions of the radical, so-called Republican, party during the past five years."

The speaker handled the subject of Reconstruction in a manner entirely different to any speaker we have yet heard upon the subject, and showed conclusively that all the legislation upon that subject by Congress was revolutionary in its tendencies and entirely outside of the Constitution.

Not Satisfactory.

EDITOR STATESMAN.—In answer to a communication addressed to the Councilmen elect and able candidates for the Legislature, concerning the course to be pursued by them in making our election laws conform to the law of Congress

Mr. Caton took occasion to say that he was opposed to lengthening the term of any county officer, and Mr. J. D. Mix and others agreed with Mr. Caton. This answer may be satisfactory to them, but it is not satisfactory to many democratic voters.

Mr. Caton, we are opposed to lengthening the term of any county officer, and we are also opposed to a special election in 1871, for the purpose of electing county officers.

SEVENTH MAILS.—From and after this date, the Walla Walla Post Office will be open on Sunday morning, between the hours of 9 and 10 o'clock.

THE GLORIOUS FOURTH.—We see the people every where are moving for the celebration of this great day. Shall Walla Walla be less patriotic!

CHANGE OF PLACE.—The speaking of the candidates as announced in the "posters" for Hendricks' School House, is changed to the upper Camp Ground, on Mill Creek. The speaking will commence at 10 A. M. Luncheon at 12. A cordial invitation is extended to the ladies.

THE RAISES.—The showers we have had for the past few days have added greatly to the crops in the Valley, and we will have a big yield. Everything is "big" this year—big crops, big democratic majorities and big prospects for our Territory. So let the growers dry up, and let us all rejoice over "the good time coming."

GOVERNMENT TRANSPORTATION.—The contracts to transport from Walla Walla to Boise City 150,000 lbs. Government freight; to Camp Three Forks, Owyhee, 200,000 lbs.; to Fort Lapwai, 200,000; to Fort Colville, 200,000, were each and all awarded to Messrs. Jordan & Co., of Walla Walla, they being the lowest bidders. The same gentlemen obtained the contract to supply Fort Lapwai with 200,000 lbs. grain.

KOOTENAI MINES.—Mr. Buckley, the packer, who arrived from Kootenai on Wednesday last, brings favorable reports from the mines. On Perry Creek, four men in three days took out $1400. But little doing on the Creek and only a few claims being worked on account of high water. A new camp has lately been discovered eight miles north of Perry Creek that prospects well. The old Kootenai diggings show their usual richness, and altogether the miners anticipate a prosperous season.

COLD COMFORT.—A story is told at the expense of the radical candidate for Sheriff in this county, which is worth relating: A friend had just returned from Waukegan, and our aspirant was anxious to learn the political feeling in that quarter. "Do they say anything about candidates out there?" he asked, assuming an indifferent air. "Well not much; I heard the merits of some of the nominees discussed." Our radical friend's personal interest was aroused, and he said: "Did any of them speak about me out there?" "About you? Yes, I believe I did hear your name mentioned. Somebody said they had just had gone to White Pine, and were all glad of it. About this time our friend Day thought his chance for Sheriff were about gone up, and concluded he would not ask any more questions.

COURT ADJOURNED.—On Wednesday last the docket was almost entirely cleared, as there were only some half dozen continued cases out of the seventy-six left on the docket. The press of other matter will prevent a detailed statement of the disposition made of the various cases. One of the most interesting cases tried, was the case of Abner R. O'Rourke, as it involved many nice questions of law connected with water rights, licenses, easements, &c., and was thoroughly discussed by Messrs. Mix and George for the plaintiff, and Lusater, Sharpstein, and Johnson for the defendant. Irrigation being an important matter in this Valley, the various questions growing out of the use of water will grow in importance. We have heard the opinion expressed by some that the Legislature should enact a law by which water might be more generally taken from our streams for purposes of irrigation, and we commend the subject to the consideration of the members that may be elected from this county. M. Goran, convicted of an assault with intent to kill, was sentenced to one year in the penitentiary. Several other criminal cases of minor importance were disposed of besides the ones named in our last issue.

WHITE PINE ITEMS.—A former resident of Walla Walla, writing from White Pine, under date of May 20th, furnishes the following: "We have very disagreeable weather at this time; yesterday and the day before the wind made it almost impossible to get around; I have seen a good deal of changeable weather in different countries, but this is the most disagreeable and changeable of all. As far as the country is concerned, in my opinion it is looking up; one 20-hp mill and several smaller mills will be in operation next week, when as a matter of course the yield of bullion will increase, miners will get their ore crushed cheaper and more of it, and there will be more bullion shipped out of the country and more money shipped in. When business comes down to a legitimate channel and property and real estate is held at reasonable figures, more money will change hands and times improve. A great deal of the floating population is leaving here, and we are fast getting rid of the class of men who live from hand to mouth. As I predicted, Hamilton is going ahead of all her competitors in improvements and general prosperity. Already we have an opera house, fine saloons and hotels, and telegraph communication East and West.—Of adventures from your section of country, I notice W. A. Ball and Nat. Thompson, who are keeping a club room and doing well. Sam. Linkton is on the bill, speculating in feet; I think he has made some money. W. C. Childs is on the bill, in the express business, he has invested in feet, but has not realized much. Old Joe Teall, formerly of the Dalles, and a very great roger, got in from Oregon the other day with a large head of cattle. Joe is bound to make money—money if he can. Geo. Thatcher, who also hails from the Dalles, is established at Sherr's bar, where he keeps a saloon. Harry Dean is running a job wagon. Jim Chadsey is here and is holding his own. Jim Graham is in the saloon business and doing very well; Jim is a whole-souled fellow and deserves to succeed. Dock Tompkins and Harry Boyle are in the Dalles. From the above list you will see that Walla Walla is well represented at White Pine, and even this list fails to include the names of many persons who hail from your locality."

THE EFFECT OF Dr. Walker's Vinegar Bitters, when taken for their cathartic properties, are very different from those of any other medicine prepared specifically for that purpose. There is no nausea or disturbance of the stomach, and instead of causing any sense of languor or debility, it seems rather to invigorate the whole system, and excite the keenest appetite.

RUNAWAY AND CAPTURE.—A sad case of domestic infelicity has lately come to light. A year or two since, a man named Eugene Crowne, a saloon keeper, was introduced into the family of F. Vetter, and for a time was welcomed as a friend. In the course of a few months, Mr. Vetter thought he detected too great an intimacy between Crowne and his (Vetter's) wife. Acting on this impression, Crowne was forbidden the house, and Mrs. Vetter was requested not to recognize him in future. Thus things passed on, but soon it was discovered that the visit was continued in the absence of the husband, and serious family quarrels were the result. Thus matters continued down to the latter part of last week, when finding it impossible to live happily together, a separation was usually agreed upon between Vetter and his wife. They had two children, both girls, aged respectively about 7 and 4 years. The father took the eldest child, and the mother the youngest one, a very interesting little girl.

These matters remained down to yesterday (Thursday) afternoon, when it was discovered that Crowne had decamped, taking with him Mrs. Vetter and the little girl. Parties had seen the runaways on the road to Wallula, and the fact coming to the knowledge of Mr. Vetter, he at once had a warrant sworn out for the recovery of his child, and placing it in the hands of Sheriff McAniff, the latter started out about ten o'clock on Thursday night, to make the service. The reader will understand that it was necessary for the Sheriff to make good time, as the fugitives on board would leave Wallula at three o'clock in the morning. By hard riding, he reached the wharf just as the steamer had blown her last whistle, and found the fugitives snugly stowed away. The warrant was at once served and the little girl taken in charge by the Sheriff. At this stage of affairs the mother seemed to realize her mistake she had made, and at once announced her intention to return with the child. An early hour on Friday morning found the fugitives on their way back to Walla Walla, where they are again domiciled, and the father in possession of his child. What is to be the end of this domestic fiasco remains to be seen. Rumor has it that this is not the first affair of the kind in which Crowne has figured, and that he bears on his person scars received in an encounter with a dishonored husband. Of the wronged husband, Mr. Vetter, it is proper to say that he bears the reputation of being a quiet, industrious man, and that he has the sympathy of the whole community in his great misfortune. All agree that he was devoted to his wife, and that until the destroyer stole into their household he was the head of a happy, contented family. The wife is a woman of more than ordinary prepossessing appearance, and for the sake of her innocent children it is to be hoped that she will reconsider her rash act and return to her wily duelist.

ELOPEMENT EXTRAORDINARY.—The habits of the Phillips House, of our city, were treated to first class sensation, a day or two since, by the discovery that the steward, or head waiter, of the establishment, had induced a white girl employed in the laundry department of the hotel to elope with him, and that the twin had packed up their traps, together with a few things not their own, and left the city. The "Othello" of this affair, Dave Scurry, familiarly known about the hotel as "Ben Butler," is a "black and tan" brevet citizen of color, about thirty-five years of age, and has been connected with the Phillips', we learn about three years, during which time he has been regarded as a faithful and efficient servant, though at times rather cross and sly, with the usual downy-looking spirit peculiar to many of his race when placed in command of others. Indeed, so supercilious and overbearing, that the under-servants had, from experience learned to detest and fear him; but, probably, none had more cause therefor than the poor, weak-minded victim of his lecherous machinations, whom he has been known to treat in the most insolent and rude manner. The "gentle Desdemona" is a gushing "girl of the period," whose feet have crushed the flowers of some twenty springs, and is said to be rather prepossessing in appearance. She has been employed in the laundry department for some time, and from the cruel treatment received at his hands, it is a profound mystery that she should consent to enter upon a life of shame, disgrace and misery by going with the lustful, lecherous scoundrel. Before leaving, it is said, she took a small amount of money from the trunk of another young lady who occupied the same room with her, and also procured at Reibold's shoe-store a pair of shoes, which she had charged to the same young lady, but before leaving the city the game was discovered, and a man in the employ of Mr. Reibold recovered the shoes from Scurry, who had them in possession. The detestable couple took the 5 P. M. train on Thursday for Xenia, and are probably enjoying a felicitous honeymoon in that elysium of the sable sons of Africa.—Dayton (O.) Ledger.

A MISTAKE.—The Cincinnati Enquirer says, the popular impression that Congress had adjourned, is a mistake. It has divided itself up into traveling committees to visit different parts of the country upon a pretext or another. There are about a half dozen of these itinerant squads organized for robbing the Treasury by their pleasure excursions during the approaching summer. The Committee on Ways and Means contemplate a journey west as far as the Pacific. A sub-committee on Elections goes to New Orleans, and a sub-committee of the Judiciary goes to Mobile. The more decent way would be to appropriate a few hundred thousand dollars to maintain the whole Congressional tribe at Long Branch during the heated season.

WHEN Lord Pakenham visited New Orleans, "once upon a time," in company with some Englishmen in red jackets, with a view of dining with Gen. Jackson, he issued a proclamation to his soldiers, that they should be treated to "Buty and Beauty." What he failed to secure, however, Gen. Butler succeeded in getting at a later period, and the famous order of the latter against the ladies, makes "Beauty and the Beast," more than a stage extravaganza.

NO DISSENSIONS.—If any body supposes that any dissensions exist or can be created in the democratic ranks, any body is woefully fooled. The cry among the boys is to unfurl the banner, call in the stragglers, close up the ranks, and march upon the enemy.

MOST SHOCKING TRAGEDY.

Word was brought to this city on Sunday morning of a most shocking tragedy which occurred at the farm residence of Theodore Burmester, Esq., of Boise City, about six miles below that city in Boise Valley, during the afternoon of the day before, May 15th. Mr. Burmester had gone to Payette Valley on professional business that morning. At home were Mrs. Burmester, and their two children, both boys, aged respectively about seventeen months and three years, and two hired men. Thomas Bevans and another called John, were at work in the field. After dinner the eldest of the children, little Frank went out to the field with the men. Between three and four o'clock the man John came to the house, complaining of having badly cut his finger, and asked Mrs. Burmester to dress the wound for him. She proceeded to dress his bedroom to get some and a wrapping rag. The wretch followed her in, quickly turned the key, and made most insulting proposals to the unsuspecting lady. With indignation she bade him leave the place. At this he violently assaulted her, threw her upon the floor, and terribly bruised her face and body with blows and kicks. After this he ran from the room, and Mrs. Burmester arose, got her husband's double barreled shot gun, and on hearing the villain approach again attempted to shoot him. Unfortunately the caps snapped. He rushed out, ran to a window which looked into her room, and fired six shots from a revolver at her. One ball struck her in the right side, entered the abdominal cavity, and made a painful, very dangerous wound. She fell to the floor and fainted. Meantime the fiendish wretch, perhaps fearing exposure of the probable murder and his own terrible punishment, and maddened by failure to accomplish his first infamous desire, set fire to the house, and then shot himself. Mrs. Burmester thinks she heard him shoot twice while she lay wounded in her room. He had, however, in the first place, put the youngest child in a wagon near the house. Bevans saw the fire from the field and rushed to the scene. It is supposed that the accused cause of it saw him coming and again shot himself on the porch, where he fell and his body remained to the last. After recovering from the fainting fit Mrs. Burmester, with almost superhuman resolve and exertion, crawled from the room, out of the burning building, to a safe distance, where Bevans found her. He quickly dispatched a messenger to Boise City, and Dr. Wagner, Bishop, Stevens, Thibodo, Gov. Ballard, Judge Scaniker (law partner of Mr. Burmester) and his wife, and several other friends of the Burmesters, hastened to the spot. Messengers were sent off to hurry Mr. Burmester to the scene, and he reached the place about midnight. The building was consumed. On the porch was the body of the vile wretch who had so terribly crowded his four great crimes—of outrage, murder, arson, and suicide. An informant who was present says his arms and legs were burned to a crisp, and his brains and heart, both exposed, were literally trying, on the evening of the tragedy, as the hated corpse lay upon the charred porch, just where the fiend had fallen.

By stage of last evening we received the mournful intelligence that Mrs. Burmester had finally died of her wounds. Sincerely do we deplore the melancholy event, and offer our condolences to her grief-stricken, deeply bereaved husband. She was a most estimable lady, the daughter of Mr. Hunsacker, a wealthy farmer of Clackamas county, Oregon.—Idaho World.

OVER AND OVER AGAIN. Over and over again, No matter which way I turn, I always find in the Book of Life, Some lesson I have to learn.

The Hawaiian Divers—How it Feels to Fall Far. Sometimes the native children fix a long pole so as to project from a bank over deep water; along this they chase each other to the outermost end, leaping in regular succession into the water.

The sensations experienced by one who falls from a great height have not, I think, been described in print. A singular good fortune having made the writer of this article an expert in the Hawaiian manner, he is able to give some account of them.

A GOOD MINISTER in a country village lately prayed fervently for those of his congregation "who were too proud to kneel and too lazy to stand."

AN anti-tobacco lecturer in Georgia is of the opinion that tobacco was the "forbidden fruit" that Adam and Eve knew so much of to their sorrow.
