

PHILADELPHIA has been in trouble for some time with its tax burthen. The indications are that next year the trouble will be greater than ever.

RADICALISM vs DEMOCRACY.—The invention of reasons for "continuing the mission" of the radical party will stop by sheer exhaustion, in time not distant.

FRANCE, with a bi-metallic system, paid off an indemnity of $1,000,000 in a couple of years, and is still getting along swimmingly.

SHOULD UNDERSTAND IT.—It is just as well that the Northern radicals should understand that it is they, and not the people of the South, who are now required to bring forth fruit meet for repentance.

FOLLOWING HAYES.—A Mississippi radical says all his political opinions and calculations have been knocked into 40,000 smithereens.

WILL NOT BE TRIBLED.—The Washington correspondent of the Troy Times declares that the New York papers and politicians of that State who have denounced Sena or Conkling will not, if the statement of his friends is to be relied upon, be troubled for some time by a manifestation of the political preferences of Senator Conkling.

TIT FOR TAT.—The so-called republicans are in despair over their own inventions in South Carolina, Florida and Louisiana.

HAYES' JOKE ON GARFIELD.—The Hayes-Garfield correspondence is a fine illustration of the "true inwardness" of the present incumbent of the Presidential office.

WELL ROOTED.—Mr. Smalley says, in the New York Tribune: "In the course of two months, spent in travel in eight of the Southern States since the adjournment of Congress, I have been on the lookout to discover the beginnings of the new party, so much talked of by the Northern newspapers. Not the first sprout have I been able to find.

Our Washington Letter.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 14, 1877. EDITOR STATESMAN.—The speech of Gov. Tillam in New York last night does equal honor to his mind and heart.

The declaration are exactly what was wanted from Mr. Tillam, and which with propriety have been made at an earlier day.

The admirable attempt to involve the country in a war with Mexico, that the attention of our people may be drawn from the means to foreign affairs.

It is held by some to be significant that Governor Hendrick has fixed the limit of his absence from this State at the 1st of October.

THE BEST ARRANGEMENT.—The "delegation of civil to the District" was watered on Gen. Butler to secure his influence in favor of an applicant for a position in the government.

A FULL SURRENDER.—Grace Greenwood writes from Washington to the New York Times: "I do not think that Senator Morton's able letter is here universally considered the 'sovereignest thing on earth' for the inwardness of doubting and disappointed republicans.

TIT FOR TAT.—The so-called republicans are in despair over their own inventions in South Carolina, Florida and Louisiana.

INDIAN WAR NEWS.

Further Particulars of the Outbreak. MOUNT IDAHO, June 21, 1877.

EDITOR STATESMAN.—I arrived here yesterday with a party that came up from Lapwai, on an expedition for the purpose of attacking the Indians who were in the mountains of the Snake and Lemhi rivers.

The trouble began on Thursday, the 14th inst. Ben Norton was taken ill, he was on his way from Cottonwood to the mouth of the Snake river.

Next move was the organization of the people for protection. On Saturday, the 15th inst. Mr. Clark, Norton was killed by white scout parties.

The following is a correct list of the killed and wounded on the part of the whites: On Salmon River, near the mouth of the Snake, on the 15th inst. Mr. Clark, Norton was killed by white scout parties.

When I left Walla Walla, the idea prevailed that the soldiers who were engaged in the Snake river campaign were to be sent to the mouth of the Snake river.

It was not until the 15th inst. that I learned that the soldiers who were engaged in the Snake river campaign were to be sent to the mouth of the Snake river.

horses shot; they then all crawled under the wagon, and the Indians were trying to shoot them.

EDITOR STATESMAN.—I think "21" must have been given as the date of the letter published in the Statesman.

Wm. Baird with a court of several men arrived yesterday at 11 A. M., bringing letter mail from Mt. Idaho.

A LEWIS, Esq.—Dear Sir: I send you an account of the massacre of the Indians at Salmon River.

LELAND, Col. Parnell, with 30 men, and Steamer with 15 volunteers, left today for the mouth of the Snake river.

LIST OF LETTERS Remaining in the Postoffice, Walla Walla, Walla County, W. T., June 29, 1877.

RAILROAD LANDS TAXABLE.—In the case of the N. P. R. Co. Company vs. William Hiltner, sheriff of Thurston county, recently tried before Judge Gossett upon demurrer, the following points were determined in substance.

1. The right of way of the company, which includes the road bed, station houses, telegraph lines, &c., wherever the same is located on any land not segregated from taxation in the Territory of the United States.

2. The assessment in this particular case of the right of way, the same not having been described by metes and bounds or in any other way, so as to make the description certain, is void and consequently the company is not liable to pay taxes on the assessment.

3. The lands granted to the company are liable to taxation, notwithstanding the fact that the company have not received a patent for the same and have not paid the cost of said lands as required by act of Congress.

That is, the lands are subject to taxation upon the same condition of land held by private individuals, which requires that the description shall be definite and certain, by metes and bounds. The complaint claimed that the lands of the company were not subject to taxation on any condition, and this was the main point at issue, and overruled by the court.

The point that the lands are not subject to taxation until the Government patent has been issued was also overruled by the court. The same point was determined in the same way by Judge Lewis, at the last term of the District court in this county; in the case of John McHenry vs. the sheriff of King county; it being held by the court that the certificate of entry was conclusive of title.

Such has been the uniform rulings of the courts in all the Northwestern states. Of course, during the rapid settlement of many of the new counties would be without revenues from real estate taxation for these several years frequently elapsing between the entry and the issuing of patent; delays caused by the great accumulation of business in the land department.

SEVERITIES.—An exchange declares that if the Press of the country had its opposition to subsidies met untidily and persistently opposed them, they could defeat them.

THE CIRCASSIANS.

Something About the Inhabitants of Caucasus.

Popular language gives the name of Circassians to all the tribes of the Caucasus and speak of them as one people. This is not so. Some are Christians and some are Mohammedans; some are subject to the sacerdotal rule of prophet warriors, while others are republican mountaineers; some have yielded to the temptation of Russian bribes, whilst others, and this the largest part, have wholly resisted the temptation; and the relations between the several tribes are in many cases far from friendly. Turkey has never expressed any great desire to become possessed of the Caucasus, and were she even to do so, the Porte would not be conducive to the peace and tranquility of the district. At the present moment the inhabitants of Daghestan, the province which gave birth to the heroic Shamyl, are, and always have been, at war with Russia. The other hill tribes of the Caucasus inhabit districts over which there is no fixed government, and consequently there is a difficulty in treating them. Each chief is something like a Highland laird of the olden time, and in his own territory is independent of all control, even under the all powerful and beloved Shamyl, makes them doubtful allies when removed from their mountain homes.

The principal tribes that inhabit the Caucasus are the Circassians, who occupy that portion of the mountain country south and west of the sources of the river Kuban—plateau and gorges between the rugged peaks, scarcely accessible to any but mountaineers; and the Lezgians, who dwell principally among the mountains situated east and south of the source of the Terek. As the Kuban rises near the foot of Mount Ebruz, and the Terek near that of the Kabak, these two mountains may conveniently mark the limits of the respective countries of the two tribes. The whole country from the Kasbek to the Caspian is often called Daghestan, and it is here that the main struggle has been carried on between Russia and the mountaineers. The portion of Daghestan under the more immediate control of the Lezgians is described as being flanked on the north with dense forests of magnificent beeches; twining creepers bind the trees together, and vast boulders striped by thousands of winters from the granite and porphyry of the upper ranges, and borne along by the mountain torrents to the valleys and passes which form their beds, afford every advantage to the lightly equipped mountaineer, every obstacle to an invading force. The interior of the country is yet more formidable; it is one mass of ridges and ravines, at the bottom of which a brawling stream, fed by the snows and rivers of the upper regions, rushes down to the river Kaiona or its affluents.

The Circassians, of whom there are sub-tribes, the Adgeh, the Uigeb and others, are Mohammedans, with a small admixture of Christianity. Next to them are the Abasians, more zealous Mohammedans, who are now in open revolt; next the Ossetes or Osetians, a small Christian tribe, which the czars began, on this account to protect, and brought the priests into their pay; whilst to the eastward of these are the Tchetcheus and the Lezgians, all three believers in Islam. Against this country the czars have sent the following generals: Yermoloff, Paskewitch, Gortschakoff, the two Villmirinoffs, Rosen, Rajewski, Aurep, Galovine, Grabbe and Wronzoff, but all have failed in subduing the bold mountaineers. Even in time of peace Russia has to maintain an army in Georgia and Mingrelia of 85,000 men, and according to her own returns, 10,000 of these are swept off yearly by disease or warfare. The population of the Caucasus is 1,500,000, but only 20,000 fighting men are ever available at one spot at a given time.

Such, then, is the country that Gen. Melick has in his rear, and should the pass of Dariel, which commands the road to Tiflis from Kislar on the Caspian, be taken, the main artery of communication with the Don provinces and the Caspian will be cut off. As we write the Caucasus is in arms for the Sultan; and although they do not admire the Turk, yet they cordially detest the Russians.

EARLY BIPES.—This absence of authority and relaxation of discipline affects girls, of course, as well as boys, but differently. Their license of speech and action is a constant marvel to the high class Englishmen who come to this country. "Mamma," said a miss of ten summers the other day to her mother (one of the most beautiful and elegant women in New York society), after a serious and critical examination of the shape of her head and its pose upon her neck, "Mamma, you have an exceedingly well shaped head. I think you might have been quite a bright woman if you had tried." Another little girl astonished a gentleman visitor by asking him what he thought of Cleopatra, adding that she "did not like Story's statue of Cleopatra because it was Egyptian, and it ought to have been Greek, for Cleopatra was a daughter of the Ptolemies," and when the gentleman asked her what was her special motive for asking the question, she replied, "Nothing, only she thought Cleopatra was a very curious and interesting person because she married her own brothers, and she was going to write a composition about her."—New York Letter.

SENATOR BLAINE IS TOO SHREW TO be led into a new party movement. He will, it is now said, "lead the old republican organization on an anti-Southern platform." Blaine doubtless agrees with the late John Van Buren, who, as he walked out of Weiting Opera house with his coat on his arm, withdrawing from the "hard-shell" convention, said in response to an inquiry whether he was going to leave the party: "Not by a d—d sight; the place to raise h—l is inside the party!" The Syracuse Courier thinks that Blaine entertains a similar notion, and will make his fight within the old organization.

FROM AND AFTER this date E. G. TAYLOR will deliver for the STANDARD MILLS A. McCALLEY & SON, Walla Walla, May 10th, 1877. 23-10

A BIG GRASSHOPPER YARN.—LeFevre went down the river in his boat on Saturday afternoon, but came home in the evening without any fish. A Record man met him after coming home, and inquired how it was, he returned empty handed. "Well, you see," said he, "it doesn't do for a man to go alone fishing now, for the grasshoppers are dangerous. After getting down to the spot where I always fish, I ran the boat's nose in the bank and was going to jump ashore, but just as I got ready to spring something kicked me in the stomach and knocked me back into the boat. I wondered what in thunder it was, and I thought for a little while that I must have been struck with lightning, but I imagine my astonishment upon getting out of the boat bottom to find a grasshopper lying down on the bank and getting ready to kick me again. Thanks I to my self, I'll get even on you with my gun, but just as I raised it to my shoulder to take aim the hopper jumped from the bank into the boat, hit me another dip with his old leg and knocked me overboard. Well, sir, while I was floundering about in the water, what does that infernal grasshopper do but hoist one of his wings to the wind and start off down the river in my boat for sail. Jumping Moses, but I was mad! I scrambled out of the water and ran along the river bank throwing rocks at the hopper, but I was so excited that it was impossible for a long time to hit him. At last I came to a fence, and tearing up a gate post close by, threw that and took him just under the left ear as he was in the act of draining the last drop out of my whisky bottle. Well, sir, that gate post was evidently unexpected. It knocked him stiff and clean overboard, and he sank like a stone. My boat drifted ashore, and I lost no time in getting aboard and coming home. That's why I didn't bring home a string of fish. You come down the river with me next Sunday and I'll show you the hole where I pulled the gate post up."—Coville Record.

FEARFUL RISK FOR GIRLS.—The pastor of a church in one of our large cities said to me not long ago: "I have officiated at forty weddings since I came here and in all cases, save one, I felt the bride was running an awful risk. Young men of bad habits and fast tendencies never marry girls of their own sort, but demand a wife above suspicion. So pure, sweet women, kept from the touch of evil through the years of their girlhood, give themselves, with all their costly dower of womanhood, into the keeping of men, who in base associations, have learned to undervalue all that belongs to them, and then find no repentance in the sad after years. There is but one way out of this that I can see, and that is for you—the young women of the country—to require in association and marriage, purity for purity, sobriety for sobriety, and honor for honor. There is no reason why the young men of this Christian land should not be just as virtuous as its young women, and if the loss of your society and love be the price they are forced to pay for vice, they will not pay for it. I admit with sadness that not all our young women are capable of this high standard for themselves or others, but I believe that there are enough earnest, thoughtful girls in the society of our country to work wonders if faithfully aroused. Dear girls, will you help us, in the name of Christ? Will you first of all be true to yourselves and God, so pure in your inner and outer life that you shall have a right to ask that the young man with whom you marry, shall be the same? The awful gift of dishonor is close beside your feet, and in it fathers, brothers, lovers and sons are going down. Will you not help us in our great work?"—Harpers.

A CHRISTENING SCENE.—There was a strange christening scene in All Saints' Church, West Bromwich, England, on May 13th. The church, the churchyard, and the streets were crowded, for the gossips had known for a week that one of the vicar's parishioners, who accused him of being the father of her illegitimate child, intended to present herself before the font. "What name do you give this child?" asked the vicar, whose name was Frederick Willett. George White, the young woman's father, answered sharply, "Frederick Willett White." Mr. Willett instantly refused to give the child that name, stating that they were assuming his own name. The child's mother shook her head, and the child's grandfather said "No." Taking the child in his arms and pouring water on its head, the vicar named it "George White." The grandfather remonstrated against the arbitrary use of his own name, and the High Sheriff, who happened to be the vicar's father in law, went forward and led the irascible gentleman out of the church.
