The Newspaper.

It appears to be a very difficult thing for a great many persons to "catch on" to the fact that a newspaper is a business enterprise, and must live, just as the business of selling sugar, meat, flour, or any other commodity.

The daily and weekly journal is not only a product, but it is a force. Man makes this. In his sphere, the journalist is useful to the public; at the same time the public is useful to him.

Another Defalcation. One of the unusual things of to-day, is to issue a daily paper without having to chronicle the details of a defalcation, a bank cashier's theft, or something of that sort.

Government engineers say it will be impossible to spend all the money appropriated by the River and Harbor bill.

A young widow of Morris, Connecticut is suing an unscrupulous man for ten dollars worth of prayer offered in behalf of her crops.

One of the very common terms of paucity in candidate terms, "he is a self-made man." There is some danger, however, lest in bestowing this appellation exclusively upon persons who, with but few outward opportunities have risen to acknowledged place and standing.

The Gila Gazette intimates that the proper time for the city council to make proper provisions against fire, has not arrived.

What was once the Washington Democrat is now the Boomerang of Palouse City. Says that paper: "There is a rumor in circulation, based upon solid facts, that the Gazette is tired of Colfax and wishes a change of pasture."

The Pomeroy Independent says of Dayton: "Although this little city has been unfortunate in every sense of the term during the past year, the outlook for its permanent prosperity was never better than it is at present."

Writing up Seattle real estate the Herald says: "The time is not now far distant when long streets will be graded, water supply extended, and streets and suburbs raised to the level that will make a few of the $50 or $100 lots that are now attainable in some of the outside additions, worth a vast fortune to their lucky possessors."

to which he clings, unsupported save by his own mental strength and powerful will. But these are exceptional cases and might have arisen to loftier eminence had the man been favored with more toward circumstances. It is especially encouraging to one who can command, but few external advantages to reflect that he is by no means dependent upon them for his success in life.

Political Training.

Chief educators in the country, without any political bias—men, whose thoughts filter down into and among the masses and constitute all real progress, are a unit, with regard to the question of political training, or training for the proper exercise of the privilege of citizenship. All these gentlemen hold that the whole theory of training implies that the right preparation for the proper use of the ballot is political education; that a young man's training is not alone the current ideas embraced in reading writing and arithmetic; but something aside from, and, more than this, something which will thoroughly acquaint him with the effects of publication. Education is wanted, but for this purpose it is not the education most men acquire; that is, ordinary school training, but the education that fully establishes in the mind of the young man, the true theory of government, a true conception of legislation, its proper limits and legitimate results.

A Good Place for a Home. With the completion of the Northern Pacific, Oregon and Washington Territory will take their true position in the Union. Our magnificent valleys will be filled with thrifty, happy homes, where children will grow up with such reverence and pride for their native land, as never can be awakened in a mining region, or a stock raising section.

Mr. Tilden. We trust that the authoritative and most interesting statement which we published yesterday respecting Mr. Tilden's position and attitude toward the politics of the day, may have the effect of relieving him in his retirement from the annoyance both of those who depreciate and those who would invade his renewed intervention in public affairs.

Spread of Canada Thistles. Several of the roads leading from Chicago are bordered with Canada thistles for several miles. A few years ago there were only small patches of them here and there, but they have recently spread and now occupy most of the soil on both sides of the roads.

altogether, and as is usual with him makes an entirely personal matter of it. It is impossible for Mr. Johnson to be a gentleman. It isn't in him.

The Waitsburg Times has the following: During the past few days there has been quite a number of changes made in the Coppe county. Mr. Braden sold his farm at the forks of the creek, recently purchased from Mr. Fax, to a Mr. Buroker, from Indiana, for $10,000 and has moved to Walla Walla.

Referring to the Vancouver Convention, the Post-Intelligencer says: A feeling of intense indignation thrilled the people of King county at the announcement that Judge Jacobs had been chosen for Prosecuting Attorney in the Vancouver Convention, and that by the delegates of King county. We suppose that no question in this vicinity would call out a more unanimous expression of public favor than would the endorsement of Judge Jacobs for that position, and we have not the least doubt that if submitted to the people to-day, that he would, irrespective of party, get 19 votes out of every 20 cast in the county.

Our Sweet, of Colfax, was also whipped into a declaration. He says: It seems that my candidacy for the most important office in the gift of the people of the Territory is the source of discord, and if pressed promises to interfere with the Republican party of Whitman county. For this reason and on this account alone, I respectfully request that my name be not presented before the Republican convention to be held at Vancouver in connection with the Delegation.

A People's movement is imminent on the Sound. The Transcript says, in a frightened sort of way: A movement is being made by the Democrats and Republicans to call a convention and nominate a people's ticket. We know the ticket might have been stronger, but it is better to suffer the ill we have than fly to worse ones. The ticket as a whole is better than when the ragged hill of control of it, and we propose to stand by it.

cy as a party chief have always been purely intellectual. He has always made of politics a matter of ideas, of policies and of measures. His sole appeal has been to the intelligence of the citizens. His only art has consisted in presenting the questions to be decided, so as to enlist the attention and inflame the zeal of the voters, and bring them in compact masses to the ballot box. How different is this from the low conception of politics! How much loftier the aim, how much nobler the mental powers brought into exercise! The one is degrading; the other elevating and conservative. The one is an effort for place and plunder; the other an endeavor for truth, for progress, for the popular welfare. The one is base and contemptible; the other generous and manly.

We may then, even now, safely anticipate the conclusion of history. It cannot fail to record the facts that Mr. Tilden labored long and devotedly to purify and improve the administration of the Government; that in these labors he deliberately sacrificed health and strength; that the sacrifice brought him no personal advantage; that without ambition he served the people in laborious official station; that his efforts were steadily directed to reform in public affairs; that, regardless of party affiliations, he laid the heavy hand of justice upon powerful and wealthy public robbers, striking those of his own party just as heavily as others; that he reformed the government of the State of New York; that he was chosen President of the United States by a large majority, both by the popular vote and the electoral colleges; that he was defrauded and the people defrauded of that election; that he calmly submitted to the wrong rather than invoke the alternative of civil war; that the people would have nominated him for President again had he not persistently refused, and would doubtless have elected him; that they would have nominated him with enthusiasm for Governor in 1882 and for President in 1884 if he would have allowed it; and that he passed his declining years—long may they be protracted!—in honored retirement, never repining at Providence, giving way to no personal resentments, admitting no doubts as to the happy destinies of the republic, attended by the respect, the confidence, and the sympathy of myriads of his countrymen.

In the volume that records the annals of the nineteenth century, no page will bear any American name that is greater or brighter than that of Samuel J. Tilden.

amous Mormons, says: "Yesterday the enrollment house, in this city, had a big day's run in consummating polygamous marriages. Mormons came here from the north and south to go through this sink of iniquity and violate the laws of the republic by entering into unholy and beastly alliances, under the plea of religious duty, and of obeying the commands of the Lord as revealed to Brigham Young and his lustful followers. A girl not yet out of her teens was yoked to an old and bearded polyg, seeking fresh sacrifices for his harem. A Mormon by the name of William Henderson, who runs a small store at Oreside, Idaho, a station on the Utah and Northern, brought his wife here with him, and a young girl, also, for the purpose of going into polygamy." The work of the commission thus far consists in the preparation of a series of rules by which it is proposed to govern the next territorial election. How well these rules will be enforced, how rigidly polygamists will be excluded from voting, is a matter of considerable uncertainty.

School Hours.

It is still an open question as to how long a child should be kept in school each day. If the majority of the children's voices were taken they would probably agree on an hour or so. Happily for them they have, very probably, no voice in the matter and must submit to the judgment of their elders. The old fashion for school hours, like the old fashion for sermons, was to make them wearisomely long. To the children of the Puritans the Lord's Day was the longest and most dreary of the week. Nowadays people are wisely more lenient as to the length of school hours and religious services. But many adhere to the old doctrine that it is best for children to be kept at their books as long as possible, if for no other reason than once free of them they think of nothing but play and run about the streets. Well, let them play, though as little as possible in the streets. The health of a child should correspond with or even go beyond the training of its intellect. The intellect, if there be any, will, under such training, turn up all right in the long run, even if a little slow at first. But what is the use of a head without strong lungs, legs, arms and body generally? It is only putting a giant's head on a dwarf's body. Dr. Nussbaum, an eminent German physician, denounces the idea that the amount of a child's learning is to be measured by the number of hours spent daily in the school room. "Long hours in school and evening lessons at home to prepare for next day's schooling are an over-straining of the physical and mental powers of the greater number of children." He condemns the system of home lessons. The child needs relaxation and plenty of it. "It is an error," he says, "to suppose that an ordinary child really acquires much more knowledge in eight hours than in four hours." While the children's faculties are fresh and vigorous they acquire rapidly and with appetite. When the faculties are strained and limp study is useless, and in fact injurious. Professor Nussbaum favors athletic exercises, but cautions against such exercises. It is the old story retold by authority. "All work and no play makes Jack a dull boy."

The Flathead Right-of-Way Treaty.

The return of the commissioners from the Flathead reservation discloses the terms of the treaty entered into for the right-of-way for the Northern Pacific. We understand that at first the modest demand was made for a million dollars, about the same as for running a road through the better portion of New York city. But Indian generosity is made manifest by the liberal discount from the selling price in accepting finally the $15,000 offered. If true, as stated by the Mission, that it takes only 1212 acres, that is, for the width of 200 feet across the 55 miles of reservation, this is paying at the rate of more than $12 per acre. And, if it is further true, as reported, that not 50 of the whole of this 1212 could be regarded as arable, it would be paying at the rate of $100 per acre for arable land, and about $10 per acre for the rest, which, we presume, to be much like most of the upland and foot-hill surface of Montana.

We figure it out that supposing the Flathead reservation is an average chip of the Montana block, the whole territory is worth at this appraisal $1,215,385,000, without counting improvements, personal property or mines. At this rate Montana is worth nearly enough to settle the national debt, without considering the rest of the country. Again the land grant to the Northern Pacific is roughly estimated at 47,000,000 acres, and if the whole could be marketed at the price paid the Flatheads, it would return the handsome little sum of $611,600,000, or enough to build twenty thousand miles of railroad at a cost of $30,000 per mile. We presume the company would sell at some 1-10s. And these are the poor, simple savages who have no idea of the value of property, and are assailed by all who deal with them, and the great United States has to be invoked to give its consent to the little trades that these simple-minded warriors may feel inclined to make! Why, the shrewdest of our real estate dealers can't hold a candle to these savages as land traders, and it is fortunate for the inhabitants of our rising cities that the Flathead reservation is as far away as it is.

farmers and gardeners do not know what Canada thistles are, and consequently are not greatly to blame for allowing them to get a foothold on their places. If matters go on as they promise to, they will soon know to their sorrow what Canada thistles are. People who came West from Canada and the New England States partly to escape them, will not be likely to allow them to grow on their premises. They should interest themselves in preventing their spread on the land of others.

The wheat crop of the present year will be almost unprecedented. The bureau of agriculture places the yield at 500,000,000 bushels, while other authorities which claim to be equally well or better informed place it at 600,000,000 bushels or more. The New York Commercial Bulletin predicts that the crop will not be less than 370,000,000 bushels and probably more than 600,000,000. The discrepancy between the calculations of this paper and the government bureau is due to the fact, while both are practically agreed as to the acreage, the former places the yield per acre considerably above that put down by the bureau of agriculture. The Bulletin computes the acreage at 40,800,000, and predicts that the yield per acre will be closely in the neighborhood of 14 bushels. This would give a yield of 571,000,000 bushels. At all events, it appears certain that the country has wheat enough for home consumption and the large foreign demand which the failure of the crop in England, together with the disturbances of foreign war, are likely to create.

Samuel receiving the residence occupied by Col. E. H. Baker at Vancouver post caught fire and burned to the ground. Most of Col. Baker's household effects and official papers were saved.

That the five men of Dayton, in a town having a large population, and is increasing in business and population, and is becoming one of the largest cities of the territory. All of which is true.

J. M. Pomeroy, from whom the rising and falling of the Pomeroy was named, is in town and has paid the STATESMAN office a large sum. He is pleased by many of the things he has seen. As one of the first settlers of this country, and after many years of waiting he is beginning to enjoy his property.

It is reported that Henry Villard has recently purchased several thousand acres of land near Whitman, a portion of which is owned by the old Hollingsham land company property.

Missy, who enrolled the 12-year-old child of Mr. Wilson, of Dayton, from her home, and sent her to the city, a full account of which was published in this paper, has been laid away in the cemetery of Columbia county.

P. H. Beale, of Mount Idaho, is in the city. He informs us that considerable emigration is going into that section, and that the country is being settled up. The Oregon Home has been established, and the thing is being done, and it is an inquiry about the progress of the arrangements is made. It ought to be a success, and it can be by a united will of the people.

Mr. M. G. G. of T. S. Brown, in town on a visit. Some few years ago after a hard life he decided to go into the sheep business, and he is making more money now by letting out his land on shares, he now has 2000 head of sheep, 200 head of horses and 40 cattle. This shows what steady attention to business will perform in this country, and what he has done in a few years.

From the Daily of Thursday. Gen. Miles has gone to Boston. Hon. Lewis T. Miller, of Spokane Falls, is in the city today.

One of the land and mining companies of this county very near advertising ledger and the Board.

Of the ten my reported missing from the city, twelve have been found floating in the Dalles, with their skulls broken.

T. H. Moore, the head of the widely known agricultural school and retail house in T. S. Brown, of Spokane Falls, is in the city today on his way home from Portland.

People Jubilant—A Building Boom—Personal.

Thinking over the situation here in Walla Walla, we sometimes wonder whether our people fully realize the sum and substance of their advantages and opportunities; or, whether, indeed, we do not all fall far short of this.

Here we have a city that delights every visitor by its excellent location; a city rich in many beautiful homes; a city thrifty, bright and brisk with a local trade; a city that has attained a commercial supremacy equalled by none other in Washington Territory, and continually extending its area of trade; a city fast becoming an educational center, already greater as such, than any other town or city in the Territory; a city fast becoming a railroad center; a city socially and intellectually a match for any place of its size on the Coast. All about this city are the proofs that this section is capable of continuous great production, and rivals all the famous grain-producing sections in the Eastern and Western States. An immense crop has been harvested this year, most of it in the hands of the farmer. Money is plenty, and the payment of accounts has been made. In all the land and real estate office in this city, you find strangers inquiring for land in the county, or town property. Investment in this is the order of the day. Indeed, the present unexampled prosperity of Walla Walla city and valley may well be the subject for general congratulation. It is evident on every hand. And the beauty of this condition of affairs is, that it is not a spasmodic boom that, like a fever, will pass and leave us in a state of stagnation or prostration. It is a boom of prosperity that is to be permanent. Capitalists who, in the past, have pursued a single and a narrow line of policy, have begun to lose sight of that polar star of soaring coin, and may be found investing and putting surplus cash into the arteries of trade circulation. And so, on every hand, the fall business has set in in earnest, and in every branch of trade a marked and steady improvement has manifested itself. The ocular proof is open to every observer.

Of course there are grumblers; chronic grumblers. Did you ever live in a town or city where you did not meet the grumbler, the obstinate raver, creaking. If a heaven was to come down to earth and these men could get admittance, they would find fault with the management of things. Either the angels would have too many or too few wings. Dismal intelligence brightens his face. Life is a heritage of woe; a sort of condensed funeral on a foggy morning. Ordinarily it is politics that are all show. He has sound on the whole thing. He has but little influence, because people know that he acts, not from principle, but from pique. It is a waste to try to convince one of these constitutional sore-heads. It is probable that politics and this planet will be run with a moderate degree of success long after the chronic grumbler shall have been laid with his fathers.

MILTONWARD.

MITROS, Sept. 28. If a stranger were to drop into town this morning, he could hardly tell what was the matter with the people, they all look so pleasant; but the real cause is the prospect of our county being divided this fall. It is the one great interest of our people. Although we Miltonites would like to see Milton the county seat, yet we could do without it, only give us division. All we ask is 27 townships, leaving 14 townships and 10 fractions to be between the middle and lower counties. Letters from our Representative and friends give us every encouragement as to the success in this division.

Everything is booming in the building line. Twenty more houses could be rented, if they were up. No sickness here, Dr. Weston went to Centerville yesterday, where there are quite a number of sick children. The fine climate here in our little valley and the fine running water, makes it the healthiest place in Umatilla county, and I would not be surprised if it made for us a county seat.

I took a horseback ride of 52 miles by moonlight last night with our Deputy Sheriff, C. C. Cunningham. I am not supposed to tell, but am of the opinion that there will be some developments in the Bloomer murder case soon.

Mr. A. Blackman, with his fine Case machine, has just pulled in after a very successful run. He says the crop turned out much better than expected, although not heavy. The wheat was very plump and good. His best job was at George Sargent's place, on Dry Creek. Eleven acres yielded 331 bushels.

The railroad grade at this end is all completed. We look for the train-hauling on the last of October. Everybody is anxiously awaiting its arrival. Then we will show you how many people there are in this little valley for we intend to make you a vast mass.

Remaining unpaid for in the post office at Walla Walla, W. T., on Sept. 28, 1882: Armstrong, C. W. Gardner, A. Bolletta, Conrad Gifford, Robt. Baldwin, H. Green, Mrs. W. J. Green, F. M. [SPECIAL TO THE STATESMAN.] DAYTON, September 28. E. H. Dinsmore was killed at Hatley's mill yesterday by a falling tree. His body was taken to Wallingford to day for burial. He was single; age fifty-two. C. K. H.

At 3 o'clock this afternoon we received the following special telegram: SALEM, September 28. Mitchell, 42; Penn, 28; Felling, 18; scattering, 2. C. B. DEXON.

CHRISTIANITY THE DOCTOR.—Not many days ago the STATESMAN published upon the authority of a physician, a recipe for a mixture to prevent the presence of diphtheria or to dissipate poisons throughout. Since then, we are told that some physicians consider it unprofessional and a direct loss to the faculty, thus to teach the use of preventives. It seems like a very narrow view to take, this one of the matter, and we believe that the wisest of the profession do not hold that for doctors to teach mankind how to prevent disease, robs them of their practice. Such a theory is fallacious. Sickness and death are inevitable to those even, who most scrupulously regulate their habits according to hygienic rules, and it certainly seems that to a physician to teach would afford the most agreeable practice. We only wish that more of our eminent physicians would consent to use the lecture platform and to press to instruct the masses of people how to live. The physician who will frankly acknowledge that hygiene and preventive medicine are the most important part of his art and about which he knows most, is the one whom the public will most apt to go to, when nature needs a helper.

TREATMENT OF DIPHTHERIA.—Just now, everything which bears on its face, the evidence of authority relating to diphtheria, is of interest to our public. In this spirit we give the following: "The Medical Press" says that Dr. Decker, who, during twenty-four years of very extensive practice in the Children's Hospital, St. Petersburg, has treated upward of two thousand cases of diphtheria, and tried all the remedies, both internal and external, employed in this affection, has obtained the best results from the following method which he has employed for the last two years. As soon as the white spots appear on the tonsils he gives a laxative mostly composed of senna, which produces an abundant evacuation. When the purgative effect has ceased he gives cold liniments, acidulated with hydrochloric acid, and every two hours a gargle composed of lime water and milk in equal parts. Dr. Decker affirms that when this treatment is commenced early it is generally and rapidly successful.

Telegraphic.

A telegram from Victoria says: The Governor-General, after opening the agricultural show on Wednesday, will go to the mainland on Monday evening, and the Princess will hold a drawing room reception. Full dress appears requisite, and society is agitated to know if full dress means low-necked dresses and short sleeves, and if ladies who do not so attend will be turned away at the door.

The cable brings that: Again Russia is arming extensively, and it is said to be preparing to put in a demand for the whole Balkan peninsula. Whether she will or not, she will certainly endeavor to get another slice out of the Sultan's dominions, by way of compensation for any gain England may make or be supposed to have in Egypt. Italy it also determined not to be left out in the cold if she can help it by diplomacy or menace, and so you will see that the prospect is darkening so rapidly, that it will be by no means surprising should the Gladstone administration alter its mind of recalling its troops from Egypt and instead, leave by far the larger part of the army in that country. The next step will be probably to submit plans for settlement of the Egyptian question to a European conference. This, of course, will create delay, and in the meantime British occupation of the Khedive's country will be made, not perhaps gradually and almost perceptibly slip into final settlement. In a matter like this possession is half the battle, and it is quite among the probabilities that those who fully believe that Mr. Gladstone would get out of Egypt bag and baggage as soon as the war was over, will find once again they have made a total mistake.

An order has been issued assigning Gen. Schofield to the division of the Pacific from the 15th of October next.

Nineteen Reasons. A great many people cannot understand why the female portion of the community prefer their men. The matter is simple enough:

- 1. Wives like sober husbands because they can reason with a sober man.
2. The sober man is more companionable.
3. Sober men have pride, and pride is a woman's main hold.
4. Sobriety means a comfortable home.
5. Good clothes for mother and children.
6. A house of your own.
7. Evenings at home, instead of in a barroom.
8. Better health and the enjoyment of life.
9. An elevated view of life and a sense of your responsibility.
10. You are a credit to your wife and children.
11. People who once despised you will now bless you.
12. Your words will be regarded as you resist the tempter.
13. Young men will pattern after you.
14. You will be an ornament to society and the whole town in which you live.
15. The whole community will take pride in you, and wish they had more like you.
16. Your family and friends will appreciate you.
17. Your enemies will admire your path of sobriety.
18. Scuffers will be disarmed by your years.
19. Your many qualities will grow with your years.

A Michigan Goddess. Strange are the vagaries of religious sects. The perfectionists of Michigan are now distinguishing themselves by deifying a Mrs. Dora Beckman. They teach that divinity has settled upon Mrs. Beckman, and that she is one with God; and that when she speaks it is with the voice of God. Mrs. Beckman, who is also at Alpena attending the meetings, claims the Golly attribute; that she has been appointed to convey the word, and that she has to perform the mission assigned her, whether she wants to or not. Her disciples, in open meeting, right before her and the audience, proclaim her their savior. One man at the meeting on the 27th, spoke of her as "the Lamb of God that taketh away the sins of the world." Another said she was "the candle that illumined the whole world." Others proclaimed her their Lord. After the discipline has been in Mrs. Beckman's divinity, he or she appears to be all right. They are then perfect; cannot commit sin and can do no wrong. They do not believe in an organization, as they are too holy for such earthly things, and there is no word sacred enough to be used as a name for them as a body. They are God's people, or, judging from the remarks of some of them, they are numberless on earth—sons and daughters of God. It is difficult to believe in the many of people who profess such a travesty of religion.

The Dunning Epitaph. The disparity between the amount of a debt demanded and the indelicacy of the collector to obtain it is enormous—almost incredible. If a man owe another $20,000 he may roll about town in a coach and four or a tandem, without the least suspicion of being dunned. If he owe a $100 he may walk about dunned. If he owe $25 he may be dunned about and "stand off" the collector who may "look daggers" but remain quiet. If he owe $5, he will be dunned and kept beyond the reach of the creditor's arm, or wary of meeting him in a lonely place or in any even chance but he will attempt to take his pay out of his hole, as the phrase goes. In proof of this, occurred a case down Fifth street right before last. John Furster met Sam Nelson and exclaimed, "You infernal old beat have you got that six bits you owe me?" Sam seemed to be surprised, but having against the fence and replied: "Now look here, John, I'm hard up, as you know; I don't want to quarrel, and I'll pay you from the first money I get."

"Why you've said that old song for six months, and you've concluded to beat it out of your carcass?" "Now, John!" "And John did not, and in a minute there was a gun enough on the earth in that locality to fill a pint cup, for Furster had struck Sam Nelson in the nose, and not only started the snow but brought him to grass. The fight was over in a few minutes.

The People's World-wide Verdict. Brunner's Cocoa has been sold in every civilized country, and the public have rendered the verdict that it is the cheapest and best Cocoa in the world. Brunner's Cocoa is invariably acknowledged the best and the best.

"Room for the Children."

The following plea for the children is so pertinent that we cheerfully give it space: What's that? No room for the children? Is that what you mean to say? No room in the schools for the children? For what do the people say? The schools are all crowded, they tell us. All full on the opening day. No longer room for the children. And hundreds are turned away.

Not schools enough for the children? Why, then, are the knaves or fools? And what becomes of the millions? We pay for the city's schools? "So much to the country." Then stop it! Our money should not go abroad. So much to the thing called a college. Shut down on the outside school.

Not schools enough for the children? Don't publish the shameful fact, but build them, and build them! Stop talking—begin to act! Oh, men who manage our money! Enough has been charged for the schools. And when you do what the children are thoughtful of what you do! The city at times may be swindled. By false or incompetent tools; but they who have charge of the children must get them into the schools.

No pattering words! No excuses! No daffin! No delay! But give to the city's children The schooling for which we pay.

THE MISSOULA TRAVEL.—In order that the public may be led astray by what appeared in the local columns of the morning effort, we are requested by the railway officials to state, that the company are not selling tickets in Portland or elsewhere to points east over the Northern Pacific, and it is not at all probable that tickets will be so sold this fall. Furthermore, the stage service between the end of the track to Missoula is tri weekly, and the distance is 107, instead of 127 miles.

The wife of Jesse James is living in Kearney, Mo., where she has bought a house and lot with the money received on her lecturing contract and from other sources. "The great value of Mrs. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for all diseases of women is demonstrated by every day experience. The writer of this had occasion to visit the principal Dispensary of a city of 140,000 inhabitants, and on inquiry as to which is the most popular proprietary medicine of the time, was answered, that Mrs. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound occupies a most conspicuous place in the front rank of all the remedies of this class now used by the public."—Journal.

Man of the Hour.

ADMIRAL SEYMOUR.

The British Naval Commander who drove Arabi Pasha out of Alexandria.

admired the principal forts in the harbor of that city.

in a manner never before shown, in a man who has seen much service in different parts of the world.

A recent portrait and a sketch of his life cannot fail to interest our readers.

Sir Frederick Bancham Paget Seymour sprung from a collateral branch of the Marquis of Hertford's family.

by tradition and profession, is identified with the Royal Navy.

his father was the late Colonel Sir Hiram Bancham Seymour, K. C. B., M. P., and Sir Frederick, the present Vice Admiral, was born in 1821.

After having been educated at Eton College, he entered the Royal Navy in 1834 as a cadet.

In two years time he passed as a midshipman, and then after having passed through the intermediate grades of mate, lieutenant and commander in 1847, obtained the rank of post captain in 1854.

Mesawhile he had served with distinction in Burma as well as in the New Zealand war in 1852-3 and that of 1860-1, being severely wounded in the last while commanding a winged brigade, and invalided for a time.

For his services he was created a Companion of the Bath in 1861. From 1860-2 he was Commodore in command on the Austrian station.

He held the office of Naval Aide-Camp to her Majesty from 1866 to 1870. From 1872 to 1874 he was a Lord of the Admiralty under Mr. Gladstone's auspices, resigning the office on being appointed to the command of the Channel fleet.

This important position he filled till 1877, when he was created a King commander of the Bath. In 1880 he was appointed to the command of the Mediterranean squadron, in virtue of which he is now in command before Alexandria.

He was promoted to flag rank as Rear-Admiral in 1870, becoming Vice-Admiral in 1876.
