The Blue and the Gray.

[The women of Columbus, Mississippi, strewed flowers alike on the graves of the Confederate and National soldiers.]

By the flow of the inland river,
Where the blades of the grave grass quiver,
Asleep are the ranks of the dead;
Under the sod and the dew,
Waiting the Judgment Day—
Under the one, the Blue;
Under the other, the Gray.

These in the robes of glory,
Those in the gloom of defeat,
All with the battle-blood gory,
In the dusk of eternity meet;
Under the sod and the dew,
Waiting the Judgment Day—
Under the laurel, the Blue;
Under the willow, the Gray.

From the silence of sorrowful hours,
The desolate mourners go,
Lovingly laden with flowers,
Alike for the friend and the foe;
Under the sod and the dew,
Waiting the Judgment Day—
Under the roses, the Blue;
Under the lilies, the Gray.

So, with an equal splendour,
The morning sun-rays fall,
With a touch impartially tender,
On the blossoms blooming for all;
Under the sod and the dew,
Waiting the Judgment Day—
Broidered with gold, the Blue;
Mellowed with gold, the Gray.

So, when the Summer calletch,
On forest and field of grain,
With an equal murmur falleth,
The cooling drip of rain;
Under the sod and the dew,
Waiting the Judgment Day—
Wet with the rain, the Blue;
Wet with the rain, the Gray.

Sadly, but not with upbraiding,
The generous deed was done;
In the storms the years that are fading,
No braver battle was won.
Under the sod and the dew,
Waiting the Judgment Day—
Under the blossoms, the Blue;
Under the garlands, the Gray.

No more shall the war-cry sever,
Or the winding rivers be red;
They banish our anger for ever,
When they laurel the graves of our dead!
Under the sod and the dew,
Waiting the Judgment Day—
Love and tears for the Blue;
Tears and love for the Gray.

THE COTTON CROP.—The accounts from the various cotton growing districts of the Southern States are quite contradictory as to the prospects for this year's crop. In some quarters there is a very favorable report for a large yield, and in others, where floods and dry weather have had a damaging effect upon the crop. Upon the whole, however, the reports are rather more encouraging for a crop than they were last year, and the most intelligent estimates of the amount of the crop place it between two and three million bales. More land was planted with cotton in some parts of the South this year than last, while in other localities the partial failure of the cotton crop last year, and the suffering consequent upon a want of cereals, induced the planting of considerable corn upon land hitherto devoted to cotton. There has been much less friction in the labor department this year than last, the freedmen generally having worked regularly and well. The general improvement in the labor will probably more than balance the diminution in the land cultivated for cotton in particular sections, and the ravages of the army worm and the damages by floods and droughts have really been considerably less than they were last year. Add to the fact that agricultural labor is becoming more settled at the South with each successive year, and there seems to be a strong probability that there will be quite a large crop of cotton this year. Upon the amount of this crop a great deal depends, and its final result will be awaited with greatest interest in all parts of this country, as well as in Europe.—Boston Courier.

FRANK S. LOVEJOY.—This is the name of the young man who was unfortunately shot to death only a short time since. He was born at North Conway, New Hampshire, where his father and mother and many of his other relatives still reside. He also has relatives at Charleston, Ill., and St. Anthony, Minn., and a brother, Tebama, Cal. He crossed the plains in 1851, and resided in Humboldt county, Nevada, until the spring of 1866, when he came to Montana. Since then he has been engaged in mining pursuits. He was sober and industrious, and was universally beloved by his many friends. His presence in the nation, in which he was so generally and accidentally, he was not in the habit of frequenting the place. He was buried with the Episcopal form of service, in the cemetery in Deer Lodge City. As soon as the death of Lovejoy was known, Ryan—then confined in Deer Lodge City—was rearrested on the charge of murder, having come thither from Vermont, his native State, and always discharged his relative duties with unwavering integrity, thus gaining the respect and love of those with whom he had intercourse. He was for years past a member of the Central Presbyterian church, Philadelphia, and had, in fact, "let his light shine before men, that they saw his good works, and glorified their Father, which is in heaven."—Philadelphia Presbyterian.

ORDINARY.—Departed this life, in the hope of a blessed immortality, through the atoning merits of our Saviour Jesus Christ, on Thursday, August 8th, at his residence, No. 147, North Third street, Philadelphia, JOHN W. TAGGART, aged sixty-five years. Mr. Taggart had been engaged in business in Philadelphia from his early manhood, having come thither from Vermont, his native State, and always discharged his relative duties with unwavering integrity, thus gaining the respect and love of those with whom he had intercourse. He was for years past a member of the Central Presbyterian church, Philadelphia, and had, in fact, "let his light shine before men, that they saw his good works, and glorified their Father, which is in heaven."—Philadelphia Presbyterian.

THE TRUE CAUSE.—Efforts are being made in certain quarters to attribute the recent depression in Government securities, and the consequent rise in gold, to political influences. Doubtless political mismanagement has had something to do with it, but the real causes at work are: First, a marked disposition manifested throughout the country to pay off the national bonded debt in Legal Tender Notes; and second, the damaging evidence put forth from week to week by the New York Globe, showing that it is impossible to give an accurate idea of the amount of the public debt—that it may be $6,000,000,000 instead of $3,000,000,000.—S. F. Call.

THE NEW YORK TRIBUNE says the country is wearying of strife and turmoil. Hear it. Let us have peace!—more peace, or perhaps, more surely and soon! Industry and business are weary of waiting while politicians play out their little game. Let us have no other than real peace; but let us have this surely and soon.

Kindness to Animals.—Professor Youst gives the following interesting facts in one of his valuable works: "A horse in the depot at Woolwich had proved so unmanageable to the rough-riders that the at least one of them durst even mount him. His mode of throwing or dismounting a rider consisted in lying down and rolling over him, or else crushing his leg against some wall or post, or pulling. All means to break him of these perilous tricks proving unavailing, the animal was brought before the commanding officer with the character of being 'incorrigibly vicious' and with a recommendation, on that account, that he should be sold. Colonel Quest, hearing of this, and knowing the horse to be thoroughly broken, and one of the best actioned and bravest horses in the regiment, bought the animal and ordered the rider to permit him to be transferred into the riding troop. This was consented to, and Colonel Quest determined to pursue a system of management directly opposite to that which had been already attempted. He had him led daily into the riding school, suffered no whips even to be shown him while there, but petted him, and tried to make him execute this and the other manoeuvres, and as often as he proved obedient rewarded him with a handful of corn, or beans, or a piece of bread, with which he bristles his pockets were invariably supplied. In this manner, and in no great distance of time, was the rebel not only subdued and tamed, but rendered so perfectly quiet that a little child could ride him. He became, at length, taught to kneel down while his rider mounted, and to perform several evolutions, and dances and tricks in the manege, which no other horse in the school could be brought to do. In fine, so great a favorite did he become, that his master gave him the appellation of 'The Darling.'"

Thinning Fruit Trees.—We once heard a successful raiser and marketer of peaches say, that by thinning the crop to about one-third or one-fourth its ordinary numbers on loaded trees, he was still able to obtain an abundance of fine fruit, on an account of the increased size, and to be taken triple price. During an abundant season, his neighbors who neglected thinning, found it difficult to get fifty cents per bushel, while he sold his ready at a dollar and a half. All trees that overbear, and all that have defective fruit, either from the attacks of insects or other causes, by timely thinning, and remembering always to pick off the poorest specimens and all that are best. Even the apple crop, which is cheaper and more abundant than most others, should not be neglected. If any one who doubts, will remember for a moment that an overloaded tree proper to be finally picked by hand, he will see the propriety of the operation. Suppose, for example, that a tree has at the present moment three thousand growing apples upon it, and that two thousand are small and scabby, or infested by the apple worm, or stung by the curculio. If he leaves these three thousand all to grow, they will crowd each other, and none of them will be large or fine flavored. Yet if he were to remove three thousand of the poorest, and leave only one thousand of his laborious process, let the owners pick two thousand poor ones, which requiring no care to keep from bruising, may be done with great rapidity. The remaining thousand, which will then have a chance to swell in size and become perfect in flavor, may be gathered when mature, with far less trouble than the original three thousand. Let the experiment be made now in season.

BEARING TOMATOES.—Those who love good tomatoes will take pains to cultivate them to insure them as near as may be in full perfection. There is no other fruit that delights more in the air and sunshine than the tomato. They should have, therefore, abundance of room, and the vines be sustained from falling to the earth. Stout brush firmly set around the plants answer the purpose better than any other material. The branches have room to extend themselves as they like, while the limbs of the brush keep them in their positions. By this method the fruit is more fully exposed to the genial influence of the air and sunshine; where it attains a more delicious flavor, larger size, and comes quicker to maturity.

ASHES FOR FRUIT TREES.—Ashes from bark are excellent manure, and unless the ground is covered with so deep as to kill vegetation, there is little danger of applying too large quantities. Still, such ashes are not so valuable as wood ashes, for they contain but a small amount of alkali; hence soap makers consider bark ashes as of very little or no value to make lye.

SEENING SIGHTS.—A Nevada paper says: "Our meldon-goers are bound to see the shape of every female performer that appears in the city, if possible, and are much inclined to think they have before her engagement is ended. A year or two ago they came near revolting because Max Walter, proprietor of Music Hall, said destroyed by fire, could not induce the daughters of old Wianamau, Chief of the Plutes, to come out in the 'Mazeppa' costume, as a spice to the exhibition of national dances then being given by the old chief and a score or two of his braves. But all was of no use, the children of the desert stuck to their dry goods."

ENGLAND AND HER SOLDIERS.—It appears from official statements that England has 40,000 regular troops, 90,000 militia, 180,000 volunteers, 15,000 pensioners, and a reserve of 400,000 in all, 329,000 soldiers. But with this force England is unprepared to go to war. Her troops are under five different organizations. The volunteers have no collective organization, and Sir J. Pakington says they are like a rope of sand, likely to be dissolved at a moment's notice; the militia are in a disorganized state, and the pensioners do not serve as scattered about in such a way as to be effective.

GIVING NAMES TO CHURCHES.—An exchange has the following: In the outskirts of Philadelphia there is a very small Episcopal church, entitled "The Church of James the Less"; but the irreverent wretches of the neighborhood call it "The Little Jimmy." In the neighborhood of the same city there is a church which was largely built by the funds of an eminent American financier, who sold great quantities of Government bonds, and this church by the irreverent has been dubbed "The Church of the Holy Five-Twenties."

FRAUDS IN STAMPS.—An eastern paper says, that an extensive business has been done by selling postage and revenue stamps which have been already once used, and the cancellation of them in some way washed off. Parties have been punished more than once by the United States Courts for such offenses, and although the fraud is too contemptible to speak of in a single instance, yet a large profit may be made by pursuing it in an extensive manner.

THE SUPERINTENDENT of a Sunday School in Hartford, Connecticut, recently made his annual report, in which he recommended that the adult members should go to work and do all in their power to increase the infant class in his school during the coming year.

If We Only Had a Piano.

"This is pleasant," exclaimed the young husband, taking his seat costily in the rocking chair as the tea-things were removed. The fire glowed in the grate, revealing a prettily and neatly furnished sitting room, with all the appliances of comfort. The fatiguing business of the day was over, and he sat enjoying that which he had all day been anticipating—the delights of his own fireside. His pretty wife Esther took her work and sat down by the table.

"It is pleasant to have a home of one's own," he said again, taking a satisfactory survey of his snug little quarters. The cold rain beat against the windows and he thought he felt grateful for all his present enjoyments.

"Now if we only had a piano," said the wife. "Give me the piano in creation," he decided, complimentarily, despite a certain, secret disappointment that his wife's thankfulness did not chime with his own.

"Well, but we want one for our friends," said Esther.

"Let our friends come to see us, and not to hear a piano," exclaimed her husband.

"But, George, everybody has a piano nowadays; we don't go anywhere without seeing a piano," persisted the wife.

"And yet I do not know that we want one, for you will have no time to play on one, and I don't like to hear it."

"Why, they are so fashionable, I think our room looks really naked without a piano."

"I think it looks very right."

"I think it looks very naked; we want a piano shockingly," protested Esther, emphatically. The husband rocked violently.

"Your lamp smokes, my dear," he said, after a long pause.

"Where are you going to get a solar lamp? I have told you a dozen times how much we needed one," said Esther, quite impatiently.

"Those will do."

"But you know everybody nowadays wants solar lamps."

"Those lamps are the prettiest of the kind I ever saw, and they were bought in Boston."

"But, George, I do not think our room is complete, without a solar lamp," said the wife sharply. "They are so fashionable; why the D-s, B-s and A-s, all have them. I'm sure we ought to."

"We ought to, if we take pattern by other people's expenses, and I don't see any reason for that." The husband moved uneasily in his chair. "We want to live within our means, Esther."

"I'm sure I think we could afford it as well as the B-s and D-s, and many others we might mention; we do not wish to appear mean."

"Mean! I'm not mean," he cried, angrily.

"Then you do not wish to appear mean," said the wife. "To complete this room and make it like other's, we want a piano and a solar lamp."

"We want—we want," muttered the husband; "There's no satisfying woman's wants, do what you may," and he abruptly left the room.

How many husbands are in a similar dilemma! How many homes are rendered uncomfortable by the constant disputes and quarrels. How many bright prospects for usefulness have ended in bankruptcy after fashionable necessities. If the real cause of many a failure could be made known, it would be found to result from needless expenditures at home—expense to answer the demands of fashion, and "What will people say of us?"

"My wife has made my fortune," said a gentleman of great possessions, by her thrift, prudence, and cheerfulness, when I was just beginning.

"And mine has lost my fortune," said his companion, bitterly. "My useless extravagance and repining when I was doing well."

What a world does this open of the influence which a wife possesses over the future prosperity of her family. Let the wife know her influence, and try to use it wisely and well.

Be satisfied to commence small.

It is too common for young housekeepers to begin where their mothers began, and so arrange their expenses that their mind will not be constantly harassed with fearful family expenses encroach upon his business.

Be independent. A young housekeeper never needed greater moral courage than she does to resist the arrogance of fashion. Do not let the A-s and B-s decide what you may wear, nor let other hold the strings of your purse. You know what you can and ought to afford; then decide with strict integrity according to your means. Let not the censure nor the approval of the world ever tempt you to buy what you can hardly afford. It matters little what they think provided that you are true to yourself and family.

Thus pursuing an independent, straightforward, consistent course of action, there will spring up peace and joy all around you. Satisfied and happy yourself, you will make your husband and your children will feel the warm and genial influence. Happy at home, your husband can go out in the world with a clear head and self-relying spirit; domestic business will not sour his heart, and he will return to you again with a confident and unceasing love. Depend upon it, wit, grace and accomplishments have far less to do with family comfort than prudence, economy and good sense. A husband may get tired of admiring, but never with the comfortable consciousness that his receipts exceed his demands.

A SECOND-HAND MAX.—A matron dwelling on the banks of the Tex., England, under cross-examination as a witness at the Durham assizes, turned up her nose at the insinuation that her daughter was inclined to wed a widower. "Very likely, indeed," said she, with a toss of her head, "that my daughter should marry a second-hand man!"

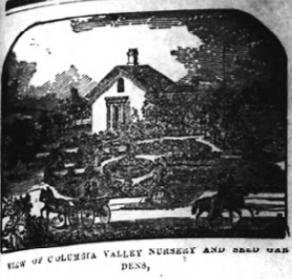

ALTHOUGH IT IS MORE than five years since the death of Prince Albert, the mourning seal in black wax continues to be affixed to all the official letters of the Government in its several departments, nor does there appear any probability of a return to the red official seal.

A GOOD WOMAN.—A preacher, in a funeral sermon on a lady, after summing up her good qualities, added that she always reached her husband's bed, when he called for it, without muttering.

THEODORE PARKER, aptly compared some who grew suddenly rich to cabbages growing in a bed. They smother the violets, but after all they are nothing but cabbage-heads.

Cleanse the Blood.
WITH corrupt, disordered or vitiated Blood, you suffer from Pimples, Sores, or in some active disease, or it may merely keep you listless, depressed, and see for yourself the surprising good health while your blood is impure. Ayer's Sarsaparilla purges out all these impurities and stimu-lates the organs of life into vigorous action, restoring the health and expelling disease. Hence it rapidly cures a variety of complaints which are caused by impure blood, such as Scrophulous, or King's Epilepsy, Tumors, Ulcers, Sores, Eruptions, Pimples, Blotches, Boils, St. Anthony's Fire, Itch of Erysipelas, Tetter, or Salt Rheum, Scald Head, Ring Worm, Cancer or Cancerous Tumors, Sore Eye, Female Disorders, such as Retention, Irregularity, Suppression, Whites, Sterility, also Scrophulous Venereal Diseases, Liver Complaints, and Heart Disease. Try Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and see for yourself the surprising benefit which it cleanses the blood and cures these diseases.

During late years the public have been misled by false preparations, professing to give a cure of Extract of Sarsaparilla for one dollar. Most of these have been frauds upon the sick, for they not only contain little, if any, Sarsaparilla, but often no curative property whatever. Hence, better disappointment, and instead of the use of the various extracts of Sarsaparilla which have become synonymous with imposture and cheatery, still we call the most effective "Sarsaparilla," and instead of supply such a remedy as shall rescue the name from the load of obloquy which rests upon it.

We think we have ground for believing it has virtues which are irresistible by the ordinary run of the diseases which it is intended to cure. We can only assure the sick, that we offer them the best alternative which we know how to produce, and we have reason to believe, if it is far the most effectual purifier of the blood yet discovered by any body.

AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL is also universally known to surpass every other remedy for the cure of Coughs, Colds, Whooping Coughs, Bronchitis, Sore Throat, and all the affections of the Throat and Lungs, and is especially valuable in advanced stages of the disease, that it is useless here to repeat the eulogies of its virtues.

The world knows them.

land, and by all dealers. 30-2m.

A GREAT many hits are being made at the Plantation Bitters, by a score or two of disinterested friends who have endeavored to imitate or coun-be imposed upon long. The Plantation Bitters are increasing in use and popularity every day, and is that what's the matter? They are in the same and are exhausted nature's great restorer. The recipe and full circular are around each bottle. Clergymen, merchants and other persons whose sedentary habits induce weakness, lassitude, palpitation of the heart, lack of appetite, distress after eating, liver complaint, constipation, &c., will find immediate and permanent relief in these Bitters. But above all they are recommended to weak and delicate females and mothers.
