AFTER THE HARVEST.
The blossoming Summer is over,
The hillside no longer are red
With billowy branches of clover.
No longer the vernal adorning
Of woodland and meadow is yet
With dewdrops impairing the morning.
The orchards no longer are whitened
With petals now-untied and fresh,
The frolicsome May-time has brightened.
No longer the children pick berries
In pastures o'er-spreading the hills,
Nor crimson their faces with cherries.
No longer the harvest, all golden,
With sunbeams in merriest mood,
The hearts of the reapers embolden.
No longer the riving flocks
Of snipes emparping the West
Gild apples with deepening glazes.
No longer the woods with their banners
Deep-tinted with yellow and red,
Build temples for warbling bosonans.
The dead leaves above are sighing,
Around in a wearisome rain
The dead leaves are fitfully flying.
We see in the garden the changes,
Heralding winter to come,
Our father so wisely arranges.

The world in its hectic of beauty,
Betokens the death of the year,
And whips a lesson of duty.
It whispers of Time in its flying,
Fast spreading the Winter of life,
The sorrow and anguish of dying.
It whispers of fruit to be gathered
In granaries waiting above,
Ere all the wild tempests are weathered.
How wise is the Spring time of gladness
And Summer of blossoming hopes,
To watch for the Autumn of sadness!
To sow for a harvest of glory,
Which, gathered, and garnered, shall bloom
The winter so dreary and hoary!

Three happy the pilgrim who never
Forgets the great lesson of Time,
But lives for the coming Forever!

Anomalies of the Times.
"The times that tried men's souls" are now at an end, and the times which test men's capacity for swallowing new political dogmas are about to begin. It is not very certain that a politician goes to sleep in one camp that he will not wake up in another, nor is there any certainty on which side any particular person is likely to be found in six months from date. We have seen in six months past a vast population give up the traditions and institutions cherished for two centuries, and accept abolitionism with singular unanimity. We have seen Horace Greeley protest against the punishment of Jeff. Davis, and write sympathetic letters to Mrs. Jeff. Davis. In the same time we have seen Andrew Johnson, the most determined enemy of secession, become Governor of his State—elected by the Unionists, and accept abolitionism with singular unanimity. We have seen Horace Greeley protest against the punishment of Jeff. Davis, and write sympathetic letters to Mrs. Jeff. Davis. In the same time we have seen Andrew Johnson, the most determined enemy of secession, become Governor of his State—elected by the Unionists, and accept abolitionism with singular unanimity. In the same time we have seen Andrew Johnson, the most determined enemy of secession, become Governor of his State—elected by the Unionists, and accept abolitionism with singular unanimity.

Her funeral was attended by many thousands of persons, amongst whom the poor were very numerous. She had apparently striven by her charities to atone for the irregularity of her earlier life.

SOUTHERN TRADE.—Referring to the heavy purchases of goods lately made for the Southern market the Baltimore American says:
"Many are compelled by their necessities to pay largely on credit, and though the sellers are yet averse to transactions not upon a cash basis, the circumstances are such as to warrant every accommodation that can be reasonably extended. From sixty to ninety days is the extent of the indulgence usually asked; and this in return for the disposition shown to settle old debts, and to apply to present operations every dollar available is generally accorded. No feature in these renewed transactions between Northern and Southern business men is more agreeable than the honorable anxiety which has thus far been displayed on the part of the latter to compromise favorably, or even to pay dollar for dollar, their old debts."

SENSIBLE MAXIMS.—Never taste an atom when you are not hungry; it is judicious. Never hire servants who go in pairs, as sisters, cousins or anything else. Never speak of your father "as the old man." Never reply to the epithets of a drunkard or a fool. Never speak contemptuously of woman-kind. Never abuse one who was once your bosom friend, however bitter now. Never smile at the expense of your religion or your Bible. A good word is as soon said as a bad one. That goat is ill-saved that shames its master. No one is a fool always; every one sometimes. Peace with heaven is the best friendship.

There are in Berlin twelve thousand celars inhabited, in six thousand three hundred of which different trades are carried on. The thirteenth part of the population, or thirty-six thousand persons inhabit those dens.

Six years ago, a lady in Norwich, Connecticut, planted three peach stones in a box. Only one of them came up, but now from the three branches of the tree she has gathered three different varieties of peaches.

Plasura may be at the helm, even if youth is no longer at the prow.
Brains without pluck is as valueless as pluck without brains.
Enjoyment soon wears both itself and us; effort, never.

Kate Howard, the Former Mistress of Louis Napoleon.—Her Immense Obesity—Her Last Days and Death.
At the Chateau de Beauregard, near Versailles, lately died the once beautiful Kate Howard—beautiful no longer—whose finely chiseled Grecian feature, magnificent figure and charms of manner in years gone by, awayed the mind of Louis Napoleon, refugee and special constable of London. Promaturely old at forty-two, so corpulent that from figure and feature, destitute of mental sources of enjoyment, her last years formed a strange contrast to the days of her youth and beauty.
From the Emperor, her former lover, she received every mark of favor and consideration. On Napoleon's marriage with the Empress Eugenia the chateau and domains of Beauregard were settled upon his former mistress, one of the finest properties in the environs of Paris, built by Cardinal Furstenberg for the purpose of giving artistic fetes to Louis Quatorze. Millions were laid out upon the internal arrangements of the chateau; a river was turned from its course to flow through the grounds, a whole section of forest was purchased to cut down because it impeded the view from the windows. Every blemish, every seduction of sensual and intellectual taste was accumulated at Beauregard; and yet, amid all this splendor, Kate Howard (or, rather, Madame Trelawney for she had married a captain of that name,) lived a life of comparative misery, sighing for the past which was to return no more. In her later years her corpulence (says the London Court Journal) increased to such an extent that the last carriage made for her was contrived to open entirely from back to front, for the convenience of the ingress of her massive form. The only joy of her latter days was the pursuit of vexatious lawsuits, which amused her mind and kept up a perpetual excitement. Against her husband, against her tradespeople, against her lawyers themselves, she managed to carry on a legal war which had become the sole enjoyment of her life.
At last she sent for the cure of Chesney-lez-Versailles; in whose palace the sumptuous domain of Beauregard is situated, and abandoned the Protestant faith, in which she had been brought up, to adopt that of the Roman Church. But even this failed to give relief, and a few days afterwards she expired of what is called by doctors, disease of the heart, but is well-known by philosophers as regret for the past, ennuil of the weariness and dead for the future. The children she had adopted will inherit the whole of her property, the chateau of Beauregard and an income of ten thousand pounds a year to the two daughters. Both of these are remarkable for their beauty, and have been educated with the greatest care.
Her funeral was attended by many thousands of persons, amongst whom the poor were very numerous. She had apparently striven by her charities to atone for the irregularity of her earlier life.

JOHN HILLINGS DISCOURSES CONCERNING MAN OF BIG GENIUS.—A big genius is generally a phool; he knows one or two things so much that he is apt to forget everything else; he is like a greyhound, fit for running fast, that's all. You can't learn him any more than you can an eagle; he knows how to fly up and look at the sun without blinking, because he was born so, and when he gets up on the peak of a mountain and gives well lit, you can't get him, nor he won't come to you, but there he sits till the dinner bell rings. After dinner he flies off again, and you won't see him till supper time. They are like mummies' vary curis critters, and keep a long time without spoiling. If the only had common sense, so that you could make taylor or shoemakers of them, there would be some sense of having the bread more plenty, but one or two is awl that is profitable to have on hand to eat, and that are enough to keep any body uneasy about what they are going to do next. The live about 40 years ahead of the times, and when the world catches up with the last one, another is born, who spends most of his time in digging up the bones that the last one buried. About the only thing that show any common sense in it, that they most always die in debt to everybody. The most unfortunate thing about having a big genius on hand, is that so many try to imitate them, but the don't generally get any further up than their vices, and thus one big genius suckles a thousand phools. This don't generally live happy, because the and he can't get it fit things as the find them. This ought to have a grate place to stop in, whart there isn't nothing but big generalities to dew, and whart the can play to and ketch with the stars, and krack butternut and mountains. This are curis critters. This ain't afraid to straddle a hurrican case without any bridle on and stick in the spurs, but a nice nibbling in the waistcoat will drive him hunched into the street. This can plant, but they won't cultivate nor reap. If it was a woman I would as soon marry a porcupine as a big genius; they are either as hot as the stove in the district schoolhouse, or as cold and unfeeling as the shoes on a dead omnibus boss. A genius is like a big comet, they appear once so often, and makes everybody nervous, and then disappear, and the we may not at the time be able to put our fingers on the individual good they have done us, still their visit is a big one, and the grate reservoirs are pumped up fuller, and we poor men, the rest of us, when we stick our little fountains, find that the waters have been sweetened and freshened by sunbudy.

Gov. LEROY made quite a glowing speech at Boise City on the occasion of his reception, and which is published in the Statesman. The following paragraph is the Governor's views of the quartz interests of Idaho:
Quartz mining has been to me a subject of primary interest, and I have sought by every means in my power to lay such facts and arguments before Eastern capitalists as would induce them to freely invest their money in the Territory for shafting, tunneling, drifting, crushing, and otherwise developing this staple interest. At the lowest calculation, we have three thousand gold and silver bearing ledges. To render the increasing population of this Territory permanent, these ledges must be successfully worked—by which means cities and towns will spring up in the mountains, and capital will be attracted to the Territory. The ore at these ledges will pay, at a moderate calculation, from thirty to three thousand dollars per ton. And in no way can money be so well laid out as in such investments, besides it will prevent the people running to the different excitements whether it be Green River or Blackfoot. The placer diggings are generally short lived, though the good ground, from lack of water, they may last a few years longer before they are entirely exhausted. But it is to the quartz leads and lodes, and to them alone, aside from our agricultural interests, that we are to be indebted for our permanent occupation and prosperity. I am glad to say that many capitalists heard my representations, and like seed that fell upon good ground, are producing the results so much desired. It was for this reason that I was granted a leave of absence that I might serve the Territory more faithfully in its material interests. I must confess that some may have thought I had quitted on the brain, but it made no difference to me, believing as I do, that within the confines of Idaho, sleep and develop the silver mountains of Mexico and the golden treasures of Peru; and you, my hearers, the earnest pioneers, unite the fearlessness of Cortez without his crimes, and the untiring perseverance of Pizarro without his fanaticism or his avarice.

ONE-STAMP MILLS are a noticeable institution in Owyhee. Nearly every house, cabin and hole in the ground, occupied by a human being, is a one-stamp mill, in the shape of a hand mortar or quicksilver tank, and a horn spoon to pan out or amalgamate in. There is no such thing as estimating the amount of bullion extracted from Owyhee rock by this simple process, but it must be immense. We are informed that a washerwoman up near the Oro Fino mine, has created a sort of mill with a sweep, with which she stamps enough out of croppings and such rock as is lying around loose, as to make twice the wages that her husband does who works by the day. That couple struck it when they married. It is not every woman, though, who would run a one-stamp mill so successfully—even in Owyhee.—Owyhee Advertiser.

A BEAUTIFUL IDEA.—Away among the Alleghenies there is a spring, so small that a single one could drain it dry on a summer day. It is its unobtrusive way among the hills, till it stretches away a thousand miles, leaving on its banks more than a thousand villages and cities, and many thousand cultivated farms, and bearing on its bosom more than half a thousand steamboats. Then joining in the Mississippi, it stretches away some twelve hundred miles more, till it falls into the great embrace of the ocean. It is one of the great tributaries of the ocean, which, obedient only to God, shall roll and roar till the angel, with one foot on the sea and the other on the land, shall lift up his hand to heaven, and swear that time shall be no longer. So with moral influence. It is a rivulet, an ocean, boundless and fathomless as eternity.

A clergyman called on a poor parishioner whom he found bitterly lamenting the loss of an only son, a boy four or five years of age. In the hope of consoling the afflicted woman, he remarked to her that "one so young could not have committed any very heinous sin; and that no doubt, the boy was gone to Heaven." "Ah! sir," said the simple-hearted creature, "but Tommy was so shy, and they are all strangers up there."

THE PHILADELPHIA MINT coined, during September $933,002 in gold, silver and copper. The bullion deposits were only $658,016. The gold coinage was $213,447; silver, $49,004; one cent, two cent and three cent pieces, $70,000.

A BROTHER OF A ROY.—Sir Boyle Roche, an Irish gentleman, was one of the handiest men in the world. He wrote to a friend during the Irish troubles '68: "Dear friend, we are in hourly danger of death. At this time, I am writing to you with a sword in one hand and a pistol in the other."

A Democratic Protest.
Petroleum V. Nasby, protests, as a consistent Democrat, against the nomination of soldiers by his party. He writes:
I object to nomination em for the follerin reasons:
1. Taint honest. In 1862 I called the soldiers "Linkin pupps," and the officers "shouters' strapp' hickins" and I meant it. They was a strapp' crooll and unsholy war agin Democracy; they was a redoubt our magistrates in the Southern States at the rate of sun hundre per day, and now to nominate em is a flop I'll never make.
2. Tain't pay. These fellers sold us out when they took committuns; they sold out the Abolitionists when they flopt back to us, and what guaranty her we that they won't sell us the next turn of the wheel? Ef we could git sum decent wages, it mite do, but good Lord, the soldier who wood do this wood be lower down than we is, which would botter a man. All the votes that men sich as them cood controle we hev alluz owned in fee simple.
3. Taint justis to us original copperheads.— We indorced the heat and burden of the day; we resisted drafts, we damned taxes, we war; Fort Lafayette and Fort Warrined, twas as who died in our dooryards. Where was these officers then? All the damage they dun the government was in drawin their pay and rashes.
4. The reconstructed Democracy vs the South. We want like it, and to them, after all, we must look for success.
5. They acknowledge nigger equality by allowin niggers to fight with em.
6. We hev gone too far to try the soldier dodge. We opposed their votin, we opposed Abolition in totin pay and supplies, we opposed Aid Society and left at Sanitary Commission, we opposed drafts at a time when they needed help, and to go back on such a record is ruther renchin and I won't do it.
7. Ef we undertake the soldier we commit ourselves to payin his penshens, et setry. Now how would the Southern Democracy like that?
8. Ef we nominate men who served, we disgust the deserters and them ez went to K'nady for the sake of the color.
Mr. Nasby appends the following advice to his party:
We hev capitol' enuff in the nigger. Let us Resolve that Godey's mill wuz rite in makin the nigger our slave, he made a mistake in plantin in his beevin buzum a chronic desire to run away from his normal condition. Let us dig out our banner and inscribe on its folds, "No marryin Niggers!" No payin a debt in kurd in a Nigger war!" "Protest us from Nigger equality!" and sich other precepts ez cum within range uv the Dimekratic intelek, and go in and win.
May the Lord bestend the day.
Luit PASTER uv the Church av the Noo Dispensashun.

BOOKING POTATOES.—We have seen boiled potatoes from an antaugh cook coming upon the table like lumps of yellow wax—and the same article, the day after, under the directions of a skillful mistress, appearing in snowy balls of powdery lightness. In the one case, they were thrown in their skins into water, and suffered to soak or boil as the case might be; in the other, and after they were boiled to stand in the water till she was ready to peel them. In the other case, the potatoes being first peeled, were boiled as quickly as possible in salted water, which the moment they were done was drained off, and then gently shaken for a minute or two over the fire, to dry them more thoroughly. We have never yet seen the potato so depraved and given over to evil, that could not be reclaimed by this mode of treatment. As to fried potatoes, who that remembers the crisp, golden slices of the French restaurant, thin as wafers and light as snow-flakes, does not speak respectfully of them? What could ship with them into water, and suffer to soak or boil as the case might be; in the other, and after they were boiled to stand in the water till she was ready to peel them. We have never yet seen the potato so depraved and given over to evil, that could not be reclaimed by this mode of treatment. As to fried potatoes, who that remembers the crisp, golden slices of the French restaurant, thin as wafers and light as snow-flakes, does not speak respectfully of them? What could ship with them into water, and suffer to soak or boil as the case might be; in the other, and after they were boiled to stand in the water till she was ready to peel them. In the other case, the potatoes being first peeled, were boiled as quickly as possible in salted water, which the moment they were done was drained off, and then gently shaken for a minute or two over the fire, to dry them more thoroughly. THE FIRST-BORN.

The first-born is a fairy child. A wondrous emanation! A lameness creature fond and wild— A moving excitation. Beside the hearth, upon the stair, Its footsteps laugh with lightness; And cradled, all its features fair, And torch'd with mystic brightness. First pledge of their betrothed love— O, happy they that claim it! First gift direct from heaven above— O, happy they that name it! It tames the household with its voice, And, with quick laughter ringing, Makes the inmate rooms rejoice. A hidden rapture bringing. Its beauty all the beauteous things By kindred light resemble; But, overcome with fluttering wings, On fairy confines tremble. So much of those that gave it birth, Of father and of mother, That so much of this world built on earth, And so much of another!

The S. F. Call says, in the western part of the city lives a French gardener, whose garden plants is included in an area of about eighteen by thirty feet, enclosed, roofed over, so as to resemble a moderate size stable, and excluding all those genial elements that are ordinarily considered so essential to vegetable life. Instead of being laid off in an ornamental plat, with walks and fountains and flowery parterres, his beds are slung up in tiers, one above another. He plants, no seed, yet reaps a golden harvest. The manure from the barn-yard, exclusively, is his soil, and he gathers every morning a crop of mushrooms. Every morning he brings his frugals to the city, for the first class restaurants, to serve out to first class epicures and takes home with him from twenty to thirty dollars.

The botanists tell us there is no such thing in nature as a black flower. We suppose they never heard of the "coal black rose."

A young Kentucky giant, named Bud Bates, is seven feet tall, and weighs eight hundred and forty pounds.

The Remedy for Curing

Consumption, Coughs, Colds, Asthma, CROUP,

Diseases of the Throat, Bronchitis, Pains and Oppression of the Chest or Lungs, Difficult Breathing, and all the Diseases of the Pulmonary Organs.

ITS ACTION IS EXPECTORANT, ALTERATIVE, LUBRIFIC, SEDATIVE, DIAPHORETIC AND DIURETIC, which renders it one of the most valuable remedies known for curing diseases of the lungs. It excites expectoration, and causes the lungs to throw off the phlegm or mucus; CHANGING RESISTIONS and PURIFIES the BLOOD; heats the irritated parts; gives strength to the digestive organs; brings the liver to its proper action, and imparts strength to the whole system. Such is the immediate and satisfactory effect, that IT IS WARRANTED TO BREAK UP THE MOST DISTRESSING COUGH IN A FEW HOURS TIME, if not too long standing. IT IS WARRANTED TO GIVE ENTIRE SATISFACTION IN THE MOST CONFIRMED CASES OF CONSUMPTION! IT IS WARRANTED NOT TO PRODUCE COSTIVENESS (which is the case with most remedies or affect the head, as it contains no Opium in any form. IT IS WARRANTED TO BE PERFECTLY HARMLESS to the most delicate child, although it is an active and powerful remedy for restoring the system. THERE IS NO REAL NECESSITY FOR SO MANY DEATHS BY CONSUMPTION, when ALLEN'S LUNG BALM will prevent it, if only taken in time.

To James Denny.

YOU are hereby notified that on the 5th day of December, A. D. 1865, I had apply to the Register of the Land Office at Vancouver, W. T. to enter under the Homestead act of May 20, 1862, the S. W. 1/4 of the S. E. 1/4 and S. 1/2 of the S. W. 1/4 of section No. 3, and the N. W. 1/4 of the N. W. 1/4 of section No. 10, in Township No. 8, North of Range No. 27, East of the Willamette Meridian, which land was entered by me under said Homestead act of 20th of May, A. D. 1862, July 26, 1864, I shall proceed to take depositions before the Clerk of the U. S. District Court, First Judicial District, W. T., at one o'clock P. M. December 23, 1865, said depositions to be submitted to said Register, showing that you have abandoned said land for more than six months at one time, and thus forfeited your right to the same. This is to give you notice that you can be present at the said depositions, and if you have any questions or objections you may be examined in the case. JAMES A. RUBBARD. Walla Walla, W.
