A Living Lyric.

[The following beautiful poem was written years ago by Wm. H. Lytle, of Ohio. The author, a General in the Union army, yielded up his life at the battle of Chickamauga.]

"I am dying, Egypt, dying,"—Shakspere.
I am dying, Egypt, dying,
Hark! the rimeous life-like fast,
And the dark Platonian shadows,
Gather on the evening blast.
Let thine arm, oh! Queen, support me,
Hush thy sob and low dirge ear,
Harken to the great heart secrets,
Then, and then alone must hear.

Though my scarred and veteran legions
Beat their eagles high no more,
And my wrecked and scattered galleys
Strew dark ocean's fatal shore;
Though no glittering guards surround me,
Prompt to do their master's will,
I must perish like a Roman—
Die the great Triumvir still.

Let not Caesar's servile minions
Mock the lion thus laid low;
'Twas his own hand that struck the blow;
Give the Caesar crown and arches,
Ere his star fades quite away,
Him who, drunk with thy caresses,
Madly flung a world away!

Should the base plebeian rabble
Beat their iron thus laid low;
Where the noble spouse, Octavia,
Weeps within her widowed home,
Here, then, pillow on thy bosom,
Alas, alas, circling wings,
That her blood with mine commingled
Yet shall mount the throne of kings.

And for thee, star-eyed Egyptian!
Hark! the rimeous woman's cry;
Light the path to Stygian horrors,
With the splendours of thy smile.
Give the Caesar crown and arches,
Let his brow laurel twine;
I can see the Senate's triumph,
Triumphing in love like thine.

I am dying, Egypt, dying;
Hark! the rimeous woman's cry;
They are coming—quick, my falchion!
Let me from them ere I die.
Ah! no more amidst the battle
Shall my heart exulting swell;
Isis and Osiris guard thee,
Cloopatra! Rome! farewell!

How Godfrey Horton Chose His Wife.

BY MARY E. HORTON.

'Godfrey, old boy,' said Henry Clayton as he tilted back in his chair, and put his feet upon the mantle piece, 'when is the wedding to be?'

'Whose wedding?'

'Miss Laura Somers, or Jenny, which is it?'

'No, I do not know, I am sure.'

'Now don't be mysterious, Godfrey; you know you are a constant visitor and all our set are talking about the match. Don't pretend you have not selected one of the sisters.'

'How do you know either of them will have me?'

'Don't be absurd, old boy. You young, handsome, talented, and with a large fortune, need not be over bashful. Come, be frank, which is the favorite sister?'

'Well, frankly, then, I cannot tell you—I have visited the family for several months, as you know, but I cannot decide. Laura is certainly the handsomest, with her flashing black eyes, and queenly manner; but Jenny seems, although the youngest to be the most womanly and useful of the two—'

'Yet, I cannot be sure of that. My entrance is the signal of cordial welcome and smiles, and let me call at what hour I will, they are always well dressed, and apparently disengaged.'

'To be sure, I always in the morning have to wait some time before Laura is visible.'

'Pop in unexpectedly and notice the internal economy.'

'How can I? A card on the door will put any lady on her guard, or even the notice of a gentleman visitor.'

'Go there in disguise. As a washerwoman, for instance.'

'Good! I will!'

'Go there as a washerwoman!' cried Clayton.
Not exactly, but I will obtain admittance to a morning's privacy.'

Laura and Jenny Somers were the only children of a widower, who, although in moderate circumstances, moved in very fashionable society. At the period of my short sketch, he was about to supply the lamented Mrs. Somers' place, after nearly ten years mourning, and although a kind and indulgent parent, had no objections to his daughters' marriage, and indeed, had told them so. Laura, whose high spirit recited the probable supremacy of a stepmother, had already selected Godfrey Horton as her future husband; and Jenny, who was younger and gentler in spirit, tried to conquer a carefully concealed preference for the same purpose. All his attentions were ascribed by her to a brotherly regard, though every act of kindness or courtesy touched her very heart. It was in the morning after a large ball and the sisters were in the breakfast room together. Laura, her glossy black hair pushed negligently off her face, with the rough tumbled braids of last evening's elaborate coiffure gathered closely into a comb; wearing a solid wrapper, torn stockings, and presented rather an alarming contrast to the brilliant ball-room belle, was lounging on a sofa. Jenny, in a neat morning dress, with a large gingham apron, little white collar, and her hair smoothly brushed into a neat knot, was washing the breakfast dishes.

just suit your golden hair, Miss,' and he held them before Jenny.

'It was my sister who wished to look at your flowers,' said Jenny quietly.

'Yes, bring them here,' was Laura's imperious command.

The old man's eyes followed Jenny as she washed, wiped, and put away the dishes, swept the room, and dusted it, and then sat down beside Laura, who was still looking over the basket.

'See, Jenny, this scarlet bunch. Will it not be lovely with a few dark leaves to wear with my new silk?'

'But, whispered Jenny, you can't afford it just now.'

'Yes I can. Father gave me some money yesterday.'

'To pay the last dry goods bill?'

'Well I can have that carried to my private account.'

'Oh! Laura, I hate to hear you talk of that private account. It seems so much like cheating father.'

Nonsense! It will stand till I am married and then I can easily save it out of my house-keeping money.'

'I should not wish to marry in debt,' said Jenny.

The peddler looked earnest at the sisters. 'You had better take this bunch, Miss,' he said to Jenny. 'If it ain't convenient to pay now, I will call again.'

'No, I shall not take them.'

'I wish my hair was light,' said Laura—'I should like to wear blue. Godfrey Horton said last night that forget-me-nots were his favorite flowers.'

Jenny colored, and placed the bunch again in the basket.

'Come, Laura, decide. You are keeping one waiting whose time probably is valuable, and then passing a chair, she added, 'Be seated, sir, you look tired.'

'I am tired, indeed,' was the reply.

'I will take the scarlet bunch and these red carnations, and this white cluster,' said Laura.

'But, sister, you cannot afford it.'

'Yes, I can. Godfrey Horton is rich. The old man bit his lip.

'Think, said Jenny, in a low tone if you love him, how much it will grieve him if he should discover this deceit.'

'Nonsense! Well, I'll tell you how to remedy it. Lend me some money out of the house-keeping funds.'

'So, thought the old man, she is house-keeper. Miss Laura always gave me to understand that that was her post.'

A BEAUTIFUL CITY.—Batavia—the capital city of the Island of Java—according to the description of a newspaper correspondent is a brilliant specimen of oriental splendor.

The houses—which are set back from the street, the intervening space being filled with trees, literally alive with birds, and every variety of plants and flowers—Every house has a piazza in front, and is decorated with beautiful pictures, elegant lamps, cages &c., while rocking chairs, lounges, and ottomans, of the nicest description, furnish luxurious accommodations for the family—who sit here mornings and evenings. At night the city is one blaze of light from the lamps. The hotels grounds of eight and ten acres in extent around them, covered with fine shade trees, with fountains, flower gardens, &c. Indeed, so numerous are the trees, the city almost resembles a forest. The rooms are very high and spacious, without carpets, and but few curtains. Meals are served up about the same as the first class hotels in the United States, although the habits of living are quite different. At daylight coffee and tea are taken to the guest's room, and again at eight o'clock light refreshments. At twelve breakfast is served, and at seven, dinner—Coffee and tea are always ready, day and night. No business is done in the streets in the middle of the day, on account of the heat. The nights and mornings are cool and delightful; birds are singing all night. The thermometer stands at about 82° degrees throughout the year. The island of Java contains a population of 10,000,000. The island abounds with tigers, leopards, anacondas, and poisonous insects of all kinds. The finest fruits in the world are produced in great profusion.—Scientific American.

WOMEN COURTING MEN.—And why not? Why should all the business of courtship devolve upon man? It is only fair that woman should do her share of the work. Besides many a match that would have proved a happy one has been broken off because the custom of society restrained the woman from saying the right word at the right moment. What is the bashful lover to do, if the lady of his choice will not help him out of the difficulty of pepping the question? The fact is, the ladies do perform their share of the courting, not in semi-civilized communities, as in the instances spoken of below, but in our own enlightened land!

A most extraordinary custom prevails among the Vizes, a powerful tribe, occupying an extensive district in Cabal, among the mountains, between Persia and India. It is in fact a female prerogative that has no parallel among any other people upon the earth and reverses what we are in the habit of considering the natural order of things—the women choose their husbands, and not the husbands their wives. If a woman be pleased with a man, she sends the drummer of the camp to pin a handkerchief to his cap with the pin she used to fasten her hair. The drummer watches his opportunity, and does this in public, naming the woman, and the man is obliged to marry her if he can pay the price to her father.'

A custom substantially the same prevails among the Sandwich Islanders. We remember once to have asked a good looking Hawaiian bachelor why he did not get married, and he replied with a look of innocent simplicity, that 'None of the girls had asked him.—Pacific Monthly.

WORTH KNOWING, LADIES.—William Hutton, the celebrated mathematician, was called upon by a respectable looking country woman, anxious to speak with him. She told him, with an air of secrecy, that her husband behaved unkindly to her and sought other company, frequently passing evenings from home, which made her feel extremely unhappy; and knowing Mr. Hutton to be a wise man, she thought he might be able to tell her how she could manage to cure her husband. The case was a common one and he thought he could prescribe for it without losing his reputation as a conjurer.

'The remedy is a simple one,' said he, 'but I have never known it to fail. Always treat your husband with a smile.' The woman expressed her thanks, dropped a courtesy and went away. A few months afterwards she waited upon Mr. Hutton with a couple of fine fowls, which she begged him to accept. She told him, while a tear of joy and gratitude glistened in her eye, that she had followed his advice and her husband was cured.

Three things to love—courage, affection and gentleness. Three things to admire—intellectual power, dignity and gracefulness. Three things to hate—cruelty, arrogance and ingratitude. Three things to delight in—freedom, freedom and frankness. Three things to wish for—health, friends and a cheerful spirit. Three things to like—cordiality, mirthfulness and good humor. Three things to avoid—loquacity, idleness and flippant jesting. Three things to cultivate—good looks, good friends and good humor. Three things to contend for—honor, country and friends. Three things to govern—the temper, impulse and the tongue.

HORSE WISDOM.—Anything that the horse can touch with his nose without being harmed, he does not fear. Therefore the hand, the halter, girth, blanket, saddle, harness, umbrella, buffalo robe, or whatever is brought in proximity to him should be first "introduced" and touched by that sensitive organ. A knowledge of these important facts, as we learned by attending a course of these lectures, is the main secret of Rary's success in his horse-taming. His strap method of throwing horses is useless except in cases of aggravated ill-temper; and such cases are usually the result of mismanagement.

Hints to Mothers—Speak Low.

I know some houses, well built and handsomely furnished, where it is not pleasant to be a visitor. Sharp angry tones resound through them from morning till night, and the disease is as contagious as measles, and the children catch it and it lasts for life, an incurable disease. A friend has such a neighbor within hearing of her house when doors and windows are open, and even Poll Parrot has caught the tone, and delights in screaming and scolding, till she has been sent to the country to improve her habits. Children catch cross tones quicker than parrots, and it is a much more mischievous habit. Where mothers set the example, you will scarcely hear a pleasant word among the children in their plays with each other. Yet the discipline of such a family is always weak and irregular. The children expect just so much scolding before they do anything they are bid, while many a home where the low, firm tone of the mother, or a decided look of her steady eye is law, never think of disobedience, either in or out of her sight.

Oh, mothers, it is worth a great deal to cultivate that "excellent thing in a woman," a low sweet voice. If you are ever so much tired by the mischievous or willful pranks of the little ones, speak low. It will be a great help to you to even try to be patient and cheerful, if you cannot wholly succeed. Anger makes you wretched, and your children also. Impatient angry tones never did the heart good but plenty of evil. Read what Solomon says of them, and remember he wrote with an inspired pen. You cannot have the excuse for them they lighten your burdens any—they make them only ten times heavier. For your own as well as your children's sake speak low. They will remember that tone when your head is under the willows. So, too, would they remember a harsh and angry voice. Which legacy will you leave to your children?

WHAT DRINK DID FOR A FINE SCHOLAR.—A late letter from Chattanooga tells the following story:

'While pacing to and fro I heard a soldier talking French to a citizen. Mistaking the learned son of Mars for a Frenchman, I asked him how long he had been in this country. He answered, and inquired if I were from France. When I told him from Scotland he threw himself into the attitude of one enraptured with a vision, and, dropping his French, he cried, while his eye was flashing with true Highland fire:

"Lochiel! Lochiel! beware of the day
When the Lowlands shall meet the U. S. Army,
For a field of the dead shall be on my right,
And the clans of Collioden are scattered in flight!"

I had met a soldier, armed in six languages, a descendant of one of the noblest Scottish families, and a cousin of a living Lord. Banished to Van Dieman's land for complicity in the Irish rebellion, a soldier in Mexico with Scott, in Utah with Johnston, and the armies of the Union since its life was assailed, he has seen much of the world and of men. Of a noble mien, a fine address, and a wealth of enthusiasm, he might have been an orator or an actor. Thoroughly drilled in the British service, an adept in long, short and broadsword exercise, and a gentleman by nature and education, he might have been an officer high in command. But what makes him what he is—the half-drunk, poorly-clad, but entertaining genius that I found him? The "wee drappie." He begs for a dime to get a drink, when he might have commanded a brigade. He is a drunkard when he might have been a man. As I looked upon his splendid head, I thought of a half-clad wife, with a broken heart, and a family of children precocious in vice and growing up into accomplished scoundrels. Ah curse of Scotland and the world! Consumer of genius and love! Fountain of error and shame, of death and of hell!

A SATISFACTORY ANSWER.—An attorney in the country recently received an account for collection, and in reply he made the following statement of the financial condition of the section in which he resides, which was doubtless perfectly satisfactory to the creditor:

'Now I am perfectly astonished at you for sending a claim out here for collection these times. You might as well cast your net into the lake of fire and brimstone, expecting to catch a sunfish, or into the celebrated Stygian pool to catch speckled trout, as to try to collect money here. Money!—I have a faint recollection of having seen some when a small boy. I believe it was given by my uncle to buy candy with. (The candy I do remember.) But it has been so long since I have seen any that I almost forget whether gold is made of corn or mustard, or silver or white onions or fish scales. Why, sir, we live without money. You're behind the times. It is a relic of barbarism—of ages past. We live by eating here, sir—we do. How, man, the millennium is coming the year of jubilee has come, and all debts are paid as much as they will be, unless you take 'projece.' The word 'money' is not in our vocabulary; in the latest Webster (revised for this meridian) it is marked 'obsolete, formerly a coin representing value and used as a medium of commerce.' A few small pieces can be seen in the Historical Society's collection, where they are exhibited as curiosities, along with the skeleton of the mastodon, Noah's old boots, and Adam's apple.'

THE REASON WHY.—A beautiful lady having asked a plain elderly gentleman to dance with her, he believing that she was in love with him, in a very pressing manner desired to know why she had selected him from the rest of the company.

'Because, Sir, my husband has commanded me to dance only with such a partner as should not give him cause for jealousy.'

The Coming Season.

The coming season promises to be one of unusual prosperity and business activity for the people of this valley and the whole upper country. At no time since its settlement have there been so many inducements offered to emigration as now.

But without speculating upon what may seem to some, uncertainties, the gold fields already opened will contain a population sufficient to insure to the farmers of the Walla Walla valley a ready market and a good price for all their products.

No MORE DIVORCES.—The Washington Territory Legislature have "Resolved" not to grant any divorces the ensuing winter.

SOCIABLE.—We are requested by the Ladies of the M. E. Church society to say that an invitation is extended to all who may be disposed to make themselves sociable to attend their "social parties" at the Church, every Tuesday evening.

CAUSE OF COL. STEINBERGER'S REMOVAL.

The Oregonian publishes an order from the Headquarters of this Military District to the effect that "Col. Steinberger, 1st W. T. Volunteers is mustered out of the service of the United States in consequence of his regiment being below the required standard number of enlisted men."

NEW YORK FANATICISM.—An old acquaintance writing to us from New York city under date of Nov. 28th, says: "The people here all appear to be crazy, or at least the abolition portion—which is the greater portion."

THE UNION.—We have received the first number of a new paper called the Daily Union, published at Portland.

HOME MADE BROOMS.—We observed Mr. J. F. Wood, some weeks ago, supplying the market of this city with brooms of his own manufacture, from broom-corn raised by himself upon his farm in this county.

LEGAL TENDERS.—Judge Wilson, at the late term of the Wasco county (Oregon) Circuit Court decided that legal tenders cannot be received in payment of county taxes.

AT LAST.—Greenbacks have finally come down in this market to the prices ruling in Portland and San Francisco.

THE WEATHER for the past week, as the almanacs say, has been 'variable,'—from very cold to warm and pleasant, from windy and cloudy to calm and sunshiny, from snow to rain and from rain to snow—every sort at times and nothing long.

To-day (Friday) was foggy in the morning, raining until about ten o'clock, and now, at the present writing, it is snowing very fast and looks as if it might never stop; what kind of weather we will have in an hour from now, to-night or to-morrow no one can conjecture with any degree of certainty.

SOMETHING TO BE DONE FOR THE "POOR BLACK MAN."—The sympathy of the radical portion of the present Congress for the "poor black man," seems to have no bounds.

A PIOUS LEGISLATURE.—It will be seen by reference to our Olympia correspondence, that we have an exceedingly pious set of representatives in our Territorial Legislature.

THE UNION.—We have received the first number of a new paper called the Daily Union, published at Portland.

HOME MADE BROOMS.—We observed Mr. J. F. Wood, some weeks ago, supplying the market of this city with brooms of his own manufacture, from broom-corn raised by himself upon his farm in this county.

LEGAL TENDERS.—Judge Wilson, at the late term of the Wasco county (Oregon) Circuit Court decided that legal tenders cannot be received in payment of county taxes.

AT LAST.—Greenbacks have finally come down in this market to the prices ruling in Portland and San Francisco.

IN COMMAND.—Capt. G. B. Curry, of Co. E. Og'n Cav. is in command of Fort Walla Walla, and will so remain until the arrival of Maj. Rumrell, from Colville.

Olympia Correspondence.

OLYMPIA, W. T., Dec. 20, 1863.

EDS. STATESMAN:—As the stereotyped telegrams say of the army of the Potomac, "every thing is quiet" here at present; the printing hobby is finally settled for the present and acquiesced in by every person except Dr. Henry and his satellites of the "Standard" office who have been the heaviest losers in the game.

THE NEW ROAD.—A subscription of $1,300 was raised on Monday to be applied to keeping the new road across the mountains open during the winter.

ALTA, OLYMPIA, Dec. 21th, 1863.

THE COUNCIL have at last organized by the election of Hon. O. M. McFaddin, of Lewis & Thurston, President.

THE FIRST business the Council did was to pass a joint memorial asking Congress to amend the organic act so as to prohibit the Legislative assembly of this Territory from passing any divorce bill.

BUILDING.—The prospect now is that the amount of building done in Walla Walla next season will exceed that of all former years.

DANCING SCHOOL.—Professor Adler has organized a Dancing School, to meet every Tuesday and on Friday evenings at the City Hotel.

THE NEW SEMINARY.—The Catholic Seminary in this city is approaching completion. One of the school rooms will be finished in two or three weeks, at which time the sisters will be here ready to commence teaching.

colts in preference to the Constitution.

A sad catastrophe has occurred at Port Angeles, resulting in the almost total destruction of the town and the loss of two lives.—Deputy Collector Anderson and Capt. Wm. B. Goodhue of the schooner "Wm. S. Harney."

To-day the House unanimously concurred in a resolution of the Council, asking the commander of the War Steamer Narragansett to remain and cruise in the waters of Puget Sound for the protection of the inhabitants against the possibility of Rebel privateers entering the Narrows.

The weather here is cloudy, rainy, cold and disagreeable. Twenty-five copies of the "Statesman" reached here last night and the contents eagerly devoured by the members of both Houses, who were particularly amused at the vivid and colorful descriptions of each of their counties, by your "Third House" legislators.

The Council have not yet organized.—Saint Clair, Republican, has just arrived as Joint Councilman from King and Kitsap, making the Council stand three Republican to four Democrat; so that neither party, if party lines are strictly drawn, can elect unless one of the Democratic members vote for himself, which I hardly think will be done.

Mr. Gilbert, United States Deputy Provost Marshal, has arrived and is keeping a sharp lookout for "copperheads" with a view of sending them to winter at Alcatraz.

Advertisement.—A Horse. I have ever been loved by a fine colonial, the called "Just one moment," to "let it in his tale," which he is mysterious mood confidential.

How Could I?

BY ANNIE BIRKLOW.

He carried my satchel to school, And me through the drifts carried, too; Could I think why he hugged me so close? If I couldn't how could I tell you?

At eve he tied under my chin My hood with its bright ribbons blue; Why he gazed in my face could I tell? If I couldn't how could I tell you?

He told me my eyes were so black, The brightest of any he knew; I blushed and looked down, could I help it? If I couldn't, how could I tell you?

He left on my cheeks a warm kiss, Then off with the lightning speed flew; If I could, I'd have soiled and stamped; If I couldn't, how could I tell you?

'Twas long years ago, and since then He has spoken words loving and true; I only laid close to his breast, For how could I help it? could you?

Josh Billings as an Editor.

We cannot say that we admire Mr. Billings' style of orthography, but he makes some good points, which every lover of fun will appreciate. Here are his

"NOTICES TO CORRESPONDENTS:"

"Amelia."—Yure inquiry about the most best time to marry dus you grate credit, it is a subject which I have sweated over a good deal, and I am real glad you spoke about it. My spase wont allow me to go into the subject as I would like tu, but a few words I will sa, I have always considered cool wether the most best time.

"Fred."—Yu sint obliged to ask a gal's mother, if you ma go home with her from a partee, get the gal's endorsement and sale in; it is proper enuff to ask her to take yure arm but you haint got no rite to put yure arm around her waste, unless you meet a big Bear on the rode, and then yu are not bound to take yure arm awa as soon as the bear gets safely by.

"Whip."—Yu are rite. Mules live to a long age, I've known them myself, to live a 100 years and not half tr. Yu are rite, also about their being surfooted; I've known 'em to kick a man twice in 1 second 10 feet oph.

"Gertrude."—Yure inquiry stumps me the darndest. The more I think on it the more I kan't tell. As near as I can recollect now I think I don't kno. Much might be ced both wase, and neether way be rite. Upon the whole I rather reckon I wud or I wuddent, jist as I thot best or otherwise, evey verry.

"Plutark."—Yure mistaken, the Shakers don't marry. If young Shakers fall in luv ths are set to weedin onions, and that kures them forthwithly. I kan't tell you now how much it does kost to juse the Shakers, but I beleave the expens wase to be, in-kloodin havin yure hark kut oph and lersin to danse, about $65.00. I disrekolet what thare religion is, but if my memory sarves me rite, it is making alimty good brooms and selling deevish poor grape cuttings at 74 cents a foot.

"Sportsman."—Yure inquiry is not egsactly in my line, but I haint to reply as fol-lers to wit: The rite length to kut oph a dog's tals has never yet been fully dis-cov-ered, but it undontedly somebwar back up the eaz, providin yu git the dog's consent. N. B.—It aint absolutely necessary the dog's consent should be in ritein.

"Kate."—I think Lord Biron was the au-ther ur the lines you speke ur; 'twas either him or 'twas Captain Kid one or t'other. Biron woz dreadfull limber at riting potri, so was Kid, but Biron was the limberest.

APTITUDE IN BUSINESS.—Thousands en-gage in the strife of business, but really how few possess an aptitude for it! An old mer-chant stated at a public dinner that eighty out of every hundred of those who had en-gaged in mercantile pursuits had failed, al-though their opportunities were quite as fa-vorable as were those of the few who had succeeded. It was not lack of industry but of aptitude that had caused them to fail.—Very few men possess this quality, which, for want of a better name, has been called luck, and without which no man however astute and prudent he may be in other matters, can hope to succeed in the mutations which in-varriably accompany the adventurous career of the merchant. Aptitude is everything.—A man may have an excellent idea of music, but no amount of study will make him a musician; so he who engages in business, how-ever clear his opinions may be on the con-duct of others, may never himself succeed in that which he is competent to criticise.

RULES OF THE HOUSE.—The proprietor of a Reese River Hotel (according to Hoyle, who has just returned), has posted up the following "Rules and Regulations": Board must be paid in advance; with beans, $15; without beans, $12; salt free; boarders not permitted to speak to the cook; no extras allowed; potatoes for dinner; "poeketing" strictly forbidden; no whistling while eating; gentlemen are expected to wash out of doors, and find their own water; no charges for ice; towel bags at the end of the house; extra charges for seats around the stove; lodgers must furnish their own straw; beds on bar-room floor reserved for regular custom-ers; persons sleeping in the bar are request-ed not to take off their boots; lodgers inside rise at 5 A. M.; in the barn at 7 o'clock; each man sweeps up his own bed; no quartz taken at the bar; no fighting allowed at the table; specimens must invariably be left on the outside; any one violating the above rules will be shot.

BEST SORT.—The burton, bright-eyed, full-breasted, bouncing lass, who can daru da a stoeking, mend trowsers, make her own frock, command a regiment of pots and ket-tles, feed the pigs, milk the cows, and be a lady wital in company, is just the sort of a girl for a young man to marry; but you, ye punning, lolling, screwed up, wasp-waisted, putty-faced, consumption-mortgaged and novel devouring daughters of fashion and idleness, you are no more fit for matrimony than a pullet is to look after a family of four-teen chickens.

"Biddy," said a lady, I wish you would step over and see how old Mrs. Jones is this morning. In a few minutes Biddy returned with the information that "Mrs. Jones was 72 years 7 months and two days old."

In private, we must watch our thoughts in the family, our temper; in company, our tongues.
