Columbia's Genius at Pittsburg.

BY MRS. ELIZABETH S. REES.

Columbia's genius stood aloft
And viewed the battle's storm
Bright golden seals and glittering stars
Adorned her angel form.

Dark columns loomed in giant form,
And swelled in ambient air;
Tremendous peals rolled loud and long,
In echoes wild, afar.

Sharp, clashing blades shed brothers' blood,
Brave warriors strode in frenzy wild.
The Genius bowed her head in tears,
And thus reproved her erring child:

My gallant, brave, misguided sons;
The blood stains of this day,
The oblivion floods of circling years
Can hardly wash away.

The idolized of many hearts
Are cold on crimson ground;
Those household gods so long adored,
Lie broke and scattered round;

And Hope, eternal, white-winged Hope,
That sang at early dawn—
Her wounded pinions droop in pain
And fall before 'tis noon.

In vain you're wasting noble blood,
And dying side by side—
Those firmly concentrated stars
You never can divide.

To me this luminous heritage
To light the world was given;
Firm as the earth its base is laid,
Its towers are lost in heaven.

Witness for me, ye shining hosts,
I'll guide and guard the free;
Their civil rule shall span the earth,
Their trident crown the sea.

THE UNMEANT REBUKE.

Charles Nelson had reached his thirty-fifth year, and at that age found himself going down hill. He had once been one of the happiest of mortals, and no blessing was wanted to complete his happiness. He had one of the best wives, and his children were intelligent and comely. He was a carpenter by trade, and no man could command better wages, or be more sure of work. If any man attempted to built a house, Charles Nelson must boss the job, and for miles around, people sought him to work for them. But a change had come over his way, and he turned back with the evil spirit. A new and experienced carpenter had been sent for by those who could no longer depend upon Nelson, and he had settled in the village and now took Nelson's place.

On the back-street, where the great trees threw their green branches over the way stood a small cottage, which had been the pride of the inmates. Before it stretched a wide garden, but tall rank grass grew among the choking flowers, and the paling of the fence was broken in many places. The house itself had once been white, but it was now dingy and dark. Bright green blinds had once adorned the windows, but now they have been taken off and sold. And the windows themselves bespoke poverty and neglect, for in many places the glass was gone, and shingles or old hats had taken its place. A single look at the house and its accompaniments told the story. It was the drunkard's home.

Within, sat a woman yet in her early years of life, and though she was still handsome to look upon, the bloom had gone from her cheek, and the brightness had faded from her eyes. Poor Mary Nelson! Once she had been the happiest among the happy, but now none could be more miserable! Near her sat two children, both girls, and both beautiful in form and feature; but the clothes they wore were all patched and worn, and their feet were shoeless. The eldest was thirteen years of age, and the other two years younger. The mother was hearing them a lesson in grammar, for she had resolved that her children should not grow up in ignorance. They could not attend the common school, for thoughtless children sneered at them and made them the object of sport and ridicule; but in this they did not suffer, for their mother was well educated, and she devoted such time as she could spare to their instruction.

For more than two years, Mary Nelson had earned all the money that had been used in the house. People hired her to wash, iron, and sew for them, and besides the money paid, they gave her many articles of clothing. So she lived on, and the only joys that dwelt with her now, were teaching her children and praying to God.

Supper time came, and Charles Nelson came reeling home. He had worked the day before at helping move a building, and thus had money enough to find himself in rum for several days. As he stumbled into the house the children crouched close to their mother, and even she shrank away, for sometimes her husband was ugly when thus intoxicated.

O, how that man had changed within two years! Once there was not a finer looking man in the town. In frame he had been tall, stout, compact, and perfectly well formed, while his face bore the beau-ideal of manly beauty. But all was changed now. His noble form was bent, his limbs shrunken and his face all bloated and disfigured. He was not the man who had once been the fond husband and doating father. The loving wife had prayed, wept, and implored, but all to no purpose; the husband was bound to the drinking companions of the bar-room, and he would not break the spell.

That evening Mary Nelson would not eat any supper, for of all the food in the house, there was not enough for her husband and children; but when her husband was gone, she went out and picked a few berries, and thus kept her vital energies alive. That night the poor woman prayed long and earnestly, and her little ones prayed with her.

On the following morning, Charles Nelson sought the bar room as soon as he rose, but he was sick and faint, and the liquor would not revive him, for it would not remain on his stomach. He drank very deeply the night before, and he felt miserable. At length, however, he managed to keep down a few glasses of hot-sling, but the close atmosphere of the bar-room seemed to stifle him and he went out. The poor man had sense enough to know that if he could get a little sleep he would feel better, and he had just feeling enough to make him wish to keep away from home; so he wandered off towards a wood not far from the village and sunk down by a stone wall and was soon buried in profound slumber. When he awoke the sun was shining down hot upon him, and raising himself to a sitting posture he gazed about him. He was just upon the point of rising, when his motion was arrested by the sound of voices near at hand. He looked through a chinck in the wall, and just upon the other side he saw his two children picking berries, while a little further off were two more girls, the children of the carpenter who lately moved into the village.

"Come, Katy," said one of these latter girls to her companion, "let's go away from here, because if anybody should see us with those girls, they'd think we'd play with them."

"But the berries are so thick here," remonstrated the other.

"Never mind—we'll come out some time when those ragged drunkard's girls are not here."

So the two favored ones went away, hand in hand, and Nellie and Nancy Nelson sat down in the grass and cried.

"Don't cry, Nancy," said the elder, putting her arms around her sister's neck.

"But you are crying, Nellie."

"O, I can't help it," sobbed the stricken girl.

"Why do they blame us," said Nancy, looking up into her sister's face. "O, we are not to blame. We are good and kind, and never hurt anybody. O, I wish somebody would love us, I should be so happy."

"Are we not loved, Nancy? Only think of our good mother. Who could love us as she does?"

"I know—I know, Nellie; but that ain't all. Why don't papa love us as he used to do? Don't you remember when he used to kiss us, and make us so happy? O, how I wish he could be so good to us once more. He is not ——"

"—Sh, sissy! don't say any more. He may be good to us again; if he knew how we loved him, I am sure he would. And then I believe God is good, and surely he will help us sometime, for mother prays to him every day."

"Yes," answered Nancy, "I know she does; and God must be our Father sometime."

"He is our Father, now, sissy."

"I know it, but He must be all we shall have bye-and-bye, for don't you remember that mama told us she might leave us one of these days? She said a cold finger was upon her heart, and ——and——"

"—sh! Don't, don't, Nancy, you'll—"

The words were choked up with sobs and tears, and the sisters wept long together.—At length they arose and went away, for they saw more children coming.

As soon as the little ones were out of sight, Charles Nelson started to his feet.—His hands were clenched, and his eyes were fixed upon a vacant point with an eager gaze.

"My God!" he gasped. "What a villain I am! Look at me now! What a state I am in, and what have I sacrificed to bring myself to it! And they love me yet, and pray for me."

He said no more, but for a few moments he stood with his hands still clenched, and his eyes fixed. At length his head was turned inward and his clasped hands dropped by his side, and he started homeward.

When he reached his home he found his wife and children in tears, but affected to notice it not. He drew a shilling from his pocket—it was his last—and handing it to his wife, he asked her if she would send and get some milk and flour, and make him some porridge. The wife was startled by the tone in which this was spoken, for it sounded as that voice had sounded in days gone by.

The porridge was made nice and nourishing, and Charles ate it all. He went to bed early, and early on the following day he was up. He asked his wife if she had milk and flour enough to make him another bowl of porridge.

"Yes, Charles," she said, "we have not touched it."

"Then, if you are willing, I should like some more."

The wife moved quickly about the work, and ere long the food was prepared. The husband felt better. He washed and dressed, and would have shaved had his hand been steady enough. He left his home and went at once to a man who had just commenced to frame a house.

"Mr. Manly," he said, addressing the gentleman alluded to, "I have drunk my last drop of alcoholic beverage that ever passes my lips. Ask me no questions, but believe me now while you see me true.—Will you give me work."

"Charles Nelson, are you in earnest?"—asked Mr. Manly in surprise.

"So much so, sir, that were death to stand upon my right hand, and yonder bar-room on my left, I would go with the grim messenger first."

"Then here is my house lying about us in rough timber and boards. I place it all in your hands and shall look to you to finish it. While I can trust you, you can trust me. Come into my office and you shall see the plans."

We will not tell you how the stout man wept, nor how his noble friend shed tears to see him thus; but Charles Nelson took the plan, and having studied it for awhile, he went out where the men were at work getting the timber together, and Mr. Manly introduced him as their master. That day he worked but little, for he was not strong yet, but he arranged the timber, and gave directions for framing. At night he asked his employer if he dared trust him with a dollar.

"Why, you've earned three," returned Manly.

"And will you pay me three dollars a day?"

"If you are as faithful as you have been to-day, for you will save me money at that."

The poor man could not speak his thanks in words, but his looks spoke for him, and Manly understood them. He received his three dollars, and on his way home stopped and bought first a basket, then three loaves of bread, a pound of butter, some tea, sugar, and a piece of beefsteak, and he had just one dollar and seventy-five cents left. With this load he went home. It was some time before he could compose himself to enter the house, but at length he went in and set the basket upon the table.

"Come, Mary," he said, "I have brought something home for supper. Here, Nelly, you take the pail and run over to Mr. Ball's and get two quarts of milk."

He handed the child a shilling as he spoke, and in a half bewildered state she took the money and hurried away.

The wife started when she raised the cover of the basket, but she dared not speak. She moved about like one in a dream, and ever and anon she would cast a furtive look at her husband. He had not been drinking, she knew it—and yet he had money enough to buy rum with if he wanted it. What could it mean? Had her prayers been answered? O, how fervently she prayed then.

Soon Nelly returned with the milk, and Mrs. Nelson set the table out. After supper Charles arose and said to his wife:

"I must go up to Mr. Manly's office to help him arrange some plans for his new building, but I will be at home early."

A pang shot through the wife's heart as she saw her husband turn away, but still she was far happier than she had been before for a long while. There was something in his manner that assured her, and gave her hope.

Just as the clock struck nine, the well known foot-fall was heard, strong and steady. The door opened and Charles entered. His wife cast a quick, keen glance in his face, and she almost uttered a cry of joy when she saw how he was changed for the better. He had been to the barber's and to the hatter's. Yet nothing was said on the all-important subject. Charles wished to retire early, and his wife went with him. In the morning the husband arose first and built the fire. Mary had not slept till long after midnight, having been kept awake by the tumultuous emotions that started up in her bosom, and hence she awoke not so early as usual. But she came out just as the tea-kettle and potatoes began to boil, and breakfast was soon ready.

After the meal was eaten, Charles arose, put on his hat, and turning to his wife, he asked:

"What do you do to-day?"

"I must wash for Mrs. Bixby."

"Are you willing to obey me once more?"

"O, yes."

"Then work for me to-day. Send Nelly over to tell Mrs. Bixby that you are not well enough to wash, for you are not. Here is a dollar, and you must do with it as you please. Buy something that will keep you busy for yourself or the children."

Mr. Nelson turns towards the door, and his hand was upon the latch. He hesitated, and turned back. He did not speak, but opened his arms, and his wife sank upon his bosom. He kissed her, and then having gently placed her in a seat he left the house. When he went to his work that morning he felt well and very happy. Mr. Manly was by to cheer him, and this he did by talking and acting as though Charles had never been unfortunate.

It was Saturday, and Charles Nelson had been almost a week with Mr. Manly. He had earned fifteen dollars, ten of which he had now in his pocket.

"Mary," he said, after the supper table had been cleared away "here are ten dollars for you, and I want you to expend it in clothing for yourself and the children. I have earned fifteen dollars during the last five days. I am to build a house at three dollars a day. A good job, isn't it.

Mary looked up and her lips moved, but she could not speak a word. She struggled a few moments, and then burst into tears. Her husband took her by the arm and drew her upon his lap, and then pressed her to his bosom.

"Mary," he whispered, while the tears ran down his own cheeks, "you are not deceived. I am Charles Nelson once more, and will be while I live. Not by any act of mine shall another cloud cross your brow." And then he told her of the words he had heard on the previous Monday, while he lay behind the wall.

"Never before," he said, "did I fully realize how low I had fallen, but the scales dropped from my eyes then as though some one had struck them off with a sledge. My soul started up to a stand point from which all the tempters of the earth cannot move it. Your prayers are answered, my wife."

Time passed on, and the cottage assumed its garb of pure white, and its whole windows, and green blinds. The roses in the garden smiled, and in every way did the improvement work. Once again was Mary Nelson among the happiest of the happy, and her children choose their own associates now.

POST OFFICE REFORM BILL.—The editorial correspondent of the Bulletin writes to that paper as follows, from Washington, under date of Feb. 24th:

"The House has concured with the Senate in passing Judge Collamer's Postal Reform bill, with sundry amendments. The sections providing for the compensation of postmasters by salary instead of commissions, were stricken out upon the representations of Mr. Colfax, who was overruled on the point in his committee. The Senate providing certain rates on all postal matter had unwittingly abolished the franking privilege. The House was swift to correct this error. An amendment was, however, made, limiting the franking privilege as follows: It is taken away from postmasters who are receiving less than $200 a year. Persons not in official positions and corresponding on official business are hereafter required to pay postage on all their letters, except those to members of Congress. This provision will, it is thought, greatly diminish the correspondence of the President and his ministers.

The clause which required money-letters to be registered at a cost of 20 cents postage has been stricken out. The bill as it passed the Senate authorizes the Postmaster-General to increase the present charge (5 cents) on the voluntary registration of letters, should he think fit. Magazines transmitted by mail require the postage to be prepaid. The postage on weekly newspapers is changed from 3 1-4 cents per quarter, if delivered within the State where printed, and 6 1-2 cents if delivered in any other State, to a uniform rate of 5 cents per quarter. To cover the expense of free delivery "drop letter," or those delivered from the office at which they are mailed, are to be charged two cents in those places where the free delivery system is established. Otherwise, drop letters are charged only one cent.

Two Dollar Greenbacks have been raised to fifties by the counterfeiters. The fraud is readily detected on examining the left upper corner of the bill, where it will be seen that 50 has been ingeniously pasted over the large 2. Elsewhere on the bill the words and figures have been obliterated by the use of a green ink very closely resembling the patent green that gives the national notes their name.

Brigham Young on Loyalty and Secession.

A correspondent writes to the Sacramento Union, as follows:

The sermon is here enclosed for what use you may think proper. There are but one or two points in it that I think of particular importance at the present time—Brigham's avowal of loyalty and his first and only allusion to the "Mountain Meadow Massacre." He claims on the first, that the people of which he is recognized leader, have proven their loyalty over and over again, to the Nation, Constitution and Government; but had many complaints to make against the unfair, unjust proceedings of different Administrations, in which they were victimized. His own words deserve quotation:

"Now, then, what should we say concerning this people? I will answer. There never has been a time or circumstance since this Territory was organized, but what the civil law has reigned triumphantly in the hearts and acts of this people. The pressure now is that this people, called Latter Day Saints, are secessionists in their feelings and alien to the Constitution and institutions of our country. This is entirely false. There is not another people on the face of the earth that could have borne what we have, and still remained as loyal to our brethren as we have been and are. They might be displeased with some of the acts of the administrators of the law, but not with the constitutional laws and institutions of the Government.

This is the outside pressure. It forced us from Ohio to Missouri, from Missouri to Illinois, and from Illinois into the wilderness. We are accused of disloyalty, alienation, and apostacy from the Constitution of our country. We are accused of being secessionists. I am, so help me God, and ever expect to be a secessionist from their wickedness, unrighteousness, dishonesty and unhallowed principles in a religious point of view; but am I, or this people secessionists with regard to the glorious Constitution of our country? No.

"I am neither an abolitionist nor a pro-slavery man. If I could have been influenced by private injury to choose one side in preference to the other, I should certainly be against the pro-slavery side of the question: for it was pro-slavery men that pointed the bayonet at me and my friends in Missouri, and said, 'Damn you, we will kill you.'" I have not much love for them only in the gospel. I would cause them to repent, if I could, and make them good men and a good community. I have no fellowship for their avarice, blindness and ungodly actions.

"Now, as we are accused of secession, my counsel to this congregation is to secede, what from? From the Constitution of the United States? No. From the institutions of our country? No. Well, then, what from? From sin and the practice thereof.

That is my counsel to this congregation and the whole world.

—Cradlebaugh, I presume—who wanted the whole army under General Johnston to accompany him while he tried the people of Iron county, Brigham says:

"I told Governor Cumming that if he would take an unprejudiced Judge into the district where that horrid affair occurred, I would pledge myself that every man in the regions round about should be forthcoming when called for to be condemned or acquitted, as an impartial, unprejudiced Judge and jury should decide; and I pledged him that the Court should be protected from any violence or hindrance in the prosecution of the laws; and if any were guilty of the blood of those who suffered in the Mountain Meadow massacre, let them suffer the penalty of the law; but to this day they have not touched the matter, for fear the Mormons would be acquitted from the charge of having any hand in it, and our enemies would thus be deprived of a favorite tone to talk about when urging hostility against us. "The Mountain Meadow meassacre!—only think of the Mountain Meadow massacre!' is their cry from one end of the land to the other."

[Our correspondent does not give the most racy and illiberal portions of Brigham's speech.]

The following is worthy of the veriest Copperhead in the land: "The rank, rabid abolitionists, whom I call black-hearted Republicans, have set the whole national fabric on fire. Do you know this, Democrats? They have kindled the fire that is raging now from the North to the South, and from the South to the North. I am no abolitionist, neither am I a pro-slavery man; I hate some of their principles, and especially some of their conduct, as I do the gates of hell. The Southerners make the negroes, and the Northerners worship them; this is all the difference between slaveholders and abolitionists. I would like the President of the United States and all the world to hear this." Again, speaking of the Gentiles, Brigham says: "Find fault with me because I have wives! They would corrupt every wife I have, if they had the power; and then they cry to the Government, you had better do something with the Mormons; they are deceitful and disloyal' I am disloyal to their sins and filthiness. Cleanse your hearts and the whole person, and make yourselves as pure as the angels, and then I will fellowship you."

These are items of some interest at the present time, and inasmuch as they are given voluntarily and freely, they will have proper weight with every person interested in the continuance of amicable relations between the people of Utah and the General Government.

THE PACIFIC RAILROAD.—The Sacramento Union after speaking at length of the great benefits to be derived from the completion of this important national thoroughfare, thus speaks of the progress of the work:

The Directors of the Company are pushing steadily onward. They have purchased the iron to lay fifty miles of the road, and will have the first eighteen, which are now under contract, completed and the locomotives and cars running on it in September next. The remaining thirty-two of the first fifty miles are nearly ready to be put under contract, and will doubtless be let in the course of a few weeks.

The Union as it Was.

One of the most eloquent speeches of the past session of Congress was that of Horace Maynard of Tennessee, delivered in the House on the 7th of February:

But "the Union as it was" is the watchword of the hour. The Union as it was when? When Washington, to suppress rebellion, sent into Western Pennsylvania fifteen thousand men, under the command of his neighbor and friend, General Lee, who, could he leave the abodes of glory, would smite and confound his traitor son? When Webster and Clay rallied to the support of Jackson and sent treason whipped and abashed to its lair? When Millard Fillmore, called to account for the disposition of his fleets in the harbor of Charleston, replied that he was not responsible for his official conduct to the Governor of South Carolina? Or as it was in the waxing and waning days of later Administration, when treason sat at the senile ear of executive power, and hatching its mischievous plot in the very corridors of the Presidential mansion? As it was in the day of its glory or might, or as it was in the night of its weakness and shame? As it was when strong, honest men gave direction to its councils, or when turpitude claimed and took precedence of decrepitude in the conduct of its affairs?—For upon this inquiry must largely depend the real significance of this rallying cry—whether it means a re-establishment of the flag and a reassertion of the national authority over every rood of our domains, or is but an empty formula, to be interpreted to suit any occasion.

The Union as it was! Say, rather, the Union as it will be, when, the Constitution maintained in all its spirit and vigor—even its very forms preserved inviolate; peace restored upon the basis of our indivisibility; the self protecting power of popular government asserted—our multiplied millions shall present to mankind an example of government mightier, freer and happier than the world has ever seen. Then will be realized the conviction of a great English statesman, who, rising above the mists of prejudice and traditional enmity which have beclouded so many of his countrymen, has asserted the justice and hopefulness of our cause, in words contrasting most gratefully with the ribaldry and cynicism by which we have been so constantly assailed:

"I cannot myself believe in such a fate befalling that fair land; stricken though it now be by the hand of war, I cannot believe that civilization, in its journey with the sun, will sink into endless night to gratify the ambition of the leaders of this revolt, who seek 'to wade through slaughter to a throne, and shut the gates of mercy on mankind.' I have another and far brighter vision before my gaze. It may be but a vision, but I will cherish it. I see one vast confederation stretching from the frozen North, in one unbroken line, to the of vast South, in one unbroken line, to the Pacific main, and see one people and one law and one language and one faith, and over all that wide continent the home of freedom and a refuge for the oppressed of every race."

DEATH OF REBEL PRISONERS.—The Burlington (Vt.) Free Press, has a letter from a member of the Ninth Vermont regiment who is employed in the hospital at Camp Douglas, Chicago, where the rebel prisoners captured at Arkansas Post are kept, which says:

I suppose that you would be much surprised if you should see the loads of dead bodies go out of camp. The rebels are dying very fast: the most that have died in one day is fifteen. I have sent twelve off to-day, and there is still the same number in the dead house. It seems as if they were all doomed to die, for as soon as a dead one is taken out of the hospital, a sick one takes his place; and it has been so ever since they came here. I think it is the cold climate that kills them off so fast; they die mostly of pneumonia. I find among the rebels a great many fine and intelligent fellows; there are six privates that are lawyers, and smart fellows they are, too. The most of them seem to be very intelligent. They are mostly from Missouri, Tennessee and Arkansas; a few are Virginians.

THE NATIONAL DRAFT.—The New York Herald, speaking of the Conscription bill, says:

The Conscription bill, which has passed both houses of Congress, and which may now be considered a law of the land, is a sweeping measure. It embraces men of all colors, and parties, all creeds, all professions, all pursuits—Congressmen, Assemblymen, Aldermen, Clergymen, Shakers, Quakers, Indians, niggers and all. Thaddeus Stevens tried to get off the Quakers, on conscientious scruples; but he failed.—The able-bodied Quakers, like the rest of their fellow-citizens between twenty and forty-five years of age, if called upon, must pocket their conscientious scruples and go forth to fight, or fork out $300 each for a substitute. It is nonsense to talk of resistance. The laws must be obeyed. The Quakers and Shakers, we know, will not resist; the Indians are always ready for war purposes, and the niggers like white men, have no choice.

EFFECTS OF THE AMERICAN WAR.—The solidarity, to use an expressive French word, of the human race, and its community of interests, are strikingly brought out by the effects of the present civil war in the United States. That war rages only around the borders of the seceded States, but its effects are felt throughout the world. Is there misery in Virginia and Tennessee? so is there in Lancashire, and the manufacturing districts of France and Germany. Nay, from missionary reports we learn that the native weavers in India are in great distress, on account of the high price of raw cotton, and that the Nestorians, in Persia, whose clothing is almost wholly of cotton, find it difficult to sustain themselves on account of the greatly enhanced price of apparel. In a word, every nation that grows, manufactures, or uses cotton, is effected just in proportion to its interest in that universal staple.

THE WASHINGTON STATESMAN

SATURDAY MORNING, APR. 18, 1863

The News.

We have news from the East to the 7th of April. The most important item is the reported capture of Charleston. This news may be true, but we look upon it as entirely to good to be correct. There is no doubt, however, that the attack has commenced in earnest, and that the Union operations look favorably to an early capture of the place.

Gen. Hooker's army was still in its old position on the Rappahanock, and the rapid improvement of the roads would indicate the renewal of active operations in a short time. The army of the Potomac has been reduced by sending re-inforcements to Gen. Rosekrans and Gen. Hunter. The reports in relation to the Confederate movements in front of Richmond are so contradictory that it is uncertain whether their army has been divided to re-inforce their armies in Tennessee and South Carolina, or whether its are still in force on the Rappahannock.

The army beleaguering Vicksburg appears to be moving slowly in the operations for reduction of that place; but its eventual success appears to be conceded, if their efforts are persisted in.

In Europe the Polish insurrection is at an end, and the leader of the insurgents has been taken prisoner.

The correspondence between the United States and Great Britain relative to the fitting out of privateers to prey on the American commerce, has excited a bitter feeling, and some danger of a rupture is apprehended.

Creating a Panic.

At one of the battles of the Mexican war, a captain in a Western regiment had a lieutenant of whose valor he had considerable doubt. The regiment to which his company was attached was ordered up to bring on the action, and at once received a heavy fire, which the men bore with soldierly firmness; but the lieutenant, whose own fears were worked up to the highest degree, at once became demonstrative, and began to use cheering expressions; such as "now be steady men!" don't get scared!" "keep cool!" etc., etc. The anxiety of this shaky warrior was very ludicrous, but the gallant captain, doubting the propriety of his enthusiastic actions and fearing a panic, seized him by the throat and threatened to run him through the body if he did not keep quiet; and one of the men asked that the heroic gentleman should be sent to the rear, as the company believed him to be a coward! There is a class of men on the Union side in the ranks of civil life, who bear a close resemblance to this lieutenant. We refer to those who are always assuming that somebody is about to give up the idea of preserving the Union, and in consequence, are continually making patriotic speeches and requesting everybody not to get scared, but to be steady and keep cool, when it is nothing but their own cowardly fears that impel them to speak thus. Those who act this part appear to forget that they assume the existence of a feeling of despondency when they offer encouragement in this way, and mistake the frozen thermometer of their own courage and hope for that by which the national spirit is measured. From this class of enthusiasts none loyalty of their loyal fellow citizens, and some danger of a rupture is apprehended.

From the Grasshopper Mines.

We are indebted to Capt. Armstrong, of this city, for the use of a private letter written to him from the Beaver Head, or Grasshopper mines, by Capt. De Lacy, formerly of this place. The letter is descriptive and interesting. We extract the following:

You will naturally want to know something about the mines. The mines which have excited the people so much, usually called the Beaver Head Mines, are not at the Beaver Head at all, but are situated on Grasshopper creek, a branch of the Jefferson Fork of the Missouri, and about 150 miles south of the junction of the Deer Lodge and Hellgate rivers. The diggings are chiefly hill diggings, and are situated in a canon five or six miles long. Above and below this the creek opens out, and the gold deposit seems to cease, as nothing has been found by numerous prospecters. Several quartz leads have been found on both sides, which are said to be very rich—they run north and south across the creek, and one has been traced for some distance. I have some specimens with me to bring down. The rock which contains the gold in these leads, the miners call rotten quartz, but to me it has all the appearances of iron ore. Of course it is impossible for any one to judge of the richness of these leads by simply seeing the ore-rock. In many pieces you can see gold it is true, but not in all. The chain of mountains in which these mines occur, is a black compact limestone, very hard, and close grained, and the gravel which is thrown out of the diggings is the same. This is curious, as it is seldom. I believe, that gold is found in large quantities in this kind of rock.

The diggings are chiefly on the south side of the creek and the miners dig their pay dirt on the mountain side, at an elevation of from 20 to 100 feet. The dirt they let down on slides or other contrivances to the creek, where a partner washes it in a rocker. Rockers are used almost exclusively. At the time I was in the diggings there were only one or two sets of sluices, and those could not be worked on account of being frozen up; and even the rockers could only be used about three hours in the day. The weather was intensely cold. The creek was covered with ice a foot thick, and I slept in the open air, with the thermometer below zero. It is actually so cold as a general thing, in these mines and in the Deer Lodge that it cannot snow.

The gold is found on the bed rock and the miners report that they can make from $10 to $15 per day, even under the present difficulties. This I think to be an exaggeration. I conversed with many who told me that they were not doing very well, and besides they over estimate the value of their gold, holding it at the mines at $18 when at Hellgate you can only get $16 for it.

It is supposed that the bed of the creek is very rich, but as yet it has not been prospected; or, rather, they have not reached the bed rock. I saw holes which had been sunk to the depth of 20 to 30 feet without reaching the ledge. When I left, it was reported that some miners had struck a good thing somewhere near the Red Butte, which is further to the south, but no one knew anything certain about it.

It is said that the ravines and gulches near the creek pay very well but cannot be worked on account of want of water. I saw carts employed in transporting dirt a distance of two miles to the creek, and I am told that it paid very well indeed.

There are three towns in this delectable region; one at the head of the canon, called Yankee Town—so called for being inhabited and adjoining this is Bannock Town, and about half a mile below another, name not recollected. These towns are built generally of comfortable cabins. Included in the population are many women and children, who give a lively and home like air to the place; and as a consequence there is less hard drinking and less gambling than is common in mining towns.

But few of the miners are from California or Oregon. Most of them are from Pike's Peak and the States, and have all the narrow ideas and penuriousness common to the people of the Atlantic side.—They think more of a dime than we of the Pacific do of a dollar.

As these "Yankees" compose the majority, they have monopolized to themselves nearly all the claims on the creek and made the laws to favor them in so doing. Every man can have five claims, and some I was told held as high as 15. They took all the building lots in the town, so that those who came after them had to buy. After I left, a party went I understand, to Beaver Head to lay out a town at the three forks of the Missouri, and take up the whole country there for farming ranches. None but those holding claims can vote at any meeting. These things will all be attended to when miners from California and Oregon get in. When I left, nearly every one had quit work. I tried to get a claim but could not get one, except I took it two or three miles from water.

It is expected that the light draft boats which have been built below, will be able to ascend the river to Fort Benton in June, and will doubtless bring up large quanties of freight. Goods will then be very cheap until fall. It is expected that all the Pike's Peakers, and a number of Californians and others will come here in the spring. So that for a time the country will be flooded with people.

I suppose the history of these mines will be the same as it ever has been of others, an immense crowd gathered, nine tenths of whom go away disappointed.

SECESSION PLANS.—The people of California, and especially the residents of San Francisco, are peculiarly nervous about an anticipated outbreak of Secessionists, in that State. Gen. Wright has issued orders that no craft shall approach within four hundred yards of Alcatraz Island after dark, on pain of being fired on. It is not likely that the Secessionists will undertake any desperate enterprise on this coast, until they have first learned the probable result of the struggle at the East. It would certainly be the extreme of folly for them to continue their machinations, when, by so doing, they may involve forfeitures here which will be of no avail in the settlement of the main question. But if ever the Government is mad enough to consent to a dissolution of the Union, then we might look for a serious effort on their part to carry out the Pacific States.

EVACUATED.—Capt. Seidenstriker's company of Washington Volunteers has been ordered from Fort Hoskins to Fort Vancouver. It was the intention some time ago to abandon Fort Hoskins, and it has probably been done. A garrison has been kept there for some time past for the ostensible purpose of guarding the Indians, but, it is said, really to afford a good market for some disinterested agriculturists living in that neighborhood.

PROMOTION.—Lieut. Wm. B. Hughes, of the 9th Infantry, who has been stationed at Fort Walla Walla for the past year as A. A. Q. M., has been promoted to a Captaincy in the Quartermaster's department. He proceeded to Vancouver on Wednesday, to report to District headquarters.

Auburn Letter.

AUBURN, April 8th, 1863.

EDS. STATESMAN:—I perceive that you have had no news direct from Auburn for a considerable length of time. I suppose it is owing to this being a very busy time and no one finding time to write. For fear people may forget that there are mines here, in their excitement about Boise, I will state that now our ditches are fast becoming filled. Messrs. Davidson and Carter, with their ditch now furnish about thirty companies with sluice heads. Most miners are now sluicing away surface dirt. A few are washing up pay dirt. All seem to be well pleased, and report their claims as paying from ten to thirty dollars per day. Mr. Berry, & Co., of French Gulch, washed up this evening, after shoveling in their sluice five hours—five men at work—about $60.

Wages here at present, are from four to five dollars per day, and hands scarce.

Freeze Out Gulch has again began to yield up her treasure most bounteously.

News from Granite creek is very encouraging. Men are here from there and trying to hire hands to take back with them. They offer as high as six dollars per day with steady work and pay every Saturday night.

Several men have came here from Canyon City that talk very discouragingly.—They pronounce the diggings there as good grub-diggings, and declare they never wish to see the place again.

News from Boise is still exciting. Many are going, and some have come back and have gone to work on their old claims. A party has just returned from the new diggings on Pine creek, at the mouth of Powder river. They speak well of the prospects obtained there and report the snow very deep, making it difficult prospecting. The gold obtained is of the fine order, but of a good quality, and I should judge from its appearance, will assay nearly eighteen dollars to the oz. Several families have left this place for Burnt river. They go there with the expectation of settling, for the purpose of farming. For this pursuit, I think the climate is far better adapted than that of Powder river valley. Persons living there say that it is now much warmer there than here and that the grass on the south hill sides is up nice and green, and the flowers in bloom; whilst here the grass has just started to grow. Several farmers in Powder river valley are preparing to put in large spring crops. I think we will have to look to some other place besides that for any such things as garden vegetables. Flour is selling dull at $18, per cwt. Groceries high.

Your, &c., CORRESPONDENT.

The Emigrant Road.

SUMMIT BLUE MOUNTAINS, April 5th, 1863.

EDS. STATESMAN:—As a warning to those who intend traveling from your city to Boise with teams, I feel it my duty to acquaint them with some facts in regard to the nature of the road as a wagon-road, and also to inform them of the danger to be met at one point of the road.

On the 25th ult. I left Walla Walla with a team (as I supposed) strong enough to draw my load through any depth of mud easily; which they did to the bottom of the mud, but could go no further.

On the 29th I reached the summit, and after finding that the road grew worse instead of better, I concluded to get my freight packed through to Grand Ronde valley, and was informed by packers that over such a road 9 cts per pound was little enough—though distant but 40 miles.

I can safely say that this road is utterly impassable for wagons loaded with more

We learn from "reliable authority" that the streams between this place and Boise are exceedingly high at this time owing to the fact the snow melts very fast during such warm weather as we have at present. While staying here, three days, the snow has melted at the rate of one foot a day. This makes the road very muddy, indeed. The Umatilla river is very high, and persons wishing to cross had better cross at the bridge below the agency, which is but few miles out of the way.

In regard to the danger to be apprehended at the point alluded to. I will simply state what was told to me by a half breed living at the Agency.

He said that the Indians there were in the habit of stealing horses from travelers at this camp on the Umatilla and in the vicinity and driving them off in the deep ravines till their owners leave, when they brand them so as to defy recognition, and that no one supposes them to be guilty, but on the contrary attribute it to the white horse thieves. Yesterday I saw three men who had camped at this spot a few days ago and had lost their horses (supposing them stolen by white men) and after disposing of all their freight started to Boise on foot.

Considering the source from whence I got this information, I think it true, and would advise persons camping near there to keep an eye to their stock.

Yours, &c., M. P.

THE COURT FUNDS.—If our Territorial Marshal, Huntington, would not subject himself to the charge of speculating in greenbacks, he would do well to forward the amount due in this district for the expenses of the last two terms of the district court. These funds, we are informed, have been in the marshal's hands for some time, ready for disbursement, and this slowness on his part to forward them here is inexcusable. The people here who hold the scrip need their money and are anxious to know what the Marshal is doing with it. Will he enlighten them?

THE OVERLAND EMIGRATION.—A dispatch of April 4th says Capt. Medorem Crawford, who commands the overland emigrant escort, had arrived at Washington. He reports already fifty thousand emigrants moving in the direction of this coast, and estimates the number for the whole season, at one hundred thousand.

SALE OF PUBLIC LANDS.—A telegraphic dispatch of April 3d, says the public lands to be sold this summer will include three millions of acres in Washington Territory.

MILITARY SUPPLIES FOR BOISE.—The supplies for Fort Boise will be concentrated at Wallula, and wagoned thence to Boise.

NEARLY COMPLETED.—The Dalles and Celilo railroad is completed to within one and a half miles of Celilo. The cars will pass over the entire line in twenty days more.

A STARVATION JOURNEY.—Mr. Galbreath informs us that a gentleman came in from Boise this week, with the information that a party of miners who started to Boise by the Lewiston route arrived last week at the Payette mountains, having been forty days in making the trip from Lewiston to the mountains. The party had endured many hardships, having got nearly out of provisions, and suffered much from cold. They were compelled finally to cross over to the Grand Ronde and Auburn road before they could make the trip into Boise. This Lewiston route may be practicable at some seasons of the year; but it is clear that it is not open now. the statements of the Age to the contrary, notwithstanding; and believing we have the best evidence of this fact, we would advise miners not to attempt, on any account, to pass over it now.

UP SNAKE RIVER.—The steamer Kius ascended Snake river last week as far as the mouth of Salmon river. The experience of the trip, we learn, gives no great encouragement in regard to the successful navigation of Snake river to the point named; the river being full of rapids, over which it is difficult for boats to pass, and dangerous on account of rocks. At the point where the Kius turned 'round is a swift rapid, which extends up the river for a long distance. The Kius will make another trip up the river next week with the view of further testing it in regard to its practicable navigation.

TO BE DISMISSED.—Lieut. James Merriman, for a long time stationed on the Sound, has been ordered home, to answer to charges preferred against him by Victor Smith, the hero of the bombardment and capture of Port Townsend. Victor Smith is understood to be Salmon P. Chase's "man" on this coast, and is determined to show his authority. It is not likely that Merriman will will be dismissed, for all the Victors and Salmons in the nation; as he is a gallant and accomplished officer, and has the advantage of being personally known to Mr. Lincoln.

TO BE TRIED.—The men who fitted out the Confederate pirate Chapman, at San Francisco, are to be tried. All who had not taken the oath of allegiance are to be turned over to the civil authorities; but those of the prisoners who had taken the oath, and then engaged in this piratical scheme, are to be tried by a military commission at Alcatraz Island.

Latest Eastern News.

Dates to April 7th.

WASHINGTON, April 5.—The report of the Committee on the conduct of the war will be published on Monday.—It is very lengthy, making nearly 7,000 written pages. There runs through the report a current of evidence from generals and civilians alike, tending, it is said, to place broadly heavy charges and responsibilities upon the shoulders of General McClellan while in command of the army of the Potomac. The evidence of the President, that during the winter of 1862, while the organization of the army was perfect, and the roads good, especially in December of that year, and while Beauregard's army at Manassas was much inferior in numbers, without fortifications, as shown, accidental to evidence, and not until the evacuation had commenced did he move forward. Much space is devoted to the transfer of the army to the Peninsula, and the subsequent course he pursued in front of Yorktown, civilians and spies testifying that Magruder's force was one-third that of McClellan's. While on the march up the Peninsula and subsequently in the battles, it is alleged that on one or two occasions not the slightest effort was made to send proper re-inforcements. Several generals testified that after the battle of Fair Oaks the army might have gone into Richmond on the left, by the shortest

By order of the Court. D. N. Sent'n, Clk.

Ball.—A Grand Civil and Military Ball will be given at Fort Walla Walla on Thursday evening, 23d instant. The public are invited.

Bannock City Mines.—From a private letter from Bannock City, dated March 19th, we learn that the mining season at that place has fairly opened. Many claims are yielding $15 and $20 per day, to the hand, and $4 and $5 a day is easily obtained. The Blackfoot Indians have been committing depredations and have stolen many horses and cattle; besides killing one man, who was out herding stock. Several "road-agents" from this side of the mountains are in the vicinity of Bannock City, and, some alarm is manifested lest they should give the rein to their thieving proclivities. The prices current at the mines are as follows: Bacon, 75c a pound; Flour, 30c; tea, $4; coffee, $1.25; tobacco, $3; sugar, $1; beef, 25c. Whiskey is not to be had for love nor money.

The Up Country Mails.—The contractor for carrying the mails to Lewiston, Florence and Elk City, and to Colville and Hellgate, has thrown up his contract.—[Reason?] For the last two weeks he has failed altogether to "connect" in any of these routes. In consequence, the postmaster here, Mr. Kelly, has advertised to receive bids till 12 o'clock M. to-day for carrying the mails to Lewiston. What is to be done with the other routes we are not apprised, but presume they will be relet by the department. The Lewiston mail will probably be in operation again next week.

New Map.—A new map of the Oregon and Washington Territory mining region has been published by A. Leland. We wish the publisher an extensive sale of the map, if it is correct; but as he only pretends that it is "drawn from notes of the personal and careful observation of the author and other gentlemen," we apprehend that too much of it is based on the reports of "intelligent Indians." Until we see it, we forbear further comment; but must remark, that, unless it is more reliable than Mr. Leland's representations about the Lewiston-Boise route, it will not do for miners to depend upon. We feel justified in making this reflection in advance, when we view the frauds practiced on the adventurers who started for Boise by the way of Lewiston; of whom not one has reached his destination.

Another Fight.—By a gentleman, direct from Boise, we learn that he met Standefer's party, one hundred strong, returning from the Malheur, where they had fought the Indians a second time, killing twenty of them without the loss of a single white man.

The Coming Men.—The steamer Brother Jonathan brought three hundred miners from San Francisco on her last trip This may be looked upon as a promising indication for the future.

Coast Defense.—A new Ericsson battery, the Camanche, has been shipped in pieces from New York to San Francisco; also, five field batteries and ten thousand stand of arms.

Stopped.—The property of the Nicaragua Transit Company has been seized by the government of Nicaragua for the non-payment of certain dues by the company, which amount to about $6,000.

Arms.—One thousand stand of arms have been forwarded from San Francisco to Oregon. They are for the use, it is supposed, of the militia of that State and this Territory.

New Commandant.—Major Truax, of the First Oregon Cavalry Volunteers, is appointed to the command of Fort Walla Walla.

Intelligent People.—Some of the people up the Willamette have been digging up and cutting down the poles of the Yreka and Portland Telegraph, where it is to pass over their lands. They have an idea that it will injure the growth of their crops!

Mistake.—Major Winston, Paymaster U. S. A., says that he did not receive a part of his last remittances in coin; but that it was all paper money. This news will be a grievous disappointment to the troops of Oregon and Washington.

Reported Indian Outrage.—The Dalles Mountaineer reports a rumor that "Peg-leg Smith's" pack-train had been robbed by Indians, on the Dalles and Canyon City trail.

Pacific City.—A letter in the S. F. Morning Call, from Portland, dated March 25th, says that the Pacific City Company are building houses and making preparations to construct a wharf for the accommodation of ocean and river steamers—The statements are rose-colored and look as if they derived their hue, measurably, from the light refracted from the coin of the United States.

Wrong.—The P. C. Advocate says that Yakimas, Nez Perces, Palouse, Cayuse, Walla Walla and Coeur d'Alene Indians are hostile to the whites. Except the Yakimas we know this statement to be incorrect. There are no hostile Indians but the Snakes, in the mining regions of the Upper Columbia.

Escaped.—Bcon Helm, who killed "Dutch Fred" at Florence about a year ago, has been confined all winter at Olympia; but just as the authorities were about to forward him to the upper country for trial, he broke jail and has not been heard from.

Love Me Little. Love Me Long.

"Love me little, love me long,
Is the burden of my song:
Love that is too hot and strong
Burneth soon to waste.
Still, I would not have thee cold;
Not too backward nor too bold—
Love that lasteth till 'tis old
Fadeth not in haste.
Love me little, love me long,
Is the burden of my song.

If thou lovest me too much,
It will not prove true as touch.
Love me little, more than such
For I fear the end.
I am with little well content,
And a little from thee sent,
Is enough, with true intent,
To be steadfast, friend.
Love me little love me long, etc.

Say thou lovest me while you live,
I to thee my love will give,
Never dreaming to deceive
While that life endures:
Nay, and after death, in sooth,
I to thee will keep my truth,
As now, when in my May of youth,
This my love assures.
Love me little, love me long, etc.

Constant love is moderate ever,
And it will through life persever;
Give me that, with true endeavor
I will it restore.
A suit of duranee let it be,
For all weathers; that for me,
For the land, or for the sea.
Lasting evermore.
Love me little, love me long, etc.

Winter's cold, or summer's heat,
Autumn's tempests on it beat,
It can never know defeat,
Never can rebel.
Such the love that I would gain,
Such the love I tell thee plain,
Thou must give, or woo in vain;
So to thee farewell.
Love me little, love me long,
Is the burden of my song.

BREVITIES.—Small cheer and hearty welcome make merry feasts.

Let us not burthen our remembrances with a heaviness that is gone.

Suspicion haunts the guilty mind; the thief doth fear each bush an officer.

No visor doth become black villany so well as soft and tender flattery.

Be thou as chaste as ice, as pure as snow, thou shalt not escape calumny.

The injuries we do and those we suffer, are seldom weighed in the same scales.

Avarice often misses its point through the means taken to secure it.

Drunkenness is the parent of most other vices. It quenches the salutary power of reason, and makes us the sport of raging passion.

It is right to call our life a stage; for what are our joys and sorrows to the spiritual world, who are the spectators, but mimic tragedies and farces?

Two of the steam wagons for the road from Nebraska City to Denver have been completed by the contractor.

It is reported that the exemption for $300 in the Conscription bill has been struck out, and that those drafted will have to furnish their own substitutes.

NEW WAGON ROAD—The people living in the vicinity of Jacksonville are working with a will toward opening a wagon road from that place to the John Day and Boise mines.

THE Missouri Democrat has the following brief but touching biography of Clab. F. Jackson, late rebel Governor of Missouri, who died recently at Little Rock, Arkansas: "His disease was cancer of the stomach. All that can be said of him is, that he is now the right man in the right place."

It has been said that an Irishman is satisfied only when he is in a quarrel; a Scotchman is at home only when he is abroad; an Englishman is contented only when he is finding fault with somebody, and a captious, busy, blustering American is at the height of felicity only when he is in all these tumultuous conditions at the same time.

OLD EDITORS.—Hon. Nathan Hale, editor of the Boston Advertiser, established that paper in in 1814, and was consequently its editor for 48 years. He was the oldest editor in New England but one, Hon John Prentiss, who commenced the Sentinel at Keene N. H, in 1779, and still writes with the vigor of early manhood. He is the oldest editor in the world, so far as we know.

A SHE TRAITOR.—A report is current in Indiana, and generally believed to be true, that the wife of Jesse D. Bright had crossed General Bragg's lines, carrying sealed dispatches for Jefferson Davis, in which a proposition is made to join the States of Indiana Illinois, and other States west of the Mississippi to the Southern confederacy. This is probably one of the steps taken by the traitor Bright, to revenge the indignity offered by the United States Senate. If this is susceptible of proof, Bright should have the benefit of a short shrift and a strong cord at once.

The Mississippi and Lake Providence.

The following facts from a St. Louis paper in reference to Lake Providence and certain operations which are in progress against the rebels will prove interesting at this time:

The bed of the Mississippi is certainly changing, the action of the current wearing new channels and finding new courses. At times its waters have flowed over various parts of the country on either side of its present banks. The State of Louisiana is full of branches or bayous of the Mississippi, by which the water of that river winds its devious way through swamps and lakes to the Gulf, in lines nearly parallel with the present stream, showing that at some period hitherto the volume of the Mississippi has not always run in its present channel. Lake Providence there is little doubt was once the bed of that river. There is still a deep hollow between the river and that lake; a distance of about four hundred yards. The surface of Lake Providence is ten or twelve feet lower than that of the river, there being a strong levee between them, built expressly to keep out the water of the Mississippi. To remove this levee and dig a canal from the river bank to the lake is now the plan being carried into operation.

The point where the Lake Providence cut-off will strike the Mississippi is sixty miles above Vicksburg. This lake has two outlets, one of which is bayou Tensas and the other bayou Macon, these bayous joining a short distance below the Vicksburg and Shreveport railroad, and forming Tensas river, a deep stream, which can only be compared to a beautiful ship canal, navigable for more than 150 miles, and which empties into Black river, Black river emptying into Red river, 40 miles above the mouth of the latter.

The work of opening the Lake Providence cut-off was commenced by Gen. Deitzler's brigade, on the 2d and 3d of February, after a reconnoisance of and examination, which showed it to be feasible and promising. The entire 17th army corps was ordered to the place and has no doubt arrived, so that there are three or four brigades at work in the enterprise. Our correspondents inform us that great confidence is felt in its entire success.

The reader will inquire what effect the construction of this lake Providence canal will have upon the reduction of the rebel stronghold at Vicksburg. Vessels will pass through it at least thirty miles west of Vicksburg, coming out 180 miles below that town. This will destroy all the Red river and Louisiana connections of the rebels. The Red river region is of the greatest importance to the enemy. By means of it they have hitherto had access to vast amounts of supplies, including those indispensable articles, salt, sugar and molasses. Some idea of the reliance placed upon the Red river country by the confederates may be formed from a statement of a correspondent of the Mobile Advertiser, who says that the feat of the ram Queen of the West, in running by the Vicksburg batteries was followed by a rise in the price of salt to sixty dollars a barrel.

A PROVERB IN SEASON.—An indefatigable collector of rusty sayings, a friend of Motherwell, was in the habit of jotting down any saying new to him on the back of cards, letters, &c., and thrusting them into his pockets. On one occasion he had an altercation with a stranger at a friend's house. The quarrel becoming warm, ended by Motherwell's friend excitedly handing the other, (as he thought) his card. On the gentleman's preparing to vindicate his honor next morning, it occurred to him to learn the name of his antagonist. On looking at the card he found no name, but in place of it traced in good, legible characters. "Næthing should be done in a hurry but catching fleas." The effect of this was irresistible and the result an immediate, reconciliation.

CHRISTIANS can now marry Israelites—according to a recent enactment of law in Sweden.—Jews have had marvelously lovely daughters since and before the days of Shylock, and the fair-haired sons of Christians have always been enamored of them. This enactment, therefore, is but a confirmation of a previous natural proclivity—happiness IS REAL, in Sweden, at least.
