KELLOGG & McAULIFF'S
FERRY,
AT THE MOUTH OF TUCANON, three miles from the old Ferry on the Colville Road. This Ferry possesses superior advantages to the traveling public, situated as it is on Snake at the most accessible point for travel to Colville, Antoine Plante's, Bitter Root, and the Kootenai Country, and, in fact, on the most direct route to all that portion of country lying to the north and eastward of the old Colville road, and the country is better supplied with grass and water. The public will find it to their advantage to travel this route.
Our rates of passage will not exceed those charged by the Pullman Ferry.

By-and-By.
There's a little mischief-maker That is stealing half our bliss, Sneaking pictures on a dreamland Which are never seen in his Dashing from our lips the pleasure Of the present, while we sigh—You may know this mischief-maker, For his name is "By-and-by."

He is sitting by our hearthstones, With his sly bewitching glance, Whispering of the coming morrow,
As the social hours advance; Luring mid our calm reflections, Hiding scenes of beauty bright, He's a smooth, deceitful fellow, This mischief-maker, By-and-by.

You may know him by his mimicry, By his careless sportive air,
That is straying everywhere;
By the trophies which he gathers, Wherever he has been, for he
For a bold determined fellow, Is this mischief-maker, By-and-by.

When the calls of duty hound us, By the silent "By-and-by" he All of time that ever mortal Snatches from long slumber; That airy but seems painting Pictures on a distant sky,
For a cunning little artist, Is the fairy By-and-by.

"By-and-by" the wind is singing, In the softest of its notes,
But the phanton just before us, Who we grasp it never see,
Lies in wait for every lie, Scorn the very specious lie, Only in the fancy lives, This deceiving By-and-by.

Long Ago, or the River of Time.
BY BENJ. F. TAYLOR.

Oh, a wonderful stream is the river of Time,
As it runs through the realm of things,
And a broader sweep and a surger sublime, As it blends with the Ocean of Years.
How the winters are drifting like flakes of snow!
And the summers like beds of down,
And the river's rest, with its ebb and flow,
As it glides in the shadow and noon.

There's a magical tale on the river of Time, Where the softest of airs are playing,
There's a late sunset and a happy twilight time,
And the Jukes with their hoarse and shrill.
And the name of the Isle of Lones Ago,
And we never see the river of Time, There are heaps of dust but we loved them so!
There are trinkets and treasures of hair.

There are fragments of song that nobody sings,
And a part of an infant's prayer;
There are the faintest of things that nobody brings,
There are broken vows and pieces of ring,
And the garments that were once of wear,
And the hands that were waded in the fair shore Of the river of Time, and the river of Time, Sweet voices we heard in the days gone before,
When the wind came down the river fair.

Oh, remembered for aye, be the blessed life,
That is the river of Time, and the river of Time, When the evening comes with a beautiful smile,
And our eyes are closing to slumber white, May that "Greenwood" of soul be in sight.

Miss Major Pauline Cushman.
Among the women of America who have made themselves famous since the opening of the rebellion, few have suffered more or rendered more service to the Federal cause than Miss Pauline Cushman, the female scout and spy. At the commencement of hostilities she resided in Cleveland, Ohio, and was quite well known as an actress. From Cleveland she went to Louisville, where she had an engagement in Wood's Theater. Here by her intimacy with certain rebel officers, she incurred the suspicion of being a rebel, and was arrested by the Federal authorities. She indignantly denied that she was a rebel, although born at the South, and having a brother in a rebel Mississippi regiment.
In order to save her from the penalty of being sent to the South, she was taken to Washington, where she was asked if she would enter the service of the Government. She readily consented, and was at once employed to carry letters between Louisville and Nashville. She was subsequently employed by Gen. R. K. Meade, and was for many months with the Army of the Cumberland.
She visited the rebel lines time after time, and was thoroughly acquainted with all the country in Tennessee, Northern Georgia, Alabama and Mississippi, and was a young man of great abilities and of great courage. She was twice arrested by the rebels, and was twice imprisoned, and was twice taken prisoner, but managed to escape.

At last however she was not so fortunate. After our forces had captured Nashville, she pleaded that she was going to see a sick uncle at Franklin, but the sentry couldn't see it. Sick and disheartened, she turned back. Seeing a light at a farmhouse, she sought shelter. An old man received her kindly, showed her to a room, and said he would awake her at an early hour in the morning and show her the road to Franklin.

A loud knock awoke her in the morning from her lethargic slumbers and upon opening the door she found her horse and saddle with the two guards from whom she had escaped the previous afternoon. She was taken to the headquarters of Forrest, and he sent her after a critical examination, to Gen. Bragg. Nothing could be found against her until a secession woman stole her gallery, under the inner sole of which was found important documents which clearly proved her to be a spy.

She was tried and condemned to be executed as a spy, but being sick, her execution was postponed. She finally after lying in her prison three months, sent for General Bragg, and asked him if he had no mercy. She received from him the comforting assurance that he should hang her as soon as she got well enough to hang.

While in this state of suspense the army of Rosecrans commenced its forward movement, and one fine day the rebel town where she was imprisoned was surprised and captured, and the main body of her tale was, to her great joy, released.

BENJAMIN FRANKLIN was born January 17th, 1706, and was the fifteenth of seventeen children of Josiah and Abigail Franklin, who were married; and he makes the remark that he was the youngest son of the youngest son, for five generations back. When very young, his father intended him for the church, which plan was reversed by his mother, who was a Quaker, and he old he was taken home to assist his father in the business of tallow-chandler and soap boiler.

Cutting wicks, filling moulds, and going of wards were, in his early years, his chief occupations. He was a diligent student, and was the future Mentor of America. At twelve years he was apprenticed to his brother, a printer, who treated him with such harshness that, on obtaining a discharge, he left his service and went to Philadelphia, where he arrived almost penniless, but fired with an independent perseverance of spirit, and a confidence in his own resources, that enabled him to surmount every difficulty. Sauntering through the streets of the city, he saw a young fellow with stockings, and a roll of bread under each arm, he made, in the opinion of Miss Reads, (his future wife), who was standing at her father's door as he passed, a ludicrous figure. "Who would you have thought of it?" exclaimed Mrs. Read, in his pangs, "this miserable wretch would become one of the legislators of America, the ornament of the new world, the pride of modern philosophy, and an ambassador to one of the most powerful and enlightened nations in the universe."

Let the young reader consider this well, and attribute his success to the right cause—frugality, temperance, a proper application of means, and an untiring industry, which must eventually command success in almost any situation of life.

THE DIGESTION OF MENTAL FOOD.—In an amusing article upon the "Physicians and Surgeons of a Bygone Generation," a foreign journal describes Abernethy conversing thus with a certain patient: "If you are a young fellow, you must endeavor to do it in a stock of health.
Besides, too much reading never yet made an able man. It is not so much the extent or amount of what we read that serves us, as what we assimilate and make our own. It is not the more you read, but the more you think, that constitutes the chyle of the mind. I have always found that really indolent men, men of high intellect, are great readers, but they do not reflect or observe; and these fellows, not having learned to think, cram themselves with the ideas or words of others. This they call study, but it is not so. In my own profession, I have observed that the greatest men were not the mere readers—but the men who observed, who reflected, who fairly thought out an idea.

To learn to reflect and observe is a grand discipline. It is a young man's duty to reflect and observe, that he may be able to do it with his power of observation, that fine discrimination, that keen judgment, that intuitiveness which he possessed in a greater degree than any of the surgeons of his time."

GETTING DISCOURAGED.—The Mining Journal —a paper with Lincoln and Johnson at its masthead—published in Colorado Territory, appears to have a high opinion of the "gold fever," as witness the following from its columns: "It is useless to talk; we cannot conquer the Southern people with an equal force. It is an insult to our suffering people and brave soldiers to see a young man of high intellect, who is most heartening for the present campaign. But our bar room jokers at Washington want to grow. They seem to have no conception of the magnitude of the controversy of the tremendous struggle. How will it be? The present situation ask the people for another four years of the nation's life, and it continues to trifle with the transcendent interests entrusted to it? It's thoroughly disgusting the way things are managed by the present rulers at the head of the Government. It is little wonder that earnest men drop off and go for another candidate. If there was a ghost of a chance to elect another man, we would be for him in a minute.
The public think it moment from his im-becility that our task is impossible. The people will assassinate him (the President) one of these days if he don't do better." We could not have a better illustration of the "gold fever" which has seized upon the mind of the present administration, than the following from the "Mining Journal":

QUEEN VICTORIA has virtually retired. She has declared she is not equal to being present at receptions, and there is a vast deal of regret in consequence. This is very natural; for royalty, being at best only ornamental in England, who reception, with its masquerade of costumes that none of the visitors could wear along the streets without being hoisted, is gone—all gone.
"Why did you delay so long for a ceremony?" she asked the queen's mother, "I had to wait until I was a widow." The reply was, "I had to wait until I was a widow." The queen has put on the last monument to the Prince Consort that she is "heartbroken."

It is now rumored that she has the neurasthenia.
Her last photograph adds that she is aged.
Young England is making strong hints about an abdication in favor of the Prince of Wales and Alexandra.

TR-POW-TAT.—When General Lee of Revolutionary fame was a prisoner at Albany, he dined one day with an Irishman. Before entering upon the wine, the General remarked to his host that, after which he hoped the host would excuse him in advance. "By my soul, General, I will do that," said his host, "if you will excuse a trifling fault which I have myself. It is this—whenever I hear a man abuse our Ireland, I have a habit of cracking his sentence with my shille-lah." The General was civil during the whole evening.

TWO MORE AND PAPER.—A fair correspondent of the Providence Journal, having inquired if there were any protection against moths, and if her furs, wrapped in old newspapers, would be secure from the devouring insect, the editor gravely replied:—"We really cannot answer, but we should think that, at the present price of paper, no respectable moth would touch it."

Politeness.
If you have an enemy, and an opportunity occurs to benefit him in matters great or small, act like a gentleman, and do him good service without hesitation. If you would know what it is to feel noble, and "strong within yourself," do this secretly and keep it secret. A man who can act thus will soon feel at ease anywhere. It is said of Callot, an eminent French artist and engraver, of the seventeenth century, that he was once slandered in a pasquinade by a certain noblemen of the court. At that time to have one's portrait engraved by Callot was an object of ambition with the highest dignitaries of the kingdom, and it was attained by very few. Callot's answer to the injury was to publish a superbly executed likeness of his enemy, with an inscription getting forth his titles and great deeds. To this day the incident is cited as an instance of proud nobility of soul. Callot was in the highest sense polite.

Politeness is shown by passing over the faults and follies of those whom you meet. Cultivate this especially towards relatives. The world is severe in its judgment of those who expose the faults of kindred, no matter what the pretext may be. Vulgar families are always and the more cultivated are the more fallacious which you may have received from any one unless there exist some urgent necessity for so doing.

It is polite to manifest courteous inquiries after the friends and family of those whom you meet, and in manifesting a cordial interest in every letter to "remember" for friends.
It is polite to show a polite interest in the writing occasionally to all from whom you have received kindness which will warrant you in so doing. It is polite to conform your dress, and (in person) your habits, to the taste and feeling of those whose guest or associate you may be. It is polite and complimentary to inquire after any of whose acquaintance your friend may have reason to be proud. It is polite when you are a guest to endeavor to enjoy yourself and make others do so. It is polite to those who are assembled in any place to avoid heated argument, and all noisy remarks, or "remarkable" conduct. It is polite to promptly accept every invitation, and to enter your house or office, and the more cultivated are the more widely you will extend such courtesies to humble people.

It is polite to do everything for another which you can do, and to do it in a most unobtrusive and sensible manner. It is polite to spare people other yourself, and women of any age exertion of personal effort, even in the merest trifles. It is polite to take no notice whatever of incidents or occurrences which do not concern you, and to be of assistance. It is polite to make ready and unstudied sacrifices of your exertion or of your comfort to gratify others; as for instance, to escort any lady, or to do a service for a friend.
It is polite to grant the wishes of those who religion or politics before those who differ with you. It is polite to never take it upon yourself in any way to punish any person unless it be distinctly your business to do so. It is polite to avoid profane jokes.

It is polite when you have offended any one or hurt his feelings in any way, to apologize or to do as clearly as possible without reservation or excuse, since the more vulgar a man is, the more does he obscure and degrade an apology by self-justification. It is polite to express an interest in or admiration of that which is dear to others.
It is sometimes more polite to accept a gift or to accept a favor, than to refuse it, and to refuse it and to please the most kindness and courtesy, to those who have been reduced by adversity. And it is sometimes more than politness, it is a duty, to do a service for another without any thought of the person for whom the service is done, and to do it with a magnificent, wounded self-respect and loss of dignity.

SANTA ANNA.—General Antonio Lopez de Santa Anna concluded to play the part of the queen to the new Emperor Maximilian the First, who graciously condescended to make him a Field Marshal. Also, for poor human (Mexican) nature! This man, Santa Anna, was once the ruler of Mexico, and his name is so familiar to our countrymen that we need not say more.
He was the leader of their armies; he was their President, and after he was President he made his country a scene of blood and carnage. He has left no trace behind. Besides, if I do not mind, it will leave a tall behind—"Il fait la queue," to use a French expression—"it is the drops in stead of being globular, will assume an elongated form, and a more or less flattened surface."
Some of these observations may be, perhaps,
useful to the gold miner, as many complaints have lately been heard about the impurity of the quicksilver sold in the mines, which fact is also proved by the frequent occurrence and admix-ture of base metal in the amalgam-gold, probably, in most cases, by artificial means.

HOW TO DETECT ADULTERATED QUICKSILVER.
Mercury is often in the market willfully adulterated with lead, tin and bismuth. To lead, it is an absorbent dissolves almost the half of its weight, without losing much of its liquidity. This adulteration can easily be discovered by rubbing some of the metal on the open palm of the hand. If it is adulterated, it will be found leaves no trace behind. Besides, if I do not mind, it will leave a tall behind—"Il fait la queue,"
to use a French expression—"it is the drops in
form, and a more or less flattened surface."
Some of these observations may be, perhaps,
useful to the gold miner, as many complaints
have lately been heard about the impurity of the quicksilver sold in the mines, which fact is also
proved by the frequent occurrence and admix-ture of base metal in the amalgam-gold, probably, in most cases, by artificial means.

A GOOD STORY is told of a distinguished sculptor, of the cool reception which his mother gave to his first attempt in the plastic art. It was the figure of a woman looking out upon the sea, as if trying to catch a glimpse of the vessel that she was waiting for. The figure was a simple scarcely demi-draped about the neck—which seemed to be the only point that struck the good lady's attention. "Well, what do you think of her?" asked the young man eagerly, expectant of a mother's praise. "I think," said the mother with decision, "that no decent woman would be seen out of doors in such a plight."

EDWARD EVERETT says that "when the history of Best Tennessee for the first two years and a half of the war shall be written, it will disclose scenes of tyranny and oppression of which there are few parallels in the annals of the world; and this at the hands of men who pretended to be waging war for self-government and to protect the rights of the minority against the rule of a numerical majority."

A GALLANT GENTLEMAN of the old school in one of the Roxbury cars, the other day, gave his seat to a lady, who, as is almost always the case when the circumstances fail to make the proper acknowledgment. Standing awhile after the car had moved on, he stooped over as if to listen, and said to her, "What did you say, madam?" "Nothing, sir," was the reply of the startled lady. "Oh," said the man, "excuse me; I thought you said 'Thank'."

THE RICHMOND PAPERS upbraid John Cochrane, the candidate for the Vice Presidency on the Fremont ticket, with so soon forgetting a vow he uttered in a speech at Richmond, that if the Federal Government should attempt to coerce the South, he (Cochrane) would be found sword in hand on the side of "Virginia."

Verily, after much meditation and experience I have divined that it takes as much sense and refinement and talent to cook a dinner, wash and wipe a dish, make a bed as it should be made, and dust a room as it should be dusted, as goes to the writing of a novel or shaming in high society.

Two peddlers in Pennsylvania have been pushing their trade after a new fashion. One of them traveled in advance of the other and refused to receive the notes of a certain bank as worthless, and the people gladly traded with the other, who said he would take the notes, as he was in debt to the Shooting Affrays.

Our town has been the theater of two most unfortunate shooting affrays during the week. The first occurred on Monday morning, about 9 o'clock, at the new "Oriental" (formerly Frank's) Hotel, between Mr. A. Englander, one of the proprietors of the house, and Mr. George H. Porter, resulting in the death of the former. The circumstances, so far as we can relate them without infringing upon the testimony to be brought before the Courts, are briefly these: A woman has for some time been stopping at the hotel, ostensibly for the purpose of procuring medical aid for a sickly child, and representing herself as the wife of some one at Boise, whence she came some weeks ago. She had made the acquaintance of Mr. Porter, and (according to her own testimony) he had visited her at her own request at the house. Mr. Englander, some time previous to his death, stated that the woman had told him that the visits of Mr. Porter were annoying to her, and requested him to forbid them. On Monday morning she saw Porter on the street and beckoned him to come and see her. He went, and after he reached the house, a quarrel ensued between him and Englander, and missiles, such as hammers, chisels, etc., which were convenient upon the work-bench of carpenters employed upon the house—were thrown by them at each other. After this Mr. Porter went across the street, procured a pistol and returned to the house. The quarrel was renewed, and whether other demonstrations than words were indulged in we know not; but it appears that in the quarrel Porter drew his pistol, and Englander retreated from the room and as he closed the door after Mr. Porter fired; the ball from the pistol passed through the door and took effect in Englander's body. Englander then ran across the street to the Bank Exchange Saloon, whither he was followed by Porter. Here they were stopped, and Englander went into Mr. Bauer's cigar store, where an examination of his side showed that the ball had entered his side and ranged through the abdomen. Medical aid was called and the wound was at once pronounced a dangerous one. On the following morning at five o'clock he died. A post mortem examination of his body made by Drs. Steinberger and A. J. and R. Tibbodo, showed that the ball passed through one of the small intestines, severed the mesentery artery and lodged on the inside of the right hip. A preliminary examination of Porter was had before Justice Horton during the day of Monday, and he was held to bail in the sum of $6000, in default of which he was committed to prison, to await trial at the next term of the district court. A Coroner's Jury, empaneled on Tuesday, rendered a verdict that "A. Englander came to his death from the effects of a wound by a pistol shot, fired from the hands of George H. Porter."

NEW MORTGAGE.—The business world will hereafter acknowledge themselves indebted to President Lincoln for a substitute for the homely old motto of "Cash and Small Profits." Here it is: "Liberal terms on substantial collateral points." Isn't it delicious?

TEN or twelve men can find employment at the Quartermaster's office at Fort Walla Walla. Apply to Capt. P. B. Johnson.

GAIR MILL AT UNION.—Messrs. D. S. Baker and A. H. Reynolds, of this place, are making arrangements to erect a grist mill at Union, Grand Ronde valley. They will complete the mill the coming fall.

THE "COVE."—Since the discovery of the new mines at Eagle Creek, the place known as the "Cove," in Grand Ronde valley, is fast growing into importance. The town of Union which is situated in the Cove, it is claimed by those interested there, will soon out rival La Grande.

MILITARY CHANGES.—Major Martin, who has for the past year been stationed as Paymaster at this post, has been ordered to Fort Vancouver and Major Putnam, of Sacramento, has taken his place. Major M. left Vancouver on Thursday.

OVERLAND MAIL.—The first overland mail arrived on Monday, 8th. It brought dates from Denver, Colorado, to the 20th July.

The Idaho Statesman announces that T. J. Dryer, former editor and proprietor of the Oregonian, accompanied by his lady, has arrived at Boise city.

The stages are now making regular trips between Dalles and Canyon City—John Day mines. They have made one trip between the points in thirty-six hours, being the quickest time recorded. The road is again free from Indian depredations and annoyances.

NEW DISCOVERY.—We hear of new and rich discoveries on the Middle Fork of the John Day, about thirty miles beyond Canyon City. Parties have been working out there for several months past, making fair wages, but recently they have struck it very rich, and the result is quite an excitement.—Mountaineer.

REV. T. H. PEARNE has retired from the editorial charge of the P. C. Advocate. Professor Benson is announced as Pearn's successor.—The retiring editor is a candidate for U. S. Senator. He is an ambitious and aspiring man, and will no doubt persistently "advocate" his own cause to the last.

DEAD.—Both Tom Wilson and the man Miller, who got into the row in the burly-gurdy house in Idaho city have since died from the effects of their wounds.

EMIGRANTS.—Some six or eight emigrant wagons, from the States, have arrived in the valley during the week. For the comfort of disconsolate old bachelors, we record the fact that there are several young ladies among the new arrivals.

THE OVERLAND MAIL is now in regular operation to the States.

THE WORK on the Oriental (formerly Frank's) Hotel is nearly completed. As it now stands, it looks very much like a large barn.

EXCITEMENT.—The present week has been one of more intense excitement than we have ever before witnessed in the city. Vigilance Committee and Patrol organizations were much talked of during the fore part of the week; but for the present all seems quiet. It is most earnestly to be hoped that no further acts of violence will occur in our midst to again disturb the peace; for all men, in their cooler moments, prefer the quiet process of the law, where it can be properly administered, to anything like the people "taking the law into their own hands."

Gov. LYON passed through here this week, on his way to Lewiston to enter upon the duties of his office. He appears to be a gentleman of ability, and if the physiognomist's doctrine that a long nose indicates great decision of character don't fail in his case—as it frequently does—we opine that the governmental affairs of Idaho will be much more ably conducted by him than they have been by his predecessors.

A TELEGRAPHIC BLUNDER.—It was announced by telegraph, three or four weeks ago that John Seranton, formerly editor of the Golden Age, was dead. A subsequent dispatch states that Seranton is in San Francisco, alive and well. A quondam friend of the Don says the first dispatch was only a telegraphic blunder, and instead of reporting him "dead" it should have said he was dead drunk.

ENROLLING.—The enrolling officer for this county, Mr. Edwin Ellis, is now engaged in enrolling all persons in the county subject to the Draft.

GOOD YIELD.—Mr. Dan Welch showed us this week $4.87 which he obtained from one pound of the "average" root taken from the Rockfellow quartz lode.

VALLEY OF PROPERTY ON MAIN STREET.—Mr. D. S. Baker sold to Dusenbury Bros., this week, 27 feet of ground, adjoining his store on Main street, for $1000. Messrs. Dusenbury intend to erect a fire-proof brick building upon the lot next spring.

RESIGNED.—Secretary, (late Acting Governor) Daniels, of Idaho, has resigned and gone to his home in Oregon. Mr. Cochran is acting as ad interim Secretary, until the appointment of an officer by the President.

At the recent session of Congress, a bill was passed for the relief of the estate of B. F. Kendall, to the amount of $2,108, to be applied to the credit of his accounts while Superintendent of Indian Affairs in this Territory, which it was proved he had spent, though no vouchers could be found therefor.

TALL OATS.—We have a bunch of oats raised by Mr. J. N. Fall, on Upper Mill creek, which measures over six feet eight inches in height. It is a sample of six or eight ears raised by Mr. Fall.

PROPOSALS FOR FRESH BEEF.—OFFICE OF THE A. C. S. FORT WALLA WALLA, W. T., August 6, 1864. Sealed proposals, in duplicate, will be received at this office for supplying the command at Fort Walla Walla, W. T., with fresh beef of good and marketable quality, in equal proportions of fore and hind quarters, (both sides, including and including) in such quantities as may from time to time be required, and on such days as the commanding officer may direct.
