The Dying Soldier.

Weary and worn to a skeleton form
He lay on his couch in pain,
And his wish at even, his prayer at morn,
Were to visit his home again.

He talked of his mother, far away,
And he talked of his lonely wife,
When he'd never realized his burning heart,
And loosened his hold of life.

He talked of his home, the fair, fair land,
The home of his childhood's play,
He talked of his babe, and the large tears fell
And rolled from his cheek away.

We told him his life's fight might never again
Walk over his native soil,
But ere long they should tread the golden streets
At home in this city of God.

And we said though his eyes would never behold
The forms of his dear, dear love,
He should wait for them there by the life river fair
In the garden of beauty above.

But he wept and talked of his buried one,
In a stranger's unshrouded bed,
That no rose by affection's hand would be trained
To wave o'er his grave when dead.

We told him that God would mark the spot
Where all of his children lay,
And not one of his loved ones be forgot
On the resurrection day.

But he sighed and whispered, "so long, so long,
The groves are silent as the groves,
And my lonely wife and little one
Alone in a vale of tears."

We told him the word of God had gone forth
In truth and holiness,
As the friend of the widow's lonely life,
The guide of the fatherless.

When death had sifted that loving heart
Had saved for her, that lonely wife,
One treasure of his long bright hair.

Then they wrapped the worn-out soldier's clothes
'Round the martyred hero's breast,
And in his rude, unvarnished bed
Laid him sadly away to rest.

Not a hymn was sung, not a prayer was raised,
But the hired rade, unmerciful hands
Piled the damp mould over his head.

Winter.

A blue and gold bespangled tent
Is spread by heaven o'er all the earth,
In beauty is the Winter seat.

But ah, 'tis loneliness in the fields;
No bird its plumage gaily waves,
But better times now onward press;
Crisp snows are crackling music yields.

My heart has dreamed black Winter's dress:
The faintly twinkling winter star
Imports no warmth; 'tis cold and chaste!
But better times now onward press;
A vernal morn dawn from afar,
And angels tread the desert waste.

The Southern Idea of Peace.

The following is from the Richmond Enquirer of Oct. 16th. It shows the Southern idea of peace, and must profoundly interest like the friends and enemies of the country:

"Save on our own terms we can accept no peace whatever, and must fight till doom-day rather than yield an iota of them, and our terms are:

Recognition by the enemy of the independence of the Confederate States.

Withdrawal of the Yankee soldiers from Maryland, until that State shall decide by a free vote whether she shall remain in the old Union or ask admission into the Confederacy.

Consent on the part of the Federal Government to give up to the Confederacy its proportion of the navy as it stood at the time of secession, or to pay for the same.

Yielding up of all pretension on the part of the Federal Government to that portion of the old Territory which lies west of the Confederate States.

An equitable settlement on the basis of our absolute independence and equal rights of all accounts of the public debt and public lands, and the advantages accruing from foreign treaties.

These provisions, we apprehend, comprise the minimum of what we must require before we lay down our arms. That is to say, the North must yield all—we nothing. The whole pretension of that country to prevent by force the separation of the States must be abandoned, which will be equivalent to an avowal that our enemies were wrong from the first, and, of course as they waged a causeless and wicked war upon us, they ought in strict justice to be required, according to usage in such cases, to reimburse us the whole of our expenses and losses in the course of that war. Whether this proviso is to be insisted upon or not, certain we are that we cannot have any peace at all until we shall be in a position not only to demand and exact, but also to enforce and collect treasure for our own reimbursement out of the wealthy cities in the enemy's country. In other words, unless we can destroy or scatter their armies and break up their Government we can have no peace; and if we can do that, then we ought not only to extort from them our own full terms and ample acknowledgment of their wrong, but also a handsome indemnity for the trouble and expense caused to us by their crime.

Now, we are not in a position to dictate those terms to our enemies, with Rosecrans' army still in the heart of our country, and Meade still on the Virginia soil; but though it is too soon to propose such conditions to them, yet it is important that we should keep plainly before our own eyes as the only admissible basis of any conceivable peace. This well fixed in the Confederate mind, there will be no more fearful looking for news from Europe, as if that blessed peace were to come to us over the sea, and not to be conquered on our own ground. There will be no gaping for hints of recognition and filling of the belly with the East wind; no more distraction or diversion from the single momentous business of bracing up every nerve and sinew of the country for battle.

It is especially now, at the moment when great and perhaps decisive battles are impending at two or three points, that we think it most essential to insist upon the grand and entire magnitude of the stake and cause.

Once more we say it is all or nothing.—This Confederacy or the Yankee nation, one or the other, goes down, down to perdition. That is to say, one or the other must forfeit its national existence and lie at the mercy of its mortal enemy.

We all know by this time the fate in store for us if we succumb. The other party has no other stake.

At surely as we completely ruin their armies—without that there is no peace or trace—all—surely shall we make them rue their debt, though we wring it out of their hearts. And they know it well, and therefore they cannot make peace except through their utter exhaustion and absolute inability to strike another blow.

The stake they have to forfeit, then, if they lose this dreadful game, is as vital as ours. So is the stake to be won if they win anything. It is no less than the entire possession of our whole country, with us in it, and everything that is ours, from the Ohio to the Rio Grande, to have and hold, to them and their heirs forever.

But, on the other hand, what we mean to win is utter separation from them for all time. We do not want to govern their country, but after leaving upon it what somewhat good to us by way of indemnity, we leave it to commence its political life again from the beginning, hoping that the lesson may have made them sadder and wiser Yankees.

We shut them out forever, with all their unclean and scoundrelly ways, intending to lead our lives here in our own Confederate way, within our own well-guarded bounds, and without, as St. John says, are dogs.

And let no Confederate feeble knees and tremulous backbones say to us, this complete triumph is impossible; say that we must be content with some kind of compromise, and give and take; on the contrary, we must gain all or lose all; and that the Confederates will indeed win the giant game we take to be as certain as any future event in this uncertain world.

Meade's army and Rosecrans' once scattered, Lincoln can get no more armies. The draft turns out manifestly fruitless. Both the German and Irish element are now for peace. The Yankees have to bear the brunt of the war themselves; but in the meantime their inevitable bankruptcy is advancing like an armed man. Hungry ruin has them in the wind. It cannot be long before the Cabinet of Washington will have indeed to consider seriously proposals for peace, under auspices and circumstances very different from the present. For the present the war ralls and thunders on; and may God defend the right.

PLEASE EVERYBODY.—We do not remember to have read anything better than the following sentiments. They are true to the letter: "Heaven help the man who imagines he can dodge his enemies by trying to please every body! If such ever succeeded, we should be glad to know it. Not that we believe in a man's going through the world trying to find beams to knock his head against; disputing every man's opinion, cowering and crowding all who differ from him. That again is another extreme. Other people have a right to their own opinion—so have you; don't fall into the error of supposing they respect you more, for turning your coat every day to match theirs in color. Wear your own colors, spite of wind or weather, storm or sunshine. It costs the trouble to wind and shuffle that it does honest, many independence to stand its ground. Take what time you please to make up your mind, having once made it up, stick to it like a burr to a chesnut.

HAZEL EYED WOMEN.—Maj. Noah said "a hazel inspires at first sight a Platonic Gibraltar." A woman with a hazel eye never elopes from her husband, never chats scandal, never sacrifices her husband's comfort to her own, never talks too little, always is an intelligent, agreeable and lovely creature.

We never knew, says a Yankee editor, of but one hazel-eyed woman who was uninteresting or unamiable, and she had a nose, as we Yankees say, that looked like the little end of nothing whittled down to a point.—The gray is the sign of shrewdness and talent. Great thinkers have it. In women it indicates a better head than heart. The dark hazel is noble in its significance, as well as its beauty. The blue is amiable, but may be feeble. The black—take care!—There is thunder and lightning there!

HARD ON BEECHER.—The following good story is told on Henry Ward Beecher:

Henry Ward Beecher has lately been pitching into the practice of working railroad conductors on Sunday. Recently Beecher, in his peculiar way, was making inquiries of a Brooklyn street conductor, to whom he was unknown, as to whether the Sunday riding could not be broken up. "I think it might be," said the conductor, "but for that sanctimonious hypocrite, Beecher.

So many of the fancy people from all parts visit his establishment that it makes the road more profitable on Sunday than any other day in the week. If he would only shut up the thing could be done."

MRS. GEN. BANKS.—A gossip writes from Saratoga: "Mrs. Banks cannot be called a handsome woman, but she is 'comely,' dresses well, and has wit as keen as her husband's sword. Some stupid fool ventured to ask her what she would do if the General was killed? 'Go and work for my living, as I did before I married him,' was the ready reply of the lady."

Eastern News.

Dates to Dec. 1st.

The latest intelligence is that Lee's force will not exceed 50,000 men. Ewell has been relieved from the command of his corps in consequence of disability, and is succeeded by Early. This corps has fortified its position from a point near Mountain Run, south of the Rapidan, following the crest of the hills westward to the railroad, where it connects with A. P. Hill's corps, which covers the Rapidan, and thence extends westwardly. The enemy's right flank is near Mountain Run, protected by a line of works diverging from the river defenses and running south, and then southwest. The rebel position resembles our position at Gettysburg.—

Our crossing points are therefore all between the Rapidan and the rebel position.

At 9:30 this morning the whole army, trains and all, was across the river, "lanthorn quickening" to meet the enemy. One corps took the road to Chancellorsville. Another went toward Orange Court House. The men were in jubilant spirits, and anxious to meet the rebels. Lee's troops evacuated Fredericksburg Heights, which are now occupied by our cavalry.

Chattanooga, Nov. 27.—The situation tonight is highly satisfactory. Hooker's, Palmer's and Sherman's commands are nearly ten miles beyond Chickamauga creek in pursuit of Bragg's crumpling army, which is making every effort to escape. Our advance is near Dalton. In a sharp fight this morning Palmer's advance took four guns and 300 prisoners. Sherman is reported to have advanced from Tyler Station, on the left today, and cut off 2,000 rebels. All reports agree that the road along which Bragg is retreating is lined with wagons, caissons and commissary and medical stores. Prisoners taken say it is impossible for the rebel leaders to make their troops stand.

Col. Long's cavalry command has returned from a raid on the East Tennessee railroad to-night. They destroyed the road for 15 miles above and burned the foundry at Cleveland, where a large quantity of munitions of war was stored, and also a hundred wagons loaded with baggage, and captured 400 prisoners. Col. Long was subsequently attacked by a superior force of rebels, but succeeded in bringing off his prisoners.

Our loss in the three days fighting will probably not exceed 3,000.

New York Nov. 28.—A special dispatch to the Times: Among the prisoners captured at Chattanooga were a large number of Pemberton's men, paroled at Vicksburg.—Grant has telegraphed to Washington to ascertain what disposition he shall make of these faithless scoundrels.

The steamer Wadsworth, from New Orleans Nov. 21st, has arrived. The E. A. has a dispatch from the Mobile papers of Nov. 18th, to the effect that Charleston had been burning sixty-three hours, and Gilmore's shells were constantly making it worse. Nearly all the men in Sumter had been killed by the fall of the remaining wall, under which they had taken shelter.

The Times special dispatch says: The official statement of our loss in the assault on Missionary Ridge, was 200. Our wounded all in all.

Kirby Smith had ordered the withdrawal of rebel troops from Alexandria.

New Orleans, Nov. 21.—Reports from the Mississippi river are to the effect that a rebel force of 5,000 or 10,000 is trying to concentrate at some place not far above Port Hudson. A portion of this force, with four pieces of artillery, attempted to stop the steamer Emerald a few days since. The rebels are very active along the river from Baton Rouge to the Mississippi State line. All preparations have been made for concentrating and planting batteries to obstruct the commerce of the river.

The British brig Dashaway, with a valuable cargo, was captured while entering the Rio Grande.

Cincinnati, Nov. 28.—John Morgan and six of his officers—Captains Bennett, Taylor, Sheldon, Holmes, Hockersmith and McGee—escaped from the Columbus State Penitentiary last night, by digging through the floor of the cell to the sewer leading to the river. A thousand dollars reward is offered for the arrest of Morgan.

Grafted into the Army.
Our Charlie has gone for to live in a tent. They have grafted him into the army; He finally picked up courage and went. When they grafted him into the army, I told them the child was too young—But at the Captain's fore quarters they said he'd pass; They'd train him up well in the infantry class, So they grafted him into the army.
Oh, Charlie farewell, your brothers fell, Way down in Alabama.
I hoped they'd spare a lone widder's heir, But they grafted him into the army.
Dress up in his uniform, dear little chap, They have grafted him into the army; It seems but a day since he sat in my lap, But they grafted him into the army;
And these are the trousers he used to wear, Then very same buttons, the patch, and tear, But Uncle Sam gave him a brand new pair, When they grafted him into the army.
Oh, Charlie, farewell, etc.

FARMERS' ECONOMY.—Farmers talk a great deal about economy. I know one man who will go three miles out of his way, over a bad road, to save a few cents at the toll-gate. Another who is so economical of blacksmith expenses, that instead of getting a tire set at the right time, will make it do a week or two longer, and some dark night will be found groping his way home with three wheels and rail to his wagon, while a horse or two are unable to leave the stable on account of lameness, resulting from a misunderstanding of the word economy, as applied to the shoeing of horses. Many a man is so economical in the matter of boards for barns, stables and sheds, that he builds them every year of corn and hay. These may be considered strange building materials, but what I state is true. If an animal is exposed to the storms and colds of winter, it will take one-half of the food it consumes to keep it as warm as it would be naturally in a good, comfortable stable; the other half will just keep it alog. So the half of the grain is used for making a stable—expensive building materials, but this is not the economy, however, that I would recommend, nor that will pay heavy war expenses.—Rural New Yorker.

HABITS OF THE GREEKS.—The pure Greek race is dry, sinewy and sharp, like the country which maintains it. The draining of a few marshes would suffice to suppress all epidemic fevers, and to make the Greeks the healthiest people in Europe, as they are the most temperate. The consumption of one English laborer would supply, in Greece, a family of six persons.—The rich are perfectly satisfied with a dish of vegetables for their repast; the poor, with a handful of olives or a morsel of salt fish. The whole nation eats meat once a year, at Easter. Drunkenness, so common in cold countries, is an extremely rare vice among the Greeks. They are great drinkers, but water drinkers. It would make their consciences uneasy to pass a fountain without drinking at it; but if they do go to the public house, it is to gossip. The cafes of Athens are full of loungers, and at all hours; but they consume no strong liquors. They call for a half-penny cup of coffee, a glass of water, fire to light their cigarettes, a newspaper, and a set of dominoes; with that they will amuse themselves the whole day long.—All the Year Round.

W. H. Harding, a lawyer of Lee, Mass., had the misfortune, some time since, of having his marriage published in the Berking Eagle. To this, he, lawyer like, takes exceptions. In a caveat to the editor he says: "The report of my marriage, which I find in your issue of the 27th instant, is not quite correct: First, on the 20th of July, 1863, I kept close company with my law books; Second, I was never in Lebanon Springs; Third, I never, to my knowledge, saw or heard of the Rev. E. T. Hunt; Fourth, the young lady mentioned as the bride is the wife of my brother; and Fifth, I never was married at all—I never wanted to get married—and finally, I never expected your item to be correct.

A CONTRAST.—In 1860 it was a difficult matter for a new comer to find either a vacant house for his family, or store or office in which to do business. This is far from being the case at the present time. We yesterday counted no less than 63 vacant buildings and offices on five of our principal streets, and there are many more in the outskirts of town. There are probably about 80 altogether among them, one steam mill, one brewery, and one large hotel. The causes of this state of things are manifold. War, Washoe, Reese River, Cariboo, Salmon, John Day's River, and the low price of grain, have all played their part in depleting our population. In a town which never had over 1,200 inhabitants, the loss of population must be seriously felt.—Napa Register.

The much vexed point as to the merits of English and Arab horses has just again been tried in Cairo. This is far from being the finest stud of Arabs in Egypt, maintained that no English horse could run against an Arab for four miles. His highness Haliu Pacha offered to run Companion, a well known racer here, against him for any sum he liked. The match was run from the first station on the Suez desert to Cairo. The English horse, which was bred by Lord Ribblesdale, won in a crushing way by more than a half mile. Such a crushing defeat has taken all courage out of the partisans of Arab horses. What astonished the natives most was that Companion, beating his adversary by so great a distance, was perfectly fresh, and ready to turn round and run the distance over again, while the Arab horse was quite exhausted and blown.

A Parisian physician, considering typhus fever to be a kind of paralysis or asphyxia of the vital functions, occasioned by the inhalation of lethiferous atmosphere either from a typhoid patient or any other morbid source, admits a free flow of the invalid's bed-room, to which plan he attributes many remarkable cures. He says there can be no infection in the open air—fresh air moreover enables a patient to take stimulants which he could not otherwise bear.

FRANK CARPENT, PROPRIETOR.
THE proprietor takes pleasure in announcing to his friends and the public in general, that he has taken the house lately known as Buckley's Saloon, on the corner of Main and Third streets, and has thoroughly refitted and newly furnished it, and it is now opened to the public as a
First Class Hotel and Restaurant,
With an Entire New Suite of Rooms,
FURNISHED WITH CLEAN BEDS.
THE BAR
will be supplied with the best LIQUORS AND CIGARS the country can afford.
The proprietor hopes, through his long experience in the business, and an extensive acquaintance to merit a liberal share of the public patronage.
Stages will arrive at and depart from the above house.
