

THE YAKIMA HERALD.

VOL. 3.

NORTH YAKIMA, WASHINGTON, THURSDAY, JANUARY 14, 1892.

NO. 51.

NORTH YAKIMA, Wash., Sept. 23, 1891.

I have resided in the Yakima Valley for 12 years, engaged in general farming, fruit and hop culture. I raise all my products by irrigation, and have never failed a single year in obtaining bountiful crops.

I farmed formerly in the State of Kansas. I find all kinds of husbandry here much more profitable than in Kansas. And as to climate, such things as blizzards and cyclones are not known. Our winters are very short, and the spring and fall are perfectly delightful. All our farmers who are industrious are prosperous and happy.

President Board of County Commissioners, Yakima County.

NORTH YAKIMA, Wash., April 18, 1891.

D. E. Lesh, proprietor of the celebrated fruit farm called "Fruit Vale," swears that on one Alexander peach-tree grew, during the year 1890, five hundred and twenty pounds of peaches, which he sold for $52; that off four apple-trees twenty oz. pippins, he sold 100 boxes, 4,600 pounds, at $125. My whole orchard, between six and seven acres of peaches, apples, plums, pears and apricots, brought me, during the season of 1890, about three thousand dollars.

THE GHOST OF YAKIMA CITY.

It Haunts Paul Schulze—Who is the Prominent Yakima Republican That Assisted in the Outrage?

Paul Schulze, when interviewed by the Tacoma News reporter in reference to the decision of the supreme court in the Yakima mandamus case, says that now objections to establishing a station at the old town have been withdrawn by the N. P. land department and that the engineering department has been instructed to draw plans for the necessary buildings. As to the action of the company in this matter he gave the following explanation: "The Northern Pacific's reason for locating a town at North Yakima was the fact that the old town was lying close to the so-called Yakima gap on low ground and at the very southern extremity of the basin formed by the Abnatum valley, the Moose country and the Natchez valley. Its location was unhealthy owing to the fact that all seepage from irrigation, etc., from these valleys drained to that location, gradually forming a swamp there. If a station had been established at Yakima it would have been necessary to establish another station a little above where North Yakima is located. The result would have been two struggling villages instead of a flourishing town. North Yakima is most centrally located and accommodates every part of the basin referred to. Her prosperity and growth has a shown the wisdom of the railroad's policy, now sanctioned by the supreme court. This decision is particularly gratifying to me because, although I was only the instrument to carry out the orders of the board of directors, I had to carry all the criticism and vituperation resulting from the company's action.

"I don't think there is another man in the state who has been so unmercifully abused as I was in connection with the location of North Yakima. This abuse extended to nearly every part of the country and into congress. Every demagogue in this state made the Yakima outrage his stock in trade. I remember that one of them dug up the Yakima ghost in the constitutional convention and tried to make it available for his purposes. This particular demagogue was originally in sympathy with the railroad's plan and changed his course when he noticed the drift of public opinion. In spite of all his office seeking, office has not yet sought him, and I trust that the supreme court decision will settle this gentleman's aspirations for good in this state."

Mr. Schulze did not wish to name the politician referred to, who is understood to be a prominent Yakima republican.

A VETERAN HORSEMAN'S DET.

How "Father Bill Daly" Made Twenty Dollars in the Night of a Tenderfoot.

As "Father Bill" was scolding a favorite horse's boots an underdone Anglomaisie sentimentalist came along and complimented it was "swelly to animals." The anecdote continues: "Bill Daly sidled him up very slowly and said: 'Young man, you are full of prunes. That water is not too hot. I'll bet you $10 that I can hold my foot in it for five minutes without a murmur.' The dude took $20 off his roll and laid it on the straw, and Bill Daly put a double eagle on it to hold it down, and stuck his artificial leg in the tub."

"At the end of five minutes the young man walked away disgusted, and as Daly folded up the bill and returned the double eagle to its place in the purse a little colored boy, who had been on the verge of an explosion while the bet was being decided, said: 'For de Lord's sake, Mas' Daly, why didn't you bet him more than $80 when you knowed 'yod had a dead sure thing?' 'Twan't no dead cinch,' said Bill Daly, 'and $20 is all I'll bet on my memory; it's getting so uncertain of late years. S'posin' I'd forgotten and stuck the wrong leg in the tub!'"

Alex. McAfee, formerly of this city, and a son-in-law of H. M. Benton, has mysteriously disappeared from Portland, where he has been successfully conducting a saloon, and it is the opinion of the detectives who have been working on the case that he has been put out of the way. McAfee left his saloon on Christmas day with a stranger and has not since been seen. He had several hundred dollars on his person at the time.

Rev. W. H. Cornett has been called to the pastorate of the Westminster church, of Spokane, and preached his farewell sermon to the Yakima public on Sunday evening last. The members of the Presbyterian church accepted his resignation with extreme regret, but did not desire to stand in the way of such an opportunity for advancement. The call is a very high compliment to be paid to such a young man.

Ben E. Snipes returned from Washington, D. C., on Saturday last, whither he journeyed in the interest of W. Lair Hill, who aspires to one of the vacant circuit judgeships. This was Mr. Snipes' first trip east in seventeen years, but he found friends everywhere and enjoyed himself hugely. He is of the opinion that if Mr. Allen will not consent to don the ermine that Judge Hill's chances are excellent.

Marshal McMurry states that he will not resign. When informed by Councilman Seborn that the people were dissatisfied he said that he would tender his resignation, but it is his belief now that the dissatisfaction exists mainly among those who are coveting the position and he doesn't propose to retire just to oblige them. If the council wants to impeach him the marshal says he is ready.

Cle-Elum Tribune: It is stated upon good authority that Theodore Steiner will close up the Horton hotel in Ellensburg, if he has not already done so, on account of a lack of business. It is said that Ellensburg is as "dead as a door nail," and the closing of the Horton leaves the town entirely without a hotel save a few small lodging houses.

Hogium has a hotel that cost $115,000 which rents for $1 per month, and still the landlord cannot manage to pay expenses. Persons who grumble at "hard times" in Yakima should be made to understand that the condition of things here is as good if not better than anywhere else in the northwest.

DAVID B. HILL'S LEADERSHIP.

The republican papers continue to howl with the utmost vehemence at Senator Hill and his followers...

There is but one reason for this, and it is that through his admirable leadership he left that state on the first of January with its first democratic legislature in 23 years...

For a decade David B. Hill has stood before the democrats of New York as their most successful leader. He has crossed swords with the most skillful as well as the most corrupt politicians of the land...

The Columbia Chronicle, in commenting on Col. Will L. Vischer's conversion to Murphyism, thinks that he can find remunerative employment as a danger signal on a railroad until the color of his nose fades sufficiently to admit of his taking the rostrum in the cause of temperance.

The "National League for the Protection of American Institutions" proposes the following amendment to the federal constitution: "No state shall pass any law respecting the establishment of religion or prohibiting the full exercise thereof or use its property or credit or any money raised by taxation or authorize the issue of bonds for the purpose of founding, maintaining or aiding by appropriation payment for services, expenses or otherwise of any church, religious denomination or religious society or any institution, society or undertaking which is wholly or in part under sectarian or ecclesiastical control."

Among bills recently introduced in congress are the following: Proposing a constitutional amendment providing for a uniform law for marriage and divorce; to equalize taxation and impose an income tax; for free coinage of silver; for the prevention of trusts; for reclamation of arid land; fixing the presidential term at six years; to prevent contraction of the currency and to increase the volume of currency; to establish a uniform system of bankruptcy; for the issue of fractional silver certificates; directing the committee on public lands to inquire whether any public lands are erroneously conveyed to any railroad company; providing that all silver dollars hereafter coined shall contain one ounce troy of pure silver, and for free coinage thereof; for the admission of New Mexico as a state; to fix freight rates on all interstate railroads; to regulate immigration; to reduce letter postage, and to repeal the McKinley law.

SPOKANE SPEAKERS: The nomination by the president of Ralph K. Nichols to the registrarship of the North Yakima land office is a deserving tribute to the worth and services of the secretary of the republican state central committee. Mr. Nichols is an able lawyer, a good citizen and a consistent republican. He deserves the office, and even a better one, and every republican in the state will heartily endorse his appointment.

The astute observer who remarked that the American people are always either preparing for an election, holding an election or recovering from the effects of an election spoke truly. DR. KEELY, of bi-chloride of gold fame, gives the following treatment as a specific for the gripe: It is simply asafoetida in 4-grain pills, administered four times a day. He says this will break up the disease very quickly, and that with all his patients during the last two years he has never had one that was forced to go to bed from this scourge.

The latest political news that has been tapped by contemporaries is that Tom Cavanaugh, the present surveyor general, will become a candidate for representative to congress from the west side. Cavanaugh never did lack for nerve, and now he is eclipsing his past record, which certainly has proportions of a monumental character.

DOWN GOES N'BITTY.

It is with much gratification that THE HERALD is enabled to announce that Ira H. Krutz has been removed from the registrarship of the U. S. land office for this district. The announcement was contained in the dispatches of Monday, and his successor is Hon. R. K. Nichols, who will enter upon the discharge of his duties with the good will of all parties. The change will be hailed with general satisfaction. Mr. Krutz is not only personally unpopular, but in an official sense he has been looked upon with distrust by some settlers who have endeavored to honestly acquire land from the government, and it has even been openly charged that he has maneuvered to keep back the issuance of patents through selfish, if not dishonest, motives. Mr. Krutz claims to be a democrat, but the democrats are not only pleased with the change, but they had formulated a petition asking for Mr. Krutz's removal on the grounds that it would be for the best interests of this district that his successor be named.

The action of the president fell like a thunderclap on Mr. Krutz. He had repeatedly promised to resign, but had violated every pledge and was pulling every string within his reach to hold on. His dismissal was unknown to him up to Tuesday afternoon, and he laid great stress on being from the same state as President Harrison and having a "nigger" in the department, to retain his office until the expiration of his term.

The appointee will enter upon the discharge of his duties with the full confidence of his constituency in this district. He is especially qualified by legal knowledge and executive ability to give the best of satisfaction not only to the settlers who will have business before him, but to the general land department at Washington.

THE HERALD joins with friends galore in wishing him a peaceful and successful administration.

PULLMAN, the town where the agricultural college was located by the grace of Lieutenant Governor Laighton and Commissioners Black and Conover, is enjoying a temperature of 25 degrees below zero, while the coldest weather experienced by Yakima, the place where the college should have been located on account of advantages innumerable, has been 12 degrees above zero.

The attendance at the Episcopal church Sunday, Jan. 3, was larger than usual, the attraction being the ordination of Rev. Rufus Chase and the administration of communion by Bishop Paddock. CHEAP MONEY TO LOAN ON FARM LAND. When you want a loan call on See S. Whitson & Parker.

YOUR COUGH Has not yielded to the various remedies you have been taking. It troubles you day and night, breaks your rest and reduces your strength. Now try Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, before the bronchial tubes become enlarged or the delicate tissues of the lungs sustain fatal injury. As an anodyne and expectorant, this preparation has no equal. It soothes the irritated membrane, promotes expectoration, and induces repose. The worst cough Can Be Cured by the use of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. Dr. J. G. Gordon, Carroll Co., Va., writes: "I use Ayer's Cherry Pectoral in my practice, and pronounce it to be unequalled as a remedy for colds and coughs."

"After the gripe—cough. This was my experience—a hacking, dry cough, with an incessant tickling in the throat, keeping me awake nights, and disturbing the household. I tried a great number of 'cough-cures,' but they gave me only temporary relief. At last I concluded to take Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, and before I had used half a bottle, I had my first all-night sleep. I continued to improve, and now consider myself cured."—A. A. Sherman, Coymans, N. Y.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral may have been saved from total failure. E. D. Estabrook, Canterbury, N. H., says: "In the winter of 1893 I was a sufferer of a hacking, dry cough, with an incessant tickling in the throat, keeping me awake nights, and disturbing the household. I tried a great number of 'cough-cures,' but they gave me only temporary relief. At last I concluded to take Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, and before I had used half a bottle, I had my first all-night sleep. I continued to improve, and now consider myself cured."—A. A. "German Syrup"

We have selected two or three lines from letters freshly received from parents who have given German Syrup to their children in the emergencies of Croup. You will credit these, because they come from good, substantial people, happy in finding what so many families lack—a medicine containing no evil drug, which mother can administer with confidence to the little ones in their most critical hours, safe and sure that it will carry them through.

Dr. L. WILLIAMS, of Mrs. JAS. W. KIRK, Alma, Neb. I give it Daughters' College, to my children when Harrodsburg, Ky. I troubled with Croup have depended upon and never saw any it in attacks of Croup preparation set like with my little daughter. It is simply miraculous and find it an invaluable remedy.

Fully one-half of our customers are mothers who use Boschee's German Syrup among their children. A medicine to be successful with the little folks must be a treatment for the sudden and terrible foes of childhood, whooping cough, croup, diphtheria and the dangerous inflammations of delicate throats and lungs. @

BONDS FOR HALF A MILLION VOTED.

The election in the Cowichee & Wide Hollow Irrigation district on Saturday last resulted in the carrying of the bonding proposition by a strong majority.

He was a bad egg.—A very suave young man, who had recently "done up" the people of South Bend, appeared at Washington, D. C., the other day and immediately sought an introduction to Senator Allen.

—Although only one station out of nine in Yakima county, North Yakima last year shipped 1,416,000 pounds of melons in carload lots, besides a vast number of crates.

—Dealing in futures is now permitted in the New York Hop Exchange. This is a new ruling, and on Monday hops brought 25@25 1/2 cents for February and 26 cents for April delivery.

—W. F. Powell and Scott Kremer killed four deer up the Natchees last week. The heavy snow in the mountains is driving the deer down, and as a result the settlers along the foothills are reveling in venison.

—The Isabella R. D., Lodge No. 23, will give a public entertainment at Masonic hall, in the Syndicate block, on the evening of February 17, the occasion being the second anniversary of the lodge.

—A telegram received by A. B. Weed from London states that Dan Sinclair's hope has been sold so as to net twenty cents per pound. This is the highest price received this season for Yakima hops.

—There will be a meeting of the girls' guild of the Episcopal church Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the office of Crippen, Lawrence & Co. in the Syndicate block. A full attendance of the members is greatly desired.

—Forty-seven marriage licenses were issued by Auditor Ellis during 1921. One hundred and twenty licenses were issued in Kittitas county for the same period, which makes a comparison unfavorable to our young men.

—At Spokane on Wednesday a legal firm filed a suit for $5,000 against Dr. G. W. Carey, of Biochemic fame, in behalf of George S. Titus, who alleges that through mispractice Dr. Carey caused the death of his wife, who was sick in childbirth.

—Rev. S. H. Cheadle has under consideration the resigning of the pastoral charge of the Congregational church. Nothing definite has yet been determined, and in any event it will probably not take effect before the first of April, when his year is up.

—A prominent nurseryman from the Puyallup valley is here looking for a large tract of land for the purpose of transferring his business to Yakima. He is greatly impressed with the Sunnyside section and will probably decide upon locating there.

—W. G. Simpson, of Seattle, has purchased of Captain J. H. Thomas the Schanno residence at Yakima City, which he will make additions to and convert into a hotel. A bar is to be placed in the hotel and it is to be conducted in a manner to please all patrons.

—The Congregational people, finding that the evening audiences in the Cadwell block were not large enough to justify the extra labor and expense of a second service, have removed their church furniture to the church building west of the railway and will have only a morning service and Sunday school.

LOCAL BRIEFINGS.

—George Guillard is studying medicine with Dr. Hill.

—W. H. Hare was confirmed as receiver of the Yakima land office on Monday.

—The coldest weather registered in Yakima so far this winter was 12 degrees above zero.

—Katie Putnam and her great comedy organization at the opera house Thursday, Jan. 21.

—"That's What the Wild Waves are Saying," as sung by Katie Putnam and company Thursday, Jan. 21.

—Hear Katie Putnam and company sing "The Bogie Man" in "Love Finds a Way" at the opera house Thursday.

—A couple of horses belonging to Mr. Miller were killed by the locomotive on the John Reed field Monday night.

—The great topical song as sung by Katie Putnam—"Oh! How Different in the Morning"—at the opera house Jan. 21.

—The cobweb social given by the Congregationalists Tuesday evening was a very successful affair. The receipts netted upwards of $40.

—The Yakima club will be thrown open to the ladies Friday evening. The entertainment will include progressive euchre and a light lunch.

—The annual election of the stockholders of the First National bank was held Monday. The present officers of the institution were re-elected.

—Miss Edna Hood, late of Iowa, and a niece of George Taylor, has been appointed to succeed Mrs. Lovell, resigned, as teacher in the public schools of this city.

—The new officers of the Knights of Pythias were installed Wednesday evening. The lodge is in a flourishing condition and the membership roll is growing.

—An electric light has been placed in the corridor of the postoffice this week, a convenience which has long been needed, but for which the public should be duly thankful.

PERSONAL.

H. B. Scudder returned on Monday from Boston.

L. E. Schott is down with an attack of the influenza.

A. K. Hancock, of Tacoma, is the guest of Fred R. Reed.

Samuel Starow leaves to-day for a visit to the Sound cities.

Receiver Hare, of the land office, paid a flying visit to Spokane the first of the week.

J. J. Imbrie, of Tacoma, arrived in the city Tuesday for a visit with his old time friends.

Mrs. H. A. Griffin, who has been on the sick list for the past month, is still very low.

R. J. Mackison and mother left on Tuesday for a visit of several weeks with friends at Spokane.

Cad. Hampton, a well-known general agent representing San Francisco insurance companies, is in the city.

Carl A. Jensen and bride, of Prosser, were in the city Wednesday receiving the congratulations of many friends.

W. J. Meade, of Tacoma, was in the city on Saturday last arranging for the improvement of his land in the Selah valley.

Charles Hare, a nephew of Dr. W. H. Hare of the land office, arrived here Monday from Ohio with the intention of remaining.

C. A. Bushnell, an Ellensburg photographer, is in the city with the intention of locating in Yakima and opening a gallery.

A. W. Engle, president of the First National bank, arrived from Seattle Monday and spent a couple of days in looking after his business interests here.

R. Schmidt, who has the contract for the construction of the sewerage system, arrived here from the Sound Wednesday and is a guest of the Hotel Yakima.

T. M. Jones, a Roslyn merchant, is in the city, and is so favorably impressed that he is trying to make business arrangements for the purpose of locating here.

E. F. Benson, immigration agent of the N. P., Yakima & Kittitas Irrigation Co., has moved here from Wilbur with his family and taken one of the Mason houses.

A. C. Walker is now en route home from Boston. He expects to make one or two short stops in Montana, and will probably arrive here the latter part of next week.

Mr. Finlay is a recent arrival from Inverness, Scotland, who has located here, and will engage in the stock business. He is a friend of the Cameron brothers, and hails from their native town.

—A decision has just been reached by the U. S. land officers of the Olympia land district affecting John Stone's 320 acre ranch near Sumner in the Puyallup valley. The land has been in contest for a long time, owing to alleged flaws in Mr. Stone's title, and the land officers have decided in favor of the contestants, C. F. Whittlesey, of Seattle, and W. B. Hooker, of New York. The land is very valuable and 112 acres of it is in hops. Of course the case will be carried to the highest courts and bitterly fought. Mr. Stone's many friends wish him the fullest success in his legal battle with the jumpers.

—Some time ago it was announced that the bonds of the middle Kittitas irrigation district had been sold and the construction work would be started at once. Now it seems that there is a hitch in the proceedings, and a contest instituted to determine the legality of the proceedings has just been decided by Judge Graves, who holds that the district is a municipal corporation and as such is unable to contract an indebtedness in excess of the five per cent. limit laid down in the constitution. The case is to be carried to the supreme court.

—Officers of Yakima Lodge No. 22, I. O. O. F., were installed on Friday, Jan. 8, as follows: W. J. Roof, N. G.; J. P. McCafferty, V. G.; A. L. Churchill, sec.; H. Spinning, R. S.; G. O. Nevin, treas.; C. E. McEwen, wardens; P. A. Stanton, con.; D. T. Myers, fi.; B. B. Coombs, R. S. N. G.; C. W. McLean, L. S. N. G.; Walter Burbank, R. S. V. G.; John Edwards, L. S. V. G.; R. Ball, R. S. S.; Hugh Sutherland, L. S. S.

—Isabella R. D. Lodge No. 23, at their regular meeting Jan. 11, installed the following officers: Mrs. Joseph Stephenson, N. G.; Mrs. Sam Vinson, V. G.; Mr. A. L. Churchill, sec.; Mrs. George Nevin, treas.; Mrs. Dodge, warden; Mrs. Trayner, con.; Mrs. McGlothlin, I. G.; Mr. Butler, O. G.; Mr. Stanton, R. S. N. G.; Mr. Stephenson, L. S. N. G.; Mrs. Iler, R. S. V. G.; Mrs. Stout, L. S. V. G.; Mrs. Spinning, chaplain.

—During 1891 two hundred and ninety cases, civil and criminal, were filed in Kittitas county, and nineteen criminals were sentenced for terms ranging from forty-eight hours to twenty years. For the same period 120 marriage licenses were issued, 302,988 tons of coal mined, for which $611,533 was paid in wages, and sixty land patents for citizens of the county were signed by President Harrison.

—Will Bushnell, formerly of this city, but now of Tacoma, applied for a divorce last week from his wife, Clara E. Bushnell, to whom he was married in Walla Walla at the point of a pistol. The court refused to grant the application. The case will be appealed, as it is claimed that Bushnell wants to marry the daughter of wealthy Tacomaites.

—The work of excavating for Yakima's system of sewerage was commenced on Monday in a small way. Only eighteen men are at present employed, but as soon as the days lengthen and the weather will justify every man that can be utilized will be given employment. The work was started at the river near Captain Thomas' place.

Royal Baking Powder Has no Equal.

The United States Official Report

Of the Government Baking Powder tests recently made, under authority of Congress, by the Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C., furnishes the highest authoritative information as to which powder is the best. The Official Report shows the ROYAL superior to all others in leavening power; a cream of tartar powder of highest quality.

The Canadian Tests:

"The strength of the Royal is shown to be 23 per cent. greater than any other.

SPLENDID SHOWING OF SHIPMENTS.—Through the courtesy of Agent Humphrey THE HERALD is enabled to give the aggregate of shipments from this point for the year 1921. While North Yakima is the principal railroad station in the county there are eight others, and in giving this statement it must be remembered that the splendid showing herewith made does not include near the total of exportations from which Yakima derives a large part of her revenues: Hops, 45 cars, containing 2746 bales, weighing 146,260 pounds; mineral water, 245 packages, weighing 39,200 pounds; hay, 155 cars, weighing 3100 pounds; sheep, 86 cars, containing 16,779 head; hogs, 4 cars, containing 191 head; cattle, 12 cars, containing 2816 head; horses, 12 cars, containing 268 head; hides, 934 packages, weighing 52,000 pounds; eggs, 80 packages, weighing 4000 pounds; onions, 2 cars, containing 475 sacks, weighing 42,750 pounds; vegetables, 4 cars, weighing 96,000 pounds; fruit, 6615 packages, weighing 190,300 pounds; flour, 99 cars, weight 1,911,850 pounds; wool, 82 packages, weight 27,000 pounds; potatoes, 92 cars, weight 1,822,200 pounds; melons, 59 cars, weight 1,416,000 pounds. The total value of these exports are estimated at $291,500.

MORTALITY AMONG HORSES.—There is great mortality among the horses around Cle Elum. Local horsemen were unable to tell its nature, but Mr. Stafford of that place pronounces it congestion of the lungs. The symptoms are these: The animals become suddenly stupid, lie down and seem perfectly helpless; they do not groan or make any effort to get up; there are slight discharges from the eyes and nose, and while the bowels appear all right the urinary organs are perfectly ineffectual. All remedies so far have proved ineffectual. The animals swell up shortly after death and immediately an offensive stench is emitted. An appeal has been made to Governor Ferry for relief through the state board of health, and Dr. R. B. Corcoran, senior veterinary surgeon of the First cavalry, who is now at Walla Walla on a leave of absence, has tendered his services, but the governor has replied that there is no appropriation to meet the expenses.

STILL ANOTHER BIG IRRIGATION SCHEME.—H. G. Simmons, of New York, and C. H. Leadbetter, of Portland, were in the city on Saturday last conferring with L. S. Howlett and H. J. Salvay, who represent land owners on the north side of the Yakima river in the vicinity of Kiona, with regard to furnishing water for irrigation purposes. These gentlemen and their associates propose to build a big canal, taking its head on the south side of the Yakima opposite Kiona and extending down to Kennewick, for which the surveys have already been made by their chief engineer, H. V. Gates, of Portland. The object of their visit here was to settle preliminaries before starting in on the work. They intend to cross the Yakima by means of a conduit, if their arrangements with the clients of Attorneys Howlett and Salvay are perfected, and have the water on the land by the first of June. Messrs. Simmons and Leadbetter are well versed in irrigation matters, having built and operated extensive canals in the vicinity of Nampa, Colorado.

"LOVE FINDS A WAY."—Next Thursday night, Jan. 21, Miss Katie Putnam, one of the most talented and versatile actresses that have visited the west, will appear at the opera house, supported by a strong company, in the successful comedy "Love Finds a Way." Miss Putnam's tour to the coast has been a series of triumphs, and the prevailing voice of the press is that she has one of the strongest organizations traveling. During the play Miss Katie will introduce many new songs and specialties, and an evening of enjoyment can be looked forward to by the Yakima public, who have experienced a dearth of theatrical amusements for some time, and who are ripe to welcome Miss Putnam when she arrives in her special car on Thursday next from Spokane.

Can't Cook as Mother Did!

How many a young wife's heart has been saddened by hearing the above remark! And yet how often the words are true; especially when cake, pastry or biscuit are in question! The reason is plain, yet it is "like telling a secret."

Our mothers used and are using Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder. They cannot be misled into using any of the ammonia or alum powders. No dyspepsia no sallow complexions, when mother did the cooking.

The first symptoms of ammonia poisoning, says a New York paper, which appear among those who work in ammonia factories, is a discoloration of the nose and forehead. This gradually extends over the face until the complexion has a stained, blotched and unsightly appearance.

Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder is the only pure cream of tartar powder that contains the whites of eggs.

Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder is reported by all authorities as free from Ammonia, Alum, or any other adulterant. In fact the purity of this ideal powder has never been questioned.

THE LOST PLOT.

By LILY A. LONG.

Came caught his hand.

For nine months of the year Lake Sophia indulged in a beauty sleep. Sometimes, indeed, one of her summer visitors would linger on into the early autumn to catch from nature that drop of sentimental melancholy which crowns the cup of happiness, and sometimes a sentimental sportsman would build a bonfire on its banks in winter with a view to teaching the gullible fish how treacherous are the ways of men, but in general the wild things of the woods and waters had it all their own way from September to June, while the deserted summer hotel stood like a three storied homely, in green and white paint, on the vanity of human pursuits. But when the ephemeral northern summer flashed itself upon the lake it brought gay parades to astonish the roses, and the hotel, now that at last it had an audience, forgot to preach and betook itself to entertaining.

Maurice Carne had managed to make away pleasantly with a few weeks there one January, so in default of anything better to do he let himself drift back the following August.

"Presto, change!" he thought to himself as he tried, on the evening of his arrival, to renew his acquaintance with the locality. "Like the old story, the only needed a new set of ribbons to turn her into a coquette."

Instead of the white solitudes, with their secrets of rest, the groups common to lakeside resorts were wandering about, trying to do their duty by the sunset. Here were children laden with flowers already faded; young women brought up on sentiment and young men trying it for a week's vacation time; business men talking stocks and markets as a relaxation from the unaccustomed strain of enjoying themselves; anxious mothers secretly longing for the rest of home, with here and there some serene soul enough at leisure from itself to receive the blessing of nature.

Carne wandered along a bypath, noting all with careless eye till his uncornea was suddenly scattered by the familiar appearance of one of the approaching figures. By his melancholy visage it should be Mark Liddell, but by his environment any one but he, reclines that he was. Could he be trying to enjoy himself after the fashion of ordinary mortals? If so, the experiment could hardly have been called successful, for dejection spoke from every fold of his limp sweater, and his hat drooped over his eyes in an openly disconsolate manner.

Carne caught his hand. "Mark, old fellow, how did it happen? How did you, of all people, come to lose your way into this place?"

Liddell looked up with the air of one too deeply sunk in woe to feel surprise. "Oh, I was here before these folks came. I didn't realize the dangers of the situation until it was too late and they were upon me. I can blame no one but myself."

"And you have been doing that very effectually, I should judge. Do you know, when I first saw you, I was wild enough to fancy for a moment that you had at last succeeded in taking some good advice about coming out among human beings and studying your raw material before working it up into your books? I suppose I was all at sea, eh?"

"You certainly were if you thought that I would ever willingly or wittingly get myself into a corner of the globe where half a hundred of these could crowd around me at once. They fairly suffocate me."

"I hope you won't let the fact that I happen to belong to the human race place any awkward restraint on the free expression of your feelings. Just go on as though I were not here," murmured Carne reassuringly.

"You are different. You are not so aggressively alive as these jerky people." "Hum! You intend that as a compliment, so I will try to be grateful, though privately remembering the places to which certain good intentions are proverbially consigned. But some one is coming this way—or some two, rather. Let me gently suggest that we withdraw from the enemy and seek a solitary spot where you can breathe your woe and berate humanity at a safe distance."

But Liddell, with a sort of horrified fascination, was watching the self-absorbed loungers who approached, and shook off the arm of his friend.

"They look like lovers, don't they?" he asked, with bated breath. "And they will have to pass us. Go on talking any something, anything, and don't mind if I don't listen. I must hear what they are saying, don't you understand?" His sunken eye was glowing with suppressed excitement.

But the wary young people were watering places graduates, with a reserve stock of subjects warranted strictly impersonal, to supply necessary breaks in conversation.

"Do you admire Herbert Spencer?" asked she, as they came within earshot. "Spencer? He is the evolution theory man, isn't he?"

"Is he or isn't he?" she asked mockingly. "Oh, well, you know I don't pretend to keep up with you on those things. It isn't fair for you to try to trip me."

They were out of range by this time, and Maurice turned to his friend as he went.

"If your reason for abandoning society in general, Mark, is the consciousness of insupportable impulses to turn overboard on the slightest occasion, I shall respect your principles; heretofore, and I only regret that you have ever been tempted to forget them."

"They're going through Lovers' lane," cried Liddell unheedingly. "We might intercept them there. It isn't a lane and no lovers not hypnotized by a hotel prospectus would dream of wandering through it, but I have found, as a matter of fact, that they do here. I know a place where we can hear everything that is said without being seen ourselves."

"Mark, man, what has taken possession of you?"

Liddell looked up in surprise and saw by the look in his friend's face that it was time for him to clear his character.

"It isn't so bad as that, Maurice. I am trying to recover something that is either lost or stolen, and detectives must not be hampered by conventional moralities."

"What have you lost?"

"A plot. The plot of my last novel. I came down here a few weeks ago to work, because this is the quietest place in the world before it becomes unmanageable, but because too absorbed and lost out of the time. One morning I looked out and found the ground covered with people. I ought to have retreated then, but I was deep in a critical chapter, and I rashly determined to risk it and stay till I got that particular incident down on paper. Well, I paid for it. I took my portable down to a rustic seat which I had come to look upon as my peculiar property, and tried to pay no attention to the insane multitudes who snarled and flirled on every hand. I reviewed my work up to the point I had then reached. I glanced mentally over what remained to do. Everything was in perfect order. Then I settled down to work. My thoughts must have wandered a little, for my conscience presently aroused me with the feeling that I was wasting my morning. I drew my papers toward me, and could think of nothing. My plot was gone, absolutely and beyond recall."

"Do you mean you had forgotten it?"

"Forgotten? Forgotten? How do you define memory?"

"Oh, if you are going into metaphysics I surrender at discretion."

"The custodian of mental property conveys the idea, doesn't it? Well, a certain part of this mental property passed from the possession of this custodian. It cannot have been lost—that is to say, annihilated. The fact that it once existed proves that it must always exist. If not in one form, then in another; if not here, then somewhere else. Now, under what conditions can mental property exist? Manifestly only in the mind of some person. Therefore, if an idea has passed out of my mind, you cannot escape the logical conclusion that it must have passed into the mind of someone else."

"Then your theory is that your missing plot has fastened itself upon the unsuspecting brain of some poor fellow who came out here for rest? I don't wonder you are anxious about it. Just fancy the victim's bewilderment, amazement, horror at so sudden an invasion of ideas. Was it a very exciting plot, Mark?"

"No, it was to be a realistic story. That is the worst part of it. Any one might use it up unconsciously without ever suspecting that it was not his own. Of course, if I were to put it into a book I could identify it. I feel very sure I should recognize it at sight. But the greater danger is that the present possessor will simply squander it on his own life. He will use it up on some flirtation, probably, where any one of a dozen commonplace ideas would have served as well."

"Ah, then you had just reached the flirtations stage of development?"

"My hero and heroine had been parted by a quarrel. That's an idea, of course, that had been utilized before. But they were to be brought together in a very original and unique manner. That's the idea that is gone."

"It is to be devotedly hoped then that the plot selected some unprejudiced bachelor to experiment upon. It makes my hair stand on end to think what the consequences may be if an idea in that particular stage of development should attach some young man, say, who has taken the opportunity while off with the old love to get on with a new. He would be bound to follow out the plot, wouldn't he, and make up with the old whether he wanted to or not? Mark, you don't know what complications you may be responsible for. You must recover that dangerous plot at once."

"Supernatural of the Sea. One of Machin's old sea captains, while en route to the West Indies, had been becalmed for several days off Hatteras; he had prayed for wind, he had sworn for wind, but the wind came not. At last he thought he would try another scheme, so he kissed a silver twenty-five cent piece and threw it as far as he could out upon the sea. In a short time the wind blew a gale, and it drove his vessel to the coast of Africa.—Leiston Journal.

"I have thought of that, but I would simply be deluged with ideas from rejected contributors. That isn't to be risked."

"Couldn't you manage to throw off the first and 'conquer it'?"

"Hush," interrupted Liddell warningly, as the dip of a pair of sculls came to them through the twilight. "There are some people rounding the point in a boat. Keep still. You stay put your fingers in your ears if you like, Maurice, but I am going to hear what they say."

The shadows had fallen unperceived on the shore, but the lake lay in a luminous glow of its own. The two persons in the boat, fancying themselves secure in a solitude of waters, could not suspect that the sky had turned itself into a great whispering gallery to betray them.

It was a girl's voice, tangled in with the splash of the water, that came first to the shore.

"You can't be said to be in a particularly conversational mood this evening," she remarked slyly. "You really don't seem to have a thing to say for yourself."

"I might have—if the conditions were different," he answered slowly.

"Oh! I thought you were going to say if the subject were not so poor."

The sculls fell into the water with a sound that somehow suggested the slam of a door.

"I wish you had waited for Aunt Nanette and Lieutenant Fulton," the girl went on with unfeigned sweetness. "He is always entertaining. He has a peculiarly delightful gift for making himself agreeable."

"We can go in whenever you like."

"Yes—but—but the lake is very pleasant just at this hour."

[CONCLUDED NEXT WEEK.]

When Men Are Tired. "Here's a unique fact."

"What's that?"

The stenographer, the bookkeeper and the reporter were talking together. The reporter added:

"I often notice after I have done a hard day's work, written miles and miles, I have a strange tendency to transcribe certain letters as they flow from my pen or pencil."

"How so?"

"I do not know why or how. I have often tried to explain the thing. All I know is that, mechanically, the transpositions slip from my pen."

"Let me illustrate. I am writing 'James Brown was found dead today.' The sentence will slip along all right until suddenly I dash down 'today,' and it slides from the pen 'today,' or may be 'I'll transfer 'found' into 'founda.' Isn't that strange, gentlemen?"

The bookkeeper smiled.

"Well, I declare," he said, "what a strange coincidence. I don't wonder you are on the track of some deep and heretofore unrecognized law of mental states. Now what you say applies equally well to bookkeepers. There isn't an old bookkeeper in the United States who will not tell you that, when his mind becomes wearied, after long work, he begins to transcribe figures. That is one of the ways, in fact, that I can tell that I am becoming tired. I start to write 985, and it slides off the pen 895; or 891 becomes 218."

The shorthand man acknowledged that it was the same, too, with him.—New York World.

Mosquitoes Are Everywhere. Mungo Park considered that crocodiles were but of little account to the traveler in Africa, "when compared with the amazing swarms of mosquitoes, which rise from the swamps and creeks in such numbers as to harass even the most torpid of the natives." With his clothes almost worn to rags, he was ill prepared to resist their attacks, and frequently, therefore, passed the night walking backward and forward, fanning himself with his hat, perpetual motion being necessary to keep them at bay.

Lance testified to their extraordinary abundance in Lapland, where smoke and grease were in his time, as they probably are still, the best preventives known. And in recent years, Nordenfalk and others have recorded meeting with enormous swarms in high arctic latitudes, in which regions, indeed, it is not only culices that exist in myriads, but other diptera as well.—Knowledge.

Supernatural of the Sea. One of Machin's old sea captains, while en route to the West Indies, had been becalmed for several days off Hatteras; he had prayed for wind, he had sworn for wind, but the wind came not. At last he thought he would try another scheme, so he kissed a silver twenty-five cent piece and threw it as far as he could out upon the sea. A Great Liver Medicine.

Dr. Gebu's Improved Liver Pills are a sure cure for sick headache, bilious complaints, dyspepsia, indigestion, constipation, torpid liver, etc. These pills insure perfect digestion, correct the liver and stomach, regulate the bowels, purify and enrich the blood and make the skin clear. They also produce a good appetite and invigorate and strengthen the entire system by their tonic. They only require one pill for a dose and never gripe or sicken. Sold at 25cts. a box by Janek's Pharmacy.

JOHN L. SULLIVAN TALKS.

The Report That the Great Pugilist Has Sworn Off Makes Him Laugh—His Views of the Gold Treatment.

Interview in the Olympian: "It was reported that you had sworn off on New Year's," said the reporter.

Mr. Sullivan laughed heartily and declared that there was absolutely no truth in the malicious report.

"You were also misrepresented by the announcement made some weeks ago that you had gone east to take a course of treatment at the Keeley Institute at Dwight, Ill.," was suggested.

The remark amused John L. greatly. "But growing serious, he said: "They don't get one of their drags into me. I like gold well enough, but I haven't got to drinking it. Just as I said about Senator Fair's son, who has taken the treatment, some people have so much money that they want to get it into their bodies, but I haven't got to that point yet. I take more stock in will power. My doctor told me some time ago, and I'm finding out that he told me the truth."

"What are your plans for the future?"

"We'll finish this season in Boston in June. Then if any of the boys mean business I'll go into training. But whether I fight next summer or not, I'm going out of the ring. It's getting to be too hard work."

"Have you any hope of getting a match?" was asked.

"Very little. They don't seem to show any pluck."

"Has Corbett shown any inclination to fight you?"

"Oh, I've had a little sparring with Corbett, but he's a much overrated man. He's too light for his height."

"Will you continue on the stage?"

"Yes. Harrison and me gets along first rate. We will travel together again next season. I'm going to have him write me another piece with lots of life in it. I'll quit the ring for good and remain on the stage."

"I notice that you are getting gray. Is it not due to your present brain work?"

"Oh, no. My hair has been turning gray for six years. But these one night stands do play me out."

Saved From Death by Onions. There has no doubt been more lives of children saved from death in crop or whooping cough by the use of onions than any other known remedy. Our mothers used to make positions of them, or a syrup, which was always effective in breaking up a cough or cold. Dr. Gunn's Onion Syrup is made by combining a few remedies with it which make it more effective as a medicine and destroys the taste and odor of the onion. 50c. Sold by Janek's Pharmacy.

John Reed has a horse-power saw constantly running at his yard on the west side. Wood sawed any length. Telephone 17.

THE ORIGIN OF CHESS. His Birthplace Said to Have Been India—Greek and Arab Legends Regarding Its Origin.

The origin of chess is shrouded in mystery. There is but little doubt, however, that its birthplace was in India, and that it is an offspring of a game called chaturanga, which is mentioned in Oriental literature as in use fully 2000 years before the Christian era. From India chess spread into Persia, and thence into Arabia, and ultimately the Arabs took it into Spain and the rest of western Europe. The game was in all probability invented for the purpose of illustrating the art of war.

The Arab legend upon this point is that it was devised for the instruction of a young despot by his father, a learned Brahmin, to teach him that a king, notwithstanding his power, was dependent for his safety upon his subjects. The Greek historians credit the invention of the game to Palamedes, who, they claim, devised it to beguile the tedium of the siege of Troy during the Trojan war.
