Relieved From Jury Duty.

Once when a Wisconsin circuit judge was empanelling a jury, he said that if any one wished to be excused from service reasons should be given at once and their sufficiency would be duly considered. One man had a sick child and another a sick cow. Presently, after considerable rumination, an Irishman arose. His face and attitude bespoke a heavy sorrow and a reverent humility to Divine Providence. His words were few and simple; "Judge, me wife's did," with a stonchic emphasis on the "did." The judge's heart was touched, and he said: "Well, my good man, I guess we'll have to let you go."

The Irishman slowly took his hat and went. When he had gotten his body well outside of the door he poked his face back through the nearly closed door, with a triumphant grin and said: "Ye, sor; and she's been did thorty year."

The sheriff was told to let him go, for the judge was Irish himself.

The Hop Industry of 1889.

Tacoma Ledger.—Actual returns from the various hop growing districts of the state show an acreage at present 4055 acres. It is known that there are several yards not included in these returns, so that the present hop acreage of the state is not less than 5000 acres, divided as follows: Pierce county, 2143 acres; King county, 1044 acres; and other counties, 708 acres; Oregon, 1837. The total shipments of hops from the state from September 1 to December 23, 1889, were 31,287 bales, of which 7042 bales were shipped from Puyallup. Of the Puyallup shipments, 2906 bales were exported direct to England. It is estimated that Washington produced this year 35,000 bales, and that Oregon produced 10,000. England has been a large buyer of Washington hops this year. Hops by the train load have been laid down at London only twenty-nine days from Puyallup. The average price obtained for hops during the last twenty years has been about 17 cents, which is nearly double the cost of production, and, with an average yield of 1700 pounds per acre, shows a net profit of $136 an acre. The ruling price for the crop of 1889 has been about 8 cts.—a little less than the cost of production. This low price is the result of large crops in England and Germany and a fair crop in New York. It is less disastrous to the hop growers of Oregon and Washington than those of New York and England, as the cost of production is about 4 cents a pound less than in New York, and perhaps 5 or 6 cents less than in England.

HIS NAME IS BROWN.

The New United States Marshal to Succeed T. J. Hamilton Hails from Tacoma.

The contest over the United States marshalship is ended. Our own Thomas Jefferson Victor Clark, of Ellensburg, his favorite son, Dr. W. H. Hare and a host of others failed in their efforts to reach the prize. The successful applicant is Thomas Reeves Brown, of Tacoma. He was born March 25, 1844, in Perryville, Ind. In 1854 he went with his father to Danville, Ill., and located there. He was a school boy with Gen. J. C. Black, of Danville, late commissioner of pensions under President Cleveland. He enlisted with Gen. Black at Danville in 1861, when only 16 years old, as a private in company K of the Thirty-seventh Illinois volunteers. He served four years and nine months, and was in every battle, skirmish and hard march in which that noted regiment engaged. Some of these engagements were at Peasie, Prairie Grove, Chalk Bluffs, Vicksburg and the taking of Mobile. He received a lieutenant's commission, but was never mustered in. He came west after the close of the war and located first at Salem, Or. About nine years ago he removed to Tacoma, and is now president of Brown's Wharf & Navigation company and is interested in a number of other important enterprises. Capt. Brown is a prominent man. In appearance he is a typical soldier, has blue eyes, heavy light-colored mustache, thick curly dark hair threaded with gray, and habitually wears a dark felt hat with the broad brim turned up in the Grand Army style. He is married and has three children, the eldest of whom is 14 years of age.

—The Spanish have a proverb: "Woman loves with her ear, but man with his eye." Persuasive wooing captures a woman's heart, while an attractive appearance conquers the man. To retain man's affection and secure enduring happiness, a woman should be as charming in married life as in the days of bewitching maidenhood. Her captivating weapons are a fair and blooming complexion, soft and spotless hands, freedom from skin and scalp impurities, pimples, chapping and the possession of the delicate bloom of perfect health. Cole's Carbolic Soap, the perfect medicinal toilet, bath and nursery soap is her salvation. Price 25 cents. Sold by all druggists. 2c

The First Step.

Perhaps you are run down, can't eat, can't sleep, can't think, can't do anything to your satisfaction, and you wonder what all this is. You should heed the warning: you are taking the first step into nervous prostration. ## "SWEET BEULAH LAND."

The Attractions and Advantages of Yakima.—A Prosperous City.

The Switzerland of America.—Her Various Enterprises and Products.

Jennie F. White in the Spokane Review: North Yakima is beautifully located, nestling down so cozily among the mountains, which surrounded it on all sides, save an occasional pass here and there, which form the connecting links with the surrounding country. The writer experienced the pleasure of a visit to the valley during last autumn, and while sitting in a carriage on a winding drive way up the mountain side, with the huge rocky bluff rising threatening above our heads, and the perpendicular walls below, ending in the low pass in which winds the dashing Natchees river, so soon to meet with the sister waters of the Yakima, we felt that surely this must be the Switzerland of America. Looking eastward, we beheld beneath us the fair city, with her many church spires pointing heavenward, her business blocks and busy air of active life; the curling smoke of a passing train rising in the clear air to point out the line of direction traversed by the Northern Pacific, which is the means of ingress and egress to this vicinity.

The many shade trees set out and cared for by those who realize that beauty is a wonderful power, and are determined to miss nothing that can add to the attractiveness of their streets; the surrounding ranch homes of life's toilers; the green fields here and there through which the silvery irrigating streams wind about, like ribbons in a mermaid's hair; the foothills forming a background of gray, beyond which, with snow-capped tops, touched into living gold by the departing rays of old Sol, and smiling at each other across the intervening space between, arise the tops of Mount Adams and Tacoma the clear autumn sky above, the birds pouring forth their notes of praise from the ever visible pines, and the rippling waters together formed a perfect whole, long to be remembered.

Yakima can not fail to become a large agricultural city, forming, as it does, the outlet for the nine fertile valleys adjoining. The new railroad from Portland is to be completed in two years. The Oregonian of January 4th says this vicinity is to have an unprecedented growth during 1890. "The railroad to connect with North Yakima will be pushed to completion, and the agricultural and lumber industries will be developed in proportion to facilities afforded by these railroads."

The Oneida irrigating ditches, covering many thousands of acres of land, are now being prepared by the Oneida Community, of New York, who are to colonize that section of Yakima county. The McIntyre ditch, covering 100,000 acres of the best land in the state, and immediately surrounding North Yakima, will be built at once.

The Athanum ditch and that of the Wide Hollow cover the lands to the westward of the city, while the Salah valley ditch, which is nearly completed, waters 25,000 acres of land extending from three to twelve miles from North Yakima. Water works and electric lights are to be completed the coming season, after which they will feel that they have added much to the city's appearance and comfort.

They have one of the finest public school buildings in the state; and eastern people visiting the schools say they equal any in the east they have ever visited in management and educational facilities.

All lines of business are well conducted and one is surprised at the amount of enterprise and thrift represented on every hand.

The Natchees gold and silver mines are attracting much attention, and promise well for the future. The gold is obtained by placer mining.

Silver ore is found in vast quantities, assaying from $75 to $100 per ton. Two mines are being worked and the mining fever is running high.

The coal fields also show immense quantities of semi-anthracite coal, one ledge alone being seventeen feet through without a partition wall. The railroad from Portland will pass these fields.

Copper, lead and lime have also been found in different localities.

Everyone has heard of the wonderful fruits and vegetables here produced. One watermelon raised last season weighed 61 pounds. We saw a squash from which a family of seven had eaten three dinners. We helped them eat two more, and when we came away the squash wasn't half gone. We were shown fruits and vegetables before which the "Arabian Nights" wonders fade into matter of fact, and sweet potatoes, one of which would provide a dinner for an ordinary family. And such peaches and peaches. Anything will grow, and to such enormous proportions as will fill one with wonder.

The tobacco industry is constantly assuming larger dimensions and claiming the attention of the farmer.

The profits are large from this product, and while men will smoke despite the warnings of science and medicine, why Yakima tobacco will do them no more harm than another. The finest of cigars are made from the native tobacco growth of that valley.

We would advise any who have leisure to take a trip on the Northern Pacific to head for Yakima, admire her beauties, say an encouraging word to and for her, and if you have a few dollars above what you want in Spokane real estate Yakima is a good place to leave it for a time, as she is determined to reach the top, and everything tends to her success.

Capitalists from Tacoma are already investing quite extensively in real estate there, and beginning to erect houses and business blocks.

The growth of North Yakima has been slow and steady. They are building firmly and without a boom.

May they succeed, and when they have the capital, as we trust they will, they may safely hope in the happy future to stand next to our dear Spokane; but to exceed it, oh no! We can not admit the possibility for Yakima or any other. It will at least be a delightful place for our public officers to wile away the hours of dull time, where fruit and all estates are plenty, the streams abound in flumy beauties, and tobacco grows—well, not on trees exactly, but only a little lower.

A Young Legal Champ.

Being told that in one of the Russian law courts there is a case which has been on the docket for more than 400 years, says the Washington Post, we are reminded of the humiliating fact that our own beloved country is very young. Still we are proud to say that in the brief time of our nation's existence we have succeeded in accumulating a large and choice assortment of cases which not only show our excellent intentions, but give evidence that in time we will have the most elaborate and costly collection of antique law cases in the civilized world. We believe we have no such chumpish lawyers as the one on whom the story was told in London. When he was a young man his father retired from practice, leaving the business to him. Within a week the young lawyer came home and proudly exclaimed:

"Well, father, I have done in three days what you couldn't do in all the years of your practice."

"What is that, my son?"

"I have settled that Noa estate case."

"Settled it, my son? Settled it, did you say?"

"Yes, father, I settled it in three days, and I could have settled it in one if the judge had been at home."

"Young man, said the astounded parent, 'you are an ass! a consummate ass! Why, sir, four generations of your ancestors have lived on that case and grown rich, and you and your children's children might have done the same if you had not been an egregious ass!'"

"WHAT ARE WE HERE FOR?"

Flanagan, of Texas, Not the Inventor of the Off-Quoted Phrase.

Adjutant General Mullen has in his desk at the capitol a badge of honor presented to him by the members of his command after the battle of Cedar Creek. It is a handsome memento, and engraved on one side are the compliments of the donors to "the bravest officer engaged in the battle of Cedar Creek." On the reverse side of the soldier's insignia is this legend:

Steady, Men! Steady!
What is H— Are We Here For?
Stand by Your Colors!

This startling command was uttered in a moment when the bravest heart quailed and, moreover, it was the command of Captain Jack Mullen, of the Twelfth regiment, Connecticut Infantry Volunteers. It was uttered when bullets rained upon the captain's little brigade and his men fell like blades of grass before the scythe. There was no time for eloquent paraphrasing or for rhetoric or delicate diction. Forcible language, no matter if a little profane, was what the emergency demanded. The federal forces at Cedar Creek had faltered and then began to retreat in dismay under the murderous fire of the opposing forces.

Captain Mullen, a staff officer and a mere boy scarcely 20 years of age, was placed in charge of the only brigade available. He was ordered to the front to stem the tide. He gave the command to charge and when older men saw him, a mere youth, riding to the front they gave a cheer and dashed down upon the impenetrable phalanx that confronted them. It was a terrible carnage. The little brigade obeyed the command with indomitable courage, but the odds were too much and the captain saw his men wavering. They seemed inclined to join other brigades and desert their colors. It was then he yelled this command which emphasizes the badge presented to him by the few who survived that awful struggle. In it the brigade was completely surrounded, but Captain Mullen would not capitulate, nor would he forsake the stars and stripes, and by desperate fighting the colors were returned to a place of safety in the Union camp. But the boys in blue had to fight their way out, and of that brigade there was only a meager battalion left to tell the tale of the horrible slaughter.—St. Paul Pioneer Press.

MR. LINCOLN'S GREAT PERIL.

His Carriage Surrounded by a Mob—His Coachman Was Drunk.

How the Proprietor of a Theater Mounted the Box and Drove the President Away.

Dramatic News: Mr. Leonard Grover, the proprietor of a Washington theater in 1865, tells the following story of Mr. Lincoln:

Yes, I was the president's coachman for one night only. It happened in this wise:

At the conclusion of the performance, as was my custom, I repaired to the box to accompany the presidential party to their carriage. As we made our exit from the theater through an unoccupied store adjoining the main entrance, we encountered on the walk, gathered at this particular point, an unusually large crowd. I knew at once it was not congregated to do special honor to the president, whose advent was apparently unnoticed. Their backs were turned. Their attention was centered on something else. Derision, laughter and coarse jokes filled the air.

Circumstances developed that these events had taken place. The president's coachman, a fairly loyal Irishman, while waiting with the carriage, had been beguiled by some bystanders into a series of glasses.

The horses had been left in charge of one who accompanied him on the box, a one-armed drummer boy, by name, I think, Walker, whom the president had made, on his delivery from the hospital, a household messenger. This lad held with one hand the reins of the horses, which, as will be remembered, were the worst hacks, but were somewhat restive under the noise of the crowd.

The coachman, warned by Walker, felt in some measure a sense of his responsibilities, and was endeavoring to pull himself together, but a Turkish bath of two days' duration would have been necessary to moderately accomplish his wishes. His legs were limp, and his attitudes those of a moist rag.

"Hic! ger me them hic-rib'ns!" Walker yielded him the reins as he endeavored to stand on the curb.

At that moment I had parted the crowd and made passage way for the presidential party.

"The president is coming!" And loud laughter betokened the eagerness with which the inevitable catastrophe was looked forward to. Without noticing the condition of the driver, I had opened the carriage door. Mr. and Mrs. Lincoln and Mr. Colfax were seated within, anxious to escape from the surroundings.

Godsbody, a loud, jeering outburst warned me. The coachman had striven to mount his perch by way of the nearest hub and had fallen sprawling in the mud. Frighted at his mishap and the demonstration which followed, he gathered himself up, and with one burst of effort, landed on the box, where for a brief instant he stood, a pitiable object, the juice of E set oozing from his livery, amidst the rumbled hub of the on-lookers; then tumbled down headlong across the dashboard and rolled again to the mire. The horses started with a spring. The drunk fellow clung to the reins, and they stopped obedient to his pull.

It was a moment of suspense. The anti-sympathetic crowd jeered him on. In the midst of the prevailing sentiment the slightest impetus might provoke a demonstration inimical to the president. It was impossible to await instructions. Little one-armed Walker retained his seat. The action of all indicated a sense of approaching but indefinite danger. The coachman had again regained his feet, and was once more upon the point of collapsing.

Another catastrophe like the last was not to be permitted. I seized the fellow by the collar with one hand and lifted him to the walk, pulled the reins from his grasp with the other, and habited in a dresscoat as I was, mounted the box.

Away went the team with a bound, and the vacillating crowd promptly gave me a cheer. Arrived at Fourteenth street, I asked the president where he would be driven.

"To Mr. Colfax's, on I street."

Walker aided me in finding the locality, which was somewhere in the vicinity of the Baltimore & Ohio depot. Arriving there and having deposited the speaker, I drove the carriage to the White house, where I was relieved of my coachman duties.

When Mr. and Mrs. Lincoln had alighted, for a moment which I recall with pardonable pride, the president held me by the other—and spoke in terms of most flattering strength of the service which I had rendered.

After short, kind expressions, such as he alone could make, Mrs. Lincoln gave a tug at my other hand, and said: "Mr. Grover, what Mr. Lincoln says, he means!"

How Deep Does the Earth Quake?

California and the Pacific coast has recently experienced one of the most severe earthquake shocks known in that region in years, an incident which revives interest in the question: How deep does the earth quake when convulsive nature shakes her crust like a circus tent in a cyclone? At Virginia City, Nevada, the

THE NATIVES OF ALASKA.

A Missionary's Pictures of Their Habits and Mode of Life.

Immortality the Most Common Vice. They Practice Infanticide and Kindred Crimes.

Correspondence from Bethel, on the Kuskowin river, to Sitka Alaska. Last year quite a large number of new members were added to our little congregation. Most of these last members were children from our school. We have our discouragements and often are disappointed in those we are hoping in, but our successes are so many, more that we have never become disheartened, but look forward to the future with cheer and simple trust.

One of the greatest evils we have to contend with is immorality. It is so common among our people that they can scarcely be made to realize the enormity of the evil. The very best of them are not exempt from this sin, and the young are led into it with no thought of wrong. We have had to expel one of our large school boys for this. I feel sure it was as much the fault of the mother of the girl as it was his own, while the girl was a mere child and had nothing to say in the matter.

I fully believe that some of these women have ten or twelve husbands before they settle down, and even when they have children and are old enough to be steady they think nothing of leaving their husband and taking some one else. Some, of course, are worse than others, while there are with them as among any people what would be called outcasts. The men as a rule leave the children with the mother, yet I know of cases where the children were divided—the father probably taking one boy and leaving the rest with their mother. My heart aches for the girls of our part of Alaska. They are made perfect prostitutes by their parents from the time they are nine or ten years old until that parent dies.

They are given to one man who is expected to trap and fish for the father. If he is lazy, or if he will not give up all his time or his fur to her father, he is chased away and some one else put in his place, and the poor girl cannot even leave and go with him; no matter how much they may care for each other, they must part. In this way there are constant changes and it is hard to change their minds on the subject. The parents count on the gain their daughters will bring, while sons will leave them as soon as they are of a marriageable age to serve the parents of the girl they take as wife.

No wonder the girls become careless and untrue to their companions; and is it a surprise that the young men should live of the demanding and exacting ways of their father-in-law, and seek an easier lot, or as many of them do, become loafers, only staying at one village until their welcome runs out, and then tramping on to the next stopping place.

I think there is more true virtue in the men than in the women, but I again would plead the helplessness of the women to better their own state.

Little Janie, the nicest and brightest girl of our school, came to me and said, "Tis too bad I cannot come to school any more. I would like to come, but I have been given to a man and now I must stay away and be with him;" again she said how bad it made her feel. I was much moved with pity and sympathy for the poor, dear child, but was as helpless to see her from her fate as she was herself.

As I have said before, the people are not vicious or dangerous in any way, but they continually practice so many of the evils found among uncivilized people that it is shocking at times how little they think of the wrong there is in it all. This is one more of our hard tasks, to get the people to sufficiently understand the villainess of sin, to leave off from doing it. They may say "yes," and agree that it is all wrong, yet they will not give it up, but only try to hide it from your view; and with this they are satisfied. They say it never marred their happiness before and what harm can there be in it? They say a rule are very kind to each other. I never saw them other than this, although they do sometimes get jealous and make trouble by talking unkindly of the other party. One crime they do commit which none of them recognize as such, and that is, to kill off unwelcome infants, especially girls; and they also kill old and helpless persons. If they do not do this, they care for them so poorly that they live their last days in hunger and nakedness and eventually die of neglect and misery.

They sometimes club to death and burn with oil a "shaman" or "witch" who is suspected of killing too many innocent people. A case of this very kind we know of, for the witch was an old woman that we had with us part of one winter when she was sick. They said she had killed several children; which had enraged the whole village, and her own husband clubbed her to death, stuffed all her joints and burned her with oil. Such dreadful deeds as these are shocking to us.

If we say anything to them, they may say, "It is wrong," but they also excuse themselves by saying that it is their custom and that others have done it before them.

HOW TO SIT A HORSE. Directions to Equestrians Who Wish to Ride Easily and Gracefully.

Apresos of an article on riding in last Sunday's New York Herald. William A. McGibbon, an expert, writes as follows to say how a woman should sit a horse:

The body should be balanced exactly in the middle of the saddle, and far enough back to grasp the second pommel with the right knee comfortably, while the left one is just spanned by the third pommel or leaping horn.

The rider is now sitting upon that part of the animal which is the center of motion; the head erect, turning easy without involving the body; eyes looking over the horse's head in the direction he is going; shoulders well thrown back so as to expand the chest, taking care to keep them in line and not to raise one higher than the other; the small of the back slightly bent forward, upper part of the arms hanging straight down from the shoulders and

THE TOWN TALKER.

The old-timers are dying this winter. George Goodwin, who was buried several days ago, had as good a title to this distinction as anybody, for the reason that he was about the first to build a house here.

And now a still younger "old-timer" drops out in the person of J. W. Masters, who came down from his homestead on the Cowychee last year and went to merchandising.

There is another "old timer" who is seeing his last days here, and possibly his last hours right now. This is Capt. Hodges, who is well along in years. He lies ill at the residence of his son-in-law, J. B. Chapman, of consumption, and already discusses the nearness of his departure, without apparent distress or regret.

The unprecedented fall of snow has given us a most entertaining variety of sleighs and sleds and jumpers and cutters and other things on runners.

The snow is not really so deep as one imagines. In fact, it measures just eleven inches to-day, and is not drifted a particle.

After all the bluster and talk about the others in the list, it seems more than likely that Judge W. H. Calkins will succeed himself on the federal bench, and nobody here will be sorry.

Calkins is a sort of old-fashioned man for a modern gentleman, as he is, and some quaint ways linger with him from his early life as a son of a Methodist preacher.

The Northern Pacific railroad is getting some feathers in its cap, so to speak, by reason of the fact that it is the only line across the continent that comes to time every day, barring a few hours now and then.

The despatches state that Secretary Windom has designed a new flag for the U. S. navy. This brings to mind the anecdote of an Oregon man who proposed to build a steamboat and his first movement in that direction was to buy a set of colors.

KINGMAN's anti-trust bill has been defeated in the house. Yakima's representative voted against it.

THE HERCULEAN METHOD.

Hercules, so the story goes, was an extraordinary sort of man. He had a fancy for killing monsters, and cleaning out dirty places in the interest of the public; and his way of doing was marvellously proficient.

The press of the state is at present emulating Hercules. It has met with a very objectionable object in the person of Representative Clark, of Spokane, and it is turning the hose of public opinion on him with telling effect.

It is openly asserted at Olympia that there are some thirty or forty "hoodlers" in the house, and an effort was made to organize an anti-hoodler society.

Why don't you cure that cough? De Witt's Cough and Consumption Cure will do it. This remedy is positively certain, prompt and thoroughly satisfactory.

ELLENBURGH'S SENSATION ENDED.—The Nestle-Jennings rape case has been brought to a close, at Ellensburg, and the defendant discharged. It will be remembered that Jennings was arrested in New York charged with having committed rape at Ellensburg on the person of Mrs. Nestle, his landlady. The Register at the time proclaimed it a case of blackmail and was sued for libel. Now both cases have been dismissed. The law in the case of rape is that the woman must resist with all her power and make an outcry. The evidence of Mrs. Nestle was to the effect that when she went into Jennings' room to make his bed he assaulted her. She made no outcry and when she went into the kitchen, immediately afterwards, she said nothing of the matter to the two women there. The evidence developed that she continued to harbor the defendant in her home, although he had afflicted her with a loathsome disease, made his bed as usual, accompanied him to church and in horse-back riding and invited him to dinner after the return of her husband from San Francisco. Nothing was said about the rape until seventeen days after Jennings had left, when Nestle accused his wife of imparting disease to him. The jury was not long in bringing in a verdict of not guilty.

GOOD TEMPLARS.—Jonas Bushell, grand chief Templar of Washington, lectured in the Christian church Saturday evening upon temperance and Good Templary, to a very appreciative audience, after which he organized a Good Templars' lodge, to be known by the name of Rescue. There were sixty-eight signatures on the application for a charter. The officers elected and installed are as follows: Chief Templar, C. L. Gano; vice templar, Mrs. L. J. May; past chief templar, J. A. Williams; chaplain, C. R. Harris; financial secretary, Frank C. Wells; treasurer, Mrs. Addie V. Gano; recording secretary, G. E. Rodman; assistant secretary, Harry Chapman; marshal, Robert Stout; deputy marshal, Florence Barker; guard, Mary Lovell; sentinel, Logan Brown; lodge deputy, John H. Needham; superintendent juvenile temple, John W. Stidall. The lodge will meet in the Christian church Saturday evening, Jan. 25, at half-past seven o'clock.

DEATH OF WILBUR MASTERS.—The news of the death of J. Wilbur Masters carried sadness to the people of Yakima. It was generally known that he was quite sick, but his death on Wednesday was none the less a shock in a community where his many good qualities were fully appreciated and admired. Mr. Masters was born in Fairfield, Franklin county, Indiana on the 5th day of March 1850 and was consequently in his fortieth year. He was married at Yakima on the 6th of April, 1877, to Miss Mary Leonard, who with five young children, four boys and one girl, survive him and mourn his untimely demise. The deceased was auditor of this county for four years from 1877 to 1881 and he filled the office with credit to himself and the entire satisfaction of his constituents.

A CUTTING AFFRAY.—Ellensburg has been unfortunate in criminal matters, her courts having been deluged with serious cases to a greater extent than the population of the county warranted. The last case has just been reported by the Wenatchee mail carrier, who states that Felix Shamus, a nephew of ex-sheriff Samuel Packwood, of Kittitas, and formerly a deputy sheriff of that county, got into a quarrel with one Wm. Lee over some woman, which resulted in Shamus stabbing Lee several times in the breast. Death is expected to result from the wounds. A deputy has been dispatched from Ellensburg to take Shamus into custody. Shamus was at one time under trial for selling liquor to Indians and narrowly escaped going over the road.

THE TULSA AND WIDE HOLLOW.—The committee appointed at the farmer's ditch meeting last Saturday, had a long session with Mr. McIntyre on Tuesday, and will thoroughly canvass the situation among the landholders. It is a good working committee, consisting of J. J. Tyler, R. S. Morgan and W. T. Wilson, all of whom have large interests under the proposed ditch. The meeting on Saturday heard a statement from Mr. McIntyre, and was briefly addressed by Messrs. Whitson, Howlett, Stair and Cook. This is the most difficult of all projected ditch schemes, but it has the advantage of being pushed by the most persistent men, who will never rest till all that vast tract of good hill land west of town is watered.

TEMPERANCE ORGANIZATION.—REV. E. B. Sutton, general agent of the state temperance alliance, deputy at large of the I. O. G. T., and general organizer of the prohibition forces of the state, spoke at the Christian church on Tuesday evening to a large audience. He calls a county prohibition convention at the church on Wednesday, January 29th, at 1 o'clock p. m., and will also speak at a mass meeting in the evening at the same place. Everybody is invited to be present, especially at the afternoon meeting for the organization of the county. He says "the saloon must go."

THE ARRANGEMENTS ARE COMPLETE.—The freemen propose to make their ball on the 14th inst., the most enjoyable affair of the kind ever held in the city. The arrangements are in competent hands and nothing is being left undone which will contribute to the pleasure of those present. The supper will be given at the Bartholet House, which is a guarantee that it will be all that can be desired. A special invitation is extended to the young people of the country.

WILL GET THERE PROMPTLY.—About half-past eight o'clock Tuesday evening Ed Kramer sounded the alarm of fire, and inside of five minutes the fire ladders had the engine out and ready to pump water. The alarm was caused by the burning of a fire at Tat's drug store, and although the assistance of the department was not required, the promptness with which the boys were on hand showed that efficient service will be rendered when needed.

LOCAL BREVITIES.

—John Reed reports plenty of coal on hand again.

—Born, Thursday, Jan. 23, to the wife of Martin Sanders, a daughter.

—Mrs. May Imbrie, wife of J. J. Imbrie, died at Ellensburg, Jan. 16th, aged 29 years.

—The Y's will shortly give a series of entertainments for the benefit of the free reading rooms.

—Monday was China New Year, and the celestials passed the day in feasting and merriment.

—Eggs are worth 50 cents per dozen and the hens are standing around on one leg doing nothing.

—More electric light material has been received at the depot for the Marr Construction company.

—F. M. Vinson, father of Samuel Vinson, of this city, died at his home in Kentucky, on Monday.

—Born, at North Yakima, Sunday, January, 12th, 1890, to the wife of Joseph Stephenson, a daughter.

—Born, at Ellensburg, Jan. 16th, to Mrs. Wm. A. Privett, see Miss Mary Chappell, of North Yakima, a daughter.

—There will be services at the Presbyterian church at 7 o'clock next Sabbath evening. New stove and no more smoke.

—Mrs. Fulton, formerly of Prosser, has made application to the superior court for divorce from her husband, W. D. Fulton.

—Mrs. Eliza Dillon, of Vancouver, mother of Mrs. J. J. Embrie, of Ellensburg, recently deceased, died Saturday afternoon of paralysis, aged 60.

—It is now the proper caper to carry either pure white linen handkerchiefs, or hemstitched black silk. Fancy bordered wipes are fast going out of style.

—Hon. Henry B. Clifford, of New York, is lecturing throughout the east on "America's Wonderland, the Northwest and the New State of Washington."

—The Miner's Retreat, a Roslyn brew, was burned to the ground on Wednesday night of last week, taking with it two adjoining buildings. Cause, defective flue.

—A special train is expected through here in a few days, bound for Tacoma, and loaded with material for the electric street railway being built at that place by Allen C. Mason. The cars are all glowingly placed.

—The flat has gone forth, North Yakima is to be attacked by the salvation army. We seriously object. This is the most orderly town of any importance on the coast. We are free from paupers and don't desire these migratory rodents to pounce upon us.

—Miss Antoinette Schanno entertained her friends at the residence of her mother, at Yakima City, Monday evening. Dancing was the order of the evening to music furnished by McClothlen. There were about twenty couples present and everybody enjoyed themselves to the fullest extent.

—Monday the mail carrier between North Yakima and Simcoe left for Simcoe as usual, but not returning the same day, as is customary, H. L. Tucker started out to find him. The carrier was all right, however, the four feet of unbroken snow on the reservation preventing him from making time.

—Joseph Baxter, the weather prophet, purchased two hundred tons of hay this week at $12 per ton and now feels secure. Mr. Baxter's foretelling the Chinook that failed to materialize, has led people to believe that now that he has laid in a big stock of hay, the balmy breezes from Japan will soon be here.

—What's the matter with the merchants of Ellensburg? The Register looks as though it had been struck with a cyclone which had swept all of the advertisements away. If there is retrenchment in that direction it speaks badly for the town, and THE HERALD trusts it won't come down the river and strike Yakima.

—"Deception" Freeman, of the Washington Farmer, is in the city. There is a great rush, at the present time, for the island on which he is located, but the people are going to Anacortes, the Oregon Improvement Co.'s townsite, at the other end of the island, and now Freeman is praying to catch some of the overflow.

—The Wallula Herald, after a vain struggle for existence against a lack of local patronage has given up the ghost. This is a poor showing for the town and indicates that it is peopled by moonshakers who fail to realize the constant and material benefits which a newspaper confers upon the place of its publication.

—Mary Margaret Mackison, aged 25 years, died of consumption, at the residence of her brothers, on the Ahtanum, Wednesday, Jan. 22, 1890. Miss Mackison was born at St. Joe, Missouri, May 16, 1865 and came here a year ago in hopes of bettering her health. The funeral will be held this afternoon at two o'clock.

Dr. Wm. G. Coe is down with a genuine case of la grippe.

Miss Annie Mattoon entertained her friends Tuesday evening.

Dr. A. F. McCulloch, of Tacoma, is registered at the Yakima.

Wayne Field is home again after looking after his Ellensburg interests.

J. M. Hall has been appointed postmaster at Moxee vice B. A. Cuninghame.

H. P. Barbour, of the Northwest magazine, spent a couple of days in the city last week.

N. J. Blagen, of Portland, who has a band of cattle in Yakima county, is a guest of the Hotel Yakima.

Mrs. H. H. Allen and daughters gave a luncheon party to their feminine friends on Wednesday, the 15th. inst.

Ney Linder, of this city, is very low with consumption. His physicians have given up all hope of his recovery.

F. A. S. Krageland, a recent arrival from Spokane Falls, has been spending a week in his old home, but is again back.

Amasa Walker, jr., of Boston, a cousin of Mrs. L. S. Howlett is expected here in a few days to locate and engage in business.

I. H. Dills left Tuesday for Colorado to dispose of some property interests he has there, after which he will return to North Yakima.

Mrs. Griffin is seriously ill. The report was circulated Wednesday of her death, but fortunately it was an error and Dr. Gunn states that she is in a fair way towards recovery.

Miss Emma Hedges arrived from Oregon City, Sunday, summoned by a telegram announcing the dangerous illness of her father, Capt. Hedges. Miss Hedges is a sister of Mrs. Joseph Chapman.

J. A. Ricker and wife left for the Sound Wednesday evening. Mr. Ricker has been in Yakima for the past three months making drawings of the prominent buildings and interesting views in and about Yakima for the mammoth illustrated spring edition of the Herald. Mr. Ricker's sketches have given the best of satisfaction.

E. F. Powers, of Powers & Co., wholesale dry goods dealers, of St. Paul, was in the city this week, accompanied by his wife. Mr. Powers says the merchants of North Yakima stand better in the mercantile world than those of any place in the state. They are conservative buyers and all have done well during the past year. He looks upon North Yakima as a "winning" town.

The Natchees, Cowychees and Wide Hollow Ditch.

The farmers and the ditch people have settled upon a proposition between themselves and the proposed Natchees, Cowychee and Wide Hollow Ditch company as follows:

The farmers propose to raise $100,000 in subscriptions to the stock or to take part of the amount in water-rights to be paid for in the following manner: One-sixth of each subscription on completion of the first three miles of the ditch, in cash; one-sixth on completion of the second three miles; one-sixth on completion of next four miles; one-sixth on completion of the whole ditch—the five-sixths to be paid in notes and mortgages on the land to be watered, at 7 per cent., running from three to ten years. Each subscriber is to take one share of stock at par value of $5 for each acre of land he proposes to water, and pay annually $1 to $1.50 per acre rental, but to receive back any dividends the stock may declare, the ditch company to give a contract to furnish the water each year for an unlimited term; or the farmer to buy a water-right at the rate of $2,000 for a cubic foot of water per second during the months of April, May, June, July and August each year, the payments to be in six equal cash installments upon the completion of each section of the land as before described, and pay thereafter 25 cents per acre per year to keep the ditch in repair. The ditch company is to receive back from the purchasers 1500 acres of the unimproved railroad and government land at railroad or government price. All persons interested are invited to meet at North Yakima, Saturday February 1st, 1890.

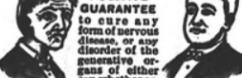

—Monday morning Miss Leon Butler Blocker, a young girl, aged 17 years, committed suicide at Ellensburg by shooting herself through the breast with a target pistol. The girl is said to be a niece of Senator Butler, of South Carolina, and her parents kept a restaurant near the Ellensburg depot. No cause is assigned for the tragedy.

THE STORY OF A YEAR.

"Look on this picture and then on that." The above faces are exact reproductions of photographs taken from life of Mrs. Morton D. Harlan, who resides at No. 35 West 23d Street, New York City. The first one was taken in November, 1887, while in the last stages of consumption, abandoned by physicians and nursed by friends. The other was taken in December, 1888, when completely recovered, and entirely through the use of Dr. Acker's English Remedy for Consumption. The above pictures are wood cuts, but they are true to life and the original photographs, taken from life, can be seen at all the drug stores. Mrs. Harlan's consumption began as consumption usually does, with a cough in the morning, raising of phlegm, tired and depressed feelings, a lack of appetite, loss of flesh and pains throughout the body. She did not realize her extreme danger until it became almost too late, but she is in perfect health to-day. Dr. Acker's English Remedy for Consumption is sold by all reputable drug stores. You don't afford to be without it.

Order to Show Cause.

IN THE PROBATE COURT OF YAKIMA COUNTY, STATE OF WASHINGTON.

In the matter of the Order to show cause why an order of Andrew J. Miller, Sale of Real Estate Deceased. FRANCIS F. MILLER, THE ADMINISTRATOR of the estate of Andrew J. Miller, deceased, having filed his petition, herein duly verified, praying for an order of sale of certain parts of the real estate of said deceased, for the purposes therein set forth, it is therefore ordered by said court that all persons interested in the estate of said deceased, appear before said probate court on Monday, March 3rd, 1890, at 10 o'clock a. m. of said day at the court room of said probate court in North Yakima, Yakima county, state of Washington, to show cause why an order to sell so much of the real estate of the said deceased according to law as shall be necessary for the purposes in said petition set forth, and that a copy of this order be published once a week for four consecutive weeks in THE YAKIMA HERALD, a newspaper published in said county and state. Dated this 22nd day of January 1890.

D. W. STAIR, Probate Judge.

SUMMONS.

STATE OF WASHINGTON, COURT OF YAKIMA COUNTY.

L. B. FULTON, Plaintiff, W. D. FULTON, Defendant.

You are hereby notified that L. B. Fulton, of North Yakima, Yakima county, Wash., plaintiff, has filed a complaint against you in the Superior Court of Yakima County, holding terms at North Yakima, Washington, which will come on to be heard sixty days after the date of publication of this summons, to-wit: Sixty days after the 22nd day of January, 1890, and unless you appear and defend the same on or before the 22nd day of March, 1890, the same will be taken as confessed and the prayer granted.

The object and prayer of the said complaint is that the bonds of matrimony now existing between the plaintiff and defendant be dissolved; that the custody of the three girls be awarded to the plaintiff, and for such other and further relief as the plaintiff may be entitled to, as set forth in the complaint of the plaintiff now on file in this office.

The cause of this action is that on or about December, 1888, the defendant, disregarding his marriage vows, willfully and without cause deserted and abandoned the plaintiff, and ever since that time has and continues to live separate and apart from her without any cause and against her will, and for such other and further relief as the family of plaintiff and defendant.

Witness my hand and the seal of said court this 22nd day of January, 1890.

DUDLEY EISENMAN, County Clerk and Clerk of said Superior Court.

J. B. REAVY, Attorney for Plaintiff.

A VERY STRANGE FREAK.

Siamese Twins Born to a Cincinnati, Ohio, Couple.

One Black, the Other White—The Girl Had No Heart, Yet Lived for a Long While.

Marriage and then—children. It is the most delightful moment in human existence. Ah, who would blot out the pleasures of anticipation? What then must be the revelation of feeling, the disappointment and misery that enter the heart, when the child of whom so much was expected turns out to be a monstrosity?

One of the rarest forms of the monster species was given birth to about four years ago by Mrs. Bryant, the wife of Edgar Bryant, a wealthy young broker of this city. It was the first born, and of course was a great disappointment to the parents because of the deformity. Two children were joined together similarly to the famous Siamese twins. The connecting link was six inches long and three inches in diameter. It was attached to each body just below the ribs, and was much firmer than the muscular tissue in any other part of the body. The children were pronounced types of two distinct races. The larger one was as fair as a lily, with a fine head and well-proportioned body, while the other was as black as night, with the features of an African, a long body with protuberant abdomen and very short legs and arms.

The dark child's head was badly formed, resembling an idiot. They were of different sexes, the white child being a boy. The workings of nature are past finding out.

The parents being fashionable people could not stand the constant annoyance of hiding the existence of the children and sent them to a private nursery. At three years of age the boy was a big, bounding fellow, while the girl was sickly, and required medical treatment all the time. The future existence of the children, which had always given rise to a great deal of apprehension on account of their color and sex, was settled by a fall down a flight of stairs. The boy escaped with a few bruises, while the girl, being weak, was severely hurt, one of her arms being broken. She was also injured internally.

Dr. Murat, a French surgeon, attended the children, and after a careful study of the case, came to the conclusion that it was possible to sever the connecting link without causing death, or permanent injury. There seemed to be good ground for the belief and there was a further encouragement to try the experiment in the fact that the boy evidently absorbed a large share of the girl's vitality and nourishment, and if this were not changed the girl could not possibly recover from her injuries. If one should die while they remained joined together the death of the other would certainly follow, it was believed, as in the case of the Siamese twins.

An operation having been decided upon, the children were put under the influence of an anesthetic. The connecting tissue had hardened since the birth of the twins, and at this time it was gristle. The surgeon was puzzled as to the place to make the separation. There was no guide to indicate the best location, and a point midway between the bodies was finally settled upon.

A circular incision was made through the skin, and it was slowly carried toward the center. There was not much hemorrhage. Almost in the center line four large arteries were found, two of them pulsating much stronger than the others. The direction of the flow of blood appeared to be from each body to the other and back again, making two arteries and two veins. This seemed to indicate that each child had a separate arterial stem, which was extended through the link to the body of the other one. This being so was a strong point in favor of success. A ligature was put loosely upon each artery and vein and they were sewed. The ligatures were instantly tightened. An alarming change came over each child. They went into a state of collapse, and there was every indication that they would both die in a few moments. The black child stopped breathing in five minutes. The surgeon labored over the boy for an hour, using artificial respiration and stimulants, and his effort was rewarded by a return of consciousness and subsequent recovery.

An autopsy was held upon the girl's body to find the cause for the sudden death and the remarkable discovery was made that this child was without a heart. The other organs were normal. The arterial system, it was thought, depended for its supply of blood on the other side. This opinion was changed several days afterward while the wound on the child's side was being dressed. The stump was gangrenous and the diseased portion was cut away. The removal of this flesh revealed, in all its perfection, a human heart imbedded in the tissue. It was the heart of the dead girl, and when the artery was severed it stopped the supply of blood. It was something that could not have been foretold, and it is probably the first time in the world's history that a human being has lived without a heart in the body.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

STATE OF WASHINGTON, } ss.

L. B. FULTON, } In the Superior Court

Plaintiff, } of the State of Wash-

vs. } ington holding terms

W. D. FULTON, } at North Yakima,

Defendant. } Yakima County, in

ss. } said State.

To the above-named Defendant:

You are hereby notified that L. B. Fulton, of North Yakima, Yakima County, Wash., plaintiff, has filed a certain and valid complaint in the Court of Yakima County, holding terms at North Yakima, Washington, which complaint praying for an order of distribution of the residue of said estate, to-wit: sixty days after the 16th day of January, 1900, and unless you appear and answer the same on or before the 16th day of March, 1900, the same will be taken as confessed, and the prayer of the said complaint granted. The object and purport of the said complaint is that the bonds matrimony now existing between plaintiff and defendant be dissolved; that the custody of the three girls be awarded to the plaintiff, and for such other relief as the plaintiff may be entitled to, as set forth in the complaint of the plaintiff now on file in this office.

The cause of this action is that on or about December, 1898, the defendant, disregarding his marriage vows, wilfully and without cause deserted and abandoned the plaintiff and her children, and since has lived and continues to live separate and apart from her without any cause and against her will, and defendant has not come to the family of plaintiff and defendant.

I witness my hand and the seal of said Court this 11th day of January, 1900.

DUDLEY ESHELMAN,

County Clerk and Clerk of Superior Court, Yakima County, Washington.

J. B. KEAVIS, Attorney for Plaintiff.

In the Probate Court of Yakima County, State of Washington.

In the Matter of the Estate of John W. Farmer, deceased:

ORDER TO SHOW CAUSE WHY DISTRIBUTION SHOULD NOT BE MADE.

ON READING AND FILING THE PETITION of Sarah F. Farmer, the Administratrix of the estate of John W. Farmer, deceased, praying for an order of distribution of the residue of said estate among the persons named therein.

It is ordered that all persons interested in the estate of the said John W. Farmer, deceased, be and appear before the Probate Court of the county of Yakima, in the city of North Yakima, at the court house in said city and county, on Monday, the third day of February, 1900, at 11 o'clock a. m., and there to show cause why they should not be made the distributees of the residue of the estate among the heirs of said deceased, according to law.

It is further ordered that a copy of this order be published once a week for four successive weeks, before the said third day of February, 1900, in a newspaper published in said county, to-wit: THE YAKIMA HERALD, a newspaper printed and published in said city of North Yakima, W. T., at the office of D. W. STAIR, Probate Judge.

Dated December 21, 1899.

D. W. STAIR, Judge and Clerk of the said Probate Court, do hereby certify, that the foregoing is a true and correct and full copy of the original order to show cause, why distribution should not be made to the estate of John W. Farmer, deceased, as the same appears of record in my office.

I witness my hand and seal this 26th day of December, 1899.

D. W. STAIR,

Judge and Clerk of the Probate Court of Yakima County, State of Washington.
