A POPULAR DIAGNOSIS.

If you have a "bigness" of the head, Catarrh and "ringing" ears, A hot and feverish feeling, And your eyes smart with tears, An "all-gone" feeling round your waist, And aching leg and hip, Though "far from strong," you're hardly sick, You have not lost your "grip."

If you have running at the nose And constant fits of sneezing, A chilly feeling down your back, As though your spine was freezing, In a "rocky," nervous state, Like one in drunken frenzy, My friend, you've got the French "la grippe," Or English influenza. —New York Herald.

LATITUDE AND LONGITUDE.—The State of Washington lies between the 46th and 49th parallels of north latitude and the 117th and 124th meridians of longitude west from Greenwich. Its greatest width north and south is 240 miles, and its greatest length east and west is 240 miles, an area in round numbers of 70,000 square miles, or about 45,000,000 acres of land, and being divided by the Cascade range of mountains into two unequal and entirely dissimilar sections. The former contains 50,000 square miles and the latter 20,000 according to statistical classification. It is estimated that 20,000,000 acres are timbered, 10,000,000 acres grain producing prairie land, 5,000,000 acres rich alluvial or river bottom, producing hops, hay and all kinds of fruits and vegetables, and 10,000,000 acres mineral bearing and mountains, in great part timbered also.

Congressman Wilson Not Pleased.

Representative John L. Wilson, of the state of Washington, called at the interior department a few days ago, says the New York Tribune, with the patriotic intention of suggesting a change in the local land office at Vancouver. Mr. Wilson set forth with much cogency that the "hold-overs," Register Winfield S. Austin and Receiver John O'Keane, whose present appointments date from January 27, 1886, might very probably make way for two good republicans. He originally failed, however, to make the desired impression, albeit in these cases civil service tenure of office could hardly be pleaded in bar. Representative Wilson came forth from his fruitless interview, they tell you, "a sadder and a madder man," while he inconspicuously proceeded to make the ceilings of the massive building reverberate with his somewhat sulphurous views of the situation, declaring with genuine western earnestness of vernacular:

"And these," with an expressive snort, "are the people who expect me to vote for their appropriations; but I'll see 'em blanked and blanketed blanked flat."

THREE HUNDRED MILLIONS.

Curious Calculations Concerning This Enormous Sum of Money.

Philadelphia Press: F. H. Swords, a banker of London, sat in the Continental corridor recently reading a newspaper. Suddenly he pointed to a paragraph in the paper and said:

"Listen to this statement: 'The Vanderbilt estate is now calculated to be worth at least $300,000,000.'"

"Of course I do not know whether that statement is true, but I saw it published in the Standard several weeks ago.

"The sum seemed so enormous that I spent quite a while in calculating the physical proportions of that number of silver dollars. Here is a little slip in my wallet here that may give you some idea. If Adam, when he first looked around in the Garden of Eden, say 6000 years ago, had been met by Satan and had been employed by him at a regular salary of $50,000 per annum and his board and clothes, and if Adam had carefully laid his silver dollars away in barrels each year, and had lived to the present time, he would now have $300,000,000. Again, if a man born in the Christian era, 1800 years ago, had lived and been steadily employed at a salary of $14,000 per month, $445 per day, and his living expenses besides, and had saved every dollar of it, he would to-day have three hundred millions.

"If it were necessary to transport this number of silver dollars it would require 536 freight cars, each of a capacity of twenty tons. If these cars were put into one train it would be more than four miles long. If it were possible for 300,000,000 silver dollars to be laid on the ground in a straight line, with edges touching each other the whole distance, the line would reach farther than from London across the Atlantic ocean and over the North American continent to San Francisco. A sidewalk of 300,000,000 silver dollars could be laid six feet wide and more than fifteen miles long. If 300,000,000 dollars were laid one on top of the other they would make a column 475 miles high. If taken down and arranged in the form of a cube each side of the latter would be thirty-five feet long and wide, and it would weigh more than 10,000 tons. If such a weight were dropped from the roof of the new city hall the

FACTS ABOUT ELECTRICITY.

Possibilities of the Future—It May Be Generated of Light.

In Time the Subtle Power Will Supplant Steam—Aerial Navigation.

The following are extracts from Park Benjamin's article in December Forum:

"What, may be asked, are the possible effects on the human optic nerve of electrical radiation directly applied? Ritter discovered that a feeble current transmitted through the eyeball produced the sensation as of a bright flash of light, and that a stronger current gave the impression of blue and green colors, in flowing between the forehead and the hand; so also different colored lights are perceived when one pole or the other of a circuit is applied to the eye, or when the electrical vibrations are modified to accord with light vibrations? What will the brain perceive? Can it be made artificially cognizant of light and color? For example, light waves, having a length of about 1-50,000 of an inch, acting on the nervous substance of the retina, produce the sensation which we call red; if they are shortened to 1-41,000 of an inch, they cause the sensation of yellow; and so on in different lengths for other colors. Suppose to the retina of a blind man (nervous healthy) electrical waves of corresponding lengths were transmitted; would he recognize color and differences of color?"

"The fact that it is now believed that there is actually in the selenium an electro-motive force, and not a mere change of resistance to an existing current, shows the possibility of converting light into electricity. It is no novelty to regard the solar emanation as a vast store-house of electrical energy awaiting the discovery which will enable us to isolate it from the attending heat energy. The selenium cell acts as a medium for the conversion; but can the transformation be made without this intervention? Can light vibrations be directly changed so as to become electrical vibrations? Is the sun the great electrical reservoir of the future?"

"The dynamo itself has already reached a point of very high efficiency, utilizing, as it may, 97 per cent. of the mechanical energy applied to its driving pulley; so that while improvement in the details of construction of the machine will tend to augment its life time and to simplify it, the possible margin is small. The great loss in the production of electricity through the agency of the dynamo lies in our inability to utilize more than a small fraction of the total energy due to the consumption of fuel. The conditions of temperature under which we live make great waste inevitable in the transformation of heat into any other form of energy. This is due to a law of nature which no heat engine, however ingeniously constructed, can avoid. Under ordinary working conditions, the steam engine converts into mechanical energy only about 5 per cent. of the energy developed by the burning of coal under the boiler, and even under the best conditions does not utilize more than 10 per cent. To say that if heat could be converted into electricity at a loss of 80 per cent., the efficiency of the apparatus would still be 100 per cent. greater than that of the steam engine, is merely to restate the foregoing.

"But the possibilities of chemical combinations are endless, and we have always before us the wonderfully compact animal machinery whereby the oxidation of meat in the form of food gives rise, by muscular action, to mechanical energy. Can we, for example, obtain electricity cheaply from the chemical decomposition of now unutilized or refuse substances? The converse operation of decomposing sewage, disinfecting it, and rendering it harmless to health, by electricity, has already been accomplished.

"As soon as it becomes cheaper to generate electrical power than to generate steam power, the reign of steam will be practically ended. Meanwhile, the applications of the electric motor are increasing in number daily. The replacing of cars drawn by horses in cities and towns with cars electrically driven has been going on with great rapidity during the past year. That electric locomotives will replace steam locomotives upon the regular railroads of the country, is believed to be simply a question of time. The main difficulty to be overcome is the distribution of the current over long distances without great waste of energy. The use of very high pressure, to allow of reduced size of conductors and for losses by leakage, etc., is attended with correspondingly increased difficulties in insulation of the line, greater danger in handling and obviously augmented expense. What is wanted is a practical means of distribution along the entire length of a continuous working conductor, of electrical energy, so that from any point along that conductor a current of a given uniform pressure may be taken off; this pressure, or the strength of the current, being regulated to suit the load which the motor is required to draw.

"Whether the economy of the electric locomotive will compare favorably with that of the steam locomotive is not settled. A recent writer on the subject, estimating the consumption of fuel in locomotives on elevated roads in cities at six pounds per horse power an hour, locom

AN AIR-LINE TO THE POLE.

A Wonderful Project Evolved by a Boston Brain.

The First Step in the Solution of a Sublime Problem—Jules Verne Revisited.

David Thayer, A. M., M. D., is just out with a pamphlet setting forth a mighty novel proposition, in detail, on "An Aerial Railway for the Exploration of the Polar Zone, and for Air Transit Over Water and Land." Nothing more readable in the Jules Verne line was ever evolved in brief; and in view of the reasonable character of the proposition—now that people are actually skipping around the world to beat the records—and with projectors all but proposing to gird the globe with railroads, the whole scheme is worthy a place in the columns of daily newspapers. Dr. Thayer tells it all as follows:

"In October, 1883, in the teeth of a gale of wind, we steamed out of the harbor of Queenstown, bound for New York. A flock of gulls kept company with us across the Atlantic. Our speed from shore to shore was fifteen miles an hour, while the wind was blowing in an opposite direction during the gale with a velocity of thirty or forty miles an hour. Our convey, the flock of gulls, with the greatest apparent ease, seemed to be resting upon their wings, and as if drawn by an invisible force, kept even with us, and oft and frequently, as if laughing at our delay, and inviting us to emulate their speed, on steady wings would glide away in advance of the ship, cross our bow, fall back into the rear without any apparent expenditure of force; nay, not half so much force as they seem to exert when fishing in the halcyon waters of Charles river and south Boston bay. These observations led us to the reasonable conclusion that these birds, with all the ease of thought, moved through the air at the rate of fifty miles an hour, and continued it for more than a week.

"The phenomenon was observed and remarked upon by several of our companions of the voyage, from day to day, during the continuance of the gale, but no one could throw any light upon it by way of explanation. It appears that these gulls were on the wing for more than a week, unless they were complemented by a relay during the night, which is not probable. All along the line of history we find wise men have predicted that a man will navigate the air like a bird, but to the present hour no one has been able to imitate the act or explain the modus operandi. It is as much a mystery to-day as it was in the days of King Solomon. We may recall the marvelous fact that the home pigeons have traversed the air 100 miles in 100 minutes. This fact declares the wonderful power of their flight, while the gyrations of the swallow and the swift proclaim their wonderful accuracy of flight.

"This invention of the aerial railway points the way to the first step in the solution of the sublime problem. The aerial railway consists of an apparatus which is acted upon by two forces, the first of which is the wind acting by oblique impact upon the surface of aeroplanes or kites, and the second, the resistance of that same force, by means of a drag at opposite ends of three or more draught lines. Force No. 1 is the direct action of the wind upon the aeroplanes. Force No. 2 is the resistance which the drag offers to that of the wind.

"By the judicious use of these two forces we are enabled to travel over water and land, over seas and oceans; to explore unknown regions of the polar zone; to cross the prairies and pampas of North and South America, the arid steppes of Russia, the sandy plains of Africa; to ship the life-line and needed supplies to shipwrecked mariners; to ascend to great altitudes for purposes of observation; to visit, with little expense and trouble, any of the islands of the Pacific archipelago; to reach the northern and southern poles and other localities which by other means are difficult of access.

"The apparatus consists of several series of aeroplanes and kites, and the drag lines of these kites are attached to some impediments or drags. In the water the drag may consist of a number of boats fastened together, sometimes called a catamaran, to increase the resistance of the wind, thereby diminishing the velocity of the aeroplanes or kites. If the catamaran be insufficient in its resistance to the force of the wind acting upon the aeroplanes or kites, we may add logs of wood to the drag, or any other method of increasing its weight and resistance. The drag, when traversing over the land, consists of wheels and axles with a brake; when traversing over ice it consists of heavily laden sledges and any additional device to increase the resistance.

"At the very top of the figure are four balloons. The use of these balloons is to keep the kite aloft when the wind dies away. These aeroplanes, or kites, may be multiplied at leisure, and each kite may be made more buoyant by increasing the number and size of the balloons, and the principal use of the balloons is to keep the kite aloft in the absence of the wind. If there were always wind to be depended upon there would be no need of balloons.

OUR BODIES TO BE DRIED AND GLASS FRONT VAULTS.

Modern Science and Skill to Keep Our Carcasses in a Condition Resembling Life.

The New York Sun says that a new disposition of the dead as proposed may be called the "latest thing in life." Ground for a "new mausoleum" is to be broken near that city in the spring. The idea underlying the new mausoleum is based on the fact that a current of dry air will preserve the body from decomposition, and change it into a condition resembling life, in which it will remain for an indefinite time. This process is applied nature to the unfortunate traveler and beast who succumb upon the great desert. In the Smithsonian institution are many bodies thus decorated by the battlefields of Mexico and Peru, from southern plains and Indian districts of the far west. The ancient Colchians and Tartars suspended their dead from branches of trees to be dried by air and sun. Peruvians first dried their deceased, and then buried them in a sitting posture. Savages of south Australia place the dead body on the top of the hut till perfectly dried, when it is handaged and hidden among the branches of the trees. The body retains its form in the process, and the skin, though it becomes hard and dry like leather, remains white, while the face, though more or less emaciated, remains life-like and recognizable.

Modern science and skill are to be applied to the original preservative power of the atmosphere. Experiments have recently been made by specialists, first on animals and later on human bodies. In the course of one recent experiment conducted by a sanitary engineer in Washington, in nine weeks a pig was reduced in weight from 22 to 7½ pounds; and remained just as plump and round as in life. In a laboratory in this city the body of a man weighing 164 pounds was subjected to the process in 1888, and the effect was marvelous.

The arrangement for the interment of desiccated bodies in the new mausoleum will be similar to that of the drawers in safety deposit vaults, while the interior plan of the building will resemble that of a well-appointed public library, with main corridor and diverging halls leading to different sections. These drawers or sepulchres will be of solid concrete four inches thick, without joint or seam, of certain sizes, and arranged in tiers of six on either side of the hallway. The opening into each sepulchre will be provided with two doors, the inner one of glass hermetically sealed as soon as occupied, through which the body may be viewed by those holding the keys; the outside of iron, wrought gold, silver or bronze, decorated and adorned according to the ability and taste of relatives.

For family use there will be separate and distinct compartments of various sizes, with sets of sets of sepulchre adorned as desired, and having by single entrance.

The space that holds the casket is a cell of concrete, permitting the escape or admission of air, the erection of the walls of conduits will be formed of such no destructible material, which will be needed.

Through these conduits to pour into the hermetically sealed drawers currents of dry air, passing rapidly and repeatedly, the body, will extract the superfluous trace of moisture, vapor, or fluid, convey it to a huge furnace, where, without possibility of escape, all noxious matter will be destroyed. Gradually the body becomes hard, smooth and dry, with little or no change of appearance, and once done, preservation is assured forever.

Provision is to be made against premature interment by the adjustment of electrical appliances to the body, so that the faintest motion will be instantaneously conveyed to the guard by means of alarm signals.

The mausoleum will occupy comparatively little space. A building covering 100 feet square could hold 10,000 sepulchres, and one that occupied an acre would provide as many resting places as 25 acres.

It is intended that ample and suitable grounds shall surround the building, and that adornment inside and out will be made as perfect as taste and wealth can dictate.

The sepulchres will be numbered and registered as lots in a cemetery, and a fund will be provided for the perpetual care of all treasures of art or nature that may be provided. All records of interment will be kept in the mausoleum. A chapel will be provided for the discharge of the last rites.

The cost of single sepulchres will probably range from $40 to $200, while family compartments will vary from $200 to $40,000. Burial lots in the city will range from $400 to $5000 for a lot which may contain one or more.

England's Big Gun.

Members Which Prove to be Anything But Serviceable.

Edmund Yates in New York Tribune: In England the great game of gunnery brag is over and the authorities have thrown up the sponge. The Victoria's guns are so defective that even the British admiralty dare not send out the ship to carry the flag of the commander-in-chief on the Mediterranean station. One of the 110-ton guns is bent between the trunnions and the muzzle more than two and a half inches out of the straight line, and the worst part of the business is that the Victoria and her sister ship, the Sanspareil, will probably be hors de combat for a very long time, as there is no prospect of these monster 110-ton guns being of any use, and it will be a big job to alter the turrets to suit smaller and more serviceable weapons. The Camperdown, which has been selected to take the place of the Victoria, was supplied for the maneuvers with three out of four guns which were defective. The inner tubes split during the test, but the authorities decided to admit it. At the conclusion of the maneuvers these three guns were ordered to be returned to Woolwich, and Admiral Rodney was requisitioned for three others to make the Camperdown fit for sea. We now have of first class battleship ready for sea in all other respects the Howe, Rodney, Trafalgar, Victoria and Sanspareil waiting for guns.

D., Editor and Business Manager.

ONE YEAR OLD.

With this issue THE HERALD enters upon the second year of its publication. Its owners feel much elated with its success in a financial sense and at the favor with which it is received by the public. As its birth it was dowered with about two hundred subscribers of the Democrat, which it succeeded, and the growth of its subscription list has been marvelous. In a year it has outstripped all contemporaneous publications in central Washington, and the rate of increase of its subscribers is as rapid now as at any time in its brief history.

THE HERALD has labored faithfully for the up-building of North Yakima and Yakima county, and the healthful, honest and generous progress made by the city and country we feel in no small measure due to its efforts. It has encouraged immigration, and town and county have doubled in population. It has called the attention of capital to the crying need of more residences and better business blocks, and there has been more building than in any two years of Yakima's being. It has heralded the richness of neighboring coal fields and the adjacent wealth of metals, and much development has resulted, with a very lively prospect of a big rush with the opening spring. It has kept before the people knowledge of the available routes across the territory, which all center here, and work on the railroad from Portland to North Yakima is to begin within 60 days. It has done all this and more, and with the aid and backing of an enterprising and progressive people it will continue in the labor so well started, and hopes that with the close of volume two, it will have been a prime factor in giving to North Yakima the commercial importance which nature intended it should have, and in developing a country which for productiveness cannot be excelled anywhere.

WASHINGTON REALTY.

An exchange has the following level-headed remarks on Washington realty: Real estate security is the safest form of investment on earth. The well established character of our people for industry, sobriety, temperance and honesty adds immensely to the natural desirability of Washington as a field of investment for eastern capital. The record already made by our borrowers in their ability and willingness to meet their payments promptly has already attracted the attention of eastern capitalists. The bringing of eastern capital to be used in furthering the agricultural development of the west is a business that is equally advantageous to borrowers and lenders; and everything which tends to make business more regular and systematic is also of general advantage. Borrowers ought to be assured of loans on suitable security at reasonable interest rates, and without paying exorbitant bonuses. Lenders ought to be assured that the security is ample and that interests will be paid promptly. Washington pays less on the average every year for money. Old loans are being paid off with money borrowed at a reduction of at least two per cent. Washington's general credit would be higher if the exemption laws were less "liberal" and the collection laws more efficient, but perhaps improved legislation would not effect a rate of farm loans. The Union of the territory to the Union entry upon its career of statehood good constitution will decidedly loan market. Eastern Washington is perfectly safe at present values; cultural resources are magnificent already considerably developed its stock ranges are annually progressive of large margins. No part of the Union is safer, and interest rates are unduly high. The farmers of Washington ought to be able to borrow at the maximum rate of eight per cent. Laws fixing rates will not help the situation. All the conditions must be made as inviting as possible for outside capital, and then competition will bring down the rates.

INTERSTATE COMMERCE.

The Interstate Commerce Commission announces that the law cannot be made a success unless the commission is given control of freights wholly within a state as well as those that include two or more states. The railroads can take advantage of this defect in our fundamental laws, and can largely defeat the national laws controlling freights for a time, but it will not prove to their interest to do so. The interests of the people are so great in transportation matters that there must be an arbiter to whom the differences between the railroads and the people can be referred, and every effort to thwart the will of the people has proved, and will continue to prove, a detriment, a damage to the railroad companies. When the people are aroused to any great issue, constitutions, laws and courts do not stand in the way, but are changed to answer the popular demands. The less the popular will is antagonized by corporations the better, for there is great uneasiness among the masses of mankind throughout the civilized world, and the corporations out of attitude of individuals and ask for a change in the laws instead of disobeying them.

THE conclusion has been reached that the best place to hold the world's fair is around the waist.

KUNZ, one of the Cronin suspects, has been released on bail pending a new trial, and has entered a dime museum. This will justify the next jury in bringing in a verdict of hanging in the first degree.

PRESIDENT and Mrs. Harrison, Mrs. McKee, and a number of other members of the presidential household have been down with the grip, but Baby McKee has thus far eluded the Russian tyant. The government at Washington still lives.

It has been clearly proven that broom corn can be successfully grown here. This being the case, knowing that a good crop will insure a ready market, would it not be wise for every farmer in the county to give at least a part of his time, attention and labor to raising broom corn? Suppose each farmer should have from two to three tons of good broom corn to place on the market next fall.

FINANCERS throughout the country are predicting that 1890 will be a year of wonderful business activity, and in all the northwest there is no place where the prospects seem brighter than in Yakima. Traveling men say that there is more enquiry about Yakima than any of the smaller cities of the state, and that the indications are that its development and onward march will greatly exceed all previous years.

KNOW, push, perseverance and confidence will win laurels for North Yakima during this year. The prospects were never so bright for our advancement and with these four essential we will get there Eli, in great shape, during 1890. Earlier than usual the movement has commenced in realty and with our railroad, great ditch enterprises and other projects we are bound to excel in prosperity. Let croakers and melancholy prophets step aside and take back seats and allow the enterprising vanguard to reap the benefits to which they are entitled by their faith and activity.

THE Farmers' Alliance is demanding that land be made a basis for the issue of money; bankers want the government to furnish them some kind of a bond for a basis, in order that the banks may issue money, the silver men have some kind of a money scheme to enhance the value of silver, and the great millionaire money bags want the currency of the country reduced in volume so that their money will buy more property. The level-headed man who has no ax to grind is of the opinion that the stability of the government is basis enough for the issuing of all the money necessary for the business of the country.

NORTH YAKIMA has now reached a plane in its existence from which it can look forward very confidently to a career of great thrift and prosperity; for the coming years have in store for us a period of rapid development, such as will not be surpassed, if equalled, by any inland city of Washington. To mount the crest of the coming wave is now the work of our enterprising citizens, who meet almost daily to confer and take steps to advance Yakima's interests. The city is to be advertised abroad, and the inducements offered to settlers fully, honestly and plainly set forth. There is every reason to believe that North Yakima will more than double in population during 1890. The great ditches which are being built and other ones which are to be built as soon as the weather permits, will give employment to a vast number of men at good wages. The electric lights and water works, are to be put in this spring, and the railroad built across the Cascades from Portland to North Yakima. There is no question but that this road will be pushed to completion as rapidly as men and money can do it, and the projectors, in acknowledging the raising of $100,000 bonus by Yakima, telegraphed that the surveys would be in the field within sixty days from the first of January.

THE TOWN TALKER.

There can be no better evidence of the opportunities afforded herabouts for good business talent than we have in the case of Mr. A. B. Weed, who began with the new town in the hardware business, and now retires with a comfortable fortune, all of which has been acquired here in the past three or four years. It is true that we are not all so good business men as Mr. Weed; but it is also true that he has made this by hard work, close attention, and not any of it by speculation. He has supplied the country with everything from a gimlet to a threshing machine, and has worked alongside sharp competition all the time.

Mr. Weed now proposes to take a vacation and build up his health, which has been drawn upon rather severely by his efforts in business, and in doing this he will soon go to California, where Judge Weed, his father, is, and from there he will go, accompanied by Mrs. Weed, to visit the Atlantic cities and possibly Europe. Allie Gordon, the little nephew who is of his household, will be tucked nicely into a Pullman car and sent to his grandma in Wisconsin. Mr. Weed will carry with him everybody's good wishes, for he has been one who always "stood in" on all public calls, and whose judgment has been valuable in the city council. They will be back after several months.

When a farmer opens up his potato patch and goes digging for the spuds like a man working a mine, a dollar a day is not a bad thing to get.

E. V. Smalley, who rides in his editorial car and loves Washington, says we will have a great year of it, and he ought to know. He once tried to be enthusiastic over Dakota, but that did not last long after the road reached the then territory of Washington, and now, about all of his speculative eggs are in our basket—speaking as a state. He says he noticed a beginning of sales already on the Sound, and thought we ought to get ready for business, but hoped we would keep prices down—and we will, of course.

It is reasonable to suppose that Judge Hanford, of Seattle, is quite as angered and disgusted over the federal judgeship as he is represented to be; and he can thank several newspapers for helping to make him ridiculous by announcing his appointment as already made. All they had to go on was the report that Senators Squire and Allen had recommended Hanford. If there is one thing in political life that makes a man feel flatter than another, it is this business of premature announcement and subsequent soap.

During a very jolly "straw ride" given by Mrs. Vance to a party of her young friends, in the moonlight, Tuesday evening, there was some singing on the road, as is quite proper and nice with a merry company; but some one struck a high note, which reminded the Receiver of a story. He said it was a chestnut, yet no one hereabouts appears to have heard it: There was once a Reformed Stockbroker who began going to church; and one nice religious evening the singing started up with a shrill-voiced soprano in the lead. She was particularly high that evening, and came out strong in—

"Ten thousand foes arise!"

The Reformed Stockbroker thereupon suggested: "Sh! Sister. Start it at five thousand and work 'er up!"

We are not without our fast roadsters, and "the boys" say Dr. Heg's Blue Dick is one of them. Boyd Cunningham, of the Moxee, used to ride Blue Dick until the doctor bought him, since when he has now and then driven single. Last week he left Matton's stable to visit a patient in the old town, made the round trip of nine miles, stopped twenty minutes with his patient, and landed home in just seventy minutes from the start. Blue Dick should be used to chase the Blue Devils.

Speaking of devils reminds us of a Chinaman who works on a ranch near town and sleeps in a room over the kitchen. He has his Chinese idea of ghosts and visitations, and he told the women folks one day: "Debbil come in my loom (room) las' night."

"What!" (and he repeated the statement a trifle clearer.)

"What did he do?"

"Him walk on flo' and him walk on bed; bimbeby him all same dance like sand under him feet."

"Hurt you?"

"No; go way in one hour; come one clock go way two clock."

The Chinaman reported the "debbil" several mornings, until it transpired that some one had told him of the death in that room, a year ago, of a gardener employed on the place, so no more was thought about it—the imagination accounting for the "ghost"—until one cold morning last week Lee came bringing a little brown owl from the barn, frozen stiff and dead, and showed it to the children, remarking:

"Now him debbil no come any more. Owl catch 'em las' (rat)—debbil catch 'em owl. That nuff—he no more come back."

The cook on the same ranch boasts of something almost like citizenship, and displays a marriage certificate he brought from Boise City, where he married Jennie Lung in American style. He is very proud of the certificate, which is an elaborate affair with glaring red roses all around it as big as saucers. He says he has another wife in China, and then goes mournfully about his dish washing as though wives were not all a man needs in this world.

One cannot help thinking how much more the personal interest in public property is brought home to the individual in a new country than in the old and more thickly settled regions. Now you would never find in Massachusetts or New York a community where every tax payer fully realized his ownership in bridges and other county property, as we do. In a little group yesterday some one suggested that a sudden thaw would endanger the Moxee bridge, and every man pricked up his ears as though something of his own were jeopardized. This is what set the Town Talker to thinking on the subject. Back there the few public men are supposed to look after all public interests. Here, every man in the county feels that he helps pay for these bridges and things, and he realizes, too, how much they add to the value of his property as well as to his convenience. The theory is understood everywhere, but it is like the theory of the moon's effect upon the tides—no one can never stop to bother with it after coming to the knowledge. Here it is more than a theory, for the reason that most of us have seen all these improvements made, and helped to make them.

Sometimes one cannot help thinking what a pity it is that this appreciation of public needs and public benefits does not extend beyond the pioneer stage, and so make it easier to combine and all help in every well-considered public movement; yet one who thinks carefully is bound to acknowledge the fact that the more populous a region becomes, the smaller is the percent of those who will do anything for the public good they are not compelled to do.

Now is the Time to Invest

Yakima Real Estate,

AND FOR THE FOLLOWING REASONS:

FIRST—The immediate building of the new Portland Railroad.

SECOND—The Three Vast Irrigating Schemes that are already perfected, which will give employment to hundreds of men in the early Spring, and which, when completed will bring under water not less than 300,000 acres of the Best Land on the Pacific Coast.

THIRD—The Natchez Gold and Silver finds, which are directly tributary to North Yakima, and which will have hundreds, if not thousands, of men at work in them the coming season.

The above reasons are sufficient to give our City one of the biggest booms in the history of Washington and are as certain to double values, when business opens up in the Spring, as that daylight follows darkness. We

FECHTER & LAW,

OVER YAKIMA NATIONAL BANK,

FASHION EVEN IN STOCKS.

It is "The Thing" Just Now to Own a Few Shares of Chemical.

Every now and then there is, says the New York Sun, an announcement in the newspapers of the sale of a few shares of the Chemical bank stock.

Three years ago the shares of the bank sold in the neighborhood of $3000 a share. A few days ago ten shares were sold at auction on the Real Estate Exchange for $4500 a share.

This is a pretty good line of questions, and yet it is a marvellously interesting fact that every one of them conveys by inference the correct explanation of the cause of the high price for the shares.

It is true that if there is any fashion in financial circles it is considered the correct thing to own a few shares of Chemical stock. Well known and venerable authorities are responsible for this statement, as they also are for the additional one that "many men like to die with ten shares or so of Chemical in their strong box."

It should be explained that these sales only occur when the affairs of the aforesaid man who wanted to die with a few shares of the stock in his strong box are in the process of settlement by the executors of the will or the heirs themselves.

WHAT COLLEGE BOYS TELL.

The Newest Fashion in the Line of Cheers Fully Set Out.

There are novelties in college cheers just as there are in dress patterns, and nearly as many varieties. When and how a new cheer originates is just as hard a question to answer as who started the latest fashion.

help it along a good deal. The very latest thing in college cheers was heard at the Harvard-Yale foot ball game, Yale claiming to have started it, but the students of at least six colleges present were familiar with it, and appropriated it by merely substituting the names of different colleges for the word "Yale," that originally ended it.

Princeton has probably the most distinctive regular cheer of any of the larger colleges. It imitates a rocket, thus: Hurrah! Hurrah! Hurrah! Tiger! Tiger! Tiger!

Wesleyan has a distinctive rhyme for her regular college cheer: Wa-hoo-wah! Wa-hoo-wah! Wes-ley-an-a, Wa-hoo-wah!

County Roads in Washington.

In a recent issue of the Oregonian J. D. McIntyre, of this city, has the following communication: "In the matter of public highways we are behind the age in which we live and behind our advancement in every other public improvement."

"The management of public highways like any other great internal improvement must have a head, the proper officer to discharge such duties would be appointive and not elective and his term, during good behavior. The legislature should repeal, or nearly all, of our present laws and substitute a new act which should have for its fundamental principle a provision under which money in such amounts as may be required, can be raised either by bonding the counties or by direct taxation, to give us at once, if possible a great system of graded and macadamized public lands."

"To enable the people to provide these funds it may become necessary to procure an amendment to our constitution. A good start, at least, could be made under our present limit of 5 percentum indebtedness. Some may object to the plan of issuing county bonds to carry on the work upon such a large scale, but to these we would say, that under our present system of taxation more than half the money is worse than thrown away. The increased cost of transportation over our poor roads amounts to more in cash outlay every five years than the total first cost of at least one good macadamized road through each settled township in the state. Most of this expense, aggravation and loss of time comes from the pocket of the farmer. The increase in value of the lands benefited would alone pay for them all."

"The people of this new state are building up a commonwealth for their children to enjoy, and it is no more than right that they should pay for the roads which we build for them. We have over to them all the vast machinery of a created state; we have paid for it all; we are willing to give them a system of county roads, but we think they should pay the bonds that build them."

Merit Wins. We desire to say to our citizens that for years we have been selling Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Dr. King's New Life Pills, Bucklen's Arnica Salve and Electric Bitters, and have never handled remedies that sell as well, or that have given such universal satisfaction. THE STREET CAR HOG.

There are Times When the Perker is Not of Masculine Gender.

The street car hog is as various as the human race. Sometimes the hog has its own way and sometimes it doesn't, says the Washington Post. It was on a bob-tail car. A gorgeously attired woman with a square chin and strident voice gets in with a couple of friends. She fills the only vacant space. To a quiet unassuming gentleman next she says: "Sir, will you kindly get me a package of tickets?"

He pulls out of the seat into which she has wedged him to get tickets. She slides along, her party squirms in, and it is fuller than ever. The gentleman returns with the tickets, and asks: "How many out?" To which the madam replies with an air of concealed triumph: "None!"

Madam is paralyzed, and the passengers laugh, giggle, scream, about, roar or howl, according to age, sex, or previous condition of servitude. The mortified woman pulls the bell strap and tries to back off before the car stops, with a face you could light a cigar with, but leaving her friends behind. The gentleman looks serenely unconscious, and a car full of people feel comfortable the rest of the way home because one car hog has gotten such a comedown.

HEAVY LOSSES OF CATTLE.—There is no question but what the cattle have suffered greatly this winter and that the loss is heavy. It was not the cold or the snow but the poor condition with which they entered upon the winter. Had the grass been good during the summer the loss would have been light, but with no snow during the winter of '88 and '89 the range has never been known to be so poor before. The Chinook which has been blowing most of the week cleared away much of the snow, but still left a coating sufficient to make feeding necessary. Joseph Baxter reports that from actual count he has lost ten per cent. of his cattle in the feed yard and that at least one-half of the cattle left on the range have died. Mr. Baxter further says that his cattle have been fed and cared for as well as any and that his losses are no greater than those suffered by other cattle men.

MACHINE SHOPS AND FOUNDRY FOR YAKIMA.—The advantages which North Yakima presents to manufacturing enterprises is becoming generally recognized, and the prospects are that before long this will become quite a manufacturing point. There is now here a gentleman from Spokane Falls who proposes to build extensive machine shops and a foundry if the citizens will give a bonus of five acres of land convenient to the railroad and three thousand dollars. He agrees to employ from twenty-five to forty men on the start and increase this force as fast as the business warrants. There have already been two offers to give the land, and the indications are that there will be no difficulty in raising the money.

THE SPRING WILL OPEN WELL.—There is every indication that the coming spring will inaugurate a great building boom at North Yakima. In addition to numerous fine residences for which plans have been drawn Joseph Fairbrook has signified his intention of building a three-story brick business block, fifty feet front on the corner of Yakima avenue and First street. S. J. Lowe will add fifty feet frontage to his big three-story brick, covering the entire corner; Ward Bros. will duplicate their present brick structure on Yakima avenue, and E. P. Cadwell proposes building a fine opera house on Second street.

THE GOOD TEMPLARS ORGANIZED.—The attendance at the Christian church Tuesday afternoon at the mass meeting in the interest of temperance was large, and an organization was perfected under the name of Independent Order of Good Templars. J. D. McIntyre was made chairman, Frank Parker secretary and J. T. Ebelman treasurer.

GOOD NEWS, LE TUBE.—The West Shore says that a large colony from France will locate in Yakima county this coming spring and engage in viticulture on a large scale, and that the Northern Pacific company is arranging for boring artesian wells to supply the colony with water for irrigating purposes.

WATER WORK SUPERINTENDENT ARRIVED.—F. S. Woodward has arrived from Portland to superintend the building of the waterworks. He has taken office in the First National bank building and will commence active work as soon as the weather will permit.

From Yakima to Gray's Harbor.

Tacoma Globe: That the projected road from North Yakima to Gray's Harbor will be speedily built, Mr. Northey has no doubt. The road will be built on the old road bed, and the only remains for the same to be decided upon.

"This road can be put through at a comparatively small figure," he said. "From Gray's Harbor to Centralia the grade will be very easy, and for that distance the cost per mile will not be over $9000. For several miles the cost will not exceed $7500 per mile. This estimate includes grading, laying the iron and completing the road. When the road reaches North Yakima, a bid will be made for freight from the Big Bend country. The Gray's Harbor terminus of the road will be Gray's Harbor City."

Grafting Vegetables.

Many odd results may be attained by any one engaged in horticultural pursuits if there is a mind to experiment, and here in fertile Yakima the opportunities for testing the truth of the assertions in this article are practically unlimited. The American Agriculturist thus speaks of experiments in the grafting of vegetables: "Annals, or herbaceous plants, belonging to the same genus or natural family will adhere and grow on each other as readily as do woody plants. Thus, a cauliflower will grow on a cabbage, a tomato on a potato, or vice versa. The garden cucumber will grow on the wild vines of the same family, which are sometimes used for covering arbors. And these grow to an extraordinary length, while the garden cucumber seldom exceeds six or eight feet. The knowledge of grafting annually may be utilized and made profitable, especially when the potato is forced to ripen seed by engrafting or inarching on the tomato. Cucumbers may be grown on a high trellis or around the upper story windows of any building by training one of the wild cucumber vines—either Sicyos angulatus, the single seeded or star cucumber vine, or the Echinocystes, or wild balsam apple—either of which grows fifty or sixty feet in a single season up to the desired height. This is easily done by sowing cucumber seed in any of the garden varieties in a flower pot, and when the plant is six or eight inches high joining it to one of these wild vines when it has reached the desired height. Merely scraping the bark of each and tying them firmly together with any soft material is sufficient. They will unite in about ten or twelve days, or sooner, and produce fruit at a height to which the garden cucumber could never attain."

—Charles Martin, son-in-law of T. L. Bounds, is very low with typhoid pneumonia.

—E. S. Robertson has been made the superintendent of the Episcopal Sunday school.

—Mrs. Boyle's music term begins the first of February. Piano pupils, regular prices.

—North Yakima is five years old this month. It is the most likely infant in the state.

—The county commissioners will go into session at the court house on Monday next.

—THE HERALD added twenty-odd names to its long subscription list in three days this week.

—Born, Saturday, January 25, to the wife of H. J. Snavely, a son; weight, twelve pounds.

—The co-partnership existing under the name of Foster & Davis, butchers, has been dissolved, Mr. Davis retiring.

—Service at St. Michael's church on Sunday next and on all first Sundays of the month at 11 a. m. and on all Sundays at 3.30.

—An effort is being made to organize a Knights of Pythias lodge in this city. Quite a number of members have already been enrolled.

—Mrs. Samuel A. Clark, mother of Mrs. W. J. Dyer, of Ellensburg, died at Salem, Oregon, on Sunday last of congestive chills.

—The time at which city taxes become delinquent has been extended by the council to April 1. This will be grateful news to many.

—It is stated that George B. Kittinger, of Seattle, will build a handsome block this coming season on the property he owns across from the Hotel Yakima.

—Notwithstanding that the date on which city taxes become delinquent has been changed to April 1st, over $3,000 has already been paid to Treasurer Cornett.

—The largest stump in the state is located near Suabonish City. It is a big cedar twenty feet in diameter, with surface sufficient for forty men to stand upon.

—Andrew Wilson in this issue offers for sale his two imported Clydesdale stallions. This is an excellent opportunity, as they will be disposed of on the most favorable terms.

—Dr. W. F. Morrison at the solicitation of numerous friends has concluded to practice in the city during the few months he will remain here settling up the Morrison estate.

—Judge Carroll B. Graves will be here on Monday and open court. The session will be an unimportant one, there being a question whether witnesses can be compelled to attend.

—Jennie White, a courtesan who formerly lived in North Yakima, committed suicide at Seattle last week by morphine. She was in ill health, and feared being deserted by her lover.

—W. L. McClothlen, a son of T. B. McClothlen, while playing at school, Monday, fell from a tree, suffering as to fracture one of the bones of his arm. Dr. Savage dressed the fracture.

—Tom Steton, of Yakima, has invented a hay baler which is calculated to do double the work of the balers at present in use. Attorney Edward Whitson has made application for a patent.

—There will be a meeting of those enrolled in the Knights of Pythias organization at the Grand Army hall, Saturday evening. There are about forty signatories to the application for a charter.

—The Independent Order of Good Templars will meet in the Christian church Saturday evening, Feb. 1st. There will be no initiation, but the meeting will be to transact such business as may come before it.

—Tony Herko, son of A. Herko, of Tamplco, was kicked in the face by a cayuse, Tuesday, resulting in his nose being broken. Dr. Gunn dressed the injuries and thinks there will be no permanent disfigurement.

—Mrs. Mary A. Biggle, aged 67 years, died at Akron, Ohio, on Tuesday January 28th. Mrs. Biggle was the mother of Mrs. J. W. Farmer, and Charles and Frank Biggle of Yakima. The deceased was here two years ago on a visit.

—The Ellensburg Register says that North Yakima is to have a daily paper and that the citizens of this progressive burgh have offered a bonus of $1,500 therefor. We are of the opinion that the Register is greatly to be commended.

—Mr. Rector, the consumptive living on the west side of the track, whose illness and poverty was mentioned by THE HERALD a couple of weeks ago, died on Tuesday. A sympathetic community cared for his wants as soon as they were made known.

—The ladies of the Christian church will give a social and supper at the opera house in this city Wednesday, February 5, from 8 to 10 o'clock p. m. The best market affords will be served. There will be vocal and instrumental music. All are cordially invited.

—Coroner Clark, Dr. Savage and Deputy Sheriff Simmons went to Toppenish on Saturday last and exhumed the body of the Indian who was shot and killed, a few weeks ago, by the Indian Sam, now confined in the county jail. The bullet was found to have penetrated the heart.

PERSONAL.

J. D. Cornett and wife entertained their friends on Thursday evening last with cards.

Mayor Fred Reed and Mr. and Mrs. L. MacLean returned from Spokane Falls on Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Steinweg entertained their friends with Progressive Hall Tuesday evening.

T. J. V. Clark returned Sunday from Washington, D. C. He says he would have been appointed marshal had Hyde captured the judgeship.

Theodore Steiner returned on Sunday last from a six weeks visit in the east. He says North Yakima is the liveliest town between here and St. Paul.

M. S. Scudder, the oldest son of H. B. Scudder, is now at the University of Wisconsin, Madison, taking a course in the agricultural department of that institution.

D. C. Stone, accompanied by Miss Grace Switzer, will leave in a few days for the east. They will be gone several months, and will visit Canada before returning.

J. N. Post, of New York, was in the city several days during the past week investigating the opening here for a private bank. He was highly pleased with the outlook and expects to return.

Mayor Fred R. Reed has been doing Spokane Falls this week. His reports from all over the northwest is that the eyes of the people are generally turned towards Yakima, and that great things are expected of this city during the coming year.

Mr. and Mrs. T. M. Vance gave an elegant little dinner party at the Hotel Yakima Tuesday evening. Covers were laid for ten. The guests present were Mr. and Mrs. Horsley, Miss Thornton, Miss Allen, Miss Dora Allen, Mr. Milroy, Mr. Lombard and Mr. Ferguson.

In speaking of congressional freaks, Frank Carpenter writes: "A nervous little fellow is Wilson, from the state of Washington, who tells enough good stories to enable him to laugh himself fat, but who is as thin as a rail, and who looks as overworked as the horse of a bottled car."

—From present indications this will be a great fruit year, as well as a favorable year for our grains, grasses, vegetables and hops. Yakima is going to cut a wide swath during 1890.

—The travel has again commenced and every train brings many people to the city. The hotels are well filled, and the enquiries for real estate are becoming frequent. There is no reason to doubt that North Yakima will have a very pronounced and substantial boom on hand by early March.

—E. V. Smalley, of the Northwest Magazine, was in the city for a couple of days this week conferring with citizens regarding advertising matter descriptive of the country, which will be issued and sent broadcast over the country. Fifty thousand copies of a sixteen page pamphlet will be printed.

—Wm. Lee, the man who was stabbed at a dance at Wenatchee by Felix Shaser, is now in the city. Shaser is held in default of bonds in the sum of $1000. The quarrel was over a woman, and Shaser threatened it by spitting in his rival's face. This being resented, Shaser drew his knife and slashed away at Lee's breast.

—N. J. Blagen is said to have dropped $15,000 by his cattle venture in Yakima. He sold his band of thirteen hundred to Mr. Baxter for $10 a head, and the impression prevails among cattlemen that Baxter will clean up ten thousand dollars' profit on the transaction within a few months. The cattle business requires men with plenty of nerve.

—Ellensburg Register: The decree for divorce of Poole vs. Poole was denied by Judge Graves. The complaint was based on three grounds—adultery, cruel treatment and abandonment. She filed a cross bill of cruel treatment and abandonment, saying that parties who had lived together twenty years as man and wife certainly could and should live together again.

—IN THE HERALD reporter's rounds he found that Mr. L. T. Riese, manager for the Standard Furniture Company, had located at the corner of First and A streets with a complete stock of furniture. Mr. Riese is a splendid mechanic, and we have no hesitancy in stating that we believe any commissions or work entrusted to him will be satisfactorily executed. Attention is called to his new advertisement in this issue.

—MacLean, Reed & Co. desire that the attention of the public should be especially called to their new advertisement in which they enumerate some very attractive bargains in real estate. With the many improvements and enterprises projected for the coming year, property valuations are certain to advance very shortly, and the long-headed man will not wait until they commence jumping upwards before he gets in and heels himself.

Late of Indiana.

There was some disposition in political circles to oppose the confirmation of P. H. Winston on the ground that he was not born in Indiana. It is understood, however, that Hon. John B. Allen, late of Indiana and now United States senator from this state, did not oppose him on this ground. It is also said that Hon. J.

L. Wilson, formerly of Indiana and now member of congress, nor the Hon. R. B. Blake of the state of Indiana, now superior judge of Spokane county, nor the Hon. Wm. Ridpath, recently from the state of Indiana, and now prosecuting attorney for Spokane county in the state of Washington, nor Judge Calkins of the state of Indiana and late supreme judge of Washington, nor the Hon. Charles Voorhees of Indiana, and ex-delegate in congress from the territory of Washington opposed his confirmation on that ground. Mr. Winston himself is not to blame for being born in North Carolina, but undoubtedly regrets that he is not a native of Indiana. No opposition was suggested to the confirmation of Captain Thomas R. Brown, as United States Marshal of Washington, as he was born in the good old state of Indiana.—Palouse City News.

Conservation vs. Rage for Novelties.

The Seed Annual for 1890, issued by D. M. Ferry & Co., of Detroit, Mich., has reached our table. Its cover this year is especially artistic and attractive, and its contents as usual interesting and instructive. Ferry's seeds are thoroughly reliable, and always come true. The directions given in the Annual for the cultivation of both flowers and vegetables are so full and explicit that no one can fail of success who uses their seeds and follows instructions. D. M. Ferry & Co. are very conservative, both in offering new sorts and in their claims for them when offered; but they take pains to inform themselves as to the true character of all new varieties, so if some much lauded novelties are not found in the Annual, the probability is they have tested them and found them of no value. A request to the firm at Detroit, Michigan, will bring you a copy of the Seed Annual for 1890 by return mail.

Teachers' Examination.

Notice is hereby given that the teachers' examination will be held at the Spokane Falls this week. His reports from all over the northwest is that the eyes of the people are generally turned towards Yakima, and that great things are expected of this city during the coming year.

The largest ranches of Klamath county, Or., and Siskiyou county, Cal., are those of Jesse D. Carr, about Clear Lake, and Dorris, of Butte creek valley, Cal. Owing to the unusual dry season of 1889, they put up much less hay than usual from their meadow land, and the deep snows of this winter will cause them heavy losses. It is reported by the Ashland Times that Carr has turned out about 5000 and Dorris 4000 head to abate for themselves in the deep snow—live on browse if they can, or die if they must. They each have some hay at their ranches of course, but will need it all to winter their improved Shortborns and other valuable stock. Carr, Dorris and some other ranchers are offering to give half the cattle wintered through to any one who will feed them.

Nellie Bly reached New York on Saturday last from her tour around the world, having made the trip in a trifle under seventy-five days, beating even the product of Jules Verne's vivid imagination.

Secretary Windom has made a second call for ten per cent of public deposits in the National bank. The government is evidently doing its best to retard the business of the country.

—Messrs. Ward Bros. have just secured the services of a first-class shoemaker, and are now prepared to attend to all custom work. A guarantee of a good fit and A No. 1 work is given with every order. Repairing neatly and promptly done.

—The stock of dress goods, ready-made clothing and furnishings at Dittors are of only first-class materials, and his prices compare favorably with those of the large stores. Always examine his stock and prices before purchasing elsewhere.

—Do you need money? If yes, call on R. Strobach, at the Yakima Soda Springs company's building, and have him make you a loan on easy terms and long time. No delays in getting loans through.

CANNON MADE OF LEATHER.

They Were Successfully Used in Ancient English Warfare.

"Let me give you a bit of history," said a down-town leather merchant to a New York Journal reporter, "that many a student has overlooked. The objects of peace are not all that leather figures in, for it is to leather that we owe the introduction of light artillery. Leather cannon have been actually tried on the battlefield, and what is more, turned the tide of one of the greatest battles of modern times. The inventor of leather artillery was a certain Colonel Robert Scott, a Scotchman in the service of Charles I. of England.

"He constructed guns of hardened leather and experimentally tried them. The result was that they were pronounced superior to guns made of brass or iron. The colonel, however, did not live long to enjoy the greatest triumph of his invention. He died in 1631, and a monument erected in his memory I have seen in a churchyard in London. This monument represents him as an armor-clad, fierce-looking man, wearing a heavy mustache and a pointed beard.

"In the very year of the colonel's death the effectiveness of his leather artillery was amply proved on the memorable field of Liepsic, where, September 7, 1631, Gustavus Adolphus achieved his splendid victory over the imperialists under General Tilly. It is said that it was owing to the invention of Colonel Scott that the victory was obtained. The guns were found to be so easily carried that a small battery could fly from one part of the field to another, and thus artillery be brought to bear when most needed—a thing impossible with the heavy artillery of that period. Certain it is that leather artillery was used in this great battle by Adolphus, though it is equally certain that the guns were never used afterward. The reason of that, however, was that the leather guns having demonstrated the value of light artillery, a way was discovered of making the metal guns lighter, and the greater durability of the latter gave them the superiority.

"As used in the battle of Liepsic, the leather gun consisted of a copper tube of the thickness of parchment, strengthened by iron plates running parallel with the length of the gun, bound with iron bands. The tube was then bound with several coatings of cord, with a cement of mastic between each coating, and the whole inclosed in a case of rough leather. The weight of the gun was such that two men could easily carry it."

In the year of 1790 a snuff box manufacturer named Richmond invented a leather cannon, which was tried under inspection at Woolwich, but it did not prove as successful as some of its forerunners. The celebrated Peter Fender satirized the affair in these lines: Richmond, wasteful of the state's salvation, packing his revolvers over the nation. Now buying leathers boxes by tons, improving thus the nation of great guns—Guns made with double nature's gift and rough—To give a broadside, or a pinch of snuff.

The great Napoleon was not above using leather as a means of defense. He put the leather cuirass upon twelve regiments of his cavalry.

A Terror Who Didn't Terrify.

Detroit Free Press: There landed at the Third street depot from a Chicago train, the other morning, a young man wearing a big sombrero and a buffalo-skin overcoat. In his belt he had two revolvers and a knife, and as he was talking about the waiting room Special Officer Button walked up to him and asked: "Going to tarry here any length of time?"

"Well, I guess I'll do the town." "Then off with those gimcracks. They are not considered at all dangerous, but they might frighten mules." "What! Give up my weapons?" "Exactly. I'll lay 'em away for you until ready to go. You might be mistaken for a terror of the plains if you went prancing around town rigged out like that."

"But I've shot Indians!" protested the man. "Boah! Hand 'em over." "And I've been all through Oklahoma and No Man's Land."

"What of it? Feel off those gimcracks. The terror business is played out. Why, sir, somebody would hit you on the nose before you had gone a block."

"They would? Don't I look like a fighter?" "Naw! They'd take you for Santa Claus—some Santa Claus who got left somewhere. Peel off."

"Well, I s'pose I'll have to, but you must be a mighty curious lot of a people here. I guess you don't appreciate a desperado man?" "No, we don't," replied the officer as he received the weapons, "or if we get hold of one we will him about until it is all gone. Now, you can go out and see the town. If anybody asks you who you are tell 'em you see a sheep drover and have some calves to sell."

Going for the Saloons.

Representative Hutchinson has introduced a bill in the legislature that strikes of the old Connecticut blue laws. It vests the mayor and council of a city, or the county commissioners of a county, with exclusive power to regulate the liquor traffic. They may fix the license at any sum, ranging from $500 to $2000 annually, which practically amounts to prohibition in small places, if the extreme sum is demanded. Saloons are prohibited from having screens, partitions, side boxes, or back rooms. This is a blow at gambling. The bill prohibits the playing of any kind or manner of games, simple, or complicated, for pleasure, or for money, or for any purpose whatever. Billiard games are prohibited. Music playing is also prohibited in saloons, and saloon keepers are inhibited from keeping any thing beside liquors to attract the crowd. The object of the bill is to prevent gatherings in saloons. All saloons must close at 10 o'clock every night and on Sunday. Violations are punishable by a fine of not less than $1000, or imprisonment for not more than six months.

A Real Compliment.

Boston Beacon: Old gentleman (indignantly)—Well, sir, what are you doing around here again? I thought that delicate hint I gave you just as you left the door last night would give you to understand that I didn't like you very well. Young man—It did, but I thought I'd come and ask you—"Ask me what?" "If you wouldn't like to join our football association."

Advice to Bald-Heads.

Bill Nye, the bald headed humorist, gives the following bit of advice to another individual who is likewise bare-footed on the top of his head. It is not in any sense hair brained talk. Bill says: "Take your hair invigorator money and buy a town lot in a growing town that supports its home paper and advertises and goes ahead, and you will be well fixed, and a man who is well fixed don't care much whether he has any hair or not."

To the Victors Belong the Spoils.

Last week Mrs. S. E. Blair, who had been postmistress at Montesano, Washington, was removed. She asked Representative Wilson by wire what was the cause of such an action on the part of the postoffice officials. The situation was explained to her in the following dispatch signed by Mr. Wilson: "The Blair family held that office four years and some months. Esau should not enjoy the inheritance of Jacob. I wanted a republican."

Resolutions of Respect.

HALL OF YAKIMA LODGE, NO. 24, F. & A. M., NORTH YAKIMA, WASH., JAN. 18, '90. The undersigned committee, appointed to prepare suitable resolutions in respect to our late brother, George W. Goodwin, bow leave to submit the following: Being meekly to the infinite decree which has removed Brother George W. Goodwin from our midst, we pause in the buoyant spirit to testify our appreciation of his strict integrity as a man, his public services as a member of the community, and his worth as a citizen and Mason, and that remembrance may be kept bright, to record this token of our regard for one who as husband, brother and friend so worthily fulfilled the promises of virtue by an honorable career upon the earth. Respectfully submitted,

EDWARD WATSON, Chairman of Committee. Accepted by the Lodge, and ordered published in THE YAKIMA HERALD, and also a copy of the same spread upon the records of the Lodge, and a copy sent to the widow of our deceased brother.

News Notes.

Adam Forepaugh, the great show man, is dead, having fallen a victim to influenza.

John Ruskin, the great essayist, has become hopelessly insane. He was the leader in English critical literature.

Engineer H. S. Hason is authority for the statement that the Northern Pacific directors have authorized the building of a road from their western terminus to the British Columbia line. The road will keep well back from the Sound, and feeders will be built to Bellingham bay and Ship harbor.

Will D. Jenkins, of Whatcom, a newspaper man, has been appointed supervisor of the census of this state. He will appoint special deputies to have charge of the work in each county. It is estimated that the population of Washington will be over 300,000, as it was 240,000 according to the census taken by the county auditors in June and July last.

Some few weeks ago there was a sensation at Seattle over a pool game, in which Dr. J. D. Guthrie is alleged to have won $2100 from Capt. Mallaby, at the Rainier hotel. No money was put up, and Mallaby left the hotel, ostensibly to get in the coin, but failed to again put in an appearance, and the next heard of him was across the British boundary. Now Dr. Guthrie has gone to look for him, leaving an indebtedness, worthless checks and forgeries, to the amount of about four thousand dollars behind. George B. Kittinger, well known in this city, is in the lurch for $1100 of this amount.

SUMMONS.

STATE OF WASHINGTON,) ss. COUNTY OF YAKIMA,) ss.

THE STATE OF WASHINGTON TO THE ABOVE-NAMED DEFENDANT: You are hereby notified that L. B. Fulton, of North Yakima, Yakima county, Wash., plaintiff, has filed a complaint against you in the Superior Court of Yakima County, holding terms at North Yakima, Washington, which will come on for hearing sixty days after the first publication of this summons, to-wit: Sixty days after the 23rd day of January, 1890, and unless you appear and answer the same on or before the 23rd day of March, 1890, the same will be taken as confessed and the prayer granted.

The object and prayer of the said complaint is that the bonds of matrimony now existing between plaintiff and defendant be dissolved; that the custody of the said child be given to the plaintiff, and for such other and further relief as the plaintiff may be entitled to, as set forth in the complaint, filed by plaintiff in this office.

The cause of this action is that on or about December, 1889, the defendant, disregarding his marriage vows, willfully and without cause deserted and abandoned the plaintiff, and ever since has and continues to live separate and apart from her without any cause and against her will, and defendant has failed to provide for the family of plaintiff and defendant.

Witness my hand and seal of said Court this 21st day of January, 1890. DOUGLASS ESKELMAN, County Clerk and Clerk of said Superior Court. J. B. REAVIS, Attorney for Plaintiff.

Order to Show Cause. IN THE PROBATE COURT OF YAKIMA COUNTY, STATE OF WASHINGTON.

In the matter of the Estate of Andrew J. Miller, deceased. Order to show cause why an order of Decree of Sale of Real Estate should not be made.

FRANCIS P. MILLER, THE ADMINISTRATOR of the estate of Andrew J. Miller, deceased, being duly sworn, deposes and says that he is praying for an order of sale of certain parts of the real estate of said deceased for the purposes therein set forth in the petition filed in said court that all persons interested in the estate of said deceased do hereby appear in said court on Monday, March 2nd, 1890, at 10 o'clock a. m. of said day at the court room of said probate court in North Yakima, Yakima county, Washington, to show cause why an order to sell so much of the real estate of said deceased according to law as shall be necessary for the purposes in said petition set forth, and that a copy of this order be published in the YAKIMA HERALD, a newspaper published in said county and state, during the week ending on the 23rd day of January, 1890.

D. W. STAIR, Probate Judge. In the Probate Court of Yakima County, State of Washington.

In the Matter of the Estate of John W. Farmer, deceased. ORDER TO SHOW CAUSE WHY DISTRIBUTION SHOULD NOT BE MADE.

ON READING AND FILING THE PETITION of Mark B. Parson, administrator of the estate of John W. Farmer, deceased, praying for an order of distribution of the residue of the estate of said deceased, do hereby certify that it is ordered that all persons interested in the estate of said deceased do hereby appear before the Probate Court of the said county of Yakima, in the city of North Yakima, at the court room of said court, on Monday, the 23rd day of February, 1890, at 10 o'clock a. m., and there to show cause why an order of distribution should not be made of the residue of the estate of said deceased, as set forth in said petition, according to law.

It is further ordered that a copy of this order be published once a week for four consecutive weeks, before the said third day of February, 1890, in the YAKIMA HERALD, a newspaper printed and published in said city and county. D. W. STAIR, Probate Judge. Dated December 28, 1889.

I, D. W. Stair, Judge and Clerk of the said Probate Court, do hereby certify that the foregoing is a true, correct and full copy of the original order to show cause, why distribution should not be made in the estate of John W. Farmer, deceased, as the same appears of record in my office.

Witness my hand and seal this 23rd day of December, 1889. D. W. STAIR, Judge and Clerk of the Probate Court of Yakima County, State of Washington.
