DO OUR SENATORS STEAL?

Perquisites in Stationery—How Some Swell Their Salary.

The Way They Keep a Supply of Jack Knives and Letter Paper—Some of Them Defraud Uncle Sam.

A recent paragraph in a Toronto paper, which endeavored to show that the senators of the United States are in the habit of petty thieving by way of drawing upon the funds of the government for exorbitant quantities of stationery, has been copied into certain sheets in this country. Naturally enough, this has led to the creation of an erroneous impression. The facts are that the United States senators and representatives have a perfect right to get all the pocket knives and pocket books, as well as all other articles of stationery that they wish, providing they do not exceed the limit of $125 a year.

The pay of all members of congress in both houses is $50.00 per annum, and to this is added the sum of $125 per annum for stationery. This allowance for stationery was made uniform some years ago when the franking privilege was abolished. This privilege was abused to a scandalous extent, inasmuch that honorable members literally obeyed that proverb which directs mankind to wash their dirty linen at home. To this end they would send their soiled underwear through Uncle Sam's mails, thereby availing themselves of their mail frank in a manner that was hardly contemplated when the privilege was first granted. At one time, too, an unlimited amount of stationery was supplied on demand of a member. While a careful man would use but $3 or $4 worth of goods a week, not to say the least, a member would draw $300 or $400 worth.

At each end of the capitol is a stationery room, and in each a large supply of paper, envelopes, pens, ink, pocket knives, and occasionally the chief clerk of the stationery room will lay in a stock of the usually fancy adjuncts to the stationery business. These are bought and paid for with government money, it is true, but not one single article leaves the room unless it is charged up to some member of the house or senate.

A member who desires to present some advertising constituent a token of regard, takes him down stairs and orders for him a gold pen, a knife, or some other useful little article as a keepsake. Perhaps about Christmas time he wants to make himself solid with some influential family who may be visiting in Washington and the ladies are escorted down stairs into the stationery room and given a carte blanche to select any article which may take their fancy that is there displayed. Whatever is selected is charged up to the account of the member, and it may be that at the end of the year he finds his credit $50, $75, or even $100 of the allowance made to him. In that event he will ask for a statement of account and, when the stationery clerk furnishes it to him he can carry it to the disbursing officer of the house, who will pay him in cash anything which may be due him. On the other hand, if he has overdrawn this account, the amount of his overdraw becomes a first lien on his pay and will be charged up against him in the office of the sergeant-at-arms, who is, under the decision of the court of claims, just rendered in the case of Crane against the United States, an officer also of the treasury, as well as the house, for the disbursement of congressmen's salaries.

Some members are exceedingly liberal in disposing of their stationery, while others get along with a very small allowance. Some of the ablest men in both houses will not use over $5 or $10 a year in stationery and will draw the remainder in cash regularly at the end of each fiscal year; but it must not be forgotten that these gentlemen have very large bills to pay for postage. I call to mind one senator who last year expended only $28 in the stationery room, but whose postage bill averaged more than $1 a day for the entire 365 days of the session. His stationery account therefore did not begin to pay the cost of his correspondence.

The reason why so many pocket-knives and similar articles are charged up against the average member of congress is that he not infrequently has to respond to the demands of people who have no claim on him whatever. In the forty-eight congress there was a contest over the seats of the delegate from New Mexico. The sitting republican was Mr. Luna, and the democratic contestant was named Manzanara. The justice of Manzanara's claim was so apparent on its face that there was not a republican member of the committee on elections willing to vote against him, and he was promptly seated without a dissenting vote when the subject came up for discussion in the house. He had not occupied his seat twenty minutes before he tackled his stationery account. There were two or three doorknippers who had been particularly good to him and had done him little favors. He wanted to show his appreciation of their courtesy by doing some little things for them. He picked out the most prominent of his doorknippers and told him to go down to the stationery room and to take anything he wanted and also invited him to send on his colleagues for the same treatment. The result was that within forty-eight hours from the time when Mr. Manzanara took his seat he had a little bill to pay in the office of the

THE PITS OF CROCODILES.

Realities Rivaling the Mythical Caverns of Kor, in Egypt.

Curious Antiquities—Vaults Floored With Human Forms, Mangled in Extraordinary Manner.

The sudden demand for mummified cats reminds me of a visit paid many years ago to the famous crocodile pits of Maabdeh, says a writer in the St. James' Gazette. It may safely be assumed that those who have visited Maabdeh are very few. It lies some distance from the Nile, behind Manfalout, where no one stopped in the good old dabeeh days, and the modern steamers only touch; moreover, the pits are in the desert itself, some hours' ride. "Murray," prudent as usual, does not encourage the adventures. The editor of the "Egyptian Handbook" admits that his brief remarks are not based on personal knowledge, and the errors therein show that they are not based upon a trustworthy report. It is not unwarrantable presumption, therefore, to fancy that these very curious antiquities are rather discussed than known.

My own experience was due to accident. Dropping down the Nile very late in the spring of 1863, our dabeeh was becalmed off Manfalout, and the dragoman, badgered by two young Britons to find them sport, unwillingly named the pits of Maabdeh. He proposed simply to tie a thither and return—that, indeed, in a day's journey. But, as it chanced, the legend of the pits had been familiar to me as long as I can recollect. In the beginning of this century a certain Mr. Leigh, M. P., explored them with most disastrous results. His narrative may be found in a quaint old child's book called "Winter Evenings," extracted countless from some record which I never came across. "Murray" gives no reference to the story. My recollection can not be trusted to tell what happened to Mr. Leigh precisely, but I know that one of his followers died in the cavern, another was lost, a third escaped after awful sufferings, and finally they had to run the gauntlet of an infuriated population to the river side whence the pasha, or somebody, sent the prisoners to Cairo. On the whole it was a very striking adventure, a special favorite in our nursery. So, when the dragoman suggested in this casual way a visit to crocodile pits of Maabdeh, it seemed very strange and thrilling to my mind—as though he had proposed a trip to fairyland by excursion train. Of course his modest programme was derided; we would follow the steps of the unfortunate member of parliament to the latter end. Our dragoman became serious now. He urged that it was much too late in the day for starting, and he had to submit; doubtless the good man hoped a wind would spring up in the night. But he was disappointed. Long before dawn on the morrow we set out, and in the afternoon we reached the spot. The entrance of the pits is an oblong fissure in the middle of a small plateau among the mountains—that is, no other entrance was known in 1863. There are no facilities for descent; one may let oneself fall sheer a matter of nine or ten feet, and clamber up again with the help of a donkey boy's cumberbund. I do not recollect that the usual possibilities of this situation struck us at all, but perhaps some measures had been taken to make sure that the boys did not desert. One of them, indeed, headed the advance; our dragoman had never been down before. The Arab began by stripping completely, and he advised us to do the same. Then we lighted a candle each, and in single file descended into the bowels of the rock. At a few feet distance the passage narrowed rapidly, until there was only room to crawl along on one's stomach. This first gallery may be some fifty yards long; it opens on a chamber spacious enough, but a natural cavern evidently. On the further side runs another gallery as cramped as the last, heated like a furnace, reeking with foul air, vile stench of bats, and pungent fumes of bitumen. Then we understood why the Arab has stripped. This right gallery may be 100 yards long, or the double of that or more; one is unused to measuring distances crawling like a snake on one's stomach. At the end lies another chamber, of good height, apparently, if the floor were cleared; but the whole area is blocked with enormous masses of stone packed as close as they will stand, over which one has to clamber stopping. Here myriads of bats assail the explorer, blowing into his candle instantly, clinging to his hair and beard in ropes. A moment more and they vanish with a soft rustle of countless wings, such as I have heard in other climes when the sand grouse fly overhead at dawn and evening. On the opposite side of this vault the first trace of handiwork is observed—a square doorway. I myself would have been quite satisfied to drop the track of Mr. Leigh's footsteps at this point. But the dragoman was interested now—taking perhaps a professional pride in putting the business through successfully. He could speak with the guide also. So we went on, still upon our stomachs, for an indefinite time, in an atmosphere beyond analysis and heat beyond example in the upper air. It was here probably that Mr. Leigh's party broke down, for I think they did not reach the end. We did. After some hundreds of yards, as it seemed, shortly the passage heightened—once could get upon one's knees, and then the floor

The Wood of the Cross.

The cross of Christ was discovered in A. D. 326 by the Empress Helena and Macarius, patriarch of Jerusalem—an event which convulsed Christendom, and which is still commemorated by the christian church on May 3, the feast of "The Invention of the Cross," as it is called in the calendar of our book of common prayer.

The holy wood remained entire until A. D. 636, when, to provide against the possible calamity of its total destruction by the infidels, it was decided to divide it into nineteen portions. This was done, and the parts were distributed in the following proportions: Constantinople . . . 3 Jerusalem . . . 3 Antioch . . . 2 Alexandria . . . 1 Crete . . . 1 Edessa . . . 1 Damascus . . . 1

Robault de Fienry calculates that the total volume of the wood of the cross was somewhere about 178,000,000 cubic millimeters. He has made a careful list of all the relics of the true cross known to exist in christendom at the present day, with their measurements, and finds the volume to be about 3,942,000 cubic millimeters, so that, as might have been expected, the greater part of the holy wood has disappeared. He also had the opportunity of making a microscopical examination of different relics, and comes to the conclusion that the wood was either pine or something closely allied to it.

Of places where relics of the holy cross have accumulated Mount Athos stands pre-eminent with a total volume of 578,300 cubic millimeters; then Rome, with 537,587; Brussels, 516,000; Venice, 446,082; Ghent, 436,450; Paris, with 237,731. Hardly anything is left in England, and nearly all of what exists among us is in the possession of members of the Roman church.

GOOD AND BAD FORTUNE.

Senator Vest Relates One of His Early Experiences.

"Speaking of luck," said Senator Vest to a Washington Post writer, "I will tell you a story to which another man in this company can bear witness. One day while I was in Richmond as a member of the Confederate congress I lost a roll of money, my pay for the month, somewhere in the street on my way from the war office to the hotel. I called a few fellows together and went on what seemed to be a hopeless quest through the dimly-lighted and snow-covered streets. The chances were 1000 to 1 against success, but we hadn't been out fifteen minutes before a young lieutenant who was among our party stooped and picked up the money.

"We all talked about our friend's good luck—but see how quickly fortune can turn another face. I was in high glee and wanted to treat. The searching party now went in search of a place of refreshment, but it was after midnight and it was a good while before we found a place open. At length, however we were piloted to a saloon, to which, pending some repairs, access was had from the street only by a ladder of about a dozen rungs. We all climbed up, considering it a lark (I was a good deal younger in those days), and after having some refreshment we climbed out again. Would you believe it? The lucky fellow who had found my money missed his footing, fell, and in that fall of ten or twelve feet broke his neck and was instantly killed!"

The Hon. Thomas Brents, ex-delegate to congress, and the Hon. George Thompson, state senator from the Walla Walla district, had a misunderstanding in the justice court at Walla Walla the other day, and the Hon. Thomas let fly one of his dukes, which caught the Hon. George fairly under the left ear.

These appears to be trouble ahead for public buildings. The president is on the two-cent tact and has already vetoed two building bills. Perhaps it would be a good thing to put all of the money of the country in the treasury, lock it up, and throw the key after Mr. Ginty.

JUDGE WILLIS SWEET, of Idaho, has decided that Chinamen have no rights whatever on mining lands of the United States, and that the lease of mining claims to the Chinese is equivalent to the abandonment of the same.

THE MARIAL BAND.—The martial band made its debut on the streets Monday and the little men captured the hearts of all by storm. They were attired in blue roundabout jackets, red knee pants, blue caps and leather leggings, and marched with a light, confident and accurate step, and played the various tunes they essayed in a manner which won for them the plaudits and encomiums of all.

DOWNING OF A LITTLE GIRL.—Early Wednesday morning Letha, aged 3 1/2 years, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Davis, was drowned in the Wenas creek. Mr. Davis, who was until recently the manager of Mrs. Boyer's grocery store, had just moved to the McGlathlen ranch on the Wenas, and while he and his wife were busy in the house the little girl wandered towards the swollen and turbulent creek and was in some way engulfed in its waters.

DEPARTING VISITORS.—To-day's train brought Gen. and Mrs. Russell A. Alger and Mrs. J. A. Logan to the city, on their return east. The conductor held the train, and in response to repeated calls, Col. L. S. Howlett introduced the commander-in-chief of the G. A. R., who responded in a brief address of a general nature, in which he expressed the belief that the factors are here to make Washington a leading state of the Union.

IRRIGATION BY PUMPS.

The Problem of Cheap Irrigation Solved—Arid Lands Easily Reclaimed.

A quarter of a mile from this city, on the ranch of Capt. J. H. Thomas, Mr. G. M. McKinney, the manager for the state of Crippen, Lawrence & Co., has had a well dug and has placed one each of the Nye and Huffer irrigation pumps, which are operated for the benefit of those who are interested in the problem of cheap irrigation.

These pumps have been used with great success in Colorado, New Mexico and Arizona, and Mr. McKinney has stacks of testimonials from prominent agriculturists and fruit growers as to the worth of these pumps and their successful operation. They are of the steam vacuum pattern, and their beauty lies largely in the low cost of operating them and in their simplicity of action and handling.

SMALL FRUITS.

GRAPES—CONTINUED.

In setting out I usually cut back to about four buds; the second year the same; the third spring cut back the wood intended for bearing to about two and one-half or three feet and leave four buds for making wood. This forms the bearing wood for next season and leaves buds for the fruiting wood of the following season.

I have now of bearing age in my own vineyard Concord, Catawba, Delaware, Worden, Iona, Lindley, Golden Pockington and Black Hamburg. Will set this year for testing Moyer, Eaton and Moore's Early.

DISOLUTION NOTICE.

Notice is hereby given that the firm of Griffin Bros., grocers, is on this day dissolved by mutual consent. Mr. H. A. Griffin will continue the business at the old stand and will pay all debts of the old firm.

H. A. GRIFFIN, G. A. GRIFFIN. Dated North Yakima, Wash., May 1st, 1900.

—Ben Hall, who was at one time in the employ of the late J. W. Farmer at this place, is now doing a seven years' sentence for embezzlement. From Yakima he went on to the Northern Pacific, being given the position of time keeper for Hale and Smith.

—W. B. Wilcoxson, Ph.D., stated the other day that he had notified Proprietor C. M. Holton that he would be obliged to leave the Republic to a dismal fate, as he could not make his salt under present circumstances. Notwithstanding the various editors, business managers and proprietors who have essayed to build up the business of the paper, including the great and only Scroggs, it still fails to be paying property.

TIMELY TOPICS.

Stuart Rice has been nominated by the democrats, and William A. Allen by the republicans, for the office of mayor of Tacoma.

The Oregon democrats have nominated Col. Robert A. Miller of Jackson county, for congress and Sylvester Pennoyer for governor.

Eddie, the twelve-year-old son of O. B. Castle, of Ellenburgh, was killed on the 18th of April by a gunshot wound while out hunting with a companion. The gun exploded while the lad was climbing a fence, the contents of both barrels entering his abdomen.

Twins.—There was born in this city, on the 27th of April, to Dr. F. L. and Mrs. Della Tappan, a son and daughter. Weight 7 1/2 pounds each. The boom, in the way of increase of population, has evidently commenced in earnest.

Several robberies have occurred within the past few days. The Yakima restaurant was denuded of pastry and cigars; L. Carpenter was relieved of $8 which he had about his clothes while taking a nap, and Spratt's gun store was entered and weapons enough to supply a small army packed off.

Article Part Upon the Memahib by Mrs. Memorial of Peoria, Illinois. The memahib's housekeeping reveals itself much into a close scrutiny of accounts and watching of supplies.

Next in rank comes the khatmutgar, who brings the dishes from the kitchen, helps to wait at tables, but is inferior person. A favorite term of reproach among Anglo Indians is "khatmutgar," which is worse than being compared to a khatmutgar.

The ayah is the memahib's maid, and she cannot get on without one. The durwan is the gate keeper, who sits all day long beside the door to attend to callers and messengers.

Anglo-Indian tempers are short, and the khatmutgars know their brevity better than anybody in the world. A favorite expression of abuse in connection with underdone mutton perhaps, is in English "dinner." "Son of a pig" which hurts the gentile Hindu's feelings as much as anything.

Time was when a lady or gentleman who, after a term or two at a dancing school, could waltz fairly well, could polka or schottische a little and walk through a quadrille without a blunder.

Many of them are quite intricate. They are known only by their names. No word of direction is spoken. The person who desires to be up to the usages of polite society as exemplified in the ball room, must therefore, be ever so graceful or experienced dancers, take a few lessons at the outset of the season.

Others interested in their daughters. I was in a book store the other day when a lady came in and for a juvenile literature. After she had gone out, the salesman said: "If daughters of Chicago do not want to anything it will not be the (of their mothers). There is a course lectures being delivered in a quiet in various parts of the city which are for the benefit of these children.

When a lecture is delivered, the mothers attend with their daughters. Sometimes these lectures are given at the homes. The children do not know that their mothers are interested in the movement. If they did, they wouldn't want to go, in all probability. It seems to be a part of a child's nature not to appreciate what the mother does for her.

"If there is anything I pride myself on," said the traveling man, "it is that I am not at all superstitious." "Me, too," spoke up the man who was selling shoes. "I have no patience with anyone who believes in signs," he continued, at the same time turning over a small round substance he had taken from his pocket. "They are all old women's notions."

"What's that you have in your hand?" asked the first speaker.

"That is a horse chestnut," said the shoe man.

"What do you carry it for?"

"Oh, as a preventive of the rheumatism, of course. They are infallible for that. You won't have an ache or a pain as long as you have one of them in your pocket."

"That's so," repeated the dozen or more who had been denouncing superstition for the past half-hour. Then every man in the party pulled a horse chestnut out of his trousers' pocket and began to relate instances where the great enemy had been put to rout by the innocent burkeye.

Subsequently the porter came in and announced that there was a new moon and every one of the dozen drummers went out on the porch to look at it over their right shoulders. The man who had been denouncing superstition the loudest happened to meet a cross-eyed man on the steps and passed the rest of the evening bewailing his misfortune. He had had an engagement to play poker, he said, and he "never had any luck when he met a person whose eyes were twisted."

Balky Horses vs Balky Drivers.

The Farmers' (Irish) Gazette. Gives the following different ways of treating balky horses, which we recommend for trial: First, pat the horse on the neck, examine him carefully, first one side and then the other; if you can get him a handful of grass, give it to him, and speak encouragingly to him. Then jump into the wagon and give the word go, and he will generally obey. Second, taking the horse out of the shafts, and turning him around in a circle until he is giddy, will generally start him. Third, another way to cure a balky horse is, place your hand over his nose and shut off his wind until he wants to go. Fourth, then, again, take a couple of turns of stout twine around the fore legs, just below the knee, tight enough for the horse to feel it; tie in a bow knot. After going a short distance you can get out and remove the string to prevent injury to the tendons. Fifth, again, you can try the following: Take the tail of the horse between the hind legs and tie it by a cord to the saddle girth, the last remedy that I know, is as follows: Tie a string around the horse's ear, close to his head. This will divert his attention and start him.

The Postup and the Stage.

Rev. F. M. Shront, pastor United Brethren church, Blue Mound, Kansas, says: "I feel it my duty to tell what wonders Dr. King's New Discovery has done for me. My lungs were badly diseased, and my parishioners thought I could live only a few weeks. I took five bottles of Dr. King's New Discovery and an sound and well, gaining 25 lbs. in weight." Arthur Love, manager Love's Funny Folks Combination, writes: "After a thorough trial and convincing evidence, I am confident Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption beats 'em all, and cures when everything else fails. The greatest kindness I can do my many thousand friends is to urge them to try it." Free trial bottles at Janek's Pharmacy. Regular bottles 50c. and $1.

Loosing Their Heads.

I wonder why it is that a little prominence causes some men to lose their heads and give themselves airs which only disgust the with whom they are brought into contact. It is to the credit of the higher officials of the government that they realize that they are only temporarily intrusted with power, and it is not permissible to the ordinary ruler to sit at his table leaning comfortably back in his chair and meeting all, save a few special friends, with such an air of stony indifference.

He was rather nicely caught, however, the other day. A friend of mine called on him and asked in respect to the status of a case. The high and mighty party could not remember anything about it. After a good deal of conversation my friend finally said: "Well, Mr. , I was out here by the way, and I naturally supposed that as it was in the scope of your duties you could give it. I will return and tell you that you are unable to do so." The way the hitherto ignorant man jumped to his feet and began with the utmost volubility to impart that which was most plainly obvious, that the post to the contrary notwithstanding, there is a good deal after all in a man's capacity if he is that of a superior.

"Milkman's Remedy."

As might naturally be supposed, many specious attempts have been made to justify the use of an amatoxin in the form of "Milkman's Remedy." It being claimed that it is absolutely harmless. A German chemist has discovered in amatoxin a poisonous substance having a resemblance to the trichin parasite, which finds its favorite habitat in bugs. He says that he has found these parasites in every sample of an amatoxin which he has examined. He describes the worm as colorless, without prominent color markings, with blunt head and long needle pointed tail. It is of various sizes and keeps up a lively movement under the microscope. Before this discovery there were ample reasons for condemning it into the "hell" in question. If amatoxin was necessary certainly it is now furnished.

The time has passed when budding geniuses like Keats can be killed by lunaticism, or, like Chatterton, driven from the world through neglect. One of the faults of our age is its encouragement of literary mediocrity, and persons fit only to be called penny- liners submit with complacency to fulsome praise of their "works" trumpeted abroad by unwise persons.

During her lifetime, so modest and unassuming was this gentle woman, that few of her readers knew even her name, and none of them, to speak broadly, knew more than that she had the greatest dislike for playing the role of literary lion, and once, when her fame was fully established, wrote that she was "righteously" because a strange lady wished to be introduced to her.

"If I am a wild beast, I cannot help it," she declared. "It is not my fault."

Although her works have always been the delight of the cultured few, its effect in shutting itself away from the knowledge of men, and it was that sixty years after her death that the first memoir of her was published.

More than twenty years ago a gentleman visiting Winchester cathedral asked a verger to show him Jane Austen's tomb. The man readily guided him to the slab of black marble, and the visitor stood for some time studying the inscription with keen interest. As he turned away, his guide said in an apologetic tone: "Pray, sir, can you tell me whether there was anything particular about that lady? So many people want to know where she was buried."

Queer Marriage Notices. The following queer marriage notices have been culled from old newspapers published within the last hundred years. Some of them seem, it must be admitted, to have been made up for the occasion, and we do not vouch for the fact that any one of the notices is genuine, except the first, which reports the marriage of one of the most famous of New Hampshire politicians.

In Concord, N. H., Feb. 2, 1814, Mr. Isaac Hill, one of the editors of The Patriot, to Miss Susan Ayer, daughter of Capt. Richard Ayer.

Through Concord street I took my way; I saw a sight I thought quite rare— A girl walked out to take the Ayer, Since then our air has never been together I think there'll be a change of weather.

In Haverhill, Mass., August, 1823, Cotton K. Simpson of Pembroke, N. H., to Miss Sarah H. Marble.

An old calculation of gain and loss Proves a note that is rolling with gather no more; A happy exposure of our marriage makes; By which Marble may gather and cultivate Coe.

In Durham, Conn., August, 1819, Mr. John Bate of Wilchester, Mass., to Miss Mary Ann Bate of the former place, after a courtship of only one hour.

In this not signing well, I ask, Such tender bait to take? He caught in one short hour a Bess, The Bess, though, caught the Bess.

In Westbury, N. Y., Dec. 18, 1825, Stephen Burmyer, aged 73, a Revolutionary pensioner, to Miss Sarah H. Marble, aged 28.

In Washington May 17, 1824, Joshua Peck to Miss Amelia Dushoff.

Alamers, bold and wedding cake! What changes of our marriage makes! Quick as a thought, at Hymen's beck! A blush changed into a Peck!

At Herculaneum, Mo., May 23, 1821, John W. Honey, Esq., to Miss Mary Ann Bate.

From sweet flowers the honey bee Can scarce a drop of honey gather; But oh, how sweet a flower is love! Who turns to Honey altogether!

At Herculaneum, Mo., May 23, 1821, John W. Honey, Esq., to Miss Mary Ann Bate.

A tramp was arrested in Wood county, O., the other day, for cruelty to animals. In the course of one week he clubbed thirty-two farmers' dogs to death without receiving a bite in return, and several loads of buckshot fired at him failed to take effect. He hails from Michigan, of course.—Detroit Free Press.

The great created fly catcher and several other birds to fight an exceedingly novel method to destroy every other kind of lizard that would prey upon their eggs. They wind into their nests one or more of the old skins which have been shed by snakes, so that these appear to be live snakes coiled about the nests.

BROKEN OUT!

How often do we see this on the faces of children and, alas, of people who otherwise are healthy? What causes it? Bad Blood. The thought is terrible; the trouble is worse. No ordinary help can remove it. It requires something unusual. Do not take cheap sarsaparilla or blood purifiers. You must have something that has proven its power in both Europe and America. General Wheatcroft, Nelson, of London, says: "My experience in the English army, as well as in America, convinces me that nothing so thoroughly purifies the blood, or adds to the health, vigor and life, as Dr. Allen's English Blood Purifier."

ALL ABOUT PEANUTS.

How They Are Raised and Prepared For the Market.

Most of the Virginia and North Carolina peanut crop, which is about two-thirds of the whole crop of the country, is marketed in Norfolk and Petersburg. The rest, with the whole crop of Tennessee, is carried to St. Louis or Cincinnati. In each of these cities are fact ries where the nuts are they are delivered by the farmer or bought. The nuts as they appear at this stage, with earth and their stems still clinging to them, are hardly to be recognized as the bright nuts we afterward see on the corner stand.

To polish them, and to remove the earth and stems, the nuts are scoured in large iron cylinders, from which they pass through blast fans, in which a strong current of air separates the fully developed nuts having sound kernels from those imperfectly filled, and empty pods. The sound nuts fall through the fan upon picking tables, where those which are discolored are taken out, and the bright ones are passed into sacks which will each hold about 100 pounds of nuts. Each sack is marked with the brand which indicates the grade of its contents.

The dark and the partially filled nuts are shelled, and the kernels are used by confectioners in making peanut candy. The work of picking over and separating the nuts is performed by little girls, about 20 of whom are employed at every table.

Three varieties of peanuts are grown in this country, the white, the red and the Spanish. The white, which is the most important variety, has a nut with two kernels, with pink skins; its vice spreads along the ground, in this respect unlike that of the red variety, which grows more upright and in a bunch.

The pod of the red nut holds three, and sometimes four kernels, and has a deep red skin. The Spanish is a much smaller nut, with a lighter skin and milder flavor than either of the others. The entire crop is shelled, and used especially in that rich confection known as nougat.

In 1880 the consumption of peanuts in the United States was less than 2,000,000 bushels. In 1887 the amount had increased to four and a third million bushels all of which was eaten in the United States and Canada. The demand for peanuts has trebled in the past few years, and the crop has never been sufficient to supply the demand.

The peanut is a more useful product than grain in general. It is used to be. The nuts contain from 42 to 50 per cent of nearly colorless, bland, fixed oil, which resembles olive oil, and is used for similar purposes. This oil is principally employed in the manufacture of the finer grades of soap.

In 1883 Virginia began to manufacture peanut flour, which makes a peculiarly palatable biscuit and North Carolina has a mag made pastry of powdered peanuts. It is also eaten for dessert, and is roasted as a substitute for coffee.

The peanut is very nutritive. The negroes use it in very many places in making porridge, custard, and prepare from it a beverage. The vine forms a fodder as good as clover hay, and hogs fatten on what they find on the fields after the crop has been gathered. —Youth's Companion.

THE SAVING HABIT.

Some Hints That May Prove Useful to Many Wasteful Young Men.

The following hints on the forming of a habit of saving will prove interesting to many Albany spendthrifts. The number of people who have not at some time in their lives enjoyed an income in excess of their immediate wants is so inconsiderable that it is not worth while to make a computation. The mistake with many is that they will not look out for the future. One of the most difficult of undertakings is that of teaching some people to live within the income, to save whenever possible. Good fortune or ability may secure employment for a young man that will bring him in a sum much larger than his needs require. His spirits are buoyed up. He sees no clouds in the future's skies. He tells himself that having begun so well he must do better as the years go on. So he spends his money for expensive dress and in other channels. The habit of extravagance, instead of the habit of saving, is contracted. Some of the young man's money is thrown away in the gratification of tastes that lower his value to his employer. In times, either through business depression or his own inattention, he is deprived of employment. If he be a fellow of grit and is capable of self-examination, he sits in judgment upon himself and condemns his own foolishness. If he be a weak brother he speedily becomes useless to the world. His habits of extravagance may lead him into forbidden paths.

The habit of saving taught by parents has been the means of saving many a young man. Thrift, without meanness, is honorable and honored all the world over. The young man who saves is sure to become a valuable citizen. He is certain to be a good father and husband. When the rainy day comes and age puts its hand upon him he need have no fear. The young man who profers a good time is working against himself. If he has a good time at the beginning he is likely to have a hard time at the end. Youth is strong, and is capable of self-denial. Age is weak, and after it has fought the battle of life, it ought not to be compelled to practice all the arts of saving. —Kingston (N. Y.) Leader.

JUSTICE EASILY MISTAKEN.

An Innocent Man Permits Himself to Be Convicted of a Brother's Crime.

"Years ago," said one of the well known members of the Louisville bar, "I was called on to defend a man of nearly middle age, who was accused of having stabbed a man in a quarrel on the street. Imagine my astonishment when at the first consultation he told me these facts: 'Yesterday afternoon,' said he, 'about dusk, my brother, who resembles me somewhat, was crossing the street, when he met a stranger coming the other way. The crossing was muddy, the stranger jostled him, and a quarrel ensued that developed into a fight, in which my brother, who had his penknife in his hand, stabbed his opponent several times, and then ran away as a policeman and several citizens came up. After we were all in bed last night, the officers came to the house after the warrant was made out against me. My brother is a man of dissipated habits, who has several times been in trouble, and if the case is pressed against him I am afraid he will be sent to the penitentiary. On the other hand, I am a law abiding citizen, and can prove an excellent character. Now, what I propose to do is to stand trial on this charge, plead not guilty, and let the case be determined, and in order to do him justice in the defense I obtained the assistance of another lawyer, who did not know the facts, and would act in the defense as if our client was guilty. Well, the case came up. My client was identified by the jury as the man who had committed the crime, and by the policeman and other interested parties who had witnessed the fight in the semi darkness and were sure of their man, as they thought. My client swore that he did not commit the assault, but that he was at home at the time when it occurred, and his family swore to that fact. Then several leading members of the church testified as to his good character. But the jury found him guilty and fined him $50. He paid it without a murmur, and the record of the trial was entered in the court. All through the trial my client's guilty brother sat by his side in the court and heard the testimony without flinching. I asked him what he would have done if his self sacrificing brother had been sentenced to the penitentiary. 'I intended, in that case,' said he, 'to get up in court and acknowledge my own guilt.' The other lawyer was thunderstruck after the trial when I told him the facts. He refused to believe it, and said the evidence was sufficient to convict any man who lived. Only the proof of good character saved the accused from a severe sentence to the state prison." —Louisville Courier-Journal.

Deep Breathing.

Deep inhalation is said to be the key to health and beauty. Breathing, however, is a dangerous thing taken in small draughts. Breathe well as drink, deep if you would be refreshed. Men of science frequently assert that, if we breathed properly, we would have no impure blood. How is this deep breathing done? by what process? Simply thus. Stand, inhale deeply, fully, completely, you do so, let the waist expand, and don't be afraid to have the abdomen protrude. At the last of the inhalation let (don't make) the chest expand. Let the air out gradually, and repeat the operation five or ten times. The stuff which must begin inhalation by making the chest expand, falls into a serious error, because this course prevents complete inhalation. Thirty or forty deep inhalations every morning in as pure air as possible, will do more to keep the circulation of the blood good, the blood itself pure, the lungs well and strong, and the movements of the secretions active, than all the medicine any one can take.

Ladies who increase themselves in corsets which narrow their waists to painful proportions, or no proportions at all, by their practice deep inhalation. Neither is it for the tailor made girl; she has all she can do to breathe at all, and stagger under the weight of heavy skirts which hang upon her bustle. —Hall's Journal of Health.

A Thing of the Past.

Mrs. Frank Leslie wrote something the other day in which she advised a man who couldn't afford to wear a clean collar every day to wear celluloid. She could have written nothing more absurd. Celluloid collars and cuffs have practically been off the market for years, and a St. Louis admirer of Mrs. Leslie who wanted to take her advice would have a long tramp round among the stores before he got what he wanted. A man wearing celluloid collars and cuffs on the street would be a marked economist. The stuff became unpopular for a very good reason. It was uncleanly, didn't look well after a day or two's wear, and a man who kept himself neat with celluloid found that it cost him just as much as linen and a laundry. The best linen collars and cuffs are very cheap now, much cheaper than they were when celluloid was first used, and a man couldn't save a cent by wearing celluloid now. —Interview in St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Complimentary.

It is a delicate proceeding to tell a woman that you do not like the music she makes, but in case of necessity the thing can be done. A gentleman with a sensitive and cultivated ear was greatly annoyed by the persistent and wretched piano playing of a woman who occupied the room over his head. One day he met her in the hall accompanied by her three-year-old daughter. "Your little girl plays quite well for a child of her age," he remarked in the most friendly manner. "I hear her practicing every day." —Youth's Companion.

THE LONG LOST CONTINENT.

Some Interesting Theories Regarding the Submerged Atlantis.

Plato's Story of the Island—Descriptions Given by Several Other Ancient Writers.

An ancient and picturesque Greek myth claimed the existence of a celebrated island, Atlantis, supposed to have existed at a very early period in the Atlantic ocean, and to have eventually been so thoroughly destroyed by an earthquake that the Atlantic rolled over the spot where it once flourished.

Plato was the first to give a comprehensive account of the island, crediting what information he gave to the priests of Egypt. His story was substantially as follows:

In the Atlantic ocean, not a great distance from the Pillars of Hercules (Gibraltar), was an island of greater extent than all Asia and Africa taken together, and in its vicinity were other islands, from which there was a passage to a large continent lying far beyond in the farthest west. The Mediterranean, compared with the vast ocean in which these islands were situated, resembled a mere harbor with a narrow entrance. Nine thousand years before this island of Atlantis was thickly settled and very powerful. It had conquered all Africa, even as far as Egypt, and its sway extended over Europe as far as the Tyrrhenian sea, situated between Corsica and Italy. The further progress of its conquests, however, was checked by the Greek states.

A short time after this a violent earthquake, which continued for nearly a day and a night, and was accompanied by enormous waves and inundations of the sea, caused the island to sink, and for some centuries subsequent to this the sea in that quarter was impassable, owing to the reefs and the shoals.

Such was the history of the land as Plato gave it. Other ancient writers described the island as extremely productive, producing wine and grain and fruit in abundance. There were extensive and rich pasture grounds, rich mines of both the base and the fine minerals, vast and valuable forests, hot and mineral springs. Commerce was carried on to a vast scale. The land was rich and plentiful in every way. There were ten kingdoms, each governed by a king, who claimed to be descended from Neptune, and white-winged peace brooded over all. There were numerous and splendid cities and many populous towns. The harbors sheltered vessels that carried the products of every country then known, and Neptune was the principal legislator and divinity of the people of the lost land.

There have been many theories advanced and many books written on the subject. One theory, held in especial favor by many scholars, is that America is the Atlantis of Plato, and many arguments are advanced in support of this idea. For instance, it is easy to connect the legend of the lost Atlantis with the remains of a very remote civilization which are now found in Mexico and Central America, where there are ruins of cities the style of whose architecture carries us back to Pelagic times; and one writer states that the religious symbols and ornaments connected with these remains call strongly to mind the mysteries of early Greek antiquity.

These curious remains of a grand civilization are long anterior to Mexican times, and attention is called to the curious information of the American continent, along the shores of the gulf of Mexico, where everything indicates a sinking at a remote period of a vast tract of land, the site of which, it is said, is now occupied by the waters of the gulf. The mountain tops of this sunken land now appear as islands, forming the group of the West Indies.

Other theories held are that Atlantis was actually situated in the Atlantic ocean, and point to the Canaries, the Azores and the Madeira isles as having formed portions of it; and some writers have claimed that it extended as far as Newfoundland.

A Charming Anarchist.

The most brilliant if the most powerful anarchist in New York is Miss Dr. Kelly, in Seventh street. She is a young woman of remarkable beauty, culture and intellectuality. She is a very able physician and enjoys a large and lucrative practice. She has been a student of political and social economy since her girlhood, and has at her tongue's end the words of La Salle, Marx, Fourier, Godin, Blind, Mill, Holyoake and Herbert Spencer. She has a personal following of about 8,000 whose faith in her is almost fanaticism. She is what is called a "pacific anarchist," and does not believe in dynamite, poison or bloodshed, but advocates the conversion of the community by lectures, essays, pamphlets and books.

"Man was made to mourn, but need he suffer unnecessarily? For every poppy there is an antidote and happily blood-bilder is the antidote to many evils that poison man's existence. This great vegetable specific is the most valuable that medical research has succeeded in wresting from the secret depths of science. It is a surprisingly controlling power in cases of cancer and tumors, it reduces glandular swellings, alleviates epilepsy, regulates the bowels, promotes digestion, tones the stomach, induces sleep, sustains against fatigue and expels scrofulous and all other liquid derangements. ### EASTERN MARRIAGES.

Elaborate Ceremonies That Usually Last About a Week.

The wedding ceremonies usually last about a week, and the maiden comes to the house of her husband to be married. She is supposed to bring a trousseau with her, and this consists of a good lot of clothes and underclothes, of linen and bedding, of copper kitchen utensils, and of the Turkish furniture for a couple of rooms. The furniture of a Turkish house is not very elaborate. The family usually sleeps on the floor, and a set of bedding consists of two mattresses, two quilts and three cotton bolsters. The family eat largely upon trays, and the Turks believe that fingers are a good deal cleaner than knives and forks. Weddings are very expensive. Large amounts of money are given away to beggars, and wedding gowns cost three hundred dollars and upwards. The feasting goes on at the houses of both bridegroom and bride, and the wedding feast usually begins on Monday. On Tuesday the bride is taken to the bath, and the bridegroom pays the expenses of this operation. On Wednesday the bridegroom's lady friends go to the house of the bride, where they have a concert and feast. At this time the hands of the bride are stained with henna, and they begin to deck her out for the wedding. On Thursday the bride is taken to the groom's house in a great procession. She is met by the groom, and the two eat candy together after the manner of the exchange of gum or wax of girls in the primary schools. The idea is that nothing but sweetness is hereafter to pass from the lips of one to the other. The bridegroom has not seen the bride until this time. At the time of the betrothal the mother of the groom takes a present of candy to the bride. The blushing maiden bites one of the choicest bits in two, eats half of it, and sends the other half back to her prospective husband. He is supposed to receive it with joy as a love-offering, and to eat it, smacking his lips, and saying, "Yum, yum." Weddings usually take place in the afternoon. The bridegroom says a prayer in the presence of the bride, and he kneels on her bridal veil as he does so. The groom has to get the bride to speak before supper will be served, and it is a matter of pride with her to keep silent as long as possible. —F. G. Carpenter, in National Tribune.

THE MEN-PECKED MAN.

A Discourse By Rev. Augustus D. Barker, of the First Baptist Church, New York.

Do women who hen-peck her husband am berry numerous in dis bash kernumity. De American gal takes naturally ter hen-peckin' her husband as soon as she has got one. Befoah she am married she thinks for her-self. After she is married she thinks for him, too. Bredderen and sisters, ter my mnd one ob de most solemnob fac's am dat Benjamin Franklin nobber discovered de lightning' ontill after he was married. Hlt's de same wid lots ob men whose names haln't Franklin. I can prove dat by you, can't I, Uncle M-se?

I nobber knowed but one man who boasted dat he had nobber gibben his wife a cross word in twenty years, and de nabors allowed he was afoered to. Dat explains away de mystery.

De Froerological Journal says dat in choosin' a wife we should be governed by her chin. A man am mighty apt ter be governed by de same thing after he's married.

De good book says dat de scoldin' wife am like a rainy day. Now, as a general thing I don't 'spate de troof ob de Bible, but in dis case I borieves de inspired penman was off his base, for you goes inter de house to 'scape from a rainy day, but you goes out de house ter 'scape de scoldin' wife.

You has all read or heered about Bismarck, de man what keeps the peopies ob Europe in a cold perspiration. He am called "de iron chascelor," but when his wife tells him ter take his moderate, or ter go to bed, he does less what he says.

De two gawdites what tests a man's bravory—marriage and deff. But after he has passed de first one he don't mind de second.

Dar's more or less trouble in ebery family. Yer can't shet out domestic troubles like yer can de wind, or de rain, or de sunshine, by stuffin' old hats and close in de windys.

Dis am a big kentry, but hit ala't half big er-uff for de man whose wife am cha'n' him roun' de block wid a chair leg.

De kerleahun for de benefit ob de pasture will now be taken up while de quiet sings:

A man am lord ob creation, And nigger's Texas, till he's wed, When a woman kin easily beat him, And pull all de wool off his head. —Texas Siftings.

—Sometimes names are in keeping with the fine-s of things. Take, for instance, "Popp's compressed air system." What more appropriate name for the inventor of a "compressed air system" than "Popp"? Air is compressed in a vessel, and then "Popp goes the wessel," which ancient ditty if revived and adapted to the occasion might achieve a new Popp-ularity. —Punch.

"When you were running for office, didn't you feel hurt by the cartoons and caricatures that were published in the comic papers?" asked a gentleman of a prominent politician. "Hurt by a regular politician like myself just about as much as having his shadow on the wall battled by a goat." —The candid reply. —Texas Siftings.

New Papers Are Read.

It is peculiar how personal characteristics manifest themselves.

"It is peculiar how personal characteristics manifest themselves," said an elderly gentleman in the elevated cars to his equally elderly companion, "and perhaps not the least noticeable is the way different people read newspapers, especially in public conveyances. Everybody has his own set way. Take the way they hold them. Did it ever strike you in how many different ways this can be and is done?" This peculiarity had never struck his friend, so the elderly gentleman, who wore a shining silk hat, a pair of gold rimmed spectacles and a white lawn tie, continued his aphorisms. "Just look across at those men on the other side. No two are reading their papers in the same way." The eavesdropper at his side also looked across, and the observation was true. One man had doubled his sheet, another had made it into a quarto, still another had folded it into three straight sections the full length of the column. "I have found," continued the oracle, "that a large proportion of the men read the papers folded in half, the shorter rimmed spectacles come next, and the full length sections next. It is rarely you see two men sitting side by side reading a paper the same way. There was a momentary pause filled by the rustle of some assenting newspaper, and the oracle again remarked: the way of holding a paper shows the man as surely as the way he walks. The refined, educated man carefully crosses his paper, sees that it is in compact shape, and then goes systematically through it, passing from column to column and page to page, with ease and facility, whereas the shiftless, uncouth man bunches it into wads and goes through it as if hunting for something in a rag bag." —New York Times.

Supersedes the Silkworm.

If Moussa Effendi Khouri is right, the value of silkworms will soon be very much depreciated. This gentleman is a Syrian and a native of Beyrout. For years he has been trying to manufacture silk without the aid of silkworms, and now he claims he has succeeded. He has patented his invention in the east and in all the countries of Europe. In this country he has also filed an application for a patent. After studying for a long time the manner in which silkworms do their work, Moussa Effendi Khouri came to the conclusion that quite a fine silk could be made out of the twigs and bark of the mulberry tree, as is made at present from the leaves. He therefore experimented with the bark and twigs, discarding the services of the worm altogether, and, after years of labor he succeeded in producing a silk which has been pronounced by European experts to be no whit inferior to the article manufactured by silkworms.

In appreciation of Moussa Effendi Khouri's devotion to science, the Turkish government has granted him certain rights over all the mulberry trees in the sultan's domains. "So long as I have enough mulberry trees," says Khouri, "I can produce silk at less than half what it costs when produced by silkworms." —New York Herald.

Lime Water and Milk.

When the stomach is intolerant of food, it is the general practice of physicians to order lime water to be given with milk; and, if they are rightly given, they are almost always well borne. But, unless duly instructed as to the necessary proportions of each, the majority of people are quite sure to make the mistake of not using enough lime water. It is, of course, only of value as an antacid, and it is but very slightly alkaline. As compared with the bicarbonate of soda, an ordinary dose of the same is equivalent to six ounces of lime water. So a tablespoonful of the latter in a cup of milk—the scanty proportion used by many in sickness—is really of no value. To obtain an action at any moment, it is necessary in giving milk and lime water to have the mixture contain the latter in the proportion of at least one-third. Very often where they are in equal parts the milk is vomited up in hard, sour curds, in which event, if the mixture has not been given too freely, it is best to use a stronger antacid. Bicarbonate of soda is a good substitute, and about a teaspoonful should be dissolved in a large cupful of water, and that solution be added to the milk in place of the lime water. —Boston Herald.

Women's Shoes.

An active woman will destroy more upper leather in the house in a given time than she will on the street; there are many more obstacles to the square yard to be encountered in the house than on the street; more stair climbing, more rubbing of feet on the chair rounds, and last, but not least, more feet sat upon in that luxurious feminine pose.

The wear of uppers of women's shoes by the friction of the skirts is greater than many people suppose. Men's trousers do very little damage, compared to the heavy and constant rubbing of the skirts against the back of the shoes.

There are no shoes made for women that will compare with men's calf skin shoes in durability under hard knocks. Unfortunately women do not and will not wear calf skin shoes; they are at a disadvantage in this respect. —Philadelphia Record.

With a Lock of Hair.

A very old Hallow eve divination, formerly much practiced by English rustics to tell from what quarter of the compass future husband or wife will come, is performed by stealing out unobserved at midnight, plucking a small lock of hair from one's head, and casting it to the breeze. Whichever direction it is blown toward is believed to be the location of the future matrimonial partner. This divination is also mentioned by Gay in his "Pastorals" as follows:

I pluck this lock of hair from out my head To tell whence comes the one I shall wed, Fly, silver hair, fly all the world around, Until you reach the spot where my true love is found.

THE LEADING WEEKLY PAPER OF THE NORTHWEST!

And every one interested in the advancement of Central Washington generally and Yakima County particularly cannot better assist than by the up-building of the greatest factor in aiding the development of a country—a Good Paper!

DEATH OF AN OLD PIONEER.—On Monday Ellaha McDaniel, one of the pioneers of the northwest and a man who has contributed much to the up-building of this country, quietly and peacefully was ferried over that unfathomable river to be numbered among the silent majority. Mr. McDaniel was born in Kentucky on the 8th day of January, 1833. He removed from Kentucky to Missouri, and from there, in 1844, he crossed the plains and settled in the Willamette valley, Oreg., near the town of Independence, where he amassed a large fortune. In 1857 he came to Yakima with the Oregon volunteers to assist in quieting the Indians, who were then getting troublesome. In the succeeding few years, after his return to his Oregon home, he suffered heavy losses, having through his kindness of heart gone security for a number of supposed friends, who, in almost every instance, left Mr. McDaniel to pay the bills. In this way he lost $50,000 in one year, which was the commencement of the end of a splendid property, he having been considered at one time the wealthiest man in Oregon. When his financial troubles were upon him the remembrance of the beautiful valley of the Yakima was constantly before him, and gathering up the remnants of his fortune he journeyed to this place in 1861 and settled on the Cock ranch, just this side of Jock Morgan's, where he engaged in the raising of cattle. At that time there were not more than a dozen families of whites on this side of the Columbia, and the whites were frequently in trouble from the raids of Indians. For the past four years the deceased has been living on a claim on the south fork of the Cowlitz, where he looked after a few head of stock. He leaves a wife and seven boys and one girl, all of whom were born in Oregon. The remains of this old pioneer were laid away in their final resting-place Tuesday evening. May peace be with him, and may he be judged by his many good actions, for he was a kind-hearted, generous man.

THE YAKIMA COAL FIELDS.—James Baxter and party returned this week from the Yakima coal fields at the headwaters of the Cowlitz, where they have been engaged in the work of development for several months past. Mr. Baxter gives a glowing account of the find, and says the coal is genuine anthracite without doubt. One of the developed claims shows a vein fifteen feet in depth encased in good walls. A representative of the Union Pacific has been to the mines lately and has made a very favorable report to his company. Other railroad companies are negotiating for the coal, and there are lively prospects of a railroad soon being built thereto. Samuel Vinson will leave for the mines the latter part of this week to make still further investigation.

ARE THEY THE WALLULA MURDERERS?—Indian Charley, a weak-eyed Siwash, who generally acts as court interpreter, was in the city Wednesday with the report that there are two wild Indian men in Coyote canyon who are constantly frightening and menacing Indians and others who go into the canyon on the outlook for stock. Charley claims that they go about in an almost nude condition and that they are the possessors of firearms. He is of the opinion that they are the Wallula Indians who committed a couple of murders near that place a year or two ago.

RESERVATION CHANGES.—The inventory of stock and supplies on the reservation has been taken and the showing made re-opens greatly to the credit of the retiring agent, Captain Priestley. J. G. Boyle succeeds Mr. Bennett as clerk, and St. Wiley becomes industrial teacher vice H. J. Kilgour. These appointments are subject to confirmation at Washington. It is reported that Agent Stabler will also have Dr. J. O. Clark and Peter Sanford Burke on his staff as soon as the present incumbents can be gotten out.

THE CALICO BALL A SUCCESS.—The calico ball given at the Hotel Yakima on Friday evening of last week proved, as THE HERALD predicted, a complete success. The costumes were attractive, the music good, and the supper in Mr. Steiner's best style. Mrs. W. J. Roof won the prize dress pattern for being the best waltzer and Mrs. W. H. Getz carried off the silver car receiver for the most taking costume of calico. The judges of award were W. H. Chapman and G. W. Courter.

REPRESENTATIVES OF THE STATE'S WEALTH.—The officers and executive council of the Bankers' association will meet in this city on Friday, May 24, for the purpose of arranging a program for their annual meeting at Spokane Falls, and for the transaction of such other matters as may come before the council. The citizens will entertain their financial guests with a dinner at the Hotel Yakima Friday evening, after which an adjournment will be taken to the Yakima club rooms.

SEE THE WEST SIDE GROW.—The growth of the city on the west of the track is really wonderful. With the opening of the second two or three houses are started every week, and a once-looked-down-upon section is rapidly becoming populous and thrifty. Over fifty dwellings have been built on the west side during the past year, and lots that were formerly a drug on the market at nominal prices are now ready sale at good figures.

TWO DAILY TRAINS.—The Northern Pacific has nominated May 15th as the date on which their through train service between St. Paul and Portland will be increased to two daily trains and the running time reduced by twelve hours. This was made necessary by the increase in travel and the fact that the Union Pacific schedule time to Portland is six hours less than that of the Northern Pacific according to present schedules.

The "Elite" cigar store was opened to the public this week. The ice cream parlors in the rear are rapidly being fitted and furnished, and Mr. Arendt expects to be able to supply the heated populace with ices about the middle of next week.

Shardlow & McDaniel call attention of the public to an excellent article of claret which they now carry in stock. No better table wine can be procured anywhere, and, when mixed with soda, it makes the best of summer drinks—healthful and cooling.

A post of the Sons of Veterans was organized in this city on Saturday night of last week. There were about thirty members who signed the rolls. It is expected this number will be largely increased, as there are upwards of two hundred lads in the county who are eligible to membership.

The annual meeting of the Washington Biochemic Medical society was held in this city on the 1st of May. Dr. Wm. Chapman, of Klickitat county, was elected president; J. W. Beck, vice president; C. L. Gano, secretary; J. B. Chapman, treasurer; G. W. Carey, J. B. Chapman, J. G. Lawrence, trustees. The college rooms are now in the Syndicate building on Second street. Drs. Olmsted and Carey will take charge of the Spokane Falls branch about the 1st of June.

PERSONAL.

Banker Horace L. Cutter, of Spokane Falls, is in the city.

Col. E. W. Pike, commander of the Second regiment N. G. W., is in the city.

H. F. Garretson and E. T. Furness, of Tacoma, are among the guests of the Hotel Yakima.

Miss Annie Monroe returned from Seattle Monday, where she is an attendant of the state university.

W. H. Wade, of the St. Paul Dispatch, is in the city making copious notes regarding the great Yakima country.

Mrs. O. Wiswell left to-day for Ellensburg to care for her daughter, Mrs. Gilliam, who is suffering with whooping cough.

Dr. Thomas McAnaland, of Yakima City, returned from California on Friday last greatly improved in health and looking very robust for his years.

B. A. Staggs returned on Wednesday from Ohio. He reports that Mr. Lawhead is now in California, but will join him in Yakima shortly.

G. W. McKinney, the representative of Crippen, Lawrence & Co., left for Portland last evening after a carload of engines for the Nye and Huffer pumps.

E. R. Mills returned from a trip over eastern Washington and Idaho Wednesday and reports that Yakima shows more life than any of the towns and cities he visited.

Wayne Ferguson and wife, of Spokane Falls, are in the city. Mr. Ferguson is here for the purpose of making some investments in real estate, and it is reported that he has already negotiated for considerable property.

C. B. Wright and party, of Philadelphia, passed through the city Thursday, en route for the Sound. Mr. Frazer Ashurst, one of Mr. Wright's guests, stopped over here and spent a couple of days with Wm. Ker, of the Mosier.

Mrs. Edwards, wife of Lieutenant F. A. Edwards of the First cavalry, passed through the city Tuesday en route from the Yellowstone National park to visit her mother at Tacoma. Mrs. Edwards is a sister of E. M. Reed of THE HERALD, and may visit this city on her way eastward.

NORTH YAKIMA'S WATER WORKS

They Are to Cost $150,000, and Will Be Equal to Any in the State.

In company with Superintendent F. S. Woodward THE HERALD representative on Wednesday took a drive along the line of work of the city water works and looked upon a scene of great activity, while listening to Mr. Woodward's explanations and plans.

The company, which is headed by Hon. Edward Whitson, now has about fifty men on its pay-rolls, and John A. Stone, who has the contract for building the ditch from the Natchez river to the power-house, also has a large force employed. The water is to be taken from the Natchez at a point about four and a quarter miles from Front street, and carried by means of ditch and flume along the skirts of the bench for a distance of three miles to the power-house, from which point the water will be piped throughout the city. The ditch, where it leaves the river, will be 16 feet at the base, 24 feet at the water line and four feet in depth, at the pump station 14 feet at the base, 22 feet at the water line and 4 feet in depth. The contract for the fluming has been let to Robert Scott, and the main flume will be 100 feet in length. On the hill above the power-house a reservoir 72 feet long, 62 feet wide and 9 1/2 feet deep will be constructed for the purpose of filtering and purifying the water. From the reservoir the water has a fall of 38 feet over the bank through a 60-inch sheet-iron pipe, which furnishes the power to drive the two pairs of horizontal turbine wheels, which will develop 275 horse-power. Here the race is being excavated. It will be 10 feet deep for a distance of 340 feet. The contract for the power-house, which will be of brick, with a corrugated iron roof, 40x83 feet on the ground, has been let to Robert Scott. About the power-house attractive grounds are to be laid off, trees planted and gardens made, forming a tempting spot for sight-seers and picnic parties.

The system used will be the Holly, which has been so thoroughly tested and is said to be so well known that little need be said about it. In the power-house will be located two pumps, with a capacity of a million and a half gallons each, and two dynamos for the arc and incandescent electric lights.

It is proposed to have the works in operation by the middle of July, if men and money will accomplish that end, and nearly seven hundred tons of pipes now decorate our streets, a reminder to our citizens of the enterprise of Mr. Whitson and associates, who will expend upwards of $150,000 in this undertaking.

Rainbow falls, situated on one of the tributaries of the Ste-he-kin river, is one of the attractions of the Chelan county that promises to be a point of interest to tourists. The sparkling waters of Rainbow creek fall a distance of about 300 feet, and when the sun strikes the spray and mist at the foot a rainbow is formed which gives the name to the falls and the stream.

Messrs. Shardlow & McDaniel are having a splendid and very convenient beer pump located in their saloon to-day. They have arranged for handling the Anheuser-Busch beer, as well as the genuine old black Bavarian beer, which will soon be on tap. The beer will be stored in ice in the cellar and drawn, by means of the pumps, from under the counter without inconvenience or the usual splutter and surry.

YAKIMA & PACIFIC COAST.

A Railroad from Yakima to Shoalwater Bay.

THE N. P. AWAKE TO THE SITUATION.

Articles of Incorporation Filed—Immense Capitalization of the Company.

Tacoma Globe, May 1: The boom in railway development continues, schemes having for their object the placing of a veritable gridiron of iron avenues over the surface of Washington being plentiful as flies in hay time.

The Union Pacific, the second in rank of the cross-country giants, first awoke the echoes when through its official personnel came the tocsin announcing the intention to invade the new state. The news of the extension of its system into Washington by the great Southern Pacific was heralded, then that irrepresible seeker after new territory and big bonuses, George Washington Hunt, kept things moving by the publication of his plans in Washington.

Mostly, of all the lines directly interested in the railway development of this state, the great Northern Pacific during all these stirring times has been the most silent. Now comes this great corporation and at one fell swoop it knocks out in point of the stupendousness of its scheme of development any, either under way or in contemplation by any other line.

The proposition is to invest capital aggregating $5,000,000 in a brand new line of railway from the flourishing young city of North Yakima, in the heart of one of the most productive agricultural and mineral sections of the Pacific Northwest, westerly to Shoalwater bay.

The articles of incorporation appended show that the enterprise is essentially founded by private parties, mostly Tacomaans. It will also be noted that the name given the corporation is not that of the Northern Pacific company. Nevertheless when the fact is considered that the incorporators are leading officials of the Northern Pacific; that the articles of incorporation were drawn up by the attorney or attorneys of that road, in the headquarters building, it will be apparent that Washington's latest railway enterprise is fostered by the Northern Pacific people. Work on the new road is to be commenced without delay and pushed to completion as speedily as men and money can do it. These are the articles of incorporation.

Know all by these presents, that we, the undersigned, C. H. Prescott, H. S. Huson, W. O. Chapman and James M. Ashton, all citizens of the United States and residents of the state of Washington, do hereby associate ourselves together for the purpose of forming an incorporation under and by virtue of the laws of said state and for the purpose of erecting and creating ourselves a body corporate and politic, in fact and in name we do hereby make, execute, acknowledge and enter into these articles of incorporation (in triplicate), certifying as follows, to-wit:

First—The name of the company hereby incorporated shall be the "Yakima & Pacific Coast Railway Company."

Second—The object for which this company is formed is to lay out, locate, construct, equip, maintain and operate a continuous railroad and telegraph line, with the appurtenances, beginning at the city of North Yakima, Yakima county, State of Washington, and running in a general westerly direction, along and by way of the valley of the Natchez river, or its tributaries, across the Cascade mountains, at or near Cowlitz pass, thence down the Cowlitz river in a general westerly direction through Lewis county to a point at or near the city of Chehalis in said county; thence westerly by way of the valley of the Chehalis river to the head waters of the Willapa river; to some point at the head of Shoalwater bay, at or near the town of South Bend; together with a branch from some point on said bay at or near said town of South Bend, running in a general northwesterly direction through the counties of Pacific and Chehalis to a point on the south side of Gray's harbor; also a branch railroad and a telegraph line beginning at a point on said bay, at or near said town of South Bend, thence running in a general southerly direction through Pacific county to a point on the Columbia river, opposite Astoria; thence from said point opposite Astoria in a westerly direction down the north bank of the Columbia river to the Pacific ocean; and from thence due north through Pacific county and along the spit between Shoalwater bay and the ocean to Leadbetter point. All of said lines of railroad, whether main lines or branches, being located within the state of Washington.

Also to construct, use and maintain elevators, warehouses, storehouses, depots, wharves, etc., and all such appliances and facilities as may be necessary to properly operate and maintain said railroad and telegraph lines. Also to borrow money, issue bonds and secure the same by mortgage on all or any of assets or properties. Also to build, purchase, own and hire tugs, lighters, tugs, barges, ships and vessels, whether propelled by steam or sail, and to hire out, mortgage, pledge, sell and dispose of the same or any part thereof.

Also to make and carry into effect any arrangement for any union of stock, properties and interests, or for any consolidation or amalgamation, either of the whole or in part, with any company or companies, association, person or persons having any object or objects similar to or kindred with this company.

Third—The amount of the capital stock of this company shall be $5,000,000, divided into 50,000 shares at the par value of $100 each.

Fourth—The time of this company's existence is fifty years from and after the date of its incorporation.

Fifth—The number of trustees who shall manage the concerns of this company for the first six months of its existence is five, and the names of said trustees are: C. H. Prescott, H. S. Huson, J. H. Mitchell, Jr., E. S. Alexander and James M. Ashton.

In witness whereof we have hereunto set our hands and affixed our seals on this the 28th day of April, A. D. 1902.

C. H. PRESCOTT,
H. S. HUSON,
W. O. CHAPMAN,
JAMES M. ASHTON.

Executed in the presence of Walter Loveday and G. H. Cluna. Acknowledged before Walter Loveday, notary public.

"Also to make and carry into effect any arrangement for any union of stock, properties and interests, or for the consolidation or amalgamation, either of the whole or in part, with any other company or companies, association, person or persons having any object or objects similar to or kindred with this company." say the articles of incorporation. This, in conjunction with the personnel of the incorporators, tells the tale and attaches the enterprise to the Northern Pacific.

The line of the road has been aptly chosen. Throughout its course it traverses one of the richest sections of the state and terminates at the head of one of its choicest harbors. Its construction means at once the development of the vast and rich territory in middle southern Washington and the making of it tributary to the state's west coast harbors and deep sea shipping centers. To Tacoma the building of the building of the line will be of incalculable benefit. As will be noted by reference to the articles of incorporation, provision is made for the construction of a line from the head waters of Shoalwater bay to Gray's Harbor, one of the most magnificent indentations on the state's coast line. Within a year Tacoma will be placed in direct rail communication with Gray's Harbor. As soon as the new branch is built to the head of Shoalwater bay, Tacoma will be placed in direct communication with the fine harbor and the productive country tributary to it. The articles also provide for the construction of a branch south from the new road's terminal to the Columbia river, thence west to the ocean. It will be seen at a glance what a rich section will be opened up to this city and what a valuable trade the metropolis is bound to secure from it. The new road cannot be built too soon to suit Tacoma.

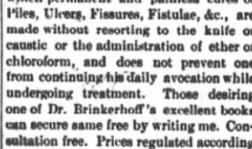

To the Afflicted.

I will be in North Yakima at the Hotel Yakima May 9-23, June 6-20 from 9 a. m. until 2 p. m., when parties may consult with me and receive treatment in my specialties—i. e., Diseases of Women and Rectal Troubles. AN ANCIENT NEWSPAPER.

Contents of a Journal Over a Hundred Years Old.

Lively Descriptions of Legislative Bodies in Massachusetts and Old England.

San Francisco Bulletin: There has been handed to the Bulletin by a well known gentleman of this city a copy of the Pennsylvania Gazette, dated Wednesday, November 24, 1784, which is a curiosity of ancient journalism.

The legal advertisements are mainly confined to sales of real and personal property under writs of venditioni exponas and levari facias, which in our day would be called writs of execution, and to notifying the public to apprehend escaping servants.

Isaac Zane advertises for a "gray mare," lost, strayed or stolen, and George Henry states in six lines that unless all persons indebted to the late Abraham Fisher, deceased, settle before January 1st their accounts will be placed in the hands of a lawyer, which, he adds, will be very "painful" to him.

It appears from the following advertisement that there were matrimonial difficulties in 1784 as well as a hundred years later:

QUEBEC, N. E., Nov. 8, 1874. The subscriber observing herself in the last week's Gazette advertised by her husband, Obed Hudson, is under the necessity of taking the same method, however disagreeable, in order that an impartial public may be acquainted with the grounds of that separation, whereof he appears to complain, and thereby to induce, not to entertain any unfavorable impressions of a truly unfortunate woman.

While the vines are more backward than usual at this season of the year, they show a healthy, vigorous growth the last week or ten days. It does not follow that because the vines make a late start the crop will not be up to the average in quantity. We think with proper cultivation from now on that we will have an average crop in Washington.

We have not heard of any new contracts being made for the coming crop, but we think a few hundred bales of choice Washington could be sold at 13 cents.

All kinds of coffee grow on the one variety of the plant. Each particular kind is produced by the particular temperature or degree of heat and altitude at which it is grown. If the shrub is planted on the equator it will produce Mocha; if five degrees from the equator it will produce Java.

The susceptibility of coffee to the odor of any article placed near it often very destroys its aroma and deteriorates its best qualities. A single green hide placed in the hold of a vessel filled with Java coffee will destroy the cargo.

The transition from long and painful sickness to robust health marks an epoch in the life of the individual. Such a remarkable event is treasured in the memory and the agency whereby the good health has been attained is gratefully blessed. Hence it is that so much is heard in praise of Electric Bitters.

It is a universal cry all over the new States, why, what did we fight for? when taken are to be collected, why, what did we fight for out of us to be paid, why, what did we fight for? As hours went and the night came, they were hourly advancing upon them, this is their morning and evening song, in the Devil's name what did we fight for?

At the end of this satire the editor recommends the reader to peruse the letter from the Worcester correspondent in another column, evidently in turn the thoughts of the patriot in another direction. This letter is as follows:

WORCESTER, November 4. Extract of a letter from a gentleman in London, dated August 13, 1784.

"I have paid several visits to the House of Commons—it strikes me as a place of much confusion—There is not half that order and regularity which is observed in the House of Representatives of Massachusetts. It is a perfect scene of contention and animosity. When I was there I saw them debating on India affairs. Mr. Pitt is really a fine speaker, and Mr. Fox's artillery is prodigious; the many ease with which he delivers his sentiments attracts irresistible attention. There are many other good speakers. Mr. Pitt is thought a prodigy, considering his years; he has done what no minister has dared to do before him, that is, in a masterly manner placed the state of the national charities before the people. Excepting a few good debaters, the House of Commons appears to be composed of simple Blockheads, Horse Jockeys, fat Country Squires and some Bucks and Bloods of the ton.—They all sit with their hats on—some booted and spurred, with their whips in their hands—others lying a full length on the benches—some asleep—others laughing and talking about nothing—and when one member has done speaking, every one that is capable of saying anything, joins in a general vociferation for their turn, after a long time and much calling to order, the speaker silences the clamor, and directs who shall take his turn to harangue. This Great Council of the Nation, which sounded so magnificent in my ledged ears in America, is a mighty big Affirmance."

THE CHINA CLOSET.

Sing a song of china—a closet deep and wide—Rows and rows of dishes, sitting side by side: When the door is open, 'tis goodly to behold Dainty shining crystal—the tea set white and gold. Grandma's blue-spigged china on the upper shelf—Grandma used to wash it and dry each piece herself. Hoping, poor old lady, if living not to see, That future generations might from the cups drink tea.

Sing a song of breakage—a closet deep and wide—Cracked and broken dishes, sitting side by side: When the door stands open, 'tis awful to behold Fragmentary crystal—the tea set silver gold. Grandma's blue-spigged china—search well the upper shelf! Use a piece to tell the tale of its shattered self. Well it is for grandma, she has not lived to see! Those quaintly-fashioned trappings will never more hold tea.

Sing a song of Bridget—of Mary Ann—of Kate—The coming going, restless tide that forms the family fate. Hoops of red-washed wreckage strewn along the shore Tell of devastating storms when the fury's o'er. South'ly blows the closet door—disturbed treasure hides; There 'tis no balm to heal those wounds, though we search 'em world-wide. Balm will not heal chinaware, nor the sad heart that's left— Nothing now remains to do but to try cement! —Good Housekeeping.

NOTICE.

STATE OF WASHINGTON, County of Yakima. In Justice's Court, George W. Wilgus, J. P.

To Samuel Light: YOU are hereby notified that Nelson Rich has filed a complaint against you in said court, which will come on to be heard at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of the 23rd day of May, A. D. 1890, at the hour of one o'clock in the afternoon; and unless you appear and then there answer, the same will be taken as confessed and the demand of the plaintiff granted. The object and demand of said complaint is that said defendant is indebted to plaintiff for the purchase of certain land, and that said defendant has failed to pay the same. Plaintiff prays that the same be adjudged in his favor, and that the sum of $200.00, with interest thereon, be awarded to him. Plaintiff filed this 23rd day of March, A. D. 1890. GEO. W. WILGUS, J. P.
