THE STATE CAPITAL.

Where Shall it be Located? North Yakima the Most Desirable Point.

The Two Aspirants of Central Washington Fairly Compared by a Good Newspaper.

Washington Farmer: In 1878, when the first constitutional convention assembled in the territory to formulate a constitution for the state, the members of the convention voted almost unanimously for North Yakima for permanent seat of government. That was eleven years ago, when no railroad crossed the state.

It has been conceded by the people all over the territory for many years that North Yakima is topographically, geographically, climatically and productively a long way in the lead of any other point for permanent seat of government.

Every one who has not seen Salt Lake City, has read descriptions of the perfect plan on which it is laid out and beautified. North Yakima is modeled after Salt Lake City, with wide streets, wide alleys, running streams of water and rows of shade trees on both sides of every street, and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver at the U. S. Land Office at North Yakima, W. T., on October 17, 1889, viz:

IRA M. KRUTZ, Register.

Liberal reserves for public parks, walks and capital grounds have been made, and these are being adapted in a manner pleasing to the eye. The society of North Yakima and the homes of the people are very charming.

North Yakima is the center of thirteen large and very rich valleys.

It is the depot of supplies for the mineral regions of the Cascade mountains, where dozens of streams that are tributary to the Yakima river, have worn their way through the rock-ribbed mountains and exposed to the view of the prospector almost every variety of mineral known in commerce.

North Yakima is situated at the confluence of the Yakima and Natchee rivers, and thus commands sites for an unlimited number of factories, whose wheels may be turned by water power.

North Yakima is conceded by all authorities to be the natural railroad center of the state. From the Columbia river at the southern boundary of the state, to the Canadian Pacific railway, on the north, it is a well settled fact, that there is but one set of passes through the Cascade mountains besides the one along the Wenatchee, and these all radiate directly from North Yakima.

North Yakima is on the main trunk line of the Northern Pacific railway, from St. Paul to Tacoma.

Seven other lines of railway are projected to North Yakima. Of these three have cars running on them, viz: The Washington Central road from Clewiston across the Big Bend, completed and in full operation, 40 miles to Davenport and now being extended to North Yakima; the Gray's Harbor and Yakima railroad now being graded from Nominon to Montesano, and to be extended through Condit pass to North Yakima; the Yakima, Klickitat & Vancouver railroad, with cars running as far as the Lewis river coal mines, and the extension to be rapid. Thus it will be seen that while North Yakima is on the main line of the N. P. R. R., these roads are already being actually operated that will soon form a junction with the N. P. at North Yakima.

The climate of Yakima county is peculiar, being mild and healthful, free from late spring frosts and early fall frosts, and many special crops that are very profitable are grown there, which cannot be produced elsewhere in the state. Among the common staple crops of the county are tobacco, hops, broom corn, corn, alfalfa, peanuts, sweet potatoes, melons, peaches, grapes, prunes and all sorts of large and special fruits. Even cotton has been matured.

The Yakima natural mineral water is now shipped in bottles all over the northwest, and is preferred to famed mineral waters from the east. The springs from which these waters flow number many dozens, both warm and cold, and they are situated in charming groves of oak interspersed with evergreen forest trees. The elevation of the spring is 2800 feet above the city, and all the surroundings make up the ideal summer resort.

In four years from the time that this beautiful ideal city was especially laid out for the future capital of this great state, it has grown from nothing to a city of 3,000 souls, with solidly built brick business blocks, superior public brick school houses, a large Catholic academy of brick, two fine brick hotels, brick and stone churches, and everything to make up a metropolitan, modern place in which the whole state may always feel a just pride.

The people of western Washington, in all justice and fairness, recognize the justice of the intention of the population of the state to locate the capital east of the mountains. To think for a moment that the sand desert of Pasco, on the extreme southern boundary, is in the race, as a point worthy of consideration, is an absurdity. Then there is but one point besides North Yakima that is in the race, and that is Ellensburg. Now let us consider what are Ellensburg's claims.

Ellensburg is twice as high above the sea as North Yakima; therefore it is cold and frosty.

Ellensburg is in a valley so narrow

SCIENTIFIC FARMING.

Experiments in Wheat Growing—Many New Foreign Varieties.

Endeavoring to Find the Best Seed Best Adapted to the Dry Sections of Western Washington.

Walla Walla Statesman: We have before made mention of the experiments of Mr. W. H. Reed, of the well-known firm of Reed & Co., grain merchants, in the propagation of different varieties of wheat, his endeavor being to discover which variety of wheat was best adapted to this soil, climate and methods of harvesting prevailing in Eastern Washington and Oregon. The introduction of the blue stem wheat by Mr. Reed has proven of great benefit to our farmers—more especially to those whose lands are situated away from the mountains, where there is a comparatively light rainfall. On Eureka Flat this season, for example, there was very little club wheat grown that was merchantable, the majority of the club being too badly shriveled for milling wheat, whereas the blue stem has again yielded from fair to good crops. There is no doubt that the blue stem is the best adapted to the lands situated away from the mountains, where the rainfall is large, of all the wheat so far introduced.

Because the blue stem is better adapted to our country than the club or the fire wheat, it does not follow that there is no more profitable wheat for our farmers to grow, and with that view of it, Mr. Reed has for two years been experimenting with fourteen varieties of wheat, which he has obtained from different parts of the world. Several of these varieties he secured from Prof. Stout, the most noted scientific wheat grower of the United States, with whom he has been in correspondence for two years on the subject of wheat growing, and he has also received assistance to some varieties from the U. S. department of agriculture. But that his experiments might be the more thorough, Mr. Reed, some three months ago, sent to Messrs. Vilmorin, Andreux & Co., of Paris, France, for eleven more varieties four of them being selected by the Paris firm as best adapted to the climate, soil, rainfall, method of harvesting, etc., as laid before them in elaborate detail. These eleven varieties, which were obtained at no small cost, arrived in Walla Walla Thursday.

There is not such that can be said to describe the grains received here, further than that they are mostly of the white variety, and differ in form as to length and fatness. The characteristics of the grains received from Vilmorin, Andreux & Co., are described as follows:

Romana. A winter wheat. Straw upright, stiff and rather short. The grain white and big. There are few weeds thus give a large yield without bending. Matures early. Especially adapted to rich soils.

Ricella. From Naples. Winter and spring wheat. Straw white and tall. Grain white, large, elongated, and very fine quality. Rather sensitive to cold and so only sows in the early spring. Adapted to lands of moderate fertility.

Zealand. Came from Italy, though probably imported from New Zealand. An autumn and spring wheat. Straw white, tall and strong. Two heads are long and blunt. Grain white, long, and very full. A good yielder.

Trump. From England. A winter wheat. The straw is tall, strong and upright. The ear white, long and rather loose. Without requiring too much care, it is a very fine, full, heavy grain, and holds out well against all diseases. It turns out well in all lands of middling fertility, but seems to prefer those which are soft and slightly calcareous.

White Victoria. From the Baltic. A winter wheat. Stem white, stiff, and upright. Grain white. Suited to good lands and lands of medium fertility. It ripens in a hot, dry summer without shriveling, and yields well.

White Flemish. From Flanders. Winter wheat. Straw white, straight, strong and grows high. Grain white, long full and stout. It is a white wheat, brought to its highest degree of perfection; it is a magnificent variety of wheat, extremely productive and giving a grain of superb quality. It is the result of selections carried on for a long time. It is one of the best yielding wheats. It is especially adapted for good soils in temperate and wet climates.

Hunter. From Scotland. Straw white, tall, thin and supple. Grain white and decidedly long. Very productive and remarkably hardy, it being the least sensitive to cold of all the white wheats. Does not require a very fertile soil.

Besides these, all having more or less qualities to recommend them for certain localities or methods of farming, there are the white Hungarian O'Connell, de Sicile, du cap large feirde. The result of Mr. Reed's experiments on 52 varieties of wheat must be of great value to the community. Why can't some more of our farmers make experiments? Let some one experiment with grass, some on corn, some on trees for fencing, potatoes, etc.

The Best Will Not be the Best.

Spokane Falls Review: It speaks well for the fairness of Western Washington that the Tacoma Ledger, Tacoma News, and numerous other papers on that side publish strong arguments in favor of locating

THE SUPREME BENCH.

A Pierce County Candidate is Charged With Embezzlement.

There Should Be No Question As to the Integrity of the Members of the Bench.

Grave charges are being made by the Seattle Morning Journal and other papers regarding the character of T. L. Stiles, who was nominated by the republicans for one of the judges of the supreme bench. The Journal goes into details and cites the court records to prove the charges. While the accusations made carry with them the appearance of truth the court records will occasionally give to a litigant a character which his actions do not justify, and in this instance Mr. Stiles may be guilty of the charges made against him, but by that-as it may, the people cannot afford to place on the supreme bench of this state a man who is arraigned for so serious a crime as embezzlement or against whom there is the least question as to his honor and integrity. The following is from a Tacoma correspondent of the Oring Oracle:

If there is any department of the state government which, above another, needs to be kept clean and pure, it is the judiciary. In the conflicts and contentions of political organizations, factions and feuds, the people have turned to the judiciary as the final arbitrator where right may be maintained and wrong repressed. The subversion of the executive department or the debauchery of the legislature, while deplorable, is easily remedied. Not so with the judiciary, for here the moral or social taint permeates the whole body and destroys the framework of the body politic. The judiciary in its very nature should be non-political. No man, simply because he has a party label attached to him by a political convention, should be elevated to a judicial position. No party has a right to demand of its members support for an unworthy nominee for judge. Loyalty to the public welfare should be above party fealty.

Of the names presented to the public by the Walla Walla convention for support as judge of the supreme court, one there is who cannot expect the suffrage of those who esteem an honest judiciary as of higher importance than mere party success.

In the district court there is now pending against T. L. Stiles, one of the candidates for supreme judge, two very ugly cases. In each Stiles is charged with having done certain things which, in the eyes of the public, constitute no less a crime than that of embezzlement. They charge him in these cases with having received at sundry times while residing in Arizona large sums of money belonging to the estates of James H. Toole and Hudson & Co., and that he converted the same to his own use and now has the sum of $10,000 or more in his possession.

The conversion of a trust fund by the trustee is nothing less than embezzlement, and before Mr. Stiles mounts the chair of justice he should make clear these charges in Starr's and Samanuel's complaints.

Judge Barnes, of Arizona, in a suit tried before him, in which Stiles was defendant, found and adjudged that Stiles had received and misappropriated over $5000 belonging to the James H. Toole estate and ordered him to repay the money, but Stiles failed to comply with the orders of the court and quietly left Arizona and came to Washington Territory where he now lives in ease, owning considerable property that he purchased soon after his arrival in Tacoma.

A few days before the republican primaries were held in Tacoma, Thomas L. Nixon was actively pushing Stiles for judge of the supreme court, but the odor of Arizona matters began to arise when Stiles' friends withdrew him. The ring gang, marshalled by Nixon and his ward strikers, did better than they hoped for. As a decoy they gave out that Judge Evans was to be the candidate for supreme judge and with this understanding they went to Walla Walla. True to the instincts that actuate men of no principle, the gang no sooner reached Walla Walla than they dropped Evans for a more pliant tool, and Stiles' name now appears on the republican ticket.

It remains now to be seen whether partyism or Americanism rules the people of the new state. No man with the breath of suspicion upon him should ever reach the honorable position of judge of the supreme court.

Republicans cannot afford to choose a dishonest man for judge. Better none than a man of questionable character.

Concentrate on North Yakima.

Spokane Falls Review: It is certainly desirable to locate the capital at this election, in order that permanent buildings may be commenced and to permanently settle an annoying question. This can only be done by concentrating the vote upon some point in the central part of the state, for the people will never be satisfied to allow it to remain at or near either of the extreme borders of the great commonwealth. By dividing the vote and preventing any proposed location receiving a majority, Olympia may retain the capital for the present, but every dollar invested in public buildings there will be as so much thrown away, for the people will in a short time insist upon its removal.

DOG IN THE MANGER POLICY.

Ellensburg has grown favorite. Her people note the strong sentiment favorable to North Yakima as the permanent seat of government and chafe inwardly and outwardly.

HE FAVORS NORTH YAKIMA.

W. A. George, a resident of the territory for twenty-nine years, has written a strong article in a Dayton paper favoring North Yakima for the capital.

The Herald is in reprint of England of the initial campaign literature of Victoria C. Woodhull and Tennessee Cliffin in their candidacy for the presidency and vice-presidency of the United States in 1893.

FOR SUPREME JUDGE.

Hon. B. L. Sharpstein, one of the nominees of the democratic convention for supreme judge is a New Yorker by birth.

ELLENBURGH ZEPHYRS AGAIN.

The Ellensburg State Register says: "The frolicsome zephyr still continues."

TWO CANDIDATES COMPARED.

Probably the weakest man on the republican state ticket is Charles E. Laughon, of Tacoma, who was nominated for lieutenant governor.

territory has frequently endorsed Mr. Sharpstein for territorial judge, and the people will doubtless forget politics and reward their old servant.

Mr. Sharpstein is a brother of Supreme Judge J. R. Sharpstein, of California; is 61 years of age, ripe in experience, dignified in appearance, and would be an ornament to any bar in the Union.

Straw Hat: Straws show which way the wind blows. Nine-tenths of the delegates in attendance at the state convention at Walla Walla last week were earnest in their assertions that North Yakima was the place for the capital.

W. H. WHITE, of Seattle, has resigned the office of United States attorney, and J. A. Munday, of Vancouver, that of special agent of the Vancouver land district.

A DISPATCH FROM TACOMA, Arizona, dated September 16, says that "the grand jury has completed its labors, finding 19 indictments, four of which it is stated, were against T. L. Stiles, assignee of the suspended bank of Hudson & Co."

The Philadelphia Bulletin, a strict republican party paper, felicitously describes Corporal Tanner, late commissioner of pensions, as "a professional veteran, that is, a man who seeks to make the G. A. R. tributary to his vanity or self-interest, and expects, with the aid of his comrades, to defy public opinion."

The pension roll cost the government $80,000,000 last year and it is going to cost the government more next year.

R. W. STARR, of Waterville, who is the nominee of the democrats for the state senate from Yakima-Douglas counties, has been in the city for the past week.

Enron Review: Notwithstanding Congress has made ample provisions for capital grounds, and the state is not expected or required to barter away the location of the seat of government, Ellensburg is showing more than a warrantable zeal, for she has made a bid that can be regarded as little other than a bribe.

Spokane Falls, Sept. 16, 1899. The Grapes Were Sour. North Yakima products were well represented at the Ellensburg convention, occupying two rooms in the Honorable block.

No doubt these luscious fruits from the sunny valley of the Yakima had a sort of sour and bitter twang to the palates of delegates from Olympia and Ellensburg, and it was real impediment for the Yakima boys to take them there.

HOW ABOUT YAKIMA?

Listen to the Story as it is Told by Careful Observers from Abroad.

(San Francisco Examiner.)

The new State Capital will probably be at North Yakima.

(Spokane Falls Review.)

The best and most extensive agricultural region in the Yakima Land District, and in the Territory, lies about the City of North Yakima and is known as the Yakima Valley.

(Seattle Post-Intelligencer.)

To-day, where four years ago were uncultivated prairies, the home of great herds of unrestrained wild cattle and vicious bands of cayuse ponies who knew no halter, now stands the City of North Yakima, the Queen of Eastern Washington.

(Northwest Magazine.)

The knot of valleys which meet at the new town of North Yakima seems a bit of Southern California here in the north. Public opinion in all parts of Washington has settled upon this place as the Capital of the new State.

(Portland Oregonian.)

There is no just reason why this city and county, when they shall have reached their maximum in population, should not have in the city from 15,000 to 25,000, and the county 40,000 to 50,000.

(Tacoma Ledger.)

The valley in which the city of North Yakima is situated is in the center of a series of very fertile valleys which open into it and have grown famous for their products.

(Spokane Falls Review.)

Although less than forty miles apart the difference in climate between Yakima in Yakima county and Ellensburg in Kittitas county is almost as great as that between a northern and southern latitude.

It was a great exhibition of the wealth of California, but I found no better specimens of vegetables and many varieties of fruit than Washington Territory produces.

THE MIDLAND PACIFIC.

The Advance Guards of Another Transcontinental Railway Line Reached North Yakima.

In May last the associated press dispatches conveyed the news that a party of engineers of the Illinois Central railroad, one of the richest railway corporations in existence, had left Sioux Falls, Dakota, the present terminus of that road, to find a feasible route to the Sound. These same engineers, who have been on the road for over four months, arrived in North Yakima Monday. The head of the party was Geo. M. Nix, who is the general manager of the Midland Pacific R. R. Co., but the Midland Pacific is the annex of the Illinois Central and the same directors and principal stockholders are in both corporations. Mr. Nix, with his chief engineer, Chas. A. Dewar, and party left Sioux city early in May and travelled westerly up the Lugenbee river, thence through the Big Horn and Wind river mountains, thence across the Rocky mountains and down the Salmon and Snake rivers to Lewiston. From Lewiston down the Snake to Palouse, crossing the Northern Pacific at Palouse Junction, thence almost due west via Crab Creek coulee, crossing the Columbia river at Priest's rapids, and through the Moxee conico to North Yakima. Mr. Nix says that the line is not only a feasible one but the grades are economic, a splendid country untapped by railroads is drained, and that fewer difficulties are encountered on this route than have been surmounted by the other transcontinental roads. There was a topographer with the party and barometric observations and notes have been made throughout the whole line, which, it is claimed, is 3.00 miles shorter from Chicago to Puget Sound than the Northern Pacific. The party, after being provisioned here, left on the following day for the Sound via the Natchees pass. Previous to leaving Mr. Nix said that if the balance of the country to be traversed presented no greater obstacles than already encountered engineering parties would be in the field as early as March of next year permanently locating the road.

JUDGES WHO ARE JOCKEYS.—Kittitas county has had what might be called by courtesy a fair, with horse racing attachment, but of all the unfair affairs of the kind it was probably unequalled. In the dash between the Ellensburg horse Dandy and the Yakima horse Red Dick the judges rendered a decision of a dead heat although the Yakima horse came under the wire fifty feet ahead. The judges claimed that the local horse was not beaten by more than thirty feet and he had lost that much by his rider not understanding the signal of the starter, but as the two horses were within three or four feet of each other at the start and as they were started fairly and squarely there was no excuse for the decision of the judges. Even the spectators howled and hissed and S. R. Goidis, Johnny Arthur and others openly denounced the fraud. The races in the past, on the Kittitas track, have been characterized by jobbery, and after this last outrage it will be difficult for the directors of the association to secure any more Yakima horses.

A MILLION DOLLAR CANAL.—Previous to leaving for Montana, to be absent about ten days, Chief Engineer J. D. McIntyre told a Herald reporter that after running over the six ditch lines already surveyed, including the Sunnyside line, he had abandoned them all and decided upon a new line which was far more practicable, would cost $200,000 less money and would water a much larger area of country. The canal as projected by Mr. McIntyre would cost in the neighborhood of a million dollars and would redeem 500,000 acres of arid land. While the Herald is not at liberty to give the lines to be traversed we can say that it will open up an immense body of country directly tributary to North Yakima and in itself be the means of building up this city to proportions that will make it without question the metropolis of Central Washington. The main canal will be over a hundred miles in length and extend to the Columbia river.

FUNERAL OF JAY HOLTON.—The funeral of Jay Holton was held from the family residence on Friday last and was very largely attended. The address of Rev. Cheside was beautiful and affecting. He spoke of the life and death of the young man; how the deceased knew nothing of approaching dissolution until an hour before his death, and how the announcement was received by him with slight signs of regret and no expression of regret and then quietly prepared for the end of terrestrial life. The body was taken to Portland by the sorrowing family that evening and deposited in a vault, where it will remain until it can be removed to its last resting place at Battle Creek, Michigan.

FIVE FRUITS FROM YAKIMA.—In addition to cereals and grasses that would make the eyes of farmers from other sections bulge out in wonder, MacLean Reed & Co., have on exhibition some marvelously large and handsome grapes, pears, peaches, apples, plums and prunes from the orchards and vineyards of W. J. Robbins, M. B. Curtis and J. T. Simons. They have also a number of fine watermelons ranging from 45 to 61 pounds in weight, the latter being a "Cuban Queen" and raised by W. H. Kelley.

BLACK IRON GRANITE.—Levi Darland has found a large body of black iron granite up the Abitanum, above the Yakima Soda Springs. As the rock takes on a fine polish it will make handsome mantels and monuments, and when a railroad is built up the Abitanum, as it surely will be some day, it can be cheaply utilized for building stone, as there is a vast quarry of it.

Statements that Do Not Tally.

John Clemons, our candidate for the legislature, is against David Longmire, a neighbor. Both live in the Wenas valley. Clemons is a good man, is about 35 years of age, and was raised in the valley. His father died some years ago and left all his estate of $43,000 to John by will. He had several brothers and sisters. In their presence he burned up the will and said to them, 'I am ahead of none of you now.' That is the kind of a man he is.—Correspondence of the Oregonian of September 16th.

Mr. Clifton Clemons, a half-brother of John Clemons, and one of the nine heirs of the estate of his father, requests that the mis-statements made in the above paragraph be corrected. In the first place, the will bequeathing the entire estate to John Clemons was never signed, and was burned by him because it would be useless to attempt to get it recognized by the probate court.

In the next place, John Clemons had cattle and horses in which the father was interested, having furnished the money for their purchase, and these were never accounted for in the settlement.

In the third place, John Clemons was appointed administrator without the sanction of all the heirs and in his settlement he paid Clifton Clemons exactly $1,165, or one-ninth of $10,485.

Although Mr. Clifton Clemons claims the estate was valued at nearer $50,000 than $43,000, by placing it at the lesser figure, the question will then arise, that if Mr. John Clemons is ahead of none of the other heirs, as claimed in the Oregonian's statement, what became of the balance of the estate, estimated at $32,315?

Buy only the best of trees and those which have become acclimated here. Trees sold by dealers from abroad seldom live when transplanted in a section where all the atmospheric conditions and the soil are dissimilar. E. R. Leaming has tens of thousands of ornamental, shade and fruit trees of the most approved varieties and as they are propagated and grown here, they can be depended upon for standing transplanting. Now is the time to improve your holdings. Mr. Leaming has the City Nursery, which is located just north of the town, and it would pay any one to visit it.

Catarrrhal Diseases a Specialty.

Dr. W. A. Ebert, of Walla Walla, will be at North Yakima on Sept. 24, 25 and 26. The doctor makes catarrhal diseases a specialty. He writes us that he has successfully treated nearly fifteen hundred cases of nasal catarrh at Walla Walla and vicinity within the last three years. He sends us the names of over a hundred representative citizens of Walla Walla, who have been treated by him. We know the doctor to be a conscientious physician and would recommend any one who is afflicted with nasal catarrh to consult him while here.

Walla Walla and North Yakima fruits are coming in by car load lots as per contracts made at the opening of the season. Although the east-of-the-mountains product is by far fresher and more desirable than most of the Oregon and all of the California fruit, still, at the present high freight rates, the producers and commission men are not gladdened by their efforts to work up the local field as it deserves to be, and should be.

According to the Localizer, Ellensburg and Kittitas county experienced a heavy frost on the 9th inst. The sun-kissed lands of Yakima are still free from such blight, and, if nature treads in her usual pathways, will remain so for six weeks longer. The cause of this is that the altitude of Ellensburg is nearly double that of North Yakima.

"Red Dick," of North Yakima, won the quarter-dash at Ellensburg Wednesday, beating "Dandy" by 2 1/2 feet. Considerable money was wagered on this race, owing to the outrageous decision made by the judges the first time it was run, when a "dead heat" was declared.

Judge George Turner, of Spokane Falls, and Allen Weir, the republican nominee for secretary of state, of Port Townsend, addressed the people of North Yakima, Tuesday evening. The audience was not as large as was anticipated and the standing of the speakers warranted.

Alaskan Miners Doomed to a Terrible Fate—Ice-Bound

On the Banks of the Yukon—Festivities of a Rescue—A Steamer to be Sent for Them.

Four hundred venturesome gold-seekers are likely to share a fate even worse than that of the ill-fated members of the Jeannette's crew, if measures looking to their rescue are not at once begun and successfully consummated.

These hardy miners are now ice-bound in Alaska. It is supposed, somewhere near the banks of the great Yukon river. They have not been heard from for nearly a year, and it is extremely likely that a majority or all of them have craved in the snowdrifts and glaciers of that desolate region.

It was nearly four years ago that a hardy band of miners determined to strike out from Juneau City, head of steamship communication in Alaska and explore the country about the banks of the upper Yukon in search of gold. These men were gone so long that grave fears were entertained that they had met the fate of others who had undertaken the task, and had perished from cold and hunger. But late in the winter, to the joy of the settlement, the band returned. They reported rich finds of placer, and since that time, with yearning eyes, venturesome spirits have looked toward the wild country about the upper Yukon.

A year ago last April four different parties left Juneau for the new gold fields. All were well supplied with the necessities of such a trip and the parties numbered 400 men. From a period two weeks from their departure until the present time not a word has been heard of these men. The majority were young single men, comparative strangers in the country. One of these happened to have a mother, living in anticipation of her son's safe return, far to the southward in San Francisco.

September fifth, this lady, after months of terrible suspense, heard from her boy, whose name is M. E. Johnson. The letter was dated "Gold Fields of Yukon, Alaska, August 20, 1888." The writer, on a piece of worn and dirty paper, had scribbled the intelligence that he was alive, but snow-bound and unable to reach a settlement. The feelings of his mother can be better imagined than described. She at once called upon leading Alaskan traders in San Francisco, and enlisted their aid in the rescue of her son and his companions from their deadly peril.

These gentlemen investigated the matter and were horrified to learn from their Alaskan agents that Johnson's story of his situation was but too true. The agents knew that 200 miners were missing from the settlement in which those hardy men congregated to pass, in comparative comfort the winter months. They knew that the men were supposed to be cutting their way through the drifts of snow and ice toward these settlements. They knew that in all probability their provisions were exhausted; that there was but little hope that additional supplies could be found by the men, and this was all.

Finally, the Alaska Fur company decided to send the steamer, the "Dora," in search of the men. Her master was instructed to steam to Cape Barrow and cruise thereabouts. It was hoped that the men might be discovered on the coast. If they did and survived the terrible journey, they will be saved. If, however, the men tried to reach the northern or Arctic coast, in the opinion of people posted on the country, they must certainly have perished. The "Dora" is now on the way to Point Barrow, and news of her will be anxiously awaited by people throughout the country.

Seattle is head center for Alaska trade with the north-west coast, and a Journal reporter in possession of the facts connected with the melancholy narrative above had no difficulty in finding several citizens who knew the country in which the imprisoned miners are entombed. It was the opinion of these gentlemen that the situation was most grave.—Seattle Journal.

WONDERFUL THINGS COMING.

Edison Talks of the Extraordinary Invention the World is to See.

Courier des Etats Unis: The reporter asked Mr. Edison if it was true that he had invented a machine by the aid of which a man in New York would be able to see everything that his wife was doing in Paris.

"I don't know," said Mr. Edison, laughing, "that that would be a real benefit to humanity. The women certainly would protest. But, speaking seriously, I am at work on an invention which will allow a man in Wall street not only to telephone to a friend in the Central park but to see that friend while he is chatting telephonically with him. This invention would be useful and practical, and I see no reason why it should not soon become a reality, and one of the first things I shall do when I get back to America will be to set up this contrivance between my laboratory and my telephone workshops. Moreover, I have already obtained satisfactory results in reproducing images at that distance, which is only about 1000 feet. It would be ridiculous to dream of seeing anyone between New York and Paris. The round form of the earth, if there were no other difficulty in the way, would make the thing impossible."

Speaking of the phonograph, the reporter asked if it had reached the highest degree of perfection.

"Almost, I think," said Mr. Edison. "In the last instruments turned out of my workshop. You must know that the ordinary phonograph used in commerce does not begin to compare with the latest machines that I use in my private experiments. With the latter I can obtain a sound powerful enough to reproduce phrases of a speech that can be heard by a large audience. My last ameliorations were with the aspirate sounds which are the weak points of the graphophone. For seven months I worked from eighteen to twenty hours a day upon the instrument 'specia,' and it would always say 'specia,' and I couldn't make it say anything else. It was enough to make me crazy. But I stuck to it until I succeeded, and now you can read a thousand words of a newspaper at the rate of 150 words a minute, and the instrument will repeat them to you without omission. You can imagine the difficulty of the task that I accomplished when I tell you that the impressions made upon the cylinder are not more than one-millionth part of an inch in depth, and are completely invisible, even with the aid of a microscope."

Reporter—And what new discovery will be made in electricity?

Mr. Edison—Ah, that would be difficult to say. We may some day come upon one of the great secrets of nature. I am always on the lookout for something which will help me to solve the problem of navigating the air. I have worked hard upon this subject but I am very much discouraged. We may find something new before that comes; but it will come.

Mr. Edison further said that the great development of electricity would come when we find a more economical method of producing it. During his trip across across the ocean he remained for hours on deck looking at the waves, and he says it made him wild when he saw so much force going to waste. "But one of these days," he continued, "we will chain all that—the falls of Niagara as well as the winds—and that will be the millennium of electricity."

The Manitoba Coming to Yakima.

Spokane Falls Review: A gentleman who stands in close relationship to the railroad magnate, Jim Hill, has purchased land to the extent of several hundred thousand dollars at North Yakima and a similar amount at Gray's Harbor. This indicates that the Manitoba is to come from Montana to Spokane Falls, and from there through the Big Bend or Crab creek route to Priest Rapids on the Columbia, thence to Yakima and thence through the Natchez pass to Gray's Harbor and the Sound.

A MODEL COMMONWEALTH.

To Be Founded on Malcolm Island, British Columbia.

Everybody Will Work and Nobody Will Drink—Colonists From the Old World.

"I arrived here," writes F. J. Spencer (the honorable secretary of this movement) from British Columbia to the Pall Mall Gazette, "fifteen months ago, and I have explored Queen Charlotte, Vancouver and the adjacent islands. I have selected Malcolm Island for the colony. It is about two miles wide by twelve miles long. It has two good harbors. It is about 200 miles north of Victoria. The lieutenant governor-general signed the minute in council, reserving the island for us, on the 6th of June last. The government has agreed to give eighty acres of land for every house we erect, value £100, and the settler is to be free from all taxes for twelve months. We have already commenced operations; and those who can pay their expenses and keep themselves for the first twelve months are the pioneers. To meet the case of those who cannot do this a public subscription has been opened. We are right in the center on the salmon industry. British Columbia will be a great manufacturing country. Any amount of coal and iron, timber, etc. The climate is preferable to England, and we hope to have the prettiest villas upon the face of God's earth."

It appears from a further communication sent by Mr. Spencer that all members of the colony will be required to work eight hours per diem and four hours on Saturday. The committee, on behalf of the members of the commonwealth, will take all responsibility in providing work, medical attendance, food and clothing for the member and his family, and also provide for the scholastic education of the children, and in the event of the member being sick, still provide as though he were at work, and if he dies, to keep the widow and orphans, etc. Each and every member will have the same interest in the commonwealth. The land will be held in trust by the committee for and on behalf of the members, and clauses will be inserted preventing the manufacture and sale of any intoxicating drinks by any member of the C. T. C. C. A clause will also be inserted preventing the trustees from selling or mortgaging the land or property of the commonwealth, and that there shall always be liberty of conscience; that no creed or dogma shall be insisted upon; the only "test" will be a willingness to conform to "the Ten Commandments and the sayings of Jesus."

The board of management will undertake and arrange with each member that every lad will learn some trade, and that every girl shall be instructed in household duties, family dressmaking, needlework, nursing, cooking, singing, pianoforte and elocution. No girl will be considered a servant, but will fulfill her appointment as learner. As soon as the children of the members are old enough to perform the sacred duties of marriage, they will first give the municipal board three months' notice of their intention, in order to give the board time to erect and furnish the house and to make all the necessary arrangements. All marriage will be contracted as by law established. Young men having learned their trade will be at liberty to leave the commonwealth and will be at liberty to return after fulfilling the conditions. No member will be called upon to work after the age of 55, but he may do it voluntarily.

MOUNT TACOMA.

The Grand Old Pinnacle of the Cascade Range.

An Attractive Point for Tourists—Views from the snow-capped Peaks of the Mountains.

Mount Tacoma-Ranier, that grand old pinnacle of the Cascade range, lifts its snow-mantled form far above its neighbors, while its glacier-crowned summits rise, towers and struggles aloft till "Round its breast the rolling clouds are spread, Eternal sunshine settles on its head."

The Northern Pacific railway runs within fifteen miles of the base of it, and from the nearest point a trail has been made, at a cost of some thousands of dollars, by which tourists may ascend the mountain on horseback to an altitude of 10,000 feet with comparative comfort; but he who goes above that height must work his passage. There are several men who claim the distinction of being the only white man who has ever been to the top of this mountain. Others declare that it has been ascended only twice; but we have authentic information of at least three successful and complete ascents having been made. Indian legends people the mountain with evil spirits, which are said to dwell in boiling cauldrons and yawning caverns—

"Calling shapes, and beck'ning shadows dire: And angry tongues that stillable men's names."

Tradition says their wild shrieks and groans may be heard therein at all times; no Indians are known ever to have gone any great distance up Mount Ranier, as they call it. White men have tried to employ the native red men as guides and packers for the ascent, but no amount of money can tempt them to invade the mysterious canyons and cliffs with which the marvelous pile is surrounded. They say that all attempts to do so, either by white or red men, must result in certain destruction. Undoubtedly the first ascent was made about thirty years ago by General (then lieutenant) Kautz and Lieutenant slaughter, of the United States army, who were then stationed at Stellaroom, Washington territory. They took pack animals, and with an escort of several men ascended as far as the animals could go. There they left them and continued to climb on foot. They were gone nine days from the time of leaving their mules until they returned to their animals, and claimed, no doubt justly, to have gone to the top of Liberty Cap, the highest of the three distinct summits that form the Triplex Corona, the others being known as the Summit and the Dome. The next ascent, so far as known, was made in 1876 by Mr. Hazard Stevens, who gave an account of his experience in the Atlantic Monthly for November of that year. In 1882 Messrs. Van Trump and Smith, of San Francisco, made a successful ascent, and in the same year an Australian tourist who attempted to ascend the mountain got within three hundred feet of the top, when his progress was arrested by an avalanche, and he came very near losing his life. Mr. L. L. Holden, of Boston, went to within about 600 feet of the summit in 1883, and Mr. J. R. Hitchcock claims to have reached it in 1885.

From the point gained by the trail above mentioned, the tourist may look down on the glaciers of the North Fork of the Puyallup river, three thousand feet below, while on the other hand, the glaciers of the Carbon may be seen four thousand feet beneath him. Away to the north, glimmering and glistening under the effulgent rays of the noonday sun, stretches that labyrinth of waters known as Puget Sound—while the many islands therein, draped in their evergreen foliage, look like emeralds set in a sea of silver. Many prominent landmarks in British Columbia are seen, visible to the north and south stretches the Cascade range, to the west the Olympic, and to the southwest the Coast range. All these are spread out before the eye of the tourist in a grand panorama unsurpassed for loveliness. Crater lake forms one of the mysteries of Mount Tacoma. About its rugged, ice-loaded and rock-ribbed shores are many dark caverns, from which the Indians conceived their superstitious fears of the mysterious pile. An explorer says of these chambers: "The roof is a dome of brilliant green, with long icicles pendant therefrom; while its floor is composed of the rocks and debris that formed the side of the crater, worn smooth by the action of the water and heated by a natural register from which issues clouds of steam."

"Where breezy waves toss up their silvery spray,"

The grand canyon of the Puyallup is two and a half miles wide, and from its head may be seen the great glacier, 500 feet in thickness, which supplies the great volume of water that flows through the Puyallup river. From here no less than nine different waterfalls, varying in height from 500 to 1500 feet, are visible, and visitors are sometimes thrilled by the magnificent spectacle of thousands of tons of overhanging ice falling with an overwhelming crash into the canyon, roaring and reverberating in a way that almost makes the great mountains tremble. Fed by the lake, torrents pour over the edge of the cliff, and the foam ing waters, forming a perpetual veil of seemingly silver lace, fall with a fearful leap into the arms of the surging waves below. Mount Tacoma will be the future resort of the continent, and many of its wondrous beauties yet remain to be explored.—(From "Cruisings in the Cascade," by "Cognina.")

A HOSPITABLE PEOPLE.

North Yakima Entertain the Returning Politicians—It is Never Too Late to Die.

Portland Oregonian: The first demonstration in favor of Ferry, Wilson and the whole republican ticket nominated at Walla Walla, took place on the arrival of the homeward bound Puget Sound delegates at North Yakima, Friday evening, September 6. There were fifteen coaches crowded with delegates, and as the west bound train pulled up at the depot it appeared that the whole city had turned out with torches and bands of music. Cheers rent the air, and after things had quieted down Colonel L. S. Howlett and Mayor Fred R. Reed made a few happy remarks and extended an invitation for every delegate on the train to stop a day at the future capital of the new state, promising them the freedom of the city. Colonel J. C. Haines replied. A number of delegates and nearly all the newspaper men remained over.

Along the depot platform were piled up several hundred watermelons, baskets of luscious grapes, peaches, plums and other fruit, which had been brought in by the farmers during the day. One batch of two hundred watermelons averaged thirty-five pounds each. Everybody on the train was supplied with a watermelon, and the other fruits were freely given away.

When the train started westward to the Sound the music again started up and the crowds cheered to the echo, which was repeated until the train was out of sight.

A splendid banquet was hastily prepared at the new Hotel Yakima, at one o'clock this morning by the citizens of Yakima at which the representatives of the Tacoma Ledger, Seattle Post-Intelligencer, Tacoma Journal, Northwest Magazine, YAKIMA HERALD, and the Oregonian and a number of leading business men of Yakima and Tacoma sat down. It was an enjoyable affair, lasting until three o'clock in the morning, and reflecting credit upon the proprietor, C. E. Smith.

Persons desiring transportation about the city or vicinity can be accommodated by leaving orders at Allen & Chapman's for Stanton's hack line.

THE YAKIMA HERALD.

SUPPLEMENT.

NORTH YAKIMA.

From All Sides the Voice of the People is Heard.

Proclaiming that North Yakima is Their Choice in the State Capital Contest.

No Objection to North Yakima.

Colfax Gazette: While North Yakima may not be the choice of everyone for capital honors or even the majority of voters, it is certain that no one can raise any weighty objections thereto. The city is beautifully laid out with wide streets and boulevards; streams of pure water flow along the principal streets; lines of shade trees stand guard along the busy thoroughfares, and water power is adequate for manufacturing purposes, while deposits of coal, iron and copper in the surrounding country are practically inexhaustible. Her people are energetic and cultured and possess all the requisites of a well regulated business community. It is very important that the change if made at all, be made in the near future. Towns which know they cannot get the capital should withdraw from the race, as it will only aid in deferring the location by voting on too many places. The city chosen must have a majority of all the votes cast, and if each town should vote for itself there would certainly be no choice. It is important, therefore, that voters should select the most probable city of their choice and stand firm.

The Removal of a Foregone Conclusion.

The Ritzville Times, in speaking of Olympia, has this to say: "Olympia, the present site, is so difficult of access that no one who is not directly concerned in Olympia could for a moment entertain any suspicion that the intelligent voters of the state of Washington would select it as a permanent capital, especially when no buildings or public improvements worth speaking of have ever been placed in the city at the public expense. It would require the same outlay of funds to erect suitable quarters in which to transact business of the state there as at any other city in the commonwealth. Therefore the removal of the capital is a foregone conclusion."

North Yakima the Natural Center.

Palouse City Boomerang: It seems to us that North Yakima is so situated that it is the natural center of our territory, and is therefore the proper place to successfully compete for the location of the state capital. From every inhabitable part of our territory are natural routes for railroads and wagon roads leading to the pioneer city of the great Yakima valley. We have no doubt about the result when the tally sheet is counted—North Yakima will be the future capital of Washington.

North Yakima Leads All Competitors.

Puyallup Citizen: As yet the question of the change in location of the state capital has occupied the attention of our readers but little and it would be a difficult matter to find which city is really the choice of our voters, barring their own city. The question is being agitated, though, quite extensively by the papers of the state. That the change should be made nearly all agree. There are no aspirants for it among the Sound cities, and the only cities standing a ghost of a show seem to be Ellensburg and North Yakima, of which the latter now seems far in advance. The city is in exactly the center, east and west, of the state and is computed to be in almost as near the center of population. It is connected by railroads with the east and west, and is so located that other railroads crossing the Cascades, will pass through it. It is surrounded by a fine agricultural country, and bids fair to become the principal city of central Washington. The following is from the Tacoma Journal: "From the best data procurable, a number of the leading engineers in the country, including V. G. Bogue, chief engineer of the Union Pacific, have stated and maintained that Yakima commands the key, topographically, of the railroad situation in Washington territory, and that no road, by economic grades, could cross the southern half of the territory, from east to west, without passing through Yakima."

Decidedly in Favor of North Yakima.

Spangle Record: One of the important questions that should be settled at the general election this fall will be that of locating permanently the state capital. It is to be earnestly hoped that a sufficient number of the people will unite on one of the central cities to dispose of the question now and for all time to come. The preponderance of sentiment throughout the territory seems to be decidedly in favor of North Yakima, and, in order to try and reach a settlement this fall, we would urge upon our people to unite upon this point also. It is centrally located, geographically, and has the advantage of being more accessible than any other city named, from any direction. Of its advantages in location we will speak more fully later on. For the present we desire to impress on the minds of the people the importance of uniting all together upon one place, and preventing what may be developed into a bitter sectional fight. If left unsettled this year and allowed to run over till the next and possibly the next general election. While the various cities and towns through the territory seem to be favorable to North Yakima, personal wishes should be waived for the good of our new state, and every vote cast where it is likely to result in permanent good. It is indeed unfortunate that there should be more than two competitors for the capital, for it will only complicate and defer decision unnecessarily. It would be a wise and certainly a very graceful thing for Panco to draw off, as she can do no good, but may do a great deal of harm by deferring settlement.

Unite the Vote.

Palouse Gazette: A correspondent to the Oregonian from Ellensburg states that the state capital now lies between the cities of Olympia and Ellensburg. Now, there is nothing gained by such a policy. North Yakima is still in the race and is going to secure a vote twice the size of Ellensburg's vote. Judging from present indications, North Yakima will get there on the first ballot. Eastern Washington cannot afford to give a scattered vote and thereby postpone the settlement of this important question. It is for the qualified voters to say where the permanent seat of government shall be located, and by exercising a little common-sense it can be settled this fall. The city that gets the capital must have a majority of all the votes cast. If no city gets such majority, then at the next general election the three cities having the largest vote at this election will be voted upon, and if no one of the three receives a majority of all the votes cast then the two highest will be voted upon two years hence. Meanwhile the capital will remain at Olympia. North Yakima has taken steps to donate ample grounds for a capitol site and is gaining in popularity every day. Eastern Washington should unite on North Yakima, and with the assistance promised from the other side of the mountains, success is ours.

The Advantages of North Yakima.

Vancouver Independent: At the approaching election, among the most important questions to be decided, is the location of the state capital. By the observant it is conceded that only three places are seriously considered. North Yakima, Ellensburg and Olympia are the only towns that will receive more than a local support. If neither receives a majority of all the votes cast and another vote thereby becomes necessary, these three towns will then, no doubt, be the only contestants, since only the three names securing the highest vote at the first can be submitted at the second election. It therefore behooves the people of this region to consider thoughtfully which of these towns should be chosen. Thirty-five years ago, when the present capital was located, the settlements were all on the west side of the territory. At that time Olympia served at least reasonably well, though radical objections might then have been urged. But now an entirely different situation is presented. A great and growing population through the country east of the Cascades. These barriers have been pierced by railroads, and others are coming to transport products and people over lines then unimaginable. The large population on the sunny slope of the Cascades and away to the east of the great Columbia are now to be heard from on this question, and will certainly speak in unmistakable terms for some place on that side of the mountains. It is fortunate for North Yakima that the most westerly town at all satisfactory to that already potent section promises in the near future to be closely allied to Vancouver by new lines of communication. We refer, of course, to North Yakima. Her natural advantages in climate, in central location, in accessibility, in healthfulness, etc., are considerations which address themselves strongly to all the voters of the state. But these are not the only ones that citizens of Clarke county should entertain. The new state is being built for the future as well as the present. It seems now that in the very foreground of this future Vancouver is to realize the bright dream of her early youth. Ships are to be laden and unladen at her wharves, and great iron highways are to transport their cargoes to and fro. In this receding of the situation, North Yakima will be the first important point made tributary to Vancouver, and is therefore especially convenient and desirable to our people as the capital site. If, as now seems sure, it be the chosen place, the building of this new outlet to tidewater will be all the more necessary and certain, and thus will either consummation assist the other.

How Ellensburg Gets Newspaper "Influence."

Olympian: If you see a newspaper lauding Ellensburg for the capital, turn to its advertising columns and dollars to doughnuts you will find an advertisement in payment for a town lot in that city, with editorial "influence" as collateral. It is a part of the scheme of the land ring which issued photographic views of "Capital Park," from an imaginary drawing by the late James Fickett, in which aspen-trees walks and majestic shade-trees are shown on the desert waste.

Representation the Tact of Ellensburg.

C. M. Barton in the Oregonian: I read a paragraph in the Ellensburg State Register which caused a smile, to the effect that Ben E. Shippey, the banker, had just come up from North Yakima, and stated that the wind was blowing a gale there, and the streets were so dusty that one could not see across them. Those who had been at the latter place the day before knew to the contrary, but I suppose everything goes in a contest for the state capital.

SULLIVAN FOR CONGRESS.

The Boston Bruiser Ready and Willing to Emulate John Morrissey.

He Hopes to be Made a National Legislator by Boston Democrats.

The New York Sun publishes a letter from John L. Sullivan in which he announces his intention of running for congress on the democratic ticket. It is his ambition to represent a Boston district, and he states that with such a high ambition he trusts he will in the future make his life what it ought to be. In his letter he says that any man who doubts his popularity with the American people has only got to travel about with him and get rid of his doubts. Sullivan does not doubt his qualifications.

Following is the full text of his letter:

"To the editor of the Evening Sun. Sir: A good deal has been said about my becoming a candidate for congress. I write to say that after thinking the matter over I have decided that when the time comes to elect new congressmen from Boston, I will be a candidate on the democratic ticket, if the nomination is offered to me. There are several reasons which have induced me to adopt this course. In the first place, I have always supported the party and have always voted for it. I am sound as far as my political record is concerned, and I feel that I deserve the support of the party on that score. Then I have personal friends and general admirers enough in Boston to elect me anyhow. Any man who doubts my popularity with the American people has only to travel about with me to get rid of that notion. Some may criticize my occupation in life. They don't know what they are talking about. My business is, and has been, ever since I came before the public, to encourage physical culture. Young fellows don't care for what they read about a lot of small fighters and second-rate champions but the sight of one man with a national reputation and everybody looking up to him fires them with ambition and encourages them in the task of getting up their muscle. Many a young man is bigger and stronger because my example has set him to work. Then, besides, with my matches and exhibitions I have entertained hundreds of thousands all over the country. Also I have furnished through the newspapers interesting reading for millions. People have got to feel grateful to those who entertain them. If I make a promise I keep it. I have always looked after my friends, and no one can accuse me of not acting fairly by him. A Sunday-school teacher can't say more than that."

"But what I feel to be more important than all else is the reputation which I have done to keep up the reputation of America among other nations. The best men from everywhere have tried to beat me but failed, and since I first began I have kept the pugilistic championship of the world in this country. There is not a selfish American, no matter what fool ideas he may have about boxing in general, who does not feel patriotic pride at the thought that a native born American, a countryman of his, can lick any man on the face of the earth. It is human nature, and this feeling applies especially to Boston, where I was born and where I shall appear as a candidate. As to my fitness for the place I can prove that in a few words. A man is elected to congress to look after the interests of those who send him there. That will be my motto, and I living up to it will be my business. I know what is wanted by my friends and the citizens of Boston generally, and I will try to get it."

"In my travels about this country and Europe I have had as much experience in public speaking as most people. I'll have no trouble about getting a hearing in congress or in making people pay attention to what I say. A man who can quiet a crowd in Madison Square Garden, as I have done, can make his presence felt in congress, or anywhere else on earth. I therefore announce now my willingness to enter political life. This communication, drawn up in consultation with friends and with their advice, is the longest that I have ever addressed to any paper. I shall be obliged to you if you will print it. Yours truly,

Boston, September 7.

In an interview regarding his proposal to stand for congress Sullivan said: "You know of the misfortune that I have just had in the loss of my mother. It was not unexpected, for a year ago the doctors told me that she could not live if the rheumatism reached her heart, but her death has had a great effect on me. I do not want to talk about it much. I can only say that I do not feel like living as I have done up to now. You know how people abuse me, and if I make a good resolution my enemies laugh at it, while my friends try to get me to break it. But I will show them what I mean to do without saying much about it. In the first place, I shall give up boxing, which has occupied all my time so far. It is an honorable calling and does good, but as a congressman, or a candidate for congress, I, of course, could not continue to be a professional pugilist. My reputation is made. The cropping up of new fighters can not injure it, and these challenges can't worry me. I shall go through with my six weeks' exhibition and shall put my money away carefully, and attend to my political career exclusively. Now that my mother is dead there is no one depending on me but my father, and he is well cared for. He has six houses in his own name, which will keep him in comfort to the end of his days. I have brought him on with me from Boston because I can't leave him alone to worry about my mother's death. It's harder for him than for me after living together for forty years. 'Mike (to his brother), step up and ask the old gentleman to come down.'"

Mr. Sullivan, Sr., came down and was affectionately introduced by his son as the little father of a big boy. He is an unusually small man and forms a most striking contrast with his son, celebrated all over the world for being just the reverse of small.

Curiously enough, while Sullivan was talking of his future political aspirations as revealed in his letter of September 7, a friend of his dropped in to see him to express sympathy at his mother's death and to say that he would be glad to do all he could to help Sullivan out of his trouble down south.

THE PROBLEM SOLVED.

A Well Known Railroad Engineer Gives Facts and Figures Why Yakima Will be the Railroad Center.

C. M. Barton in the Oregonian: I had an interesting talk in Ellensburg with Captain J. T. Kingsbury, one of the democratic delegates from North Yakima to the convention. He was an old and efficient engineer of the Northern Pacific, and I asked him how the railroad problem was going to be solved with respect to Ellensburg and North Yakima. He said:

"Both towns are about thirty miles west of the Columbia river. East of Ellensburg, which is 1500 feet above the level of the sea, is Johnson's canyon. This canyon is 2400 feet above the level of the sea, and it is about thirty-one miles to Ellensburg before you strike its summit to go down to the Columbia river. From its summit you have but eight or nine miles distance, but it is 1900 feet down, which would give you a grade of 240 feet to the mile, and the highest standard grade in this country on a through line like the Northern Pacific is 126 feet, which is in getting up and down the Cascades. The Union Pacific is allowed 116 feet to the mile, the Central Pacific grade over the Sierra Nevada is 116 feet and the Southern Pacific grade over the Tehuantepec mountains the same. There are heavier grades than these on short branches of railways running into mines and other places, but no large line is operated with a heavier grade than 126 feet to the mile."

"Then you think it impracticable to build a railroad to the Columbia from Ellensburg?"

"It is almost impossible, but it can be built with great expense. The true course is through the Moxee pass from Yakima. After crossing it going eastward a turn in the Columbia river is met which gives a chance to get down to the river by a fifty mile route, with a seventy-five foot grade to the mile. After crossing the Columbia there is no trouble in going eastward with the road. A glance at the map will show what I mean. There is also a fine route sixty miles southward from Yakima by the Coville pass, and this is the route taken by the Vancouver, Kilkitt and Yakima road, where large quantities of fine coal have lately been found. I have surveyed and engineered on these routes, and know what I am talking about."

"How much lower is the altitude of Yakima than Ellensburg?" I asked. "About 600 feet," was the reply. "Hence the warmer breezes in the Yakima valley."

North Yakima Made an Impression.

The Oregonian's correspondent at Walla Walla during the republican convention wrote: "One of the incidents of the meeting at Walla Walla of the convention, is that North Yakima has been ever present and omnipresent with a delegation of jolly, good-humored citizens with their headquarters, and with a showing that has made an impression. It seems now, as the convention adjourns and the people go to their homes, that North Yakima is decidedly in the lead for the capital. They have presented their claims and discussed the matter in a modest yet effective manner, and when North Yakima carries away none of the honors on the state ticket, it is generally conceded that her representatives have done much toward fixing in the minds of the people here assembled the superior advantages of North Yakima for the capital."

Will Blossom at the Rose.

Whitcomb Bulletin: The system of irrigation being introduced into the Yakima valley by which thousands of acres of land now unavailable will be adapted for cultivation will be the means of adding millions of dollars to the assessable value of property in Washington. The question of irrigation is attracting attention in all of the Pacific coast country from British Columbia to Mexico, and water is the elixir that will change the arid wastes from a state of worthlessness to one of beauty and joy, and will make the desert to blossom as the rose. All steps toward this end are deserving of the highest praise.

Beauty

Is desired and admired by all. Among the things which may best be done to enhance personal beauty is the daily use of Ayer's Hair Vigor. No matter what the color of the hair, this preparation gives it a lustre and pliancy that adds greatly to its charm. Should the hair be thin, harsh, dry, or turning gray, Ayer's Hair Vigor will restore the color, bring out a new growth, and render the old soft and shiny. For keeping the scalp clean, cool, and healthy, there is no better preparation in the market.

"I am free to confess that a trial of Ayer's Hair Vigor has convinced me that it is a genuine article. Its use has not only caused the hair of my wife and daughter to be but it has given my rather stunted mustache a respectable length and appearance."—H. Britton, Oakland, Ohio.

"My hair was coming out (without any assistance from my wife, ails). I tried Ayer's Hair Vigor, using only one bottle, and I now have as fine a head of hair as any one could wish for."—E. T. Schmitt, Dickson, Tenn.

"I have used Ayer's Hair Vigor in my family for a number of years, and regard it as the best hair preparation I know of. It keeps the scalp clean, the hair soft and lively, and preserves the original color. My wife has used it for a long time with most satisfactory results."—Benjamin M. Johnson, M. D., Thomas Hill, Mo.

"My hair was becoming harsh and dry, but after using half a bottle of Ayer's Hair Vigor it grew black and glossy. I cannot express the joy and gratitude I feel."—Mabel C. Hardy, Delavan, Ill.

Prophesying Calamity.

Apprehension exists in respect to drilling the earth and exhausting the natural gas as is expressed by the following professors in a recent issue of the Popular Science Monthly.

Professor Joseph F. Jones assumes the earth to be a hollow sphere filled with a gaseous substance, called by us natural gas, and he thinks tapping these reservoirs will cause disastrous explosions, resulting from the lighted gas coming in contact with that which is escaping.

Another writer thinks that drilling should be prohibited by stringent laws. He, too, thinks there is a possibility of an explosion, though from another cause.

Still another theorist has investigated the gas wells with telephones and delicate thermometers and announces startling discoveries. He distinguished sounds like the boiling of rocks, and estimated that at a depth of a mile and one-half beneath the Ohio and Indiana gas field the temperature of the earth is 3000 degrees.

THE STRIPE DOWN THE BACK.

An Infallible Sign of the Mixing of the Black and White Races.

"In several instances I saw slave children sold whose veins contained so much of their master's blood that their skins were without a tinge of the African color except in the inevitable stripe down the spinal column. Such things as that were so plainly and horribly wrong that I needed no teaching in order to know it.

"What do I mean by the stripe down the spinal column? Why, I supposed you knew the presence of African blood in any person, no matter how slight the proportion, can be instantly detected by a dark line along the spine. Even an octopus, with complexion and features pure Caucasian, invariably has this line of dark. It is a never failing proof of mixed blood. The mark is not always black, but is always considerably darker than the rest of the body.

A Comforting Night Cap.

"It ain't everybody I'd put to sleep in this room," said old Mrs. Jenks to the fastidious and extremely nervous young minister who was spending the night in B— at her house.

"My own father died layin' right on that lounge under the window. Poor pa! he was a spiritualist, and he alius said he'd appear in this room again, after he died, and sometimes I'm foolish enough to look for him. If you should see anything of him to-night you'd better not tell me, for it'd be a sign to me that there was something in spiritualism, and I'd hate to think that."

"My son by my first husband, fell dead of heart disease right where you stand. He was a doctor, and there's two whole skeletons in that closet that belonged to him, and a half-dozen skulls in that lower drawer."

A Dissimulative Man.

Over in Indiana a man went out hunting, and while he was thus engaged there was a big rain and he sought shelter in a hollow log. The log became soaked with water and swelled until the aperture was too small for the man to get out again. There he was in a dilemma. He quickly reviewed his past life and when he came to think that he was not even an subscriber for his own home paper, he felt so small that he crawled out of the hole without any trouble whatever.

The Remaining Territories.

After the admission of the two Dakotas Washington and Montana, there will still remain five territories that will be candidates for admission. Four of these have at some time formulated constitutions that have been left to season. Two of these, Idaho and Wyoming, are now engaged in revamping constitutions or making new ones. The third one, New Mexico, is about to engage in the same work. The question of the admission of

A Mander Mander Falls.

On Friday last, near the west bank of Austin creek, California, the ruthless woodman's ax laid low one of nature's kingliest growths. For 1000 years his vegetable majesty had lifted his proud head annually nearer the clouds, and taken upon himself month by month, more and more of that colossal bulk which marks the true forest king.

The figures here given, especially for New Mexico and Utah, will probably bear trimming down. But when that has been done, it is probable that they will show the requisite population for admission. According to the showing here made, New Mexico has a population exceeding the amount required by about 8000; while Utah has an excess of about 48,000. The other three territories at this date do not appear to have sufficient population to entitle them to admission.

There is a bitter opposition in that territory against the establishment of any system of public free schools. In Utah it is not a question of population, nor of schools, but one touching a policy that antagonizes the Federal Government. Utah has never been loyal to that government, except on compulsion. Its population increases by immigration and in a natural way quite rapidly. No territory has a right to admission by virtue of population or other qualifications. There is no statute conferring on a territory the right of admission. There are, of course, numerous precedents. But the Federal Government exercises the sovereign right of both admission and rejection. It may decide that no one of these five territories shall be admitted for the present, or it may admit one or two of those deemed best qualified. While it is pretty certain that four new states will be admitted to the Union at the next session of congress, it is not at all certain that any of the five territories, whose population is here noted will become a state so early a date. No enabling act has yet been passed for any one of them, but that fact alone would not operate as a bar to admission, because there are precedents for the admission of new states without any enabling act.

A Stragg Writer.

"Stephen," said the colonel, speaking to an old negro, who had come to cut the grass in the yard, "I am told that you intend to give your son a good education."

"Dat's what I does, sah. I knows what it is ter struggle erlong widout larnin' an' I is 'termed dat my son abain' travel b'ar-foot ober de same flint-rock road dat I did."

"A noble resolution, Stephen. There is something beautiful in the unutilized mind that has a reverence for knowledge. Is your boy learning rapidly?"

"As fast as er horse can trot, sah. Wy lask week he writ a letter ter his aunt dat libs mo' dan twenty miles from yere, an' after while, he's gwine ter write ter his udder aunt dat libs fifty miles erway."

"Why doesn't he write to her now?"

"Oh, he kain't write so fur yet. He ken write twenty miles first-rate, but I told him not ter try ter write fifty miles till he got stronger wid his pen. But he gwine ter git dar I tell yu. Won't be mo'n a year fo' dat boy ken set down at one end of de government an' writ a letter 'er ter de udder end."

Our Advantages Over Canada.

In the last twenty years Canada's public debt has increased three times the amount of what it was in 1869. To-day it is $284,513,842. Of course, much of this is due to the construction of public works, notably the great transcontinental railway. But such a burden for a population of only 4,972,101—less than the number of people in New York state to-day—is oppressive to the thought. That it is a most serious matter to the dominion is apparent through the revelation of the party press of Canada, not to mention the unmistakable signs of distress which attend trade and business generally. The large number of people who annually leave the dominion to settle in the United States tells the story of the superior advantages and prosperity here. Emigration from the United States to Canada is an unbroken movement on the part of anybody in order to improve his circumstances. The El Dorado of this continent is precisely the region now owned by this republic.

Preserving His Reputation.

"I suppose you have heard of the elopement!"

A Sweet Scheme.

Clus Spreckels has another scheme. It is nothing less than to build an addition to the White House out of blocks of hardened sugar. In shipping cargoes of his immense product to Mexico, Spreckels has found it necessary to solidify them in some way into large blocks in order to preserve them against attacks of different and varying climatic conditions. Spreckels maintains that he is now able to produce blocks of sugar whiter than marble and harder. The material, he asserts, will be less than one-half as expensive as marble, is guaranteed whiter and to hold its color perfectly, no matter what kind of weather, and is warranted to stand the wear of time. To build an addition to the White House of this hardened sugar would draw the attention of people and only a comparatively small appropriation from Congress would be required to pay for the work. The plan includes the manufacture of blocks partly out of cane sugar from Louisiana, partly of beet sugar from Kansas, but wholly of American sugar, and the employment of none but American tools and American workmen.

Admitted to Citizenship.

"Mary," said the mistress of a Cass-avenue residence to her cook the other morning, "isn't that new bean of yours a German?"

"He was, ma'am, until last night."

"What happened last night?"

"Why, he declared his intentions, ma'am, and we are to be married in the fall."

Merit Wins.

We desire to say to our citizens that for years we have been selling Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Dr. King's New Life Pills, Bucklen's Arnica Salve and Electric Bitters, and have never handled remedies that sell as well, or that have given such universal satisfaction. We do not hesitate to guarantee them every time, and we stand ready to refund the purchase price, if satisfactory results do not follow their use. These remedies have won their great popularity purely on their merits. Jaseck the druggist.

A Safe Investment.

In one which is guaranteed to bring you satisfactory results, or, in case of failure, a return of purchase price. On this safe plan you can buy from our advertised druggist a bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption. It is guaranteed to bring relief in every case, when used for any affection of throat, lungs or chest, such as consumption, inflammation of lungs, bronchitis, asthma, whooping cough, croup, etc. It is pleasant and agreeable to the taste, perfectly safe, and can always be depended upon. Trial bottles free at Jaseck's drug store.

How often do we hear our friends say "O, I am feeling pretty well, but have a slight pain in the back, which I suppose will soon pass away." But does it pass away? No, not often unless aided by some good remedy. Pain in the back is frequently followed by weakness, flushing of the body, mucus and milky discharges, eruptions of the face and neck, dizziness, loss of appetite, general debility, Bright's disease of the kidneys. If you have any of these symptoms do not delay, but save time, money and health by using Oregon Kidney Tea—a safe and speedy remedy.

A lady who was afflicted with salt rheum on the face and other parts of the body for many years, and who was treated by the best physicians on the Pacific coast with only temporary relief, says: "Dutard's Specific has entirely cured me of my troublesome complaint and although I have not used the medicine for many months, I have had no return of the disease. I shall always feel grateful to you. Sold by Allen & Chapman."

It is astonishing how rapidly the feeble and debilitated gain strength and vigor when taking Ayer's Sarsaparilla. For what are called "broken-down constitutions," nothing else has proved so effective as this powerful but perfectly safe medicine.

If mothers studied their best interests they would find that Dr. Henley's Dandelion Tonic is the best household remedy. Many of our ills peculiar to females could be avoided by its use. It is as pleasant to take as a glass of wine. Sold by Allen & Chapman.

The use of calomel for derangements of the liver has ruined many a fine constitution. Those who, for similar troubles, have tried Ayer's Pills testify to their efficacy in thoroughly remedying the malady, without injury to the system.
