What is it that builds up our cities so large?

Has some Romulus or Remus springing up in our midst?

Has some imperial decree, commanded the cities to grow, as it were.

No! They may wrangle and jangle, dispute and feude.

TWO SOLDIERS.

At the moment of the outbreak both companies from Graham, K and D.

scouting through the country—one through the northern Peloncillo range.

the other far up among the head waters of the Gila.

Not a word did they hear of the trouble until it was several days old.

then D troop was amazed by the sudden appearance of their captain in their midst.

Lane, whom they supposed to be on his sick leave far in the distant east.

It was then for the first time they learned how their comrades of K troop had lost their popular old commander.

and that the great outbreak had occurred at San Carlos.

Stopping only long enough to cram their ponches with ammunition and to draw more rations.

the troop hastened away toward the railroad by way of Graciano.

and at the station, just at dawn, Lane sent a brief dispatch to the commanding general.

saying that he was pushing with all speed to head the Indians off via San Simon pass.

He had then forty-five men and horses, in fair condition.

K troop would reach Graham that evening.

Lane himself rode after his own men two hours after he got to the post from the east.

and Noel, who is K's new captain, is due at Graham station to-night.

"Then send him orders to lead his troop instantly, follow and support Lane.

Tell him not to lose a moment on this way.

Everything may depend upon his promptness in this regard.

And so it happened that when Capt. Noel stepped from the train that afternoon at the old station.

the messenger came forward to meet him, touching his cap and saying.

"This dispatch has been awaiting you, sir, since 11 o'clock this morning.

I have just had a dispatch from the post, and K troop got in two hours ago and is already starting.

Lieut. Mason says an orderly is coming ahead with a horse and the captain's field kit.

Shall I wire for anything else?"

Noel opened the dispatch that had been handed him.

and read it with an expression that plainly indicated perturbation.

if not dismay.

He had not been in saddle for an entire year.

"Why, I must go out to the post!" he said to the operator.

"I am not at all ready to take the field.

Let them know that I have arrived, and will come out there without delay.

Better have the troop unseparated and wait for my coming."

"Will the captain pardon me?" said the operator.

"The orders from the department commander that went through this morning were that the troop should not take more than an hour in refitting at the post and should start at once.

I thought I could see them coming over the divide just as the whistle blew."

The captain gave no sign of enthusiasm as he received this news.

He was still pondering over the contents of his dispatch from the commanding general.

—his tone was so like that of his order from the war department—so utterly unlike what his admiring circle of relatives and friends would have expected.

Stepping into the telegraph office he took some blanks and strove to compose a dispatch that would convince the general that he was wild with eagerness to ride all night to the support of Lane.

and yet that would explain how absolutely necessary it was that he should first get out to the post.

But the fates were against him.

Even as he was gnawing the pencil and cudgeling his brains the operator called out:

"Here come some of 'em now, sir."

And, looking nervously from the window, Noel saw three horsemen galloping in to the station.

Foremost came a lieutenant of infantry, whose eyes were to the ground and tossed the reins to his orderly.

the instant he neared the platform.

One of the men had a led horse, completely equipped for the field.

with blankets, saddle bags, carbine, canteen and haversack.

and Noel's quick intuition led him no room to believe that the rest was intended for any one but him.

CHAPTER XIV.

Lane finds himself confronted one instant by a savage warrior.

Not an instant too soon, although he has ridden hard since earliest dawn.

Has Lane reached the rocky pass. North and south the Peloncillos are shrouded in the gloom of coming night.

and all over the arid plain to the eastward darkness has settled down.

In previous scouts he has learned the country well, and he knows just where to turn for "banks" of cool water for horses, mules and men.

the cavalry order of precedence when creature comforts are to be doled out.

He knows just where to conceal his little force in the recesses of the rocks and let them build tiny fires and make their coffee and then get such rest as is possible before the coming day.

but there is no rest for him. Taking two veteran soldiers with him.

and leaving the troop to the command of his lieutenant, an enthusiastic young soldier only a year out of the cadet gray.

the captain rides westward through the gloaming. He must determine at once whether the Indians are coming toward the pass by which the San Simon makes its burst through the range.

or whether, having made wide detour around the little post at Bowie among the Chiricahua mountains, they are now heading southward again and taking the shortest line to the border before seeking to regain one more their old trail along the San Bernardino.

How often have their war parties gone to and fro along those rocky banks, un molested, unpursued!

And now, secure in the belief that they have thrown all the cavalry far to the rear in the "stem chase" which no Apache dread, well knowing how easily he can distance his hampered pursuers.

the renegades, joined by a gang of the utterly "unreconstructed" Chiricahuas.

are taking things easily and making raids on the helpless ranches that lie to the right or left of their line of march.

Fortunately for the records these are few in number; had there been dozens more they would only have served to swell the list of butchered men, of plundered ranches, of burning sheds and corrals, of women and children borne off to be the sport of their leisure hours when once secure in the fastnesses of the Sierra Madre far south of the line.

Death could not come too soon to the relief of these poor creatures, and Lane and all his men had been spurred to the utmost effort by the story of the railway hands that they had plainly seen several women and children bound to the spare animals the renegades drove along across the iron track.

Among the passengers in the pillaged stage coach were the wife and daughter of an Indian agent, who had only recently come to this arid territory and knew little of the ways of its indigenous people.

Nothing had since been seen or heard of them.

Capt. Rawlins and two soldiers, going up as witnesses before a court martial at Grant, were found hacked almost beyond recognition, and the driver, too, who seemed to have crawled out among the rocks to die.

Verily the Apaches had good reason to revel in their success! They had hoodlums of the bureau, and the cavalry, plundered right and left until they were rich with spoil, and now, well to the south of the railway, with a choice of either east or west side of the range, their main body and prisoners are halted to rest the animals, while miles to the rear their faithful vedettes keep watch against gunners, and snipes, out to the west the most active young warriors are crying havoc at the ranch of Tre Hermonos.

It is the red glare of the flames towards the sunset horizon that tells Lane the Apaches cannot be far away.

The instant he and his comrades issue from the gorge and peer cautiously to the right and left not only do they see something which causes him to whisper caution.

Foremost, carbine in hand, is the captain, now halting a moment to give some signal to those nearest him, now peering ahead over the rocks that bar the way.

At last he reaches a point where, looking down the dark and rugged hillside before him, he sees something which causes him to whisper caution.

THE ELECTION OF MR. ELLIS.

One of the great surprises of this election was the defeat of Matt Bartholet for auditor and the election of Myron H. Ellis. Mr. Bartholet had every reason, even after the election, to believe that he would retain his office by a small majority, and Mr. Ellis informed THE HERALD that he had ceased to hope for success, when the official vote gave him a majority of three. Mr. Bartholet had made a good and efficient auditor, and his defeat can only be attributed to the malicious and untruthful charges circulated against him on the eve of election. Had the circulators of these canards any faith in their truth they would have brought them before the public long ago, but there was shrewd, careful calculation, and the charges were sprung when the opportunity to get the facts fully before the public was past. The tactics which brought about his defeat should be severely censured, but those who would otherwise have voted for him, and were changed by these statements, have much to learn regarding the methods pursued in eastern political campaigns and translated this fall in the valley of the Yakima. Mr. Ellis, from all THE HERALD can learn, has personally made an honorable canvass, and for this much honor is due him. He is socially a very clever and obliging gentleman, and has had a thorough business education, and will no doubt conduct the affairs in his department of the county government with credit to himself and to the satisfaction of those who voted for and those who voted against him. THE HERALD hopes that his administration will be competent and clean, and believing that it will be, it extends to him its best wishes for his success and prosperity.

ARE THE CHINESE TO RULE?

The Spectator: Lord Wolsey believes that the Chinese are the coming race, and that they will overrun the world the moment a great general or law-giver arises among them. For 300 years the Chinese have been ruled by "the simple method of having all the more active, capable and progressive heads shorn off by the Tartars." No one of more than average intelligence is permitted to exist, and the government is on one side an organized system of massacre. When Commissioner Leh was asked whether it was true that he had beheaded 60,000 men in three years, his answer was: "Oh, surely more than that!" Some day, however, a new Chinese Moses will arise and resist. The people, who are quite fearless, will then, Lord Wolsey thinks, adopt the profession of arms, hurl themselves on Russia, and sweep over her, India and the continent of Europe. The English, the American and the Australians will have to rally for a desperate conflict, probably in Western Asia, which will be a veritable battle of Armageddon. Such prophecies are, of course, of small practical use; but we agree that a very little might set the Chinese moving, and that her millions, once let loose, could no more be stopped than streams of lava. Lord Wolsey is all for keeping on good terms with the Chinese, and so are we; but, at the same time, we do not forget that the Roman emperors who tried to conciliate the Goths fared no better than those who defied them.

IT IS WOMAN, NOW.

Seattle Morning Journal: It is no longer the correct thing to call a woman anything else than a woman; the term lady is tabooed in polite society, and fashion has fallen in line, for once, with good sense and, it happens, with the poets. Poetry—the poetry that stands the test of time—is truth. Truth is always sense. Shakespeare wrote of women, not ladies. Lavinia was a woman, therefore to be wooed and won. Byron wrote of "fair women and brave men;" suppose, to point the argument, he had used the more effeminate expression, would not an admirable line have been spoiled? Suppose that Moore had prattled of the light that lies in ladies' eyes and protested that his only books were ladies' books, would the lines have lived or deserved the favor of posterity?

GETTING THE ARONA.

For many years those of inferior tastes, as the fact proves, have contended for the name of lady, and we have had charlatans and kitchen ladies until the more intelligent of those of higher standing have revolted and renounced the term, going back to the time-honored custom that bestowed upon the brightest and best of femininity the grand name of woman. Let fashion call a halt and hold to what she has gained, letting those who will have the word lady to do with as they please. The commissioners have decided upon locating the soldiers' home at Orting. Now if the agricultural college can be located at Puyallup, Mukilton or some other place on the Sound, the people of eastern Washington will doubtless be satisfied. They voted for the capital remaining at Olympia on the grounds that they wanted a change of climate and wanted to get over where there were oysters and clams. It is wonderful how many people expect to be legislators or hold other state offices. Mugs that found it difficult to even sign their own names advanced the oyster and clam theory, and enthusiastically voted and worked for Olympia. Eastern Washington is thoroughly unselfish and graciously give to the west side everything that is asked for.

The financial market is in a very panicky condition. Alarming telegrams from London and Paris, predicting disasters on change, set Wall street on fire and demoralized the stock market. On Monday Manhattan Elevated fell from 100 to 92 and Western Union declined 5 1/2 per cent. Villard stocks seemed to bear the brunt of the attack, Northern Pacific preferred dropping three per cent, and failed to recover, and the common stock fell off 17 1/2 per cent. Money was very close and there was some trouble in the banks settlements through the clearing house. There was no improvement in the situation on the following day and what the outcome will be it is difficult to foresee.

TACOMA News: We have it on good authority that there is a fund of $27,000 in bank for the purpose of electing a Pierce county man to the United States senate. It is not insisted that it is for the purpose of electing Mr. Calkins, therefore it is to be presumed that whoever contributed to the fund was not in his desire to force Calkins on the legislature. There are from 14 to 20 democrats who will be members of the senate and the house, and it is pretty generally understood that they would not oppose a Pierce county man other than Mr. Calkins himself, who, unfortunately, by his intemperate language, made enemies where he might have made friends.

The republicans of Pierce county owe the republicans of King county a big dinner on a bet made previous to the election as to which county would cast the larger plurality for Wilson. King county's republican plurality was greater than that of Pierce county by 778, and consequently Chairman W. V. Rinehart and his associates will be wined and dined by Nelson Bennett and his party followers.

JACOB T. EISELHMAN will represent Yakima and Klickitat counties in the state senate. The sovereigns have willed it by their ballots, and he gets there by the very small majority of four. In Klickitat county Mr. Pierce got a majority of 102, while Yakima county gave Mr. Eiselhman a majority of 106. THE HERALD extends its heartiest congratulations to Mr. Eiselhman on the successful issue of his candidacy.

The firm of Switzer & Beer, dealers in fancy goods, failed in Chicago this week for $50,000. They were out of their element, for had they dealt in malt and fermented spirits their name would have made them a fortune.

PRESIDENT HARRISON, with a heart full of sadness, has issued his proclamation naming Thursday, November 27th, as the day to be devoted to the giving of thanks for national blessings.

TOPICS OF THE DAY.

A most remarkable romance was brought to light at Kansas City on Sunday last. Twenty-five years ago two babies (brother and sister) were abandoned in Castle Garden by their parents. They were adopted by different people. The girl lived with her foster mother, Mrs. Evans, in Philadelphia. The boy, who was adopted by a man named Barr, grew up, learned a trade and went to Philadelphia. There he met Miss Evans, fell in love with her, and in due course of time they were married and went to Kansas City to live. A couple of years ago Mrs. Evans died, leaving a large fortune. Detectives, in searching for Mrs. Evans' adopted child, discovered the story and told it to Mr. and Mrs. Barr. Legal steps will at once be taken to annul it, and the brother and sister will then take possession of the fortune.

There is trouble and turmoil in Spokane Falls over the disposition of the exposition building and affairs. The ground that was donated is valued at $40,000 and the building cost about $105,000, all of which the association is trying to sell to the city for $70,000 and a slight profit, and con, is in progress. The exposition, while of great benefit to the city, was not a success financially and a large deficit must be made up. The stockholders do not wish to go deeper into their pockets, and look to the city for relief through the sale of their property.

THE REPUBLICANS ARE VIGILANTLY LOOKING

TO FIND THE CAUSE FOR THE EFFECT. Instead of one they find many, and among them is Boss Quay, against whom the ultimatum has been pronounced and he must retire from the chairmanship of the republican national central committee. Clarkson is spoken of as his successor.

conclusion it isn't. There are four customers who come here and either get a few drops in their hand or handkerchief six or eight times a day. One of them told me not long ago that a man with a keen nose or smell can get more satisfaction that way than of imbibing.

A SWEDISH CUSTOM.

Giving Lives Their Husband's Titles Until It Becomes Aburd.

The tawdry fashion of giving a woman her husband's title has spread from Washington to Tombstone. It has changed our pride into vanity, and shriveled up courtesy while trying to expand it. The papers are to blame for some of this, because the bribe of a chicken bone and a glass of wine will turn "our special reporter" into a Jenkins in yellow plush livery, and with a footman's rapture he will tell us that "Mrs. Commissioner Biggs gave a brilliant reception last evening, at which we noticed Mrs. Gen. Diggs and the charming Mrs. Alderman Figs, accompanied by her beautiful daughter, Mrs. Senator Jiggs, who kept up a lively conversation with Mrs. Representative Riggs," and so down to the bottom of the stairs. The people who pay these flatteries are snobs, and so are the people who accept them. Trades as well as offices are titles now. I once had the honor of an introduction to a lady who promenade through "society" as Mrs. Conductor Gaines; her husband was a conductor on the railroad. A few days ago a newspaper, telling about the burning of a building in Chicago, said that "elevator operator Gibbs" first noticed the smoke. There was the stately title given to the boy who ran the "lift." More extravagant than even that was the grim and gloomy title given to "death watch Osborne," a man whose duty it was to sit up with a convict sentenced to be hanged. In conferring this title we touched bottom, and this justifies the hope that a reaction will set in toward a simplicity of manners and address worthy of a sensible people.—Open Court.

No. 147.

In the superior court of Yakima county, state of Washington:

STATE OF WASHINGTON, County of Yakima, vs. FANNIE M. KEMPER, Plaintiff, vs. BARTON F. KEMPER, Defendant.

The state of Washington to the above named defendant: You are hereby notified that Fannie Kemper, plaintiff, has filed a complaint against you in the Superior Court of Yakima county, state of Washington, which will come on to be heard sixty days after the first publication of this summons, to-wit: sixty days after the 7th day of November, 1900, and unless you appear and answer the same on or before the 6th day of January, 1901, the same will be taken as confessed, and the prayer of the said complaint granted. The object and prayer of said complaint is to dissolve the bonds of matrimony existing between plaintiff and defendant, on the ground that defendant has been guilty of habitual drunkenness and failure to provide plaintiff with the common necessities of life for several years past.

Witness my hand and the seal of said court, this 7th day of Nov. 1900.

JUDGE LEWIS RESUMES THE FIRST NATIONAL BANK PRESIDENCY.—A year ago Judge J. R. Lewis, of Seattle, was president of the First National bank of North Yakima, an institution in which he took a great deal of pride and interest and in which he is largely identified. At that time he was taken dangerously ill and, not knowing the duration of his sickness, he resigned the presidency in favor of Hon. Edward Whitson, then vice-president, with the understanding that upon his recovery Mr. Whitson should retire in his favor. The judge had a hard struggle for life, but an extended visit to southern California restored his old-time health and vigor, and his presence in North Yakima is for the purpose of resuming his former connections with the bank and again becoming personally identified with its active management. Mr. Whitson's extensive legal practice and his large interest in the Yakima electric lights and waterworks, demand his entire attention and he finds great satisfaction in resigning the administration of the bank in favor of Judge Lewis, who has so ably conducted it in years past.

VALUABLE PRODUCT FOR DRY LANDS.—There is plenty of land in Yakima county that is not watered and some that never will be. For this latter class, especially, it is important to know that it is not without cropping value. The dwarf Lima bean finds in this class of land its most productive nursery. It flourishes on the driest soil and in the hottest and driest region. When everything beside it is withering, this bean is holding every leaf erect and every available space is loaded with blossoms or rapidly developing pods. On spikes erected in the air it sports its blossoms in the open sunshine, while this year the blossoms of the common bean have failed to expand, though covered with foliage. The reason for this is that it is native to the dry desert-like sections of South America, and to the hottest and driest parts of central Asia, India and Africa. In Yakima this bean grows to perfection, when not irrigated, and it could be made a valuable adjunct to our prosperity if cultivated in quantity on our high and dry lands.

EXTENSIVE BRIDGE WORK.—J. R. Peter, of the Northern Pacific, has been in the city several days this week conferring with the county commissioners regarding the bridges at the mouth of the Natchez. The river channel is to be changed by means of dikes into the old or central channel, and the county bridge strengthened and improved. The trestle work in the center of the railroad bridge is to be taken out and the two spans thrown together. Mr. Peter says the company will have about twenty-five men employed on this work and that they will be engaged most of the winter.

NAUTICAL NEWS.—The brig Disaster left the Natchez bridge Wednesday morning, November 5th, bound for a two years' voyage up the creek. It was captained by Daniel W. Pierce, of Klickitat county. The crew included B. F. Young, first mate, David Longmire, boatswain, John Reed, pilot; George Cary, Matt Barthole, D. W. Stair, Geo. Hull, L. C. Parrish, J. T. Kingsbury, S. W. Rodman, Jno. McPhos, Nelson Rich and John Cowan, seamen. The cargo consisted mainly of disappointed hopes and capital aspirations.

WILL SEND A DISPLAY CAR EAST.—The Northern Pacific has offered the use of a car for the purpose of exhibiting throughout the east the mineral and agricultural products displayed at the Spokane exposition. The general committee having the matter in charge have asked for an additional car, as it is believed one will not accommodate the entire display. Sub-committees of ladies have been appointed for all the counties, those for Yakima being Mr. J. T. Eshelman and Mr. Edward Whitson.

COAL IS KING.—North Yakima is not alone in its coal famine. The same complaint is heard all of the way from Roslyn to Spokane Falls. The mines are not producing enough to meet the demands, although they are being worked night and day. The Northern Pacific has a contract to furnish the Union Pacific fifty cars of coal per day and they have been unable to fulfill this obligation in its entirety. To this contract is due the lack of coal at local points along the road.

A NEW DEPOT TO BE BUILT.—Northern Pacific officials say that the company will build a new depot at this point during the coming year. It is planned to be of brick, will be extensive enough to meet the requirements for many years to come and will occupy the site of the present depot. In case the city forces the company to change the depot location by opening up Yakima avenue, it is intimated that the new building will be placed some distance out of town.

BONDS OF BIG DENOMINATIONS MISSING.—The commissioners are puzzling their heads over the question of what have become of $5000 of bonds issued a number of years since. These bonds were of large denomination, and were called in and the interest stopped on them long ago. Should they not be presented for payment before the expiration of six years after the call was made they become worthless and the money reverts to the county.

Dr. J. E. Gandy, of Spokane Falls, is being pushed forward for the speakership of the legislature. He will have the undivided support of his home delegation.

Tasoma went republican and will get at the hands of that party what she has always gotten—soup, and very thin soup at that.

County warrants taken at par at this office in payment of subscriptions.

LOCAL BREVITIES.

—The Northern Pacific is putting in 3500 feet of side tracks at this place.

—Diphtheria is again playing sad havoc down in Goldendale and other sections of Klickitat county.

—Mrs. Nellie Presby, wife of W. B. Presby, died at Goldendale, Oct. 31st, from blood poisoning.

—Rev. A. M. Allyn, Baptist state missionary, will preach in the school house Sunday, Nov. 16th. All are invited.

—The Yakima Coal company's advertisement appears in the Sound papers for proposals for boring to the depth of 1200 feet.

—Rev. J. T. Eshelman will begin a protracted meeting, at Marks' school on the Ahtanum, Friday, Nov. 14th, at 7 p. m.

—The ladies of the Presbyterian church will give a public Thanksgiving dinner on Thanksgiving day, Nov. 27th, at one o'clock.

—A new sidewalk is being built on the south side of Yakima avenue from the Hotel Yakima to Sixth street. It is an improvement that was much needed.

—It is reported that eastern capitalists are negotiating for the Yakima coal lands on the Cowlick, and the prospects are favorable for the consummation of the deal.

—By the time THE HERALD reaches its readers North Yakima will be lighted by electricity and reveling in water from the finest system of waterworks in the northwest.

—Yakima has some friends in South Bend. The capital vote there was Olympia 95, North Yakima 84 and Ellensburg 4. Olympia had a paid worker there.

—The state teachers' association will convene at Spokane Falls, Dec. 31st, for a three days' session. Arrangements are being made for excursion rates over all railroads.

—The county commissioners adjourned Wednesday evening. They acted on a large number of bills, for which warrants were ordered drawn, aggregating ten thousand dollars.

—Sheriff-elect Dan Simmons' horse was frightened into running away Wednesday. Although the horse took a spin of a couple of miles into the country the extent of the damage was a broken buggy spring.

—The unreliability of the late census is shown by the registration of voters. The census gave Goldendale a greater population than North Yakima, and yet there were an even 450 voters registered here against 159 in Goldendale.

—It would surprise some western, as well as eastern, people to know that alfalfa is being harvested in Yakima in the middle of November. Such is a fact, however, and twenty acres of this succulent feed is now being cut on the Gulland ranch, west of the city.

—The Royce & Lansing entertainment at the opera house, Monday evening, was well attended, and a very funny and artistic performance it was. Royce is a whole show in himself, the banjo, guitar and mandolin playing was of a high art order, and the support throughout was excellent.

—The county commissioners have decided not to build a bridge across the Yakima at Kiona, at least not at the present time, but appropriated $250 for the purchase of a cable and the building of a ferry boat. This work will be done under the supervision of Commissioner J. M. Brown.

—Tuesday was admission day, on which day, one year ago, Washington began statehood. In Governor Ferry's inaugural address he stated that the 11th day of November would always be designated as admission day, and it ought very properly to be placed among our legal holidays.

—A man and woman who showed conclusive indications of being from way back in the country appeared at the box office of the theatre Monday night and made application for seats in "the garret." They should have been more considerate of Manager Fechter's feelings and said attic.

—Spokane Falls Review: THE YAKIMA HERALD shows a commendable spirit when, instead of mourning over the recent defeat that city suffered in the race for the state capital, it pluckily recalls the resources of that town and country, and concludes that there will be plenty of capital there after all.

—Rev. Kenneth Duncan, of Ellensburg, late of Chicago, will deliver a popular lecture in the Presbyterian church on Friday evening, December 5th. Subject, "The Problem of the Cradle." A musical program will be given in connection with the lecture by the Yakima Quartet club and other talent. See posters and papers next week.

—The indebtedness of this county is about $140,000, against which there is tax money due from the Northern Pacific, which the county will soon receive, amounting to $15,000. The indebtedness of Kittitas county is about the same as that of Yakima, and in order to find it the vote carried at the last election to bond that county for $140,000.

—Edmond S. Meany, state representative-elect from King county, and president of the Washington World's Fair association, was in the city, Tuesday, urging the re-organization of the board of trade and the appointment of delegates to the state board of trade, which has taken the initiative in the matter of looking after Washington's representation at the world's fair. This is a matter of considerable importance to Yakima and should not be allowed to go by default through inaction.

PERSONAL.

Register Ira M. Krutz is on the sick list.

B. F. Young and C. M. Holton are on Sound.

W. J. Aumiller leaves to-day for a visit to his former home in Illinois.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred R. Reed are again home, having arrived from Seattle Tuesday.

Wayne Ferguson, of Spokane Falls, is in the city looking after his Yakima interests.

Lawrence Lamping returned from Seattle, Tuesday, where he has been visiting his parents.

Tobias Beckner was in town Tuesday, having brought in the returns from Alder Creek precinct.

Ben C. Irwin, the representative of the great stationery house of Geo. D. Barnard & Co., was in the city Wednesday.

Thomas Johnson, of Seattle and Ellensburg, was in Yakima Wednesday attending to business before the land office.

Fred Rowe is back from the Klickitat country, where he has been employed as one of the government land surveying corps.

R. K. Nichols returned from Olympia Saturday and left on the following Tuesday for Seattle to look after some legal business.

E. H. Lord and family returned last week from Oregon fully convinced that there is no place in the northwest equal to Yakima.

Mrs. A. H. Reynolds, who has been dangerously ill for some time past, is reported to be much improved and on the road to recovery.

Miss Louisa Monroe has resigned her position of teacher in the public schools and left to-day for Tacoma, where her mother is living.

George Donald came over from the Palouse country to spend Sunday with his family. He reports his railroad contract work as getting along swimmingly.

W. B. Bushnell, of Tacoma, spent several days in Yakima, during the past week, the guest of Wm. Ker. Accompanied by Mr. Ker he left for home Tuesday.

Miss Minnie Ward passed through the city Tuesday en route from Seattle to visit her parents at Prosser. Miss Ward is now in the employ of a local firm of Seattle as stenographer.

Harry Hampton and wife are no longer citizens of North Yakima. They departed immediately after the election for California, where Hampton has an uncle of years and good circumstances who wishes them to be near him.

Sunday evening S. O. Morford, J. H. Hathaway and Jasper Knox left for the east on a visit of a few weeks. Mr. Morford and Mr. Hathaway are from Ohio, and the latter has not been back to his old home since he left there 27 years ago. Mr. Knox formerly lived in Pittsburg, and he returns after an absence of 30 years.

"Went For a Gun."

Ellensburg State Register: On Monday, the day before election, a very bad colored man had some words with Dr. Hill and proposed to "fight him any mark in the road." This seemed to be an enjoyable proposition for the man of medicine, for he informed the other to divert himself of superfluous raiment. The descendant of Han weakened and said "he would get a gun" and started off down the street, ostensibly for that purpose. This produced an effect upon the doctor as magical as cayenne pepper sprinkled on the whiskers of a cantankerous goat does upon that amusing little quadruped. The man of profession had a gun—one of those far-reaching Winchester's—and was not long going after it. When he returned to the late scene of unpleasantness he was the picture of maddened humanity. He fortified himself on the apex of a bourbon barrel which was near at hand and awaited the coming of the spoiler. The gentleman clothed in mourning failed to show up, however, and thus avoided the cordial reception that was awaiting him.

TRUE STORY OF WAY BACK.

It's About the Cliff Dwellers, and Indians Vouch For It.

She was Young and Fair—Aroused the Love of a Medicine Man, and the Tribal Troubles Began.

Tucson, Arizona, Sept. 23.—The Indians of Arizona have several legends regarding the Cave Dwellers. Here is one of them, stripped of the Spanish words and the untranslatable expressions of the Indian:

"In the days when the great trees were not yet growing," begins the story, "there lived in a beautiful valley a clan who had light faces and who were very strong. They had horses and lands and sheep and corn, but they were warlike and fought with all the people around them until they had killed off all but a remnant of one of the tribes. Then the strong tribe abandoned its houses and departed away to the beautiful valley of the signing pines."

"The tribe which still survived and which numbered now only a few men, fewer than could be counted on the fingers of two hands, and a few women and a few children, left their hunting country and went to the southward, that they might be as far from their late oppressors as possible. They came to a mountain that was white at the top, and they said that it was the breast in the valley was warm and pleasant, and as they could hunt in the valley at will, they would live there and enjoy the summer air, which was tempered by the white-topped mountains."

"So they took up their homes in caves and lived there for many years. But the hunting was not good and the game was not plenty, nor did they get any corn in the valley, so they went to the south still further until they came to a canyon or baranca, so great in extent and so terrible in its depth that they could not cross it. In the sides of this place they built their houses, and as the tribe had not increased materially during the lapse of years, they were again progressing nicely."

"There was in the tribe a powerful medicine man or sorcerer who was possessed of the spirit of a devil. No one could tell whether it was a good devil or a bad one until he died, for in those days the children of the forest believed in sorcery, and there were but two kinds of devils—good ones and bad ones."

"The old chief, who was also a priest as well as a medicine man, but not so powerful a medicine man as the other, had a very pretty daughter. She had eyes that were winning and pretty, a mouth as ripe as a cherry and a form that was the envy of all the village maidens. To this bright and pretty object the affections of the wily witch doctor were attracted, and he vowed he would have her."

"But, as a matter of fact, the wily witch doctor was a bad devil and not a good one, though he usually posed as the latter. He labored under a great difficulty in his wooing, too, for aside from the fact that he was nearly a century old and not handsome, it was stipulated in the laws of the tribe that one of their members should not marry another. What was one member of the tribe if not the property of the tribe? Therefore, how could one man say: 'She is mine alone?' No he must go to some other tribe for his wife and not come to the maidens of his own village. Then there was another straw in his way. He was a witch doctor, and witch doctors were forbidden to marry any one."

"The old devil thought it over awhile, then went to his garret and consulted the oracle. The oracle told him that in a certain valley there were three trees, where he would find a strange herb, which he would know by a peculiar flower of deep purple shade. He was told that this herb, made into a brew and mixed with the food of the tribe, would kill all who were his enemies, but spare his friends."

"It was a good idea, and the old devil booked it. He departed from the village in the canyon, went to the valley indicated by the oracle and there found the herb he sought. It was of so pleasant an odor and beauty that he carried it home in great delight and forthwith made a brew of it."

"But before doing the whole crowd he thought he would throw out a few feathers and see how the land lay. He didn't want to kill the girl, for that would spoil all his plans. He must be sure that she was on his side or his plan would not work at all, so he prepared to lay siege to her heart."

"The maiden, fearing him greatly on account of his sorcery, received him graciously, and, for fear of offending him, did not object to his advances. He left that night for his own home highly pleased with everything on earth except the tribe of which he was a member, and determined that upon the morrow he would come a great feast to be called and then administer the fatal drug."

"He did. The old chief and his pretty daughter were there, and so were all the members of the tribe, now numbering upward of a hundred. They all looked sickened at the sorcerer, for they believed he was a bad devil, and they were about right, it seems. They all partook of the poisoned chowder, and soon after eating it one by one they went to sleep. They had been sleeping ever since."

"But the old witch doctor had overheard his mark. He had looked on the young maiden's love and lost. She didn't love him, and so when the drug came to her heart and found that it was not the old man's it killed her too, and the witch doctor was left alone on the rocky ledge overlooking the chasm."

"Then the old man tore out his hair, for he was mad. He had destroyed all his people and his own children and had also destroyed the object of his love. He thought about the best thing he could do would be to go down and jump off the cliff, and over he went. What little brains he had were battered about on the bottom of the canyon, and the coyotes gnawed his bones. Then came darkness over the cliff city, for in it all were dead."

The half-breed who told me this story believed it. He paused while the coyotes were gnawing the bones of the old sinner and seemed buried in thought. I waited impatiently for the remainder of the story, but he seemed loath to tell it. Finally, however, after giving him a fresh cigarette, he continued:

"That night there was no moon and only the stars were shining brightly in the heavens; there came from over the valley of the signing pines a white body, floating on beautiful wings which seemed not to move at all. It came nearer and nearer to the village of the dead and hovered over the place where lay the bodies of the chief and his pretty child and his family and all the people. It was the form of a fawn no larger than one of those little animals half grown, but it was of dazzling whiteness and possessed great swiftness. Suddenly it hovered directly over the body of the maiden, and the corpse seemed to rise and follow it into the air. Away across the canyon it flew, bearing with it the body of the beautiful maiden, disappearing at last over the trees into the valley of the pines. Then a bright light sprang up and the body of the maiden was never seen again, nor even a vestige of it."

"On that same night every year and at the same hour came the flying white fawn to the valley of the dead. Skeletons alone remained there, but they were removed one by one until after many, many years the flying white fawn came no more, for there were no more bones of the people lying in the fatal spot. This was years and years ago, for it was told to the old men who walked with our grandfathers by the grandfathers of their generation."

I made up my mind the Indian had concluded that the flying white fawn was a cremationist of the old school. But why she didn't make a wholesale job of it instead of letting some of her poorer relations wait around in the open air so many years I could not understand."

No bones have ever been found in the cliff dwellers' houses. Although some fragments of charred bones have been found, this fact might point to the theory of cremation among these Indians, and if that theory be accepted seriously, then the legend of the flying white fawn has some weight and a good deal of interest. The Hualapi and Mohave Indians cremate their dead, hence why may not the cliff dwellers have done so? If they did, who cremated the last man and what became of the old witch doctor who leaped from the brink of the chasm? It is fair to believe that he leaped according to the legend, for the top of the cliff is still there and so is the bottom."

The cliff dwellers were a strange people, unknown to any race whose records are legible at this day. They lived beyond a doubt, but when? How came the race to be so effectually effaced from the earth? Why have no utensils of any kind been left behind them to indicate to what age they belonged? If they were cremationists and believed as do Indian cremationists of to-day, then their implements were burned on the funeral pyres and their wares destroyed. Whatever may have been the fact, it is pertinent to-day that the race has been so totally obliterated that, save for the imperishable houses they built, no trace of them exists.—W. J. R. in New York World.

BLAINE GETS EXCITED.

He Expresses His Real Opinion of the Tariff—'An Infamy and Outrage.'

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7th.—Senator Joe Blackburn, in his elation over the great democratic victory, tells the following interesting story of Blaine and his shrewd political foresight. The story has created intense interest here:

Just after the passage of the McKinley bill by the house, he was sitting in the senate appropriation committee room, in company with Senators Allison and Hale, waiting for Secretary Blaine to come and consult with them about consular and diplomatic appropriations. Blaine finally arrived, attired in a brand new, shining plug hat. After greetings were exchanged Blackburn casually broached the subject of the tariff, and his astonishment can well be imagined when Blaine burst forth in a torrent of invectives against the McKinley bill.

He said: "That bill is an infamy and an outrage; it is the most shameful measure ever proposed to a civilized people. Go on with it and carry your party to perdition;" and, advancing toward Allison and Hale, he snapped his fingers in the face of each alternately and declared: "If that bill were here I would stamp and spit on it."

He had not heard about the bounty of 2 cents per pound on maple sugar, and when Blackburn called his attention to it he said: "This can't be true."

"But it is, though," said Blackburn, and Allison and Hale were both obliged to admit it to him.

"I suppose this was done at the solicitation of Morrill and Edmunds. It is like their narrow-minded statesmanship," said Blaine, and then came the climax.

His new silk hat was lying on the table in easy reach. With a sudden blow he brought his clenched hand down on it with such force as to smash it flatter than a pancake, and then, seizing the battered chapeau, he hurled it violently against the wall.

Blackburn was amazed. However, he kept the story to himself until to-day, when he told it to a newspaper correspondent.

WHY HE DESERTED.

Burial of an Ex-Confederate Recalls a Romance of the War.

New York Telegram: There was buried at Greenwood a few days ago a man with a curious history. He had been a confederate soldier, as brave as any of his comrades, but he deserted his army during the war and was tried by court martial for doing so. Edward Cooper was his name. For the past year he had been living at No. 355 Fourth avenue.

One bleak December morning in 1863 he was before a court martial of the army of northern Virginia. The prisoner was told to introduce his witnesses. He replied:

"I have no witnesses." Astonished at the calmness with which he seemed to be submitting to his inevitable fate, Gen. Battle said to him: "Have you no defense? Is it possible that you abandoned your comrades and deserted your colors in the presence of the enemy without reason?"

"There was a reason," replied Cooper, "but it will not avail me before a military tribunal."

"Perhaps you are mistaken," said the general; "you are charged with the highest crime known to military law, and it is your duty to make known the causes that influenced your actions."

Approaching the president of the court, Cooper presented a letter, saying as he did so: "There, general, is what did it?" The letter was offered as the prisoner's defense. It was in these words:

"DEAR EDWARD—Since your connection with the confederate army I have been proud of you than ever before. I would not have you do anything wrong for the world, but before God, Edward, unless you come home we must die! Last night I was aroused by little Eddie crying. I called to him and said: 'What is the matter, Eddie?' He replied: 'Oh, mamma, I am so hungry.' And Lucy, your darling Lucy. She never complains, but she grows thinner every day. Before God, Edward, unless you come home we must die. YOUR MARY."

Turning to the prisoner, Gen. Battle asked: "What did you do when you received that letter?"

Cooper replied: "I made application for a furlough—it was rejected. Again I made application, and it was rejected. That night as I wandered about our camp thinking of my home, the wild eyes of Lucy looking up to me and the burning words of Mary sinking in my brain, I was no longer the confederate soldier, but I was the father of Lucy and the husband of Mary. If ever gun in the battery had been fired upon me I would have passed those lines. When I reached home Mary flung her arms about my neck and sobbed:

"Oh, my Edward! I am so glad you got your furlough." "She must have felt me shudder, for she turned as pale as death, and catching her breath at every word she said: 'Have you come without your furlough? Go back, Edward, go back! Let me and the children go down to the grave, but for heaven's sake save the honor of our name!'"

There was not an officer on that court martial who did not feel the force of the prisoner's words, but each in turn pronounced the verdict—guilty. The proceedings of the court were reviewed by Gen. Lee, and upon the record was written:

"HEADQUARTERS A. N. V. "The findings of the court approved. The prisoner is pardoned and will report to his company." "R. E. LEE, General."

He Did Not Forget It. A wife recently gave her husband a sealed letter, begging him not to open it till he got to his place of business. When he did so he read:

"I am forced to tell you something that I know will trouble you, but it is my duty to do so. I am determined you shall know, let the result be what it may, when it has reached a crisis, and I can not keep it any longer. You must not censure me too harshly, for I do not reap the results as well as myself. I hope it won't crush you."

By this time the cold perspiration stood on his forehead with the fear of some terrible unknown calamity. He turned the page, his hair slowly rising, and read:

"The coal is all used up! Please call and ask for some to be sent this afternoon. I thought by this method you would not forget it." He didn't.—Sheffield Telegraph.

REDFIELD, The Jeweler,

Is the place to get your Spectacles and Eye Glasses. He has the most scientific Optometrist now in use. It measures accurately every optical defect—measures each eye separately, and avoids the error so often made in giving the same strength glass for each eye. This very largely accounts for so many who complain that their eyes become tired and have headache after using their glasses constantly for an hour or two.

No Case Too Complicated that Requires Glasses. Glasses ground, if necessary, to fit every optical defect, and satisfaction guaranteed.

STATE OF WASHINGTON, COUNTY OF YAKIMA, ss. In the Probate Court of Yakima County. MICHAEL SCHORN, Petitioner, vs. ALICE V. GOODWIN, Administratrix of the estate of George W. Goodwin, deceased, and the heirs-at-law and creditors and all persons interested in said estate.

On this 7th day of October, 1900, Michael Schorn, by his attorney, comes and presents his petition, duly filed in the above entitled court on the 24th day of October, 1900, claiming to be entitled to a conveyance for the lot numbered four (4), in block numbered two hundred and ten (10), in North Yakima, in said county and state, under a certain instrument in writing from George W. Goodwin, deceased, made on the 14th day of February, 1899, which said petition sets forth the death of said George W. Goodwin, that he died intestate on the 8th day of January, 1900, and at the date of his death he was a resident of said Yakima county, and state of Washington; that full payment has been made on said property by the said Michael Schorn, with the exception of the last payment of two hundred and twenty-five dollars which he is ready and willing to pay upon the execution and delivery to him of a good and sufficient deed of warranty for the premises; that the said Alice V. Goodwin was duly appointed administratrix of said George W. Goodwin, deceased, on the 24th day of February, 1900; that said Alice V. Goodwin has died intestate and is hereby considered and ordered, that the said petition be heard on the first day of December, 1900, at 10 o'clock a. m., the same being a day of a regular term of the court, at the court house in North Yakima, said Yakima county, state of Washington, and that due notice of the said decree and the time of hearing thereof be published for four weeks, next before the date of the hearing, in THE YAKIMA HERALD, a weekly newspaper published at North Yakima, in said county and state.

(Signed) CARROLL R. GRAVES, Judge of the Superior Court.

STATE OF WASHINGTON, COUNTY OF YAKIMA, ss. I, Dudley Eshelman, county clerk, and ex-officio clerk of Superior Court of Yakima county, state of Washington, do hereby certify that the above and foregoing is a full, true and correct copy of the order of court, made in the above and foregoing entitled action as the same now appears of record in my office.

DUDLEY ESHELMAN, County Clerk and Ex-officio Clerk Superior Court.

Yakima Cigars

MANUFACTURED AT Moxee, Yakima County.

ARE PRONOUNCED BY LEADING judges of Cigars, East and West, to be the best Cigars they can get. There is no coloring or flavoring matter used in their manufacture. They have a

Most Delicious and Peculiar Flavor

OF THEIR OWN, AND, WHILE blended, like all first-class Cigars, are made principally from tobacco grown and cured on the

Moxee Plantation

THEY ARE THE FINEST AMERICAN Cigars in the country, and there is nothing purer or finer imported.
