OUR STATE AT CHICAGO.

A large and beautiful lithograph of the Washington state building as it appears on the grounds of the World's fair at Chicago is published, and one has been sent to THE HERALD. On looking at it one is impressed with the wisdom of the committee in selecting this design, and is not surprised that those who have seen it say, as Mr. Gardner Hubbard did, that it is about the most notable state building in the entire group. The hint of pioneer times which is found in the foundation makes a striking groundwork, and tells the story correctly, both of the newness of the state and of one of its chief products. The magnificent proportions of the logs have been an object of wonder and admiration from the very time they started on their journey until now, and doubtless will be on to the close of the great exposition.

This reminds us that at the approaching session of the legislature the state will be asked for more money to continue the work of making Washington's state exhibition a success. This request should be met by no stingy spirit of narrow economy. We are in for it now in a very satisfactory way, and to pursue any course that would lead to failure would be a much greater mistake than any that is likely to be made by this or any other state in the way of over-appropriation. The money appropriated by the late legislature has been about all expended, and, so far as we know, there has not been much complaint of indelicacy by the committee in the use of the funds in its hands. Whatever may yet be said in criticism of any part of the work done should be the subject of careful inquiry, and every advantage should be taken of any lesson that may be taught by errors that have occurred. This, however, should not be made a reason nor even an argument or pretext for withholding the needed appropriation to carry forward the work of exploiting the wealth and opportunities for wealth in the natural resources of the state of Washington. It is not too much to expect that we will have the banner building and the banner display of the entire layout, and many visitors to the fair will seek knowledge of our state through its display, with the same earnestness and particularly evinced by those who travel to the state itself and look it over with a view to either settlement or investment. It will be our chapter in the great book of the world that will be laid open for amusement and instruction at Chicago next May, to be studied by people from all parts of the world. Those of us who have seen the wonderful growth of the state as it has come on from year to year in the past decade, will need no argument to convince us of the advantages to be gained by this opportunity for spreading far and wide the information we wish to put before the world. More can be done in one season by liberal expenditure at Chicago, than in ten years and with a hundred times the money dished out in drive. In the matter of lumber no competitor can touch us. In everything we are far ahead of Oregon at Chicago already, owing to the niggardly action of her legislature at its late session. In the matter of minerals we can easily stand alongside of Montana and Colorado; while in a display of irrigation facilities we ought to rank with Colorado, Utah and Idaho, and to show the possibility of coming up with California. In no line of product need we be behind any state in the Union, not tropical in its climate. It is the time of foodstuffs with us for pushing our fortunes, and the legislature has it in its power to take such action as will send us wonderfully ahead; or, by a mistake, to throw away what has been already expended.

Leigh R. J. Hunt, of the Seattle Post-Intelligencer, is said to have run against a salted gold mine located in the Okanogan country, and dropped $75,000. It will require the sale of three million copies of his paper before his bank account will have any where near its former demands proportions.

The Omaha Bee's advice to railway rate makers for the World's fair is not elegant but it is apropos, which is better. It is: "Don't be a hog."

It is estimated that the inheritance tax of 1 per cent will yield to the state of New York $750,000 from the estate of Jay Gould.

GOULD'S CRITICAL PERIOD.

The New York Herald tells an interesting story that upsets the popular notion that Jay Gould was invincible. It claims that in 1866 a promissory note with his name went begging round Wall street at a heavy discount. Only eight years ago he was on the verge of failure. This after the panic of May, 1864, one of the few times when he was tempted into the stock market as a speculator in order to head up the price of stock with which he was burdened. The late Charles F. Worcester, Henry N. Smith and other operators were combined in an effort to bear the securities which Gould was carrying. He had supported them for a time by obtaining sterling bills, giving his securities as collateral and the converting of bills into cash. But sterling loans, like all others, came to naught. The bears were as unscrupulous as himself—bold, skillful and persistent. Gould's Western Union fell to 40 and his Missouri Pacific to 62. He was beaten. One morning he had his lawyer execute an assignment of his property, and the following day his yacht went down to Long Branch, where the bear operators were summering.

Gould's emissaries landed and held a conference with his foes. They bore a copy of his ultimatum, the assignment, and the statement that unless the bears made terms with him he would, on the following morning, file the assignment, and give public notice that he was unable to meet his engagements. At that time he was supposed to be borrowing $20,000,000, and his failure would create a bigger panic than the one the street had just passed through. The bears agreed to let up on Gould on condition that he would turn over to them 50,000 shares of Western Union at the current market price, $60 per share. This enabled them to make delivery of the shares they had sold at high prices. The bears were heavily short of Gould's Missouri Pacific. However, with $2,500,000 of their money for the 50,000 shares of Western Union he speedily rushed Missouri Pacific up to par, $100 per share, and forced them to settle on terms of his dictation. If the bears had enough grit on that Sunday Gould's career would have terminated very differently. As it was, the shock resulted in Gould's making preparations to consolidate and conserve the securities he owned, and he never again took an active part in manipulating the market.

Nebraska State Journal: Backward, turn backward, O! time in your flight, give us a victory just for to-night; wipe from our features the torrent of tears, take up the slack in the rope of the years; turn back the clock till it reads '88, blot out the present unmerciful fate, give us some hope for the nation's concerns, change the returns, change the returns. Backward, flow backward, O! stream of the age, seasoned with republican rage; blot from our vision stuffed prophets and crow, choke off democrat's bluster and blow; jerk from despair a few fragments of hope, "keep a good eye" as we roll down the slope, never mind now—it's too late—what a scoop! Bring us the soup, mister, bring us the soup.

Senator Watson C. Squire is no longer attracted by the ambrosial cup. The sparkling wines have lost their insidious away, and the vintage of Kentucky fails to allure him from his senatorial duties. He has taken the Keely cure.

The liabilities of Russell Harrison's Helena newspaper, which failed not long ago, foot up a quarter of a million of dollars. Mr. Harrison's senatorial boom is included in the barren assets.

George Hazard is authority for the statement that the advisory committee of the democratic central committee has the distribution of the postoffice patronage in this state.

THE BAZAAR OF NATIONS A SUCCESS
Large Numbers Attend the Fair and the Episcopal Church Fund is Materially Infused.

The Bazaar of Nations, which was held at Mason's opera house, under the auspices of the ladies of St. Michael's Episcopal parish, closed last night after two financial profits. The entertainment was well conceived, and the ladies worked hard to make it the success it proved. The hall was lined with booths, charmingly presided over by fair saleswomen, appropriately and attractively attired to represent the various nations. In the center of the hall was the Japanese booth where the Misses Wright, Nichols and Kingsbury, handsomely costumed, and a thriving business in Japanese ware. The Turkish booth was constantly thronged with customers, who found solace in delicious coffee and comfort in the soft rugs and the eiderdown pillows which were temptingly arranged within. Mrs. Fred R. Reed and Miss Allen presided over this booth, attired in becoming oriental costumes, and were quite successful in alluring dollars to the church fund in exchange for Turkish slippers, towels, pillows and other articles which are supposed to come from the land of the crescent. The booth was handsomely hung with portieres and drapes, which had been kindly furnished by Messrs. Lombard & Horsley.

THE FIRE DEPARTMENT'S GRAND BALL.

A Long List of Attractive Prizes Offered—Some Regal Costumes Are Promoted.

The interest displayed in the masquerade ball to be given by the Yakima fire department in the big Cadwell block, Monday evening, December 20, is daily increasing. The offering of attractive prizes has spurred many to greater effort in devising and providing costumes, and everything indicates that there will be strong competition among the masquers, and that the carnival will be by far the most successful ever given in this city. A customer from Tacoma is now here, and local dressmakers and tailors are busy filling demands for this occasion. The prize list is a long one and attractive, and embraces so many conditions that those who do not win a prize for some perfection may do so for some imperfection. The best dancers and those best costumed will be well remembered, as will also be the finest formed lady, the largest and smallest couples of waltzers, the best Martha Washington and the best Uncle Sam. Others will come in for prizes, including the widow lady wearing the most attractive costume, who will be remembered with a ton of coal; best clown, the one wearing the homeliest costume, nicest cotton-costumed lady, and so on.

Some friendly strife may be expected among those who will desire to be the judges of the best-formed lady, but the management is in good hands and there will be no question but what every one present will find the evening one of pleasure and profit. The grand march will commence at 8:30 o'clock, the awarding of prizes at 11, lifting of masks at 11:30 and supper at the Hotel Bartholet at midnight. The best music obtainable has been secured and the managers are leaving nothing undone to make the occasion one never to be forgotten in the social annals of Yakima.

PASTOR KOENIG'S NERVE TONIC
A Perfect Success. VII
The Rev. A. Antonio of Redondo, Tex., writes: "As far as I am able to judge, I think Pastor Koenig's Nerve Tonic is a perfect success for any one who has suffered from a most painful nervousness as I did. I feel like myself again after taking the Tonic."

Denver, Col., November, '92.
About five years ago I was taken by fits one night for the first time; since then they come oftener for three years. Being poor I had to work for a living, and on account of the disease nobody wanted me to work for them. Had given up almost all hope to ever get any relief, but I took Pastor Koenig's Nerve Tonic, and had only a slight attack within one month, and some others.

Mr. J. B. Geerin, of Las Vegas, New Mexico, writes: "People are surprised here of the effect of Pastor Koenig's Nerve Tonic, since I had and know prepared under his direction by the Koenig Med. Co., Chicago, Ill. Sold by Druggists at $1 per Bottle, 6 for $5. Large Size, $1.75. 6 Bottles for $9."

HERALDINGS.

C. H. Leadbetter, jr., visited Spokane this week. J. M. Baxter made a flying trip to Walla Walla this week.

M. V. B. Stacy, of Seattle, was in the city Saturday and Sunday. G. A. Bailey returned Tuesday from a business trip to San Francisco.

Born, at North Yakima, December 10, to the wife of Frank D. Cook, a daughter. The Western Union expects to open its uptown office in the new Dudley block about January 1.

C. W. Engdahl, who is at present a resident of Sumner, is in the city looking after his property interests. Sutton's monster double Uncle Tom's Cabin company will appear at Mason's opera house on the 30th inst.

City Superintendent George H. Watt has opened up a night school in this city, which promises to be a great success. Roslyn News: Isaac Brown, Peter Hardman and F. A. Abernethy made a trip to Yakima one day during the week.

The hops of the Moxee company, numbering 200 bales, were loaded this week by A. B. Weed for shipment to England. During the month of November the operators at the depot handled 1,800 commercial dispatches, a gain of 100 per cent over the same period of 1891.

Owing to a defective fuse, a fire occurred last week in the lower Matchee school-house. The damage was light, but the scholars gained a two days' vacation. D. E. Leah, C. H. Leadbetter, Fred R. Reed, E. C. Burlingame, A. W. Ryan, Wm. Ker, and E. M. Reed were among the visitors to the Sound during the past week.

A ten ton boiler for the water and electric light company was received this week, and another dynamo and a 210 horsepower engine are now on the road. The local telegraph operators were kept busy Tuesday night, sending off 6,000 words of newspaper messages, principally regarding the meeting of the agricultural college regents.

Willie Fulkerson, the telegraph messenger, made a trip to Tappanish the other day. He carried a gun and had blood in his eye, and succeeded in bagging five ducks and a prairie chicken. The Yakima fruit and hop company, with a capitalization of $70,000, has been incorporated by George C. Mitchell, Fred A. Morgan, and Frank V. Morgan, of Seattle. Their base of operation will be the Sunnyside country.

W. F. Courtney, the cattle buyer, who was injured by a fall while loading stock at the cattle yards some months ago, has begun a suit for damages against the Northern Pacific. His attorneys are D. J. Crowley, of Tacoma, and H. J. Snively. The Roslyn election last week resulted in the success of the following ticket: Mayor, Dr. W. H. Harris; treasurer, John S. Taggard; assessor, James Lane; health officer, Hugh McGillis; councilmen, Joseph Merchant, James Ash, J. W. Richards and David Williams.

A special meeting of the state board of education will be held at Tacoma on the 27th, 28th and 29th of December, 1892, to complete unfinished business now pending before the board, and to pass upon such applications for certificates and diplomas as are based upon papers from other states. Judge J. R. Lewis evidently wants his party news a little diluted, for he writes from San Jose, Cal., as follows: "I am located here for the winter, and have some anxiety to get weekly news from the only strictly republican state on the coast, and to that end I would be pleased to have you send me THE HERALD to this address."

Professor Seymour, editor of Human Nature, of San Francisco, Cal., vice president of San Francisco Phenological club, opens a course of lectures at Mason's opera house, Friday evening, December 16, on "Phenology and Evolution," illustrated by an immense gallery of many-moth oil paintings, plates, etc. Professor Seymour comes very highly recommended by the press. Admittance first night free.

C. R. Rockwood, in writing to THE HERALD from Yuma, Ariz., and renewing his subscription says: "Mrs. R. and I fight over THE HERALD as to who shall first get the news from home and friends left behind us. The climate here during the winter is glorious for invalids and men; but as for me I sigh longingly for the snap in the Yakima air that makes one think that snow and ice are somewhere in the vicinity."

Yakima as a winter feeding ground for stock is in high favor among cattlemen, and 100 cars of stock, numbering about 2,000 head, have been received here from various points in eastern Washington and Idaho, to be fattened for the markets of the Sound. This is proving very beneficial to farmers who have plenty of hay, and has had the effect of maintaining prices. The shippers who are making Yakima a feeding ground are Rice & Gardner, Puget Sound Dressed Beef & Packing Co., B. E. Snipes, Fry & Bruhn and A. J. Splawn & Co.

THE HERALD takes pleasure in chronicling the marriage, on Wednesday, Dec. 14th, of W. H. Redman and Miss Carrie Vickroy. The ceremony was performed by Rev. S. H. Chesdale, at the residence of J. H. Hubbard, in the presence of a few friends and relatives. The bride is from Macon city, Mo., and arrived here this spring on a visit to the family of her uncle, Mr. Hubbard. The groom has been resident of Yakima for some years and is the present efficient and popular surveyor of city and county.

A meeting of the property holders of the Wenas was held Monday, and it was decided to begin the sinking of artesian wells immediately after January 1. The Rotary Well company has agreed to secure flowing water within a thousand feet or forfeit all claims for work performed, and the first well will be bored on the ranch of Fechter & Ross. If the wells are successful a system of wells will be sunk for the purpose of irrigating between five and six thousand acres belonging to the Ritters, John Clemen and others in that neighborhood. Mr. A. B. Ross is very hopeful that artesian water will be obtained, and, judging from the formation of the country and croppings, thinks it within the range of possibilities that coal will be encountered.

Madre d'Oro: The Hazel Shepard mine, owned by B. D. Vandever, of North Yakima, will prove a bright star in the crown of the Albian country around Livingstone lake and vicinity, and will bring that country into the prominence to which it is justly entitled. The Parker, Barbolet and Livingstone mines of this country are of remarkable worth, and propositions of the highest order. This country is situated about twenty miles south of Oro, and one to five miles west of the Okanogan river.

The first term's work of the Altman academy will close on Thursday evening next. There will be a special effort made to give an entertainment worthy of patronage. The exercises will consist of recitations, music, a drill in free gymnastics and a presentation of Mrs. Jarley's Wax Figures. There will be an admission fee of 25 cents, and the receipts will go towards founding a library. All are invited.

Wenatchee has some high-rolling gamblers, and last week Tom Gullard's estimated winnings at "craps" were $10,000. His luck induced a sickle Deliah to desert her former "protector" for him, and as a result there was a lively fight in which a dozen shots were fired, one man was stabbed, and there were numerous broken heads and blackened eyes.

Much interest is being taken in the meetings at the Christian church, where J. S. McCallum, of Olympia, preaches every night and twice on Sundays. Twenty-one have united with the church since the meetings began and the number is being increased nightly. Mr. McCallum will remain over Sunday.

Dealers state that the price of wood will be raised to $5 a cord, owing to the increase of 45 cents a cord which the Northern Pacific has levied on this class of freight from Cle-Elum to Yakima. Until recently the freight rate per car was $10, but it has been jumped up to $13.75.

The report that Dudley Eshelman would endeavor to retain the clerk's office until March is an error. He will gracefully retire on the 1st of January. H. B. Voorhes has been appointed deputy clerk under J. M. Brown, the incoming county clerk.

Léa Fairchild spent a couple of days in the city during the past week, and volunteered to deliver a lecture in the near future for the benefit of the Grand Lodge, K. of P., fund. The local lodge will consider Mr. Fairchild's generous offer at its next meeting.

O. W. Johnson, of Puyallup, arrived here on Wednesday and will complete the purchase of the M. G. Willis saloon on Monday next. Mr. Johnson proposes to lease the entire building, and furnish the upper story in an attractive manner.

The largest hop sale of the season was made last week when A. B. Weed purchased 200 bales of hops from the Moxee company. Mr. Weed bought the hops on his own account, at 20 cents, paying $10,500 in cash for the lot.

The mammoth advertisement of T. G. Redfield which appears in this issue of THE HERALD cannot fail to attract the attention of the reader. He is offering jewelry at auction to the highest bidder. Call and see his stock.

We cure the liquor, morphine or tobacco habit at home. No interruption of business or pleasure. Circular free. Address: Wash. Ave. Co., Box 1910, Spokane, Wash.

On Monday H. L. Stowell was elected mayor of Ellensburg. Mr. Stowell was chairman of the Kittitas county republican central committee in the last campaign.

Messrs. Vinson, Chapman and Schanbo brought back upwards of fifty ducks and a couple of geese as a result of their recent trip down the Yakima.

Miss Myrtle Heagy, of Tacoma, niece of Dr. W. W. McCormack, is in the city and will spend the Christmas holidays here.

An Indian named Kimbush will be examined before U. S. Commissioner Henton today, charged with stealing horses on the reservation.

Wayne Ferguson returned to Spokane Tuesday night. He was accompanied by Sam Vinson, who only remained there a day.

C. A. Sanders has sold the Ellensburg water-works to Tacoma capitalists for $45,000. The new owners will take possession January 1.

Messrs. O. A. Stratton, J. E. Baxter and I. H. Dills left yesterday for the lower Yakima, on a hunting expedition. Mrs. Owen Adair, mother of Dr. G. J. Hill, arrived here on Saturday last, accompanied by Dr. Hill's young son.

Mrs. Frank Gordon, of Spokane, is in the city on a visit to the family of I. M. Krutz. Go to Schott the shoeman for your Christmas slippers and winter footwear. John Reed has received fifteen cars of Roslyn coal since the 7th inst.

The Argument Used

BY the makers of the second-class baking powders to induce the dealer to push them off on Royal consumers is that they cost less than Royal and afford the dealer much more profit.

But you, madam, are charged the same price for them as for the absolutely pure Royal, which is perfectly combined from the most highly refined and expensive materials. The lower cost of the others is caused by the cheap, impure materials used in them, and the haphazard way in which they are thrown together.

Do you wish to pay the price of the Royal for an inferior baking powder, made from impure goods, of 27 per cent less strength? If you buy the other powders, insist upon having a corresponding reduction in price.

AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE REGENTS AT WORK

Regent Smith Tells of Governor's High Priced Wink-Lilly Gets His Conger.

The agricultural college regents convened in this city on Monday. There were present Dr. Conover, of Seattle; J. H. Bellinger, of Colfax; A. H. Smith, of Tacoma, and D. E. Leah, of Yakima. The minutes of the meeting were kept by Mr. Gibbs, the accountant of the college. Regent Fellows, of Spokane and President Lilly were absent.

Very little business was attended to aside from the discussion and action on the college presidency. There were many applications for the position, but the board decided to consider none which came from without the state, and when a successor for President Lilly was formally determined upon the only candidates receiving votes were J. W. Heston and J. P. Hendricks, of Seattle, and Mr. Lilly.

Conover fought for Lilly from start to finish, but of course without avail upon his decapitation had been decided upon. Regent Smith explained the position assumed by him in a written statement which was full of pith and clearly showed Mr. Lilly's lack of executive ability and other characteristics not especially desirable in one holding such a position.

Mr. Smith evidently doesn't pin his whole faith in Dr. Conover, for he set forth that Conover had informed his colleagues that he thought that a change in the college presidency would be beneficial to that institution, but that they need not be surprised when a vote was taken if he should vote for Lilly's retention as "he had become so tangled up with Prof. Lilly and his friends that he could not do otherwise." And again when the regents had ordered that the salary of Lilly and the other teachers should begin on Jan. 1, 1892, Lilly explained that this did not appear on the minutes and he had issued a warrant for salary from Dec. 10, 1891, because "Conover winked at me, so I left it out." This wink cost the institution $349.98.

The board continued in session through Monday and adjourned to meet at Tacoma the following day.

The presentation of "The Exile" at the opera-house, Saturday evening, by the dramatic club, was greeted by another splendid audience who showed their appreciation of the efforts of the performers by close attention and frequent applause. All acquitted themselves with credit and Manager Kelly is to be congratulated upon the success with which his efforts are being met. A pleasing incident of these entertainments is the piano solos of Miss Florence Barker during the intermissions, which never fail to be received with hearty applause.

G. A. Bailey, who has established himself in the larger of the Cadwell buildings, on Second street, will have a grand exhibition of pianos, organs and sewing machines beginning on the 20th inst. Mr. Bailey will make a new departure in having an expert here from San Francisco who cannot fail to please and entertain all who attend the exhibition.

Read G. A. Bailey's big advertisement in this issue of THE HERALD, and don't forget the opening of his exhibition of pianos, organs and sewing machines on the 20th inst.

Louis Lechmond, the well known hop buyer was quietly married to Miss Pixley, at Tacoma, a few days ago and has now gone to housekeeping at Puyallup.

Bring your Christmas advertisements in early for next week. Andrew Gibson is in the city from Meritt.

PROCEEDINGS OF THE SUPERIOR COURT.

The Session Closed on Thursday—The Docket is Relieved of Many Cases.

The superior court adjourned on Thursday, after a session of ten days, during which much business was cleared from the docket. The case of the State vs. S. L. Masters, for libel, which was on trial when THE HERALD went to press last week, resulted in a verdict of guilty, and a fine of $300. The costs amounted to about $500.

Peter Quiring, the German hop grower, who shot Wm. Cody in Wills' saloon some months ago, was found guilty of assault and fined $100 and costs.

THE PRESIDENT'S SAVINGS.

Benjamin Harrison Will Leave the White House Well Off.

His Big Living Expenses—Despite the Heavy Drain on His Purse He Has Managed to Save About $100,000.

[From a special correspondent of the Press.] President Harrison will probably take more than half of his salary with him when he retires from the White House on the 4th of next March.

An outside estimate of his expenses just and prospective during the four years of his term leaves a balance of $100,000 from the $200,000 which he will have drawn.

No president since Grant has lived up to his salary. There is really no reason why he should. The government provides a house for him, furnishes it and supplies the servants.

When Grant came into office the salary of the president was $25,000 annually. Yet several of Grant's predecessors had been able to save money.

Probably the poorest of the presidents was Jefferson. He would have been bankrupt if congress had not appropriated $25,000 to buy his library.

Washington, as every one knows, married the rich widow Curtis, and his estate was worth more than a quarter of a million. John Adams was worth, perhaps, $50,000 at the time of his death.

Grant spent a great deal of money while he was in the White House, and all that he took with him when he left the presidential office was lost in the failure of his son.

When President Harrison came into office he was worth perhaps $50,000. He had accumulated this money little by little in the practice of law.

Since he came to Washington the president has been drawing $100 a day from the treasury, and he has not been able to spend one-half that amount.

A fair estimate of the president's expenses in the White House during this administration places them at $125,000 a year.

may be considered in the nature of an investment it is not at all likely that he will ever get his $10,000 back from it.

Counting that amount the expenses of the administration they add up as follows:

Table with 2 columns: Item, Amount. Includes White House expenses, Cape May cottage, individual expenses, Mrs. Harrison's illness, Campaign contributions.

Total, $94,000. The president will have drawn $200,000 from the treasury by the 4th of March next.

Some of the money is already invested. The president went into a real estate deal recently with Attorney-General Miller.

The president comes out of office in this respect a great deal better than any one who went in office under his administration.

The members of the president's family will suffer more than the president himself from the change in the condition of their affairs next March.

General Harrison's family has always been a burden to him. His son, Russell, especially has given his father much anxiety.

His newspaper in Helena, Mont., was seized for debt as soon as the result of the election became known in that city.

When President Harrison came into office he was worth perhaps $50,000. He had accumulated this money little by little in the practice of law.

THE SANTA FE TRAIL.

By MRS. J. K. HUDSON.

[Copyright, 1882, by American Press Association.]

"Where on earth has he been?"

The old Santa Fe Trail, the scene of so many exploits of daring and suffering, is now an overgrown path.

It would not be wise, however, to set out upon this journey by any of the methods of travel that were in use when the Santa Fe Trail was the scene of a great traffic.

The old trading town of Westport was for a long time the eastern limit of the Santa Fe Trail.

More than once, when the woman sat on the deck of the Polar Star and gazed across the muddy waters of the river into the young cottonwood groves beyond.

But as the voyage progressed and the woman gave no sign, the captain was puzzled. He said to himself: "She knows where she is going and what she is about."

"Nobody met me," she said to the captain as he came up, and, though the words had a lonely sound, he was puzzled anew at the tone.

"What do you suppose has prevented your friend from meeting you?"

There all was excitement. The Polar Star was already being made fast to the huge cottonwood stumps that hung over the water.

The Mexican buyers ordered the wagon trains down in haste, the boat's long delay making them impatient to start out.

She had come aboard late at that city with her passage paid to Westport Landing.

More than once, when the woman sat on the deck of the Polar Star and gazed across the muddy waters of the river into the young cottonwood groves beyond.

But as the voyage progressed and the woman gave no sign, the captain was puzzled.

"Nobody met me," she said to the captain as he came up, and, though the words had a lonely sound, he was puzzled anew at the tone.

"What do you suppose has prevented your friend from meeting you?"

"It seems unpardonable in such a place as this," and much more was said.

see the Mexicans, and the wagon trains, and the prairie, and it was time to return to the landing, the woman turned to her companion of the voyage and asked her if she would go with them to the fort, adding that she could probably find employment there in some officer's family or she could return by the boat to St. Louis.

There was nothing to do but to say goodby, wish the woman a safe journey and success in her errand.

All save one. At King's corral the oxen were standing idly about, and the stupid Mexicans were looking along the many little trails that converged toward Westport, and up and down the "King's highway."

The stranger said nothing, but bustled herself about the cooking she had volunteered to assist with.

The wagon master's wife never knew to a certainty just what became of the flowers that were gathered on the "King's highway," but she took it for granted that they were thrown away after she had imparted the information of finer ones to come.

But as the voyage progressed and the woman gave no sign, the captain was puzzled.

"Nobody met me," she said to the captain as he came up, and, though the words had a lonely sound, he was puzzled anew at the tone.

"What do you suppose has prevented your friend from meeting you?"

"It seems unpardonable in such a place as this," and much more was said.
