ARGUMENT FOR INITIATIVE MEASURE NO. 199

VOTE YES

Make Washington's Legislature truly representative of all the people. Vote Yes for 199.

Initiative 199 creates more equal legislative districts. It was drafted by the nonpartisan League of Women Voters of Washington. The Chairman of the Republican State Central Committee and the Chairman of the Democratic State Central Committee appointed representatives to work with members of the drafting committee which framed this measure.

The Constitution requires the State Legislature to change the number of legislative districts or their boundaries after each census in accordance with changes in population in order to keep the number of people represented by each legislator as nearly equal as possible. Since 1901 this has been done only once when the people redistricted by initiative in 1930.

Shifts and changes in the population have occurred in the intervening 25 years. Redistricting is once more long overdue. Each year the inequality of voting power gets worse.

Consider 2 districts in eastern Washington. According to the latest (1950) official census one of them has a population of about 18,000; the other, 80,000. Even more extreme are two districts in King County; one has about 35,000; the other, 130,000. Each district has 1 senator and 2 representatives.

Initiative 199 gives Washington voters a chance to right these wrongs. A vote Yes for 199 will help make one man's vote worth the same as another. Expert opinion has rated this the fairest and most accurate plan ever proposed for the state.

Initiative 199 carries out the requirements of the State Constitution. It creates districts with approximately the same number of people in them. It takes into account geographical variations, community of interest, and areas of changing population. Initiative 199 counts people and not registered voters. The number of districts is increased from 46 to 49. Each district will elect 1 senator and 2 representatives, except the largest district, which will have 3 representatives.

A few of the public-minded groups favoring 199 are:

Washington Education Association	Chambers of Commerce—
Washington Junior Chamber of Commerce	Tacoma, Seattle, South Kitsap
Washington Republican Club	Central Labor Councils—
Young Democrats of Washington	Tacoma, Seattle, Renton
Municipal League of Seattle and King County	Aeronautical Industrial District Lodge 751
Municipal League of Tacoma	Evergreen Republican Club
King County Republican Convention	Metropolitan Democratic Club
King County Democratic Convention	Young Democrats of King County
